Clanton Affirmative High School

Citizens Meet and Formulate Plans to Secure Institution

The citizens of Clanton met Monday night in an enthusiastic meeting to formulate plans for securing the location of the County High School. Senator Thos. A. Curry was chairman, and arrangements were made for a committee to confer with the State High School Commission. Clanton has the amount of finances, needed to meet the requirements of them in every way, and is ready for the High School Comission to give their consideration to the location of the schoolhere. Let the other towns and communities bear in mind that we have as much right to the school as Clanton so far as the county funds and county officials are concerned. If they desire the school, now is the time to act.

Death of Mrs. Mariah Baker

Mrs. Mariah Baker, wife of J. W. Baker departed from this life on November 22. She was about eighty years old and had been a Christian from her thirteenth year. She always spent a good portion of her time in teaching her children to live a Christian life, and to be ready to answer God's call when it was sounded.

She had been in poor health for some time but three weeks of her last days she suffered greatly untold misery, with heart dropsy and indigestion. She leaves a husband and 12 children and a host of grand children to mourn her departure through her sickness she sung, and read songs and prayed for her children, and her companion, and told her husband she hoped she would know him as long as she lived. At times she didn't know any one.

She leaves a husband and twelve children to mourn the loss.

A Letter of Thanks

Editor Union-Banner:—With your kind permission I wish, on behalf of the inmates of the County Farm, to express sincere thanks to the kind ladies and gentlemen of Thorsby, the generous people of Clanton, and to Dr. P. I. Hopkins and good lady for their usual remembrance of them on Thanksgiving day and Xmas.

To the ladies, gentlemen and children of Thorsby, I extend the hearty thanks of the inmates of the home for the delightful good things on Thanksgiving day, and to wish them much happiness and long life. These good citizens always remember the unfortunate of the home, for which we are extremly grateful.

Xmas was made very pleasant to the inmates of the Farm, by the lavish kindness of the good people of our prosperous little City of Clanton, and dare say that no other town and county can boast of more generous hearted citizens, who do more for the comfort of the unfortunate class, who become charges upon them, than does our efficient County Board and citizens at large.

Mr. Standfield and wife came out as the representatives of those who contributed so largely to the pleasure of the inmates, and often presenting each one of the inmates with an atendance of fruits etc. gave each one a shiny silver dollar and no doubt, some of them will have the same when they die and could the kind donators have seen the pleased expression on their faces, would have felt repaid.

May the blessed one who was sent to our sin besotted world 1913 years ago, bless each of those who made Xmas so pleasant and give each one a beautiful crown when life is over.

To Dr. P. I. Hopkins and good wife many thanks for their remembrance of the children as well as grown ones and we return to them sincere thanks for their usual remembrance. I beg to say, want of space will not allow me to personate the many good people who contributed to the pleasure of the unfortunate wards under our control but do beg to say, that our efficient Solicitor F. L. Tate added his prorata to the comfort of the inmates.

In conclusion and on behalf of those under me, please allow me to thank the kind Editor and those with him, for their kindness in publishing this card of thanks and again to thank the generous public for their remembrance of the poor of the Farm. To Him in whose blessed hands we are, let us bow in thankfulness for the good that we daily receive.

With best regards very truly.

W. A. Huckabee,
Mrs. Huckabee.

Pecan Growing In Chilton

That the growing of Pecans would be a profitable industry in Chilton County is attested by an example furnished by Mrs. Collins, mother of our Tax Collector, who lives near Clanton. At Mrs. Collins' home there is a pecan tree from which this year she gathered a crate of fine nuts and sold them for $26.00. There must evidently be a good profit in such deals as this, as there is no cost involved in raising pecans. Simply the expense of a few cents for a little nursery shrub. It may be planted in any kind of place and left practically alone for a few years, and it automatically begins to yield the dividends as in the above instance.

A Petition For Mass Meeting

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala. as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

In last week's issue of the Union-Banner we stated that the four thousand dollars which was voted by the county commissioners for the purpose of erecting a county high school building at some place in Chilton County was to be supplemented by four thousand dollars raised by the citizens of the community securing the location of the school and four thousand from the state appropriation. This is a mistake on our part, not intentional of course, but one of mere neglect in stating what we really did understand about the matter. The state does not offer any aid in the erection of a building. The state merely takes care of the cost of operating the school, and the county and community must look to the erection of the building etc. We hope no one will be mislead by our mistake.

PROFESSION AN OLD ONE

That Ancients Knew the Art of Dentistry Has Been Abundantly Proved by Discoveries Made.

Tooth-pulling is doubtless as ancient a surgical operation, if so it may be called, as is known to mankind, but tooth-filling has been supposed to be a modern invention. Herodotus, and of course, Galen, knew something about dentistry, but apparently not about fillings. But as early as the sixteenth century there is found printed evidence that the use of gold leaves to fill cavities had long been known, if not generally practiced.

The assertion that Egyptian mummies have been found with gold-filled teeth is now generally thought to be an error arising out of the fact that the Egyptians often gilded the teeth of mummies for ornament. The question comes up in connection with the explorations of Professor Saville of Columbia, in Ecuador. He found many pre-Aztec skulls perhaps 1,000 years old, of a type superior to the Aztecs, and what was especially remarkable was that their teeth showed both gold and cement filling.

The gold-filled teeth struck him as the most unusual feature of his finds. In Mexico, he had dug up skulls with teeth filled or ornamented with stone, but he had never before seen gold fillings in a prehistoric skull. The gold was on the edges of the teeth, and had been applied from the inside. It showed little on the outside, so the purpose appeared to be less for ornamentation than for utility.

HIS STOMACH TROUBLES OVER

Mr. Dyspeptic, would you not like to feel that your stomach tronble were over, that you could eat any kind of food you desired without injury? That may seem so unlikely to you that you do not hope for an ending of your troble, but permit us to assure you that it is not altogether impossible. If others can be cured permanently, and thousands have been. why not you? John R. Barker, of Battle Creek, Mich., is one of them. OUR HOLIDAY SUBSCRIPTION OFFER.

We have made arrangements with the leading farm paper of the South for a club subscription offer during the holidays that has never been equaled before. It is not one of those offers that gives you a dozen worthless papers for a small price, but one that gives you two papers, the value of which, in their respective fields, cannot be surpassed, and both for the price of one.

THE OFFER:

During the next thirty days we will give The Union-Banner one full year, and The Progressive Farmer six months, both for only $1.25. The offer is good for both new subscribers and renewals.

The Progressive Farmer is by far the best farm paper in the South. It is published weekly in Birmingham, right here at home, and is edited by men who know Southern conditions, and are capable of giving real practical advice and not mere theory. It is distinctively a southern farm paper for the Southern farm. The regular subscription price of the Progressive Farmer is $1.00 per year, or 50c for six months, and those who are acquainted with its merits regard this as cheap for a paper of such value. To those who do not already know of it, we will stand as sponsor for it as being the best paper in existence for the southern farmer.

The Union-Banner for 1914 is going to reach a standard of excellence that has never before been attained in the field of a weekly newspaper in Chilton County. We are going to devote our columns to matters of home and local news, social, industrial, religious, educational and political, at all times championing the cause of right and justice in every phase of community progress. Our facilities and office equipment are being improved, and during the next year you cannot afford to be without the news of the county, and to get this news you cannot do better than take the Union-Banner.

Avail yourself of this superior offer now. It is the best chance you will ever have to secure these two valuable papers. If your subscription to the Union-Banner is about out send us $1.25 at once and we will renew you one full year, and send you the Progressive Farmer for six months. Remember this offer will last only 30 DAYS.

Women Multiply Their Trouble.

The popularity of bridge has swept all records so far this season. Any prominent society dame gets an average of, say, one invitation per afternoon. This she could manage beautifully were the invitations for successive dates. But suppose they bunch themselves so that she gets a half dozen for the same afternoon? Society, through necessity, has evolved a noval plan to meet this. It is the substitute. By the operation of this plan, the much-rushed society woman is enabled to enjoy her afternoon of bridge at the house she chooses, secure in the knowledge that she is being represented by her proxies in five other homes. Bridge for bridge's sake has resulted, for the invasion of the proxy has done away with the social aspect to a marked degree. But the proxy player has come to stay, as she is a necessity in the strenuous life of the social swim.

All Blood Disorders Quickly Driven Away

Astonishing Results With the Greatest Blood Purifier Ever Discovered.

Strength, Power, Accomplishment all Typified in S. S. S.

Some blood disorders become deeply rooted in the glands and tissues, and the mistake is made of resorting to drastic drugs. These only aggravate by causing other and worse troubles. A host of people know this to be true. They know from painful experience.

This remarkable remedy contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced-health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

To too, S. S. S. has such specific action on these local cells as to their mutual welfare and a reciprocal assistance to each other.

In very brief time S. S. S. has a reconstructive process so under operation that remarkable changes are observed. Sore places heal, mysterious pains leave disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of new health.

For the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is acceptable to the weakest stomach and has great tonic effect. Not one drop of drug of any kind is used in its preparation. Therefore S. S. S. and insist upon having it. If you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin, write The Swift Specific Co., 205 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow a druggist or clerk to larrup the atmosphere over something "Just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.

People Worth Watching.

There are certain persons whom physiognomists say should be avoided by certain other persons. Thus, the talker is warned to keep away from the person with the overhanging forehead, for he will prove exceedingly deep in argument. The business man is advised to watch carefully when dealing with the man with the receding forehead and chin, the large, curved and prominent nose, for he will prove shrewd in business.

A DIFFERENCE IN WORKING HOURS

A man,s working day is 8 hours. His body organs must work perfectly 24 hours to keep him fit for 8 hours work. Weak. sore, inactive kidneys can not do it. They must be sound and healthy active all the time. Foley Kidney Pills will make them so. You cannot take them into your system without good results following. For sale by all Dealers Everywhere

WORDS THAT REALLY SPEAK

Many Expressions in the Language That Seem to Convey Instantaneous Meaning.

Bang—"a sudden noise like that from a gun" is the definition given by the dictionary. But the explanation is befogging and futile, for a "bang" is—well, what better describes it than the simple word itself?

So many of our most expressive words seem similarly to have sprung from a desire to form with the lips a sound mimicking the thing described. Why waste words on a definition of the word "splash," for example? You hear all the abrupt, restless heavi of the waters in that one word.

And does even a baby need t told what "buzz" means when a bottle is leading a forlorn hope a the pantry window?

EXERCISE IN THE FRESH AIR

No Doctor's Prescription So Valuable as This Simple and Pleasant Occupation.

When health is the great desideratum one should not hesitate to make almost any sacrifice to obtain it. This was well illustrated by the man who recently double-crossed the continent in 322 days. At the time of his leaving on this journey afoot he was threatened with consumption. He realized that fresh air, exercise and sunshine formed the perfect trinity that spells health. He started on that long tramp expecting health as the result. Did he get it? Sure. One gets what he expects—not merely what he hopes for; not merely what he desires, but he must expect to get that for which he hopes and desires; then lay hold of the means, as did this man, whereby the object may be obtained and then retained. He is, as the result of his effort, in the "pink of condition." He weighed 104 pounds at the start, 140 pounds at the finish —and placed a good round thousand to his credit. Best of all, he walked away from disease. Go, thou, and do likewise.

TYPES THAT ARE SIMILAR

Stupid or Thoughtless Man May Well Be Actuated by the Same Principle.

There are some men formed with feelings so blunt, with tempers so cold and phlegmatic, that they can hardly be said to be awake during the whole course of their lives. Upon such persons the most striking objects make a faint and obscure impression.

There are others so continually in the agitation of gross and merely sensual pleasures, or so occupied in the low drudgery of avarice, or so heated in the chase of honors and distinction, that their minds, which had been used continually to the storms of these violent and tempestuous passions, can hardly be put in motion by the delicate and refined play of the imagination.

These men, though, from a different cause, become as stupid and insensible as the former, but whenever either of these happen to be struck with any natural elegance or greatness, or with these qualities in any work of art, they are moved upon the same principle.—Edmund Burke.

A LIFE IN CHRIST IS SAFE

The text for my sermon this morning will be found in 2 Cor. 12; 2.

Paul said, after making his apology for what the people at Corinth, ignoringly accused him of being (ego), 'I, a man in 'Christ', that is, I was acquainted with a Christain, who was united to Christ (see Romans 16: 7) for in Christ about fourteen years ago; on what occasion, or where this occurred, or why he concealed the remarkable fact so long, and why there is no other allusion to it, is unknown; but this was supposed to have occurred several years before his commission, but of course this does not refer to the trace, mentioned in Acts 9:9 at the time when he was converted. It is thought by comutators that this was a "Vision made to him when he was praying in the temple after his return to Jerusalem", when he was directed to go to the Gentiles, Acts 22:17, and it was intended to support him in his trials which he was about to endure.

He said, "Whether in the body I cannot tell, that is, I do not pretend to explain. I do not know how it occurred." He was acquainted with the fact; but how it was brought about he did not now; neither whether the body was caught up into heaven, or the soul was for the time seperated from the body, or the scene past before the mind in a vision to that he seemed to have been caught up to heaven, he does not pretend to know; but this he did know,—that he was a man in Christ, a man experienced in Christ, and a man who had a growth in grace. So I believe it is with envy and in Christ. We know that it is true, that we are in Christ and Christ in us, and we also know the glory of God through Christ. It often occurred in the New Testament, and was taught in Christ's own words; yet it is not easy to understand "in Christ" how one person can be in another. It is one of those truths which takes us altogether out of the range of common thought. It is sublime, a great spiritual mystery.

I have tried in vain to make this intelligible to the uncultivated mind, to people who have not been taught of God and who have not experienced divine things. I am sure that all to whom I shall speak this morning will not understand all I say, for it is so unlike the ordinary ideas. There is nothing to compare with it. Images and words can only come near it, and dimly shadow it, yet it is a fact, the greatest fact in the age of man, a Bible fact which is undisputable. Thounands could not explain it, have it nor enjoy it, nor live by it, nor could rise now and say, "It is my all."

Who is this Christ in whom we live?—The Christ, whom we all know is the son of God, who became flesh, and who alone lived a perfect life here on earth; deprived of many things, reproached in many ways; with patience after He had spoken many wise and beautiful words, and done many miracles wonderful in love; died a horrid death, established his church, went to heaven again and is now living for us. By His suffering and dying He became our substitute, and in that glory a representative; that is to say He died in our place that we might not die or be punished, and that in His happiness and glory in heaven He occupies a place for His people; and represents them till they come, and so we understand that we are in Christ as a man is in substitue, who pays his bebts, suffers his punishmeut. For Him all Christians are in Christ.

Christ is more than that to us. There is a gaeat body which Christ persuades and fills. That body is the church, and you might say that the church is Christ and Christ is the church, and the real ever living church is made of souls who are saved; and every one as he becomes a Christian has his peace in that spiritual body. He is united to Christ and is a part of Christ. So we will try to illustrate by the human brain, and Christ, that the head of all the members of this human frame are in Christ. They meet there when they first come into this body; they live there; they take their motion there; they cannot have a seperate life and while that head lives and their union with it lives they live and no longer. The head lives in them and they in it. By types of the nature we get the expression of Christ in us, we in Christ. We take Christ to be the ene inward power of holiness which we have, and to be in Christ is our clothing in righteousness, which is our justification, and acceptance with God. We are so completely united with Christ when we Come into this body, that God, himself sees us as one occepted in his beloved son. Do you understand it? I do not, nor do I hope to understand it. I do not even pray to understand it. It is impossible; but I do pray to know it and feel it, and to actually have it in my life.

Jesus, grant me this I pray,
Ever in thy heart to stay;
Let me ever more abide
Hidden in thy wounded side.
If the evil one prepare,
Or the word a tempteng snare,
I am safe when I abide
In thy heart and wounded side.

Christ is in you if you are a Christian, as the life-blood is in your members. He moves and directs you as your head guids your body. His mind and spirit goes through your soul as a man's moral and intellectual being goes through his spiritnal being, and you and all your cares and sorrows go to Christ, just as the nerves go up and meet in the brain, and all your joys go up to Christ, for they are his joys. What Christ did, is as though you had done it; what Christ suffered, is as though you had suffered it. When Christ cried on the Cross, "it is finished" and died, you died in and with Him on the Cross. You descended with Him into hell (grave) death and hell (gehenes), which are things of the past to you; they can never be repeated to you; and you, poor, vile, wicked, sinner as you are, your soul is as spotless before God as his own son. So you stand now just as you will stand at the day of Judgement. The devil will see you there; not a separate being, but in Christ. Therefore, where Christ is, you cannot help being. What can separate you? Your life is hidden with Christ in God. All words, all thoughts, fail to reach the highest of this great mystery of how we can hire a life in Christ; so all that I can do is to only hint at it. We are superior to the angels, for they are only with Christ: they are not in Christ; and as I have said, we are in Christ and He in us. So we are restored to more than we lost. We are like God, not only as Adam was, but like him in Christ. Therefore, we are sons of God in two ways: first because he formed us, second because we are adopted, and we shall not be ashamed in Judgement, because we shall present Christ and not ourselves. So, by the grace of God we shall be able to stand in the holy presence of God. redeemed by his goodness not ours.

Thy righteousness alone
Can clothe and beautify;
I wrap it 'round my soul:
In this I live and die.

We will not perish in Christ. How can we? Can Christ fail? Can he die? Can the son of God be lost? Ah, when you are in Christ, it is not you that the evil one temps; it is Christ; it is not you who fights for your soul, it is Christ in you. God cannot refuse to hear the prayers of his children. It is not you who prays, —it is Christ in you, in the person of the holy spirit; God will certainly hear his own son. You cannot fail in a Christian life for Christ is behind the act; You can never be alone for he is an ever present companion. If you are in Christ you cannot die, for He in you lifts up his hands to heaven and says, "Be of good cheer for I have overcome the world," death, hell and the grave; and I shall live forever. Oh, my friends, if you are in Christ you will rise with Him; and if He reigns, you shall reign forever. God will love you, receive you in His kingdom—in his arms. How can He refuse His son? "Thy grace first made me free from sin; it taught me to believe; in believing, peace I found, and now I live—I live.'

I see in the man who is in Christ; an inner-life which independent at all outward circumstances. The things of this world may change, and will change, but that life in Christ cannot change; for it is as eternal as God the Creator; and the light of the man in Christ must shine. "A city that is set upon a hill cannot be hid." Many of our church members do not shine, because they have no light; therefore they cannot shine, but the purity aid the brightness of God shines out in the man of God; in his daily walks, and men will catch the glimpse of Christ in that man, and walk by the light. Does this mean that we shall not have any trouble; those who are in Christ, no distresses, no struggles, no false in this Christian life? The man that says there is not, does not know of what he speaks. We have many more than in any other life. Christ Himself did not teach that a christian's life should be easy; He never offered anything but a cross. But it is a sure life; it is the only life, for it is the life of man, and the life of God.

You have, therefore, eternal peace, because you have union with Christ; this is why He said peace I leave with; My peace I give unto you. When you stand before God at last, you can say I vile I am sin, but thou hast saved through thy son's atonement.

My friends, let your happiest moments be the thought "a life in Christ." It is so much better to owe it to Him, than owe it to yourself, who are not able to pay one bit of it. In heaven through that eternal life of gladness, the joy will be to feel; it is not my glory; it is not my life; I owe it all to Him who died for me.

May the holy spirit help the world to shine; to live a life in Christ, is my prayer in His name, amen.

Much the Best for This Climate!

The French Market Roast and Blend Make It Essentially a Southern Coffee

Great Travelers and Explorers agree that the food and drink peculiar to the country where it is used should always be adopted in that country.

French Market Coffee is the coffee of the coffee-producing countries, where climate most nearly corresponds to that of our Southern States.

It is therefore, much better suited for Southern consumption as regards food value, etc., than coffees roasted for other climates.

This accounts for the marvelous success of French Market Coffee; and why it is called the National Drink of the South.

Formerly it could only be had at the old French Market, where the quaint old stalls were crowded with the most brilliant society of the South, drawn together to enjoy the matchless coffee known nowhere else in America.

Now by the establishment of the French Market Mills with the special machinery necessary, this wonderful old blend is preserved for their descendants.

The invention of perfectly-sealed tins allows shipment all over the United States without loss of freshness and flavor.

Try it once upon your own table and see if anyone of your family would be willing to use again the ordinary kinds of coffee.

HAD CATARRH FIVE YEARS.

MR. S. S. JOHNSON
St. Elmo, Illinois.

Mr. Johnson of St. Elmo, Illinois, was troubled five years with catarrh. The catarrh was so severe in his case that his life seemed threatened. As he expresses it himself, he had "one foot in the grave."

Of course he tried to get relief. Many practitioners were consulted and a catarrh specialist in St. Louis was tried. He got so weak and thoroughly run down that he declares he could not walk more than a hundred yards without resting.

Few people understand that catarrh is a constant drain on the system. The discharge of mucus which is going on in such cases is largely composed of blood serum, and is a great waste. Sooner or later it will weaken the strongest man.

According to reports received from Mr. Johnson, he was in a desperate condition, but he found relief from his trouble. We will let him say how he found it. His own words say:

"My friends told me to take Peruna, and I did so. I now feel that Peruna has saved my life. It is the best medicine on earth, and I would not be without it."

This seems almost too good to be true. No doubt there are some readers that will think so. The above statements, however, can be verified by writing Mr. Johnson.

Every home should be provided with the last edition of "The Ills of Life," sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

Cause and Effect.

"It is very curious to me," said Slithers, "what a musical voice Mrs. Brighteyes has, and yet whenever she speaks in French it is hard and rasping—almost metallic." "Oh, that's only natural,' said Bingo. "You see, Mrs. Brighteyes learned French by phonograph, and she has mistaken the imperfections of the records for accent."—Judge.

Character Told by the Chin.

The shape of the chin is of considerable importance in reading character. A chin smooth and round denotes a childlike disposition and a yielding will. The oval chin is an indication of an artistic, sensitive nature, with some talent along those lines, while the angular chin denotes the scientific, practical nature. The protruding chin always means combativeness, determination and power, and the receding chin denotes the weak will, and the straight chin also denotes weakness.

Thorsby Ruined By Big Fire

Two Blocks Were Swept By Fire and Loss Is Estimated $65,000

Thorsby, Ala., Jan. 6.—Fire entailing the loss of over $60,000 destroyed two blocks and all the principal business buildings of this town in the early hours of this morning.

The damage extended over two entire blocks, practically wiping them out. Later estimates place the loss at more than $65,000.

Fire broke out in one of the largest stores at two o'clock this morning, and the flames spread rapid with the brisk wind. So fast were the flames spreading that it was quickly realized that little could be done to check them except by way of protecting the two churches in adjoining blocks. Attempts to save the Thorsby Institute and the Congregational Church were only partially successful.

The principal sufferers are: A. M. Johnson, The Robertson Feed Company, A. K. Horn, The Prydon Drug Company, J. J. Stanley, Bice and Billingsley, J. R. Parnell and Company, J. L. Foss and Son, and several other establishments which were whole or partial losses.

Although they see their little town practically wiped out the people of Thorsby have become reconciled to their loss and are busily engaged in saving everything possible and making the best of a very bad situation.

COOSA DAM IS NOW COMPLETED

Water Stood At Full Height of Dam On New Year's Day

Official announcemen is made of the completion of the dam at Lock No. 12 on the Coosa River, and the impounding of water, in line with plans formulated looking to the hydro-electrical power plant of the Alabam Power Company. The announcement comes from the office of President Frank Washburn, who states that since the dam was completed there has been water to pass over to pass over the spillway and a lake has been formed, the water being backed up for a distance of twenty miles. The lake thus established will be over 5 feet deep in the lowest place, and it promises to be the largest fresh water lake in the State. It will be attractive for acquatic sports, and citizens of Birmingham, Montgomery, Gadsden, Anniston and other citis of the State are expected to visit the place from time to time, and enjoy the pleasures that will be accorded.

The place is reached by a drive through the country from either Ocampo or Clanton, on fhe Louisville and Nashville railroad between Birmingham and Montgomery.

"President's office, Alabama Power Company.

At 9 o'clock New Year's morning the water of the Coosa River was empounded to the full height of the dam constructed by the Alabama Power Company at Lock No. 12, and flowed over the top of the spillway for the first time. This marks the completion of the main structure of the dam. Within a few weeks the power house will be completed and current will be ready for distribution over the 140 miles of transmission lines now in readiness.

An interesting effect of this devlopement is to be seen in the fact that the water of the Coosa has been backed up for distance of over twenty miles, thus opening up to deep water navigation a stretch of the river hitherto impassable.

This dam has been completed within 12 months of the time work was actually commenced, which probably constitutes a record for a work of such magnitude.

The lake formed by the dam will be over twenty miles long, in many places over a mile in width, and will be the largest fresh water lake in this section os the country. The lake will be over seventy five feet in depth at the deepest point. It should become a resort for aquatic sports for the citizens of Birmingham, Montgomery, Gadsden, Anniston and neighboring cities.

Aa an evidence of the possibilites in this direction the Alabama Power Company has acquired a forty foot motor boat capable of seating fifteen passengers.

Without doubt, the most sumptuocs affair that has been pulled off around here in many a day was the entertainment and oyster supper given by Chippewa Tribe No. 147. Improved Order of Red Men, at Thorsby last Wednesday night. A large number of pale face friends were present, together with a large deligation of brother Red Men from Waxahatchie Tribe at Clanton.

After the audience had assembled in the meeting hall, a program for speech makers was arranged, and despite the fact that the men were chosen rather unexpectedly, they showed remarkable interest and enthusiasm in the cause of Redmanship by the very tone of their talks.

Mr. C. A. Peterson, on behalf of the members of the Chippewa Tribe, delivered the welcome address to the visitors. It was rendered in the true and sincere spirit of the speaker, and made every one feel perfectly at home with the Chippewa Braves. Mr. Petterson was responded to in a very fitting manner by Mr. T. E. Williams of Waxahatchie Tribe.

Mr. J. E. Robinson spoke on the Red Men's splendid plan of caring for widows and orphans,

Rev. W. J. Armstrong made the principal address of the occasion, and id was doubtless his master lecture on the Fundamental Principles of Redmanship. The interest with which it was received was unbounded. And the way in which he handled his subject was the most masterly.

Others making short speeches were P. O. Barret, J. P. Parrish, G, W. Melton, J. W. Hayes, J. Bice.

After the speeches were over the crowd was conducted to the oyster supper and fed to their fill. All received the hospitality of the hosts according to their own measure.

All though the affair from start to finish, uncle Jim Collins and his famous fiddle were loud in evidence. Nothing added more to the pleasure of the occasion than did this. Even until the bells sounded the passing of the old year and with their ringing peals ushered in the new, uncle Jimmie's fiddle was filling the hall with an overflow of melody from some favorite old tune which had probably seen many a year yield up its place to its successor.

It is useless to try to measure the pleasure which the kindness of the entertainers furnished their guests. Their hospitality was unbounded. Their very spirit sohed forth in their hearts of the true and sublime principles which all Red Men try to possess and give forth to the outside world Freedom, Friendship and Charity.

Notice.

At the expiration of 3 weeks from the date hereof I will make application to the Governor for pardon. I was convicted in the Circuit Court of Chilton county in 1912, for the offense of Bigamy.

Dated this, 20th day of Dec. 1913.

Rev. Olive Leaves Thorsby

The many friends of Rev. W. M. Olive will be interested to learn that he has been called to a pastorate in Luverne, but will certainly feel a regret to lose him from this section. Rev. Olive was once pastor of the Clanton Babtisi Church, and went from here to Thorsby, where he has been for the past year. He will remove his family to his new location and begin work in his new field at once. He is an able minister and a strong man, and to say that he will be missed by the denomination in Chilton County is not nearly expressing the extent of the vacancy which will be caused by his absence.

J. H. Gore of Route 8 was a visitor Monday.

On last Friday night Miss Ella Frazier entertained in a most delightful way a large number of her friends at her home in South Clanton. The procedure of the evenings pleasures was very informal, but extremely delightful. Various games were played, and lovily music was furnished by different members present. Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

Let every man keep in mind that during this month poll taxe must be paid, if you expect to count one in the voting which will take place during the year.

J. M. Taylor of Verbena Route 2, came to Clanton Wednesday, and brought along with him, eight men to pay poll tax in order that they might cast a Bull Moose vote next election. Let us see some more such fellows. "Bring in the sheaves."

Within twelve miles of Clanton, at Lock 12 on Coosa River, is what is now the largest body of fresh water in Alabama. The lake which was formed by the erection of the dam by the Alabama Power Co. is about twenty five miles long, and ranges from a mile to two miles in width. Its greatest depth is over seventy feet.

How many farmers keep an actual account of their business transactions from time to time? All good business men do this, and there is no reason why the farmer should not. It would be very easy to keep such a record, showing every receipt and expenditure, and what for. Then at the end of the year you could [illegible] more definite information to go on the new year on than you have in relying upon the uncertainties of memory and guess work, And also this book keeping method would meke farm transactions more interesting.

More now than ever, is the need of a good road from Clanton to Lock 12 becoming apparent. Announcement has been made that the construction of the dam is completed, and it is already being intimated that the large lake thus formed will become a favorite summer resort for people from all over the state. Clanton is the most feasible point for sightseers on their way to Lock 12 to stop off. We all should be interested in the roadway they will have to traverse from here in reaching the dam, and everyone should desire it to be the best possible. It will be the means of creating with these visitors either a good or bad impression of our town and county. When spring comes we hope to see the work which was begun on this road last summer completed, and the road put in first class conditon.

What are you doing with the troublesome old stumps that have so long been an annoyance in your fields? Are you just letting them stand and furnish harbors for a nest of weeds and grass, and take up enough space for a dozen stalks of cotton or corn? There is a better way than this. As one instance, we might mention one man we know who removes these stumps and utilizes them as kindling wood which he places on the market at a good profit. There is a good sale for such stuff and he has no trouble in disposing of it. And not only does he get a profit from the sale of the stumps. His largest gain is the increase in productive efficiency of his farm, and the reduction of the cost and trouble in cultivation. There are many ways in which to remove stumps, none of which are at all costly when compared with the good it does.

OUR HOLIDAY SUBSCRIPTION OFFER.

We have made arrangements with the leading farm paper of the South for a club subscription offer during the holidays that has never been equaled before. It is not one of those offers that gives you a dozen worthless papers for a small price, but one that gives you two papers, the value of which, in their respective fields, cannot be surpassed, and both for the price of one.

THE OFFER:

During the next thirty days we will give The Union-Banner one full year, and The Progressive Farmer six months, both for only $1.25. The offer is good for both new subscribers and renewals.

The Progressive Farmer is by far the best farm paper in the South. It is published weekly in Birmingham, right here at home, and is edited by men who know Southern conditions, and are capable of giving real practical advice and not mere theory. It is distinctively a southern farm paper for the Southern farm. The regular subscription price of the Progressive Farmer is $1.00 per year, or 50c for six months, and those who are acquainted with its merits regard this as cheap for a paper of such value. To those who do not already know of it, we will stand as sponsor for it as being the best paper in existence for the southern farmer.

The Union-Banner for 1914 is going to reach a standard of excellence that has never before been attained in the field of a weekly newspaper in Chilton [illegible]. We are going to devote [illegible] to matters of home [illegible] news, social, industrial, religious, educational and political, at all times championing the cause of right and justice in every phase of community progress. Our facilities and office equipment are being improved, and during the next year you cannot afford to be without the news of the county, and to get this news you cannot do better than take the Union-Banner.

Avail yourself of this superior offer now. It is the best chance you will ever have to secure these two valuable papers. If your subscription to the Union-Banner is about out send us $1.25 at once and we will renew you one full year, and send you the Progressive Farmer for six months. Remember this offer will last only 30 DAYS.

HOUSEKEEPERS Must be Watchful

For great efforts are being made in this vicinity to sell baking powders of inferior class, made from alum acids and lime phosphates, both undesirable to those who require high-grade cream of tartar baking powder to make clean and healthful food.

The official Government tests have shown Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful, grape cream of tartar baking powder, of highest strength, and care should be taken to prevent the substitution of any other brand in its place.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any other baking powder in the world.

Building Alabama

Much has been written and said concerning the work of development conducted by the L. & N. in the State of Alabama.

To present concrete evidence of our activity in this State, and our faith in it as an investment center, we have caused figures to be compiled showing to what extent expenditures have been made.

July 1st, 1907, to June 30th, 1913:

L. & N. for additions and betterments	$1,122,447.21
South and North, same purpose	4,888,140.16
Nashville & Decatur R. R., new line	221,992.05
Revision of line, Athens to Decatur	244,908.33
Tuscaloosa Mineral Railroad	770,614.65
Total expenditures for additions, betterments and new lines	$7,248,102.40

In addition to the items above enumerated, expenditures for numerous industrial spurs, new depots and other facilities have been made during this period.

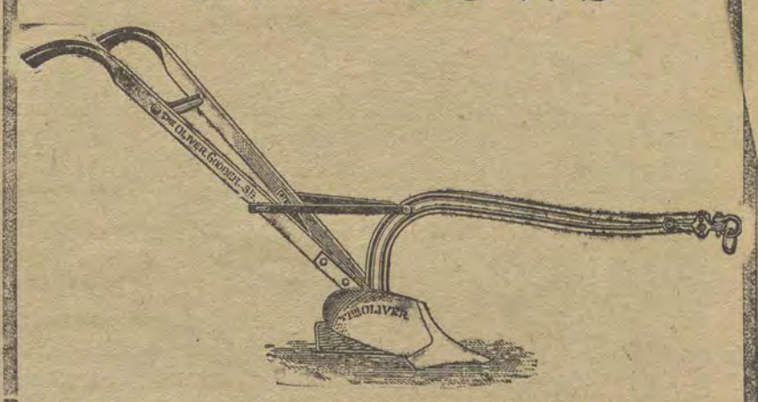
Paid to Employees.

By Louisville & Nashville	$21,335,083.06
By South & North Alabama	14,450,762.88
Total paid employees	$35,785,845.94
Total for betterments	7,248,102.40
Total expended in Alabama	$43,033,948.34

The above figures are actual, absolute. These dollars represent more than any argument possibly could the effort put forth by the L. & N. to supply perfect freight and passenger facilities to shippers doing business in and out of Alabama.

Every dollar of this $43,033,948.34 was spent by the L. & N. within the State of Alabama, for the development of the Company's lines and the territory through which those lines operate; to afford lucrative employment to loyal employees engaged in that work of development, and in supplying transportation service.

The L. & N. was not, and is not, satisfied with merely having the best railroad system in Alabama. It was, and is, determined to make that best system better.



The people get equal benefit from this policy of development, and from these expenditures for betterments and salaries to employees. The betterments are permanent, while the salaries to employees are spent in Alabama.

We ask the people to think over these facts, and cooperate with us for a more extended development of the rich, natural resources of the State.

The Attraction.

A rather eccentric man, calling on a family blessed by an observant little son, wore kid gloves that had been cleaned. The little boy, seeming to be much attracted by the visitor, stayed close at his side. "You like to stand by Mr. Blank and hear his funny stories, don't you, Jimmie?" presently asked Jimmie's father. "I don't care about his stories," replied the honest youngster, "but his hands smell just like our automobile."

Golf an Ancient Game.

One of the few publications issued for extended circulation by the Brothers of the Book is entitled the Links of Ancient Rome. It is in Latin, and purports to show that the dignified game of golf was played on early Roman greens by characters who are famous in history. The Brothers of the Book is an organization of idealists in more or less widely separated cities. The headquarters are in Chicago.

ATARRH OF THE PHARYNX.

Clearing out your throat every day, all day. That is what you have been doing for months. Possibly years. A little mucus covers the pharynx.

If you were to go to a doctor he would tell you that you have pharyngitis. If you were to look into your own throat you would find just back of the soft palate a red, lumpy, follicular appearance of the back part of the throat. Pharyngitis the doctors call it.

Perhaps he would call it, folicular pharyngitis. It causes you constant annoyance. You are always making slight disturbances when seated in an audience. Can't hold your throat still. Stringy mucus bothers you. Worse in the morning.

A-hem! A-hem! A-hem! That is the way you are going nearly all day. Sometimes in the night when you wake up. You ought to gargle your throat with salt water every morning. Cold salt water. That clears out the throat perfectly and makes it ready for treatment.

Peruna is the treatment. Begin with a teaspoonful before each meal and at bedtime. Try it for a week. You will be convinced. Of course, Peruna will not entirely relieve you in a week. That is too much to expect any remedy. But it will benefit you so much you will be convinced. Yes, it will. It has done it many times.

Catarrh of the pharynx. Big words. Almost as bad as the disease. But if you will take Peruna for one month regularly, you may forget that you ever had such a disease. Then you will have a perfect right to forget the big words too.

Order.

Order is the sanity of the mind, the health of the body, the peace of the city, the security of the state. As the beams of the house, as the bones to the microcosm of man, so is order to all things.—Southey.

WORLD'S LARGEST IRON MINE

Enormous Supply of Rich Ore Is Located at Kiruna, Lapland.

The richest and probably the largest iron ore mine in the world is locate at Kiruna, Lapland, in latitude 68½ degrees north, which is about the same as the northernmost boundary of Alaska. The climate is somewhat milder than in Alaska, and these mines are worked the year around. About 1,600 men are employed and the equipment is all of the most modern machinery obtainable. Machine tools for the repair shop, air compressors, and rock drills, and several of the largest steam and electric shovels are of American make. The plant is at present operated by steam power, the coal supply coming from England and Spitzbergen, but the electrification of the mines is in progress, and this power will be used exclusively as soon as the new power plant of the state of Sweden, now under construction at Porjus Falls, is completed. The transmission line is completed and it is expected that the power station will be ready to deliver current early in 1914. One hundred and fifty thousand horsepower will be the capacity of this station, and it will be transmitted over a distance of 150 miles. The state railway between Kiruna and Narvik is being electrified and will be operated from this station. The ore is shipped from Kiruna to Narvik on the Norwegian coast by rail, and from there by water to Germany, a small percentage finding its way to other countries

BOOSTED UP THE PRICE

When You Come to Think of It the Article Was Worth the Increased Amount.

Hot and stuffy was the auction-room, and packed, too—yes, even packed to its utmost capacity.

Suddenly through the crowd pressed a large, important-looking person and held converse with the auctioneer—converse, low, deep and awe-inspiring.

Then up spake the auctioneer to the multitude assembled:

"Gentlemen," he said, "I am informed that a pocketbook has been lost in this hall tonight containing £200 in bank notes."

A great hush fell upon the assembly.

"Yes," continued the custodian of the hammer, "and, owing to other valuable documents it contains, the gentleman will offer £50 to anyone who returns it, while no questions will be asked."

Again a silence, deep and unbroken.

Then a fellow at the rear of the hall spoke up:

"I bid £51," he said.—Answers.

Because It Was Underweight.

Under the pure food and drugs act, ten cases were recently brought against a New York city firm, which is in the candy business, making a specialty of what is known as "penny goods." All the goods were found to be adulterated. Most of them contained shellac, and some of them also contained arsenic. In every case the firm pleaded guilty. Most of the candies were sold as chocolate candies, but contained little or none of that product. These are the goods bought by small children who have received a cent or two from parents or friends, sometimes intended for the missionary box, but often straying to the candy shop. In only one of the ten cases was a penalty imposed, and in this case, carrying a fine of $50, was not for selling to little children as chocolate candy a mixture containing arsenic and shellac, but because the package sold to the dealer was marked five pounds and really contained only 4 pounds and 14⅝ ounces, not enough poison for the money! Truly, in the words of Mr. Bumble, the law sometimes is "an ass."

Mackintoshes Expensive to Make.

Mackintoshes are made of cloth coated with rubber. It is ninety years since Charles Mackintosh of Glasgow took out his patent for the cloth that has ever since borne his name. The mackintosh is a more expensive garment than the raincoat because of the high cost of the materials employed.

The rubber used has first to be purified by maceration in water at an expense proportionate to the amount of impurity present, and it has then to be converted by use of a solvent into a dough. In this plastic form the rubber has to be spread upon the cloth, layer after layer, by repeated passages through the spreading machine. The fabrics used have to be specially selected, and, in view of the deleterious action of oil upon rubber, have to be warranted free of all but the minutest trace of grease.

Sign From Providence.

The Dyak who will argue that because his grandfather died after climbing a tree neither to climb trees if they wish to live and enjoy health, recalls the "dour" old Scot who had steadfastly refused to insure his fleet of trading ships. "Na, na," he'd declare, "the Almighty has favored me, an' I've no need o' insurance. No a ship ha' I lost in thretty year." Not long afterwards practically his entire fleet was wrecked in one of the worst storms in history. A friend, knowing of the trade which the old man had had, and of the value of the name alone, then offered to build new ships and take the ruined man in with him. "Na," he declared with gloomy solemnity, "Providence gied me a sign that I'm no' tae engage in the shipping again."

HORNS OF FANTASTIC SHAPE

East African Tribe Have a Peculiar Method of Dealing With Their Oxen.

A tribe of East Africa, called the Suks, hammer and twist the horns of their cattle into all kinds of fantastic shapes. An ox with one horn that points forward and the other backward, writes M. W. H. Beech in "The Suk," is an object of envy and admiration to all; it is called kamar.

They believe that such an ox has exceptional properties. Every fighting man should have his kamar; those who do not possess one are objects of derision. When they prepare to start on a raiding expedition, the men gather the kamars together, bedeck them with ostrich-feathers, and lead them to the river. There the warriors are assembled; they dance round the sacred oxen, flap their hands at them, and kneel on one knee; they hold up their shields in attitudes of defense and brandish their spears, while they utter weird war-cries, which are supposed to excite in the faint-hearted the desire for battle. A captured kamar is a coveted prize, and the Suks slaughter and eat it with much ceremony.

The Suks were originally an agricultural people. In every plantation they build little shelters on piles, whereon sit the women and children whose duty it is to give warning of the approach of elephants, and to scare away birds. Of the members of the tribe who do other than agricultural work there is a saying, "God gave them no sheep, so he gave them cleverness instead."—Youth's Companion.

PRETTY HARD TO EXPLAIN

Little Slip Made by Mr. Jones That He Probably Found It Hard to Square.

Jones usually caught the 5:30 train out of the Grand Central for New Rochelle. This day, however, he had met a friend and remained over to renew acquaintanceship. He was plainly up against it, but finally managed to get the following wire off to Mrs. Jones:

"Missed the 5:30. Don't keep dinner waiting. Will be a little late tonight."

It was long after midnight when he left the train at New Rochelle and ten minutes later before he reached home.

Mrs. Jones met him at the front door.

"You got my message, darling?" he asked, pressing a box of bonbons into her hands.

"Oh, yes!" quickly returned Mrs. Jones, "I got it all right. But I would like to know why you sent a wire at 4:30 telling me you had missed the 5:30 train."

Jones couldn't.—Judge.

Does an Injustice to Canines.

"I never could see," captiously remarked Kipling Daft, who often cogitates deeply, "why a low saloon should be called a 'doggery.' Dogs do not foregather in such places and put their left hind paws up on the footrail and tell Mike to settemupagain. Neither does a dog linger along till a late hour of the night, bragging about how he was just going to hit the feller when he left, or telling funny stories deftly interspersed with hiccoughs, and then go winding home full of choice liquors, fine cigars and seven kinds of billy-hell. Then, let us not speak of a saloon as a 'doggery,' even if the men who congregate there do at times recite more doggerel than is good for them; but be truthful and denominate it as a 'mannery,' if nothing will do us but that we must call it out of its name."—Kansas City Star.

Extermination Not Feared.

"Do not believe all you read about the extinction of fur animals,'" writes a statistician to a Paris paper. "With the exception of a few—seal, chinchilla and American lynx—'fur animals' are no less numerous than they were 30 years ago, when the prepared pelts, now popular for outer garments, were used for lining purposes. The high prices are caused by the increased demand. The fur-bearing animals will not be exterminated because the fashions change. While one animal, temporarily popular, is being hunted the the other has time to recuperate. Nature helps also in this way: The overhunted animal instinctively abandons its habitat, often seeking refuge where the hunter cannot follow."

Knew He Was Safe.

After the League of Public Safety became active in Broklyn some time ago lectures were delivered in the schools and buttons were given to all pupils. Teachers thought the scheme for safety had been well theorized by the lecturers, but one boy recently showed that everything had not been made plain. In crossing a street he narrowly escaped being hit by an automobile, the driver of which took the opportunity to admonish the lad. "Ah, go on!" yelled the boy; "nothing can hit me!" and he pulled back his coat and revealed his "safety" button.

Sweetly Unreasonable.

"There is no use of trying to deny that women are sometimes a little unreasonable,' said the mild-mannered man. "My wife made me do my best to explain about a writ of habeas corpus to her."

"Did you make it clear?"

"I'm afraid not. She went around to a lawyer next day and tried to obtain one that would get me away from the ball game in time for dinner."

Tackle Catarrh Now Be Free All Winter

Don't Wait Till You're All Bunged Up. Use S. S. S. Now.

If you will go into any first class store and get a bottle of S. S. S. you are on the way to getting rid of Catarrh. But don't let anyone work off that old trick of something "Just as good."

S. S. S. is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, comes through all the veins and arteries, enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectually cleanse the system and thus put an end to all catarrhal pollution. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure, blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

The medicinal components of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritive properties of the grains, meats, sugars, and fats of foods. Any local irritating influence in the blood is rejected by the tissue cells and eliminated by reason of the stimulating influence of S. S. S.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely catarrh often infests the entire system.

You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood. For special advice on any blood disease write to The Swift Specific Co., 202 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Do not trifle with substitutes, imitations or any of the horde of "Just as good" Counterfeits of S. S. S.

BREEDING HOGS IN LUXURY

A young lady from the city was going to make her first visit to a cousin in the country. At the station she was met by the cousin, and after a half-hour's drive he told her they were approaching his farm.

In one of the broad fields that met the young lady's attentive eye stood a windmill, and gathered around it some standing and some reclining were several hogs.

"Well, that beats anything I ever heard of!" exclaimed the fair one. "I didn't know that you farmers were so considerate."

"What does?" queried the country cousin.

"That over yonder," replied the city girl, pointing a pretty finger. "Just think of having a fan out in the field to keep those hogs cool."—Christian Endeavor World.

"The Home of the Square Deal."

MY TRIP THROUGH CALIFORNIA

In route to California, my intention was to stop over in Arizona, and see the Grand Canyon. Deep snow and cold weather prevented me from stopping. Snow plenty of it for two days. At Flagstaff Arizona more snow. The train I was riding got stuck in snow and we were delayed three hours. After leaving Flagstaff snow began to get less plentiful as we were moving into a lower attidude; when we reached Southern California no more snow to be seen. In Arizona my attentian was called to a high mountain peak by the tourist conductor. Its name is Starvation peak. It got this name from the indians. Two tribes of indians were in war with each other; one tribe took fefuge on this peak, and the other tribe more powerful, made them stay thore under penalty of being killed if they came down; so they stayed until they all died from hunger and thirst. Today can be seen a large number of bones from the bodies of this unfortunate tribe of indians scattered on this peak; thats how is has the name, Starvation peak. Arriving at Needles California, this being a division point on a railroad, train stopped over fifteen minutes and a great sight met my eyes :a drove of Majave Indians at the station selling their goods, beads, necklaces and indian blankets was about all the had. They couldn't talk English. They never wear any shoes; wear nothing on their head. They never havea hair cut or have their hair combed, and their dress is peculiar. Some of them look to be a hundred years of age. Pictures of different wild animals, beetles etc. tatooed on their face and body. Arriving at Redlands we are passing through large orange groves covering many square miles, nice scene. About three hours more and we were in Losangeles; stopped over there one day. Warm sunshine, green trees, palms and flowers reminded me of the month of May. Took Steamship Yale at 6.00 p.m. for San Francisco. This is ane of fastest and handsomest ships on the Pacific waters. Another is the steam ship Harvard. We made the trip four hundred and eighty miles in eighteen hours. Land was yet in sight when I began to feel sick. In a shorte time "Oh my" how sick I was. I went out on deck to join a large number of other passengers that had their heads hanging over board. There we were vomiting. The marine men called it feeding the fish; a good number of us was sick until the ship arrived in Sanfrancisco bay. Sea sickness is a very bad sickness which has no remedy except get on land. It never kills. Seemed to me nearly half of the nine hundred passengers on board were more less sick. I noticedthe marine men were not affected. Arriving in Sanfrancisco about 12 m. the following day, stayed in San Francisro six days. Not much here to show San Francisco was almost completely destroyed by earth quake and fire in April 1906. Went to cliff house which is on ocean. There I saw two rocks about one hundred feet in diameter, and about forty feet above surface of water and about three hundred feet from land covered with seals that had carwled out of the water on to the rocks to enjoy the sun they are protected by law so they are not scarry. Those rocks are known as, Seal Rocks. Went through grounds where the Panama Pacific International Exposition is to be held in 1915. This ground contains 600 acres, and several large buildings are being constructed, the largest one being constructed at present is machinery hall for exhibiting all kinds of machinery. This building is as long as from the L. & N. Depot of Clanton to the Chilton County court house, and half as wide. At present about two thousond men are employed on this ground and have been for the past year. Officials claim they will employ eight thousand men in 1914 and will open the gates to the geatest fair, that ever was in 1915. We took a walk along water front. Ships of all sizes and kinds, and from every nation in the world. was part of what we saw; saw the steam ship Bear. Leave port for Portland Oregon, the distance about eight hundred miles, having a full passenger list which is seven hundred, and a full cargo of freight which is four thousand five hundred tons. This is three and one half days travel for this ship; saw two large steam ships their names are Aztec and San Jose loading freight for Central and South American ports. Saw Steamship Honolulu, which travels between this port and the Orient. This ship sinks in water thirty two feet; all the machinery is about thirty feet below top of water, so you see a small army of men are being employed below the the ocean surface. All ships carry a numbered scale on their bow to show how deep they are in water. None which I saw were less than twenty six feet, and steam ship Mongola sinks into water forty two feet when loaded. This ship is seven hundred eighty feet in length. It navigates between this port Honolula, Manilla ports in Japan, China and Australia. Steamship Lyra from New York with a cargo of steel took eighty three days for them to make the trip from New York here; saw sailing ship name Rotnley from Australia with a load of coal for this port: sailing vessel Noemi, with a cargo of coke from Philadelphia took one hundred, and eighty seven days to make this trip from Philadelphia. Another sailing vessel its name is Vincenees, with a cargo of fine brick from, Havre France. The sailing vessels tkae enough water when leaving port to last through the trip. Steam vessels can extract the salt so they don't have to carry a sufficient supply for a trip. Saw five boats giving a fine drilf squirting water three hundred fhet into the air. Such boats are used for fighting, fire on ships and along the water edge. They stay in San Francisco Bay all times, and the polics patrol boat which is used by the policemen to patrol bay and along water edge; those I have mentioned here are a few of the many that can bee seen every day along the water front, of Sanfrancisco bay. Work never ceases here. Thousands of men work day and night loading and unloading those ships. The men in blue are looking after uncle Sam's part of it; they are custom inspectors, port inspectors, emigration inspectors, weight masters, watchmen, etc. China town is a district where the Chinese are. San-Fracisco has more Chinese than any other city in the United States, which is forty thousand. They seem to be industrious. They represent a large amount capital. They are engaged in business such as Goldsmiths, jewelers, watch makers, Cigar makers, tailors, etc. Chinese here keep all kinds of stores, grocery, hardware, dry goods, markets, etc. I went through one store three hundred feet square and six story high, carried nothing in stock but chinese goods. They claim to have anything that can be had from China. The building is modern in every respect. Chinese women dress about the same as men, except trouser legs are a little larger, and wear nothing on their head. China town is a modern Chinese city. They are courteousand law abiding; they give the officials of the law very little trouble; seem to get along peacefully among them selves; dont very often resist the law for adjustment of any affairs. At a Chinese burial they have a lot of small pieces of paper with holes in every piece; they scatter this paper every where they go They claim the devil has to go through every hole in this paper before he gets to the soul of the dead; they cover the graves with all kind of good things to eat, always put a young roasted pig on graves as that is their best dish: they say when, the white man rises to smell the flowers on his grave, then the dead Chinese, will rise and eat what's on his grave. We went through the United States mint; gold seemed to be plentiful. We saw $20. gold pieces dropping from two machines, at the rate of eighty a minute or $1600 a minute; many thanks to the mint employees, as they showed us every proces, the gold and silver went through before being ready for circulation; went to the mint told the door keeper we wanted to go through, registered on a a book, birthplace, business, age, etc., then we were turned over to guards, which showed us through, and explained every thing, which taken nearly two hours, seemed to me about one hundred people were employed there, about half women, some money was being made for Philipine Islands, which is different from United States money. This mint does not turn out any paper money. Leaving San Francisco Dec. 22nd 9.00 a. m, on boat for Sacrament, which is ninety miles from Sanfrancisco, on Sacramento river, the day was clear, sunshine was welcome, same as every day of the year in Sanfrancisco, Passing while we were in the bay, United States army, transport ship, named Logan, leaving for Honolula and Manila, with a large number of passengers aboard, waving handkerkerchiefs, and hollowing to loved ones, friends and relatives, they left them standing at pier. Passed United States, naval training station, which is on an island in San Francisco bay, and United States detention station, which is on another island in this bay. This detention station is used for safe keeping of foreigners. The emigration officials, think you should notbe in this country, they are held here, until some ship is going that way. then they are sent back to their native land. Passed angel island where some of the short term prisoners, of the army are kept, wanted to visit Mare Is. and navy yard, but didnot make it; this is where United States naval ships of all kinds, are built and repaired; the goverment employes several hundred men here. I saw a great many wild ducks, geese pelicans and lagoons. A lagoon is a bird larger than the domestic goose. Arrived in Sacramento at 6'00 a. m. next morning, all indications forecast a jolly day; took a walk through the capital grounds which contains, about thirty acres all of which is a nice lawn; saw many orange and lemon trees covered with fine yellow fruit, several olive trees, with clueters of ripe olives; the walks have rows of palms, and other green trees on each side. We took a car ride out through the resident portion of the city, seeing all kinds of choicest, varieties of imported and domestic flowers growing in almost every yard. Sacramento is like the greater part of California it has no cold weather, and no excessive hot summers.

ELI TUCKER'S LETTER.

Huckleberry Knob, N. C.
Dec. 31, 1913.

Editor Yellow Jacket,

My dear Sir:—Ain't things getting into one devil of a mess in this country? The President is now situated between the devil and the deep blue sea and the water is rising on one side and the Devil is advancing on the other. Woodrow Wilson will find pretty soon however that there are two things that he can't do. He can't put his Free Trade medicine down the people's throats and he can't turn this country over to the Roman Catholics. Tho he is trying his blamdest to do both. He has been invited to put in action his gallows-making machine and bring to judgment and execution, upon a "bibbet as high as Haman's" the men who have reduced wages or shut down plants as result of the Free Trade tariff law.

He has been shown that a great number of shingle mills and lumber plants in the State of Washington have been forced to close, throwing about 15,000 men out of work because of inability of the lumber people to compete with the cheap Chinese and Hindoo labor employed by the lumber mills of British Columbia. This is the kind of Democratic prosperity that has begin to hit the North West as a result of Free Trade. These 15,000 men are out of work, they are out of money, and without food and without shelter, and they have gone to the cities to tramp and beg. That sounds like Cleveland times, does it not, Mr. Democrat? This is the first time since then that the wage earner has become a tramp and the mill worker a beggar. This is Woodrow Wilson's new freedom he told you about. But some Democrat will say that this report is all a lie. But hold on, I have not begun yet. There is something worse a coming. The Democratic tariff on steel closed the Pittsburg mills and threw 25,000 men out of jobs the other day. More Democracy, Jeems Henry. The Wharton steel company went out of existence the other day. More Democratic tariff. A Chicago dispatch says that 5,498 men have been discharged from thirty-two plants in two weeks. The New York Journal of Commerce says that the payment of wages throughout the nation is $1,250,000 a day below the average. That sounds like some more Democratic prosperity, don't it, Bethlehem steel company says this country faces the most serious depression that it has ever known. The Democrats themselves have begun to see where Free Trade is driving our ducks now after it is too late to escape a smash-up. Ex-Congressman Littleton, a Democrat, declares that "New York at this moment is the centre of the most remarkable pessimism that I have ever known." How does that sound for Wilson prosperity? Shipping shows the way the wind blows. The American Railway bulletin reports that between November the 15 and Dec. 1st, the number of idle freight cars increased from 22,652 to 57,234. That's more Democratic expansion. Say, Mr. Democrat, why in the devil's name don't you smile?

Mr. Editor, I am going to switch off till next issue when I am going to rub it into the Scrats as they have never had it rubbed before. It does seem to me like a dadgasted shame that a great and prosperous nation like this was a year ago should have to be driven to the very brink of perdition just to gratify the political whims of a crowd of dreamers who insist on forcing Free Trade on us.

But, Mr. Editor, this Free Trade trouble is a gentle zephyr compared to the storm that is brewing for Wilson. He is literally sitting on a volcano if he but knew it and there is going to be an explosion that he will never forget. Hell's going to be to pay and the pitch is already hot. Mr. Wilson might as well learn now as ever that he can't turn this country over to the Roman Catholics. He can get down on his all fours and lick the Pope's big toe if he feels that way about it, but there is a limit of endurance beyond which the Protestant world will not go. The Rubican has been crossed on this Catholic question. I am sending you a clipping from a big Democratic paper that shows which way the wind is setting. Give it a good head so that the millions of readers of The Yellow Jacket can see how Woodrow Wilson is packing the Departments with Catholics. I hope to God the popping will set in p. d. q. and that it will continue to pop till Woodrow Wilson is taught that he and the Roman Catholics don't amount to a tinker's dam when it comes to measuring actual strength in these United States. No, by the eternal gods Woodrow Wilson can't "Romanise America" and he might as well inform his Mr. Tumulty that the game is off. Wilson evidently desires the ill will of the whole Protestant world from the way he has been acting here lately.

Yours for the frolic,
ELI TUCKER.

Isaac W. Vinson Instantly Killed

Body Is Mangled In a Stalk Cutting Machine

Isaac W. Vinson, a prominent and highly esteemed citizen of Bethel community near Cooper met a tragic death Monday afternoon about two o'clock.

Mr. Vinson was engaged in cutting stalks in his field with an improved cutting machine, which he was driving with a pair of young and lively mules. By some unknown means the mules became frightened and ran out of the field and down an embankment into the public road, supposedly throwing him from his seat and entangling him in the blades of the machine.

When found by his little daughter the team with the machine, had gone about a hundred yards up the road from where they started, and Mr. Vinson's body was entangled in the machinery.

He lived about 15 minutes after being removed from the fatal cause of his injuries, and never regained consciousness after he was reached by friends.

The dead man was about 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and three children, one of whom is married.

Mr. Vinson was well known in this county, and enjoyed a high reputation as a citizen of marked popularity and influence. His many friends have serious cause to regret his untimely death, and mourn with his relatives the dire tragedy of same.

County Teachers Reading Circle.

Regular Meeting, Clanton, Saturday, Jan. 3, 1914.

The Chilton County Teachers Reading Circle held its regular monthly meeting at the Courthouse in Clanton, Saturday, Jan. 3. It was one of the best meetings yet held, much enthusiasm being shown by the teachers present. There was a good attendance of teachers at both morning and afternoon session. Interesting talks were made by Mr. J. Sterling Moran, Profs. N. R. Baker and J. S. Sibley, Rural School Supervisors, and also short talks were made by a number of other teachers.

The following resolution was read and adopted unanimously:—

Whereas the teachers of Chilton County realizing the need of a County High School, have from the beginning, urged and favored the propositions to secure the same, and whereas, we feel that to the court of County Commissioners is largely due our extreme gratification as having practicaily secured said school, owing to the fact that they have by vote in court session donated four thousand dollars from the county funds to aid in erecting a suitable building for the school at some place in in the county,

Therefore, be it resolved by the Teachers reading Circle of Chilton County, in regular session that we extend to said Court of County Commissioners our sincerest thanks and gratification for the invaluable aid they have rendered the proposition.

The next county meeting will be held in Clanton on the first Saturday in February. It is to be hoped that the teachers over the county will procure the book now being read "The Teacher and the School," and get ready to attend.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WOODMEN.

At the annual meeting of the Local Camp, No. 322, Woodmen of the World which met last Monday evening, officers for the ensuing year were installed, and Mr. J. E. Wood was initiated into the wonders of woodcraft.

The Sovereigns began to assemble early, and by 8 o'clock, one hundred and three husky Woodmen were in Camp. After lounging around for a while, each one having been given the opportunity of shaking hands with his fellow Woodmen, the Camp went into the business of the hour.

While all this was going on, Mr. O. S. Davis with all the available help in town, was preparing a magnificant banquet for those hungry men of the woods.

In the midst of the exercises of the hour, proceedings were halted and sixty of the most stalwart men Chilton county claims, marched out in order and proceeded to Davis' Cafe where one of the most bounteous repasts that their eyes had ever beheld was spread before them. Everything from the best cured meats to the most tempting vegetables was on the table. All that man could desire was there for him, and it is useless to say that those present enjoyed themselves. (We ate like savages).

After the men lucky enough to be first repaired to the Camp, the remaining forty-three marched down and were treated equally as well.

On assembling the second time officers were duly installed as follows:

J. W. P. Murphy, C. C.; B. J. Sessions, A. L.; Erice Hart, Banker; J. L. Gore, Escort; T. W. Kemp, Watchman; E. L. Bryant, Centry; Dr. V. J. Gragg, Dr. P. I. Hopkins, Physicians; W. H. Sartor, J. R. Mullins and H. T. Pipes, Managers.

After the installation exercises, informal talks were given and much enthusiasm exhibited. Indications are that the ensuing year will be the most prosperous in the history of Woodcraft in Clanton, Alabama.

MEMORIES of the Old South in Every Can of French Market Coffee

The romance of the days of Andrew Jackson, of Henry Clay, of the picturesque pirate chief, LaFitte, and of the beautiful women and brave men of the old South, clings around every cup of delicious old French Market Coffee.

Enjoying its unmatched aroma and wonderful soothing flavor invokes the picture of the quaint stalls where belles and beaux congregated after every festive occasion for the crowning pleasure of a good-night cup of this most popular of all beverages.

The French Market Coffee that you get from your grocer, in perfectly-sealed packages, is identical with the historic French blend served in the old French Market in New Orleans.

Try it once and you'll agree there is only one real old French Market Coffee—only one coffee with a history.

Roasted by our unique, hygienic process.

CORN CLUB WORK WORTH MILLIONS

South Entering New Era of Agricultural Production, Declares H. G. Hastings.

Atlanta, Ga.—(Special.)—That the Boys' Corn Club movement means a great deal more to the South than the average citizen has ever dreamed, is the conclusion presented in an interesting interview by H. G. Hastings of Atlanta, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Georgia State Corn Show, which is presented annually in the state capitol building.

"We are facing," says Mr. Hastings, "an era of agricultural production such as the world has never before witnessed. Every year since the first corn club was organized, the movement has seen more than remarkable growth. One year's record has become insignificant when that of the next year doubled it; and by that, I mean that many more boys have gone into the work and have vastly increased results not only by their own efforts, but through inspiration to fathers, brothers and neighbors until millions of dollars have already been added to corn production in the South.

"And yet this is but a forecast of what is to come. There are now being organized as an outgrowth of the corn club work, Three and Four-Crop Clubs. The boys will plant oats and cowpeas on their former corn acre, thus diversifying their crops and renewing the soil, while a new acre will be taken for corn cultivation. In some sections cotton has been added to the list, on a third acre, and the Four-Crop Club boys have already gone to work.

"Another outgrowth of the corn club is the Pig Club. Southern boys have learned the truth of the story of the unsuccessful farmer who sent to a more prosperous neighbor to buy a shoat. The neighbor sold him the shoat, but with it presented him a sack of corn. 'You have got the shoat under your arm,' he told the farmer, 'but I want you to remember that the hog is in the sack.'"

Must Be Striven For.

The old saw runs, "Sweetest nuts have hardest shells." This, we suppose, is a quaint way of saying that everything worth the having requires both pains and strains to acquire. The gold is not obtained until the rocks are crushed and the fires are applied. The best fruits of learning are obtained after great expense of time, labor and investigation.

Genuine Pity.

"Mr. and Mrs. Whiffer never have any arguments." "How does that happen?" "Mr. Whiffer won't argue." "The poor woman!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Must Not Shun Combat.

"He is not worthy of the honeycomb who suns the hive because the bees have stings."

"CAN NOTICE A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT"

"TEXAS LADY REGAINS USE OF HANDS."

A lady in Beaumont, Texas, who has been suffering with Rheumatism for years and who had lost the use of her hands, tried that great German Remedy "VIGORETTES" upon the advise of a friend. A weeks treatment and she began to improve. After taking three boxes she could do fancy needle work. She now has entirely regained the use of her hands and is greatly improved in health. Name will be furnished by The Vigorette Co., Houston, Texas, or if you have a friend who is suffering from Rheumatism or Stomach trouble they will send three full sized boxes by Parcels Post for $2.50, or have your druggist order it for you.

Sound View, Conn., Nov. 15, 1913
The Vigorette Co.,
Houston, Texas.
Gentlemen:
For many years I suffered from Sciatic Rheumatism in its most form, at times I could not get off the bed except by falling into a chair and from the chair to the floor. My pains was so awful that I often fainted away. Your splendid Vigorettes has affected a lasting cure. I highly recommend them to all sufferers, and will gladly answer all letters.
Yours truly,
Prof. C. J. Budlong,
Sound View, Conn.

Mr. Hartell in ordering a dozen boxes states: VIGORETTES certainly made a man of me. I am going to distribute a few boxes among my friends.

W. B. Miller of Houston, Texas says: When I began taking VIGORETTES I could hardly walk down stairs. I was a cripple from Rheumatism and could not walk without a cane. After taking the VIGORETTES for a week I began to improve. I took three boxes and I am glad to say I now walk without a cane and I feel like a new man. It is certainly a wonderful medicine.

Mrs. Barden has disiributed 4 dozen boxes among her friends. In her own case she states that the doctors had given her up. A physical wreck when I began taking VIGORETTES. A weeks treatment and I feel better. Now thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am well and happy.

THE UNION-BANNER

Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama.
UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1908, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

We are indeed glad to state to our subscribers that our new press which we have been so long promising has at last made its appearance. It is the latest and most improved models in printing machinery, and bids fair to handle any task which may be exacted of it. This week's paper is a sample of what it is going to do.

We trust that our efforts to produce a newspaper of worth and reputation shall not return unto us void, but bear fruit in the form of a host of interested and satisfied readers. We are going to exert every honorable effort to serve the people in the way unprejudiced judgment dictates a newspaper should render public service. If we should have any views that do not agree with those of some reader, we hope he will not feel that we are fighting his liberties and opposing his freedom. Let him remember that everyone has his own personal ideas about matters, even though to someone else they may seem feebly weak or radically wrong. Every man has a right to silently weigh and criticise the ideas of another, but it is harsh to condemn your fellowman because he does not happen to agree with you in opinion.

Now in future, we want to ask every citizen of Chilton County to lend us his support in making our paper what we hope to make it. In turn for same we heartily pledge our utmost efforts to serve you in a way that will but cause you to feel fully compensated for your loyalty to us.

Chilton County Minutes Ready

OYSTER SUPPER
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Methodist Ladies will give an Oyster Supper at the Davis Cafe Friday evening, Jan. 16, beginning at 5 o'clock. Oysters will be served raw, stewed, and fried. The ladies will thank you for your patronage. Everybody invited. Orders will be given special attention.

The Democracy has staked its existence as a controlling power on the result of its Tariff act. It was warned that it would be held sternly responsible for the definite fulfillment of definite promises, and if it does not make good it will not be held excusable, and perhaps entitled to sympathy as merely the victim of a disappointed hope. The new Tariff must promptly bring decided and general prosperity, or out the Democrats go.—American Economist.

OUR HOLIDAY SUBSCRIPTION OFFER.

We have made arrangements with the leading farm paper of the South for a club subscription offer during the holidays that has never been equaled before. It is not one of those offers that gives you a dozen worthless papers for a small price, but one that gives you two papers, the value of which, in their respective fields, cannot be surpassed, and both for the price of one.

THE OFFER:

During the next thirty days we will give The Union-Banner one full year, and The Progressive Farmer six months, both for only $1.25. The offer is good for both new subscribers and renewals.

The Progressive Farmer is by far the best farm paper in the South. It is published weekly in Birmingham, right here at home, and is edited by men who know Southern conditions, and are capable of giving real practical advice and not mere theory. It is distinctively a southern farm paper for the Southern farm. The regular subscription price of the Progressive Farmer is $1.00 per year, or 50c for six months, and those who are acquainted with its merits regard this as cheap for a paper of such value. To those who do not already know of it, we will stand as sponsor for it as being the best paper in existence for the southern farmer.

The Union-Banner for 1914 is going to reach a standard of excellence that has never before been attained in the field of a weekly newspaper in Chilton County. We are going to devote our columns to matters of home and local news, social, industrial, religious, educational and political, at all times championing the cause of right and justice in every phase of community progress. Our facilities and office equipment are being improved, and during the next year you cannot afford to be without the news of the county, and to get this news you cannot do better than take the Union-Banner.

Avail yourself of this superior offer now. It is the best chance you will ever have to secure these two valuable papers. If your subscription to the Union-Banner is about out send us $1.25 at once and we will renew you one full year, and send you the Progressive Farmer for six months. Remember this offer will last only 30 DAYS.

"The Home of the Square Deal."

Keep a Thankful Heart.

The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and as the magnet finds the iron, so will it find in every hour some heavenly blessings; only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Henry Ward Beecher.

If.

If princes knew when to speak, and women to keep silent, courtiers said what they thought, and servants to conceal it, the whole world would be at peace.—Chinese.

Lambasted.

A new trainer was engaged for the circus and was told to put a lion and a lamb through an act. He seemed nervous, and the next his boss asked him how he got along with the savage lion. "Sure, the lion didn't bother me much," he said, "but that durned lamb butted the daylights out of me!"

About the Human Eye.

Greenish, hazel and spotted eyes are accompanied usually with shrewd, quick, nervous, restless temperaments. According to Professor Hudson, Asiatics with hazel eyes are cunning and weasel-like. Contrary to the popular notion, persons with green eyes are too indifferent in passion to be at all jealous of the opposite sex; they are, however, frequently envious of their own.

How Cat Caused Fire.

A cat caused a fire in a dwelling house at Port Glasgow, (Renfrew), recently. A hot cinder fell on the cat lying in front of the hearth. The animal darted under the bed, and the cinder fell among some clothing and set the place on fire.

Simple Enough.

"How does your husband account for the high cost of living?" "Very simply. He just blames me for it."

Flowers Used as Food.

It is not a matter of common knowledge that in a great many countries nearly all the flowers are used as articles of food. We sometimes use nasturtiums in salads, but we would hardly think of growing lilies for the mere purpose of boiling them down to make a dish resembling spinach.

Divine Spark.

"I understand her sweetheart is a minister of the gospel." "Yes, she has the divine spark."

Philately and History.

An interesting chapter in philatelic history, and in the history of Europe, is closed by the decision to suppress the foreign postal agencies in Crete as the result of the union of that island with Greece. Austria, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy have all maintained post offices in Crete, as in Turkey, and there is at the moment much speculation in philatelic circles as to whether the Levantine post offices maintained by the powers, among which Germany is also included, will not be closed as well.

When the Eyes Are Gray.

Among the gray eyed there are few who retain any spiritual emotions. People with gray eyes are superficial, frivolous, given to embrace false idols, running down blind alleys, following false prophets, thoughtless, inconsiderate, wanting in sympathy, neurotic, unstable, not firm and deliberate, but rash and impetuous.

Mother's Friend in Every Home

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 128 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their free book. Write to-day. It is most instructive.

Genuine Pity.

"Mr. and Mrs. Whiffer never have any arguments." "How does that happen?" "Mr. Whiffer won't argue." "The poor woman!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

When the Eyes Are Gray.

Among the gray eyed there are few who retain any spiritual emotions. People with gray eyes are superficial, frivolous, given to embrace false idols, running down blind alleys, following false prophets, thoughtless, inconsiderate, wanting in sympathy, neurotic, unstable, not firm and deliberate, but rash and impetuous.

Suffered with Throat Trouble.

MR. B. W. D. BARNES, McMinnville, Tenn.

Mr. Barnes used to be sheriff of Warren County, Tennessee. From exposure to the elements he acquired throat trouble. He supposed that his health was entirely ruined, in spite of all the treatment he could procure.

After using four bottles of Peruna he claims that he was entirely restored to health.

Catarrh of the throat is not only an annoying disease of itself, but it exposes the victim to many other diseases. We are constantly breathing into our throats numerous atmospheric germs. Disease germs of all sorts. This cannot be avoided. If the throat is healthy the system is protected from these poisonous germs. But if the throat is raw and punctured with numerous little ulcers, by catarrh, then the disease germs have easy access to the system.

Keep the throat well and clean. This is the way to protect yourself against contagious diseases. Gargle the throat as explained in the new "Ills of Life," sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Barnes says: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone. I concluded to try Peruna, and after using four bottles can say I was entirely cured."

Order.

Order is the sanity of the mind, the health of the body, the peace of the city, the security of the state. As the beams of the house, as the bones to the microcosm of man, so is order to all things.—Southey.

Character Told by the Chin.

The shape of the chin is of considerable importance in reading character. A chin smooth and round denotes a childlike disposition and a yielding will. The oval chin is an indication of an artistic, sensitive nature, with some talent along those lines, while the angular chin denotes the scientific, practical nature. The protruding chin always means combativeness, determination and power, and the receding chin denotes the weak will, and the straight chin also denotes weakness.

D. D. D. Opens New Era in Cure of Skin Disease

Professor Budlong's case of eczema was known to almost every hospital and physician of reputation throughout the state of Connecticut. His letter is another interesting demonstration of what is being accomplished by the famous specific D. D. D., Prescription. "It may be of interest to you to know that your life-giving preparation, D. D. D. Prescription has been of incalculable value to me. I was covered with eczema from head to foot when I began using your remedies. I could get no relief, although I tried a thousand means. I applied but two bottles of the Prescription; a cure was effected in a very short time, in less than one month."—Prof. C. J. Budlong, South Lyme, Conn.

Ask any druggist today for D D. D. Prescription. He'll tell you it allays the itch instantly—and soon there are signs of cure.

We have handled the remedy for years and regard it as the specific for skin troubles of all kinds. Come in or ask us about D. D. D. Prescription, also about D. D. D. soap especially for tender skins.

We offer the first full size bottle on the guarantee that unless it stops the itch at once, it costs you not a cent.

The Test.

Park Commissioner Stover of New York was talking about the abolition of "spooning" in Central park.

"We have pretty well abolished spooning," he said. "The way to abolish it altogether is to have fewer copses and more cops. But those who persist in spooning in Central park now, in the face of all the difficulties, are pretty determined sweethearts, and when they marry they should be able to pass all their lives the 'happy marriage' test.

"According to the happy marriage test, you know, a marriage is a success as long as both husband and wife delight in reading their old love letters to one another."

Tragedy in Women's Hats.

There is a tragedy in every woman's hat. It seems almost as cruel to pay girls who make the dainty flowers in France a pittance as to kill the birds of brilliant plumage in Brazil. Thirty cents a day, 20 and 15, with an occasional 75 for rare skill in making roses, deducting for loss of time and slack work, tells the story of wretchedness and woe. Summed up the average is not far from $60 a year on which to support existence. American lovers of French millinery will be amazed at the wages paid young women in France gifted with deft fingers and rare taste, especially when they take the prices charged for Parisian hats into consideration.

Sickness Caused by Wireless.

Wireless operators, particularly on shipboard, are subject to an anemic condition that manifests itself in pallor, loss of appetite and headaches. Blood tests show a diminished number of red corpuscles.

It has been customary to charge this to the poor quarters many of the wireless operators occupy. But it now seems that the presence of too much ozone in the confined air and the presence of electric currents of high frequency exercise a bad effect that as yet is poorly defined.

The same condition has been observed among the electricians at great power stations like that at Niagara.

He Wanted Better Odds.

The first time Bill, the farm hand, ever complained of feeling sick his boss sent him to town with the address of a doctor he knew. Bill came back next day and reported:

"Well, I took my medicine, but not from that doctor you sent me to—no, sirree!"

"Why not? Couldn't you find him?"

"Oh, I found his place, all right, with his name on a brass plate on the door. But underneath the name it said '10 to 1.' I wa'n't goin' to take no such risks as that. There was another doctor next door, and his sign read '8 to 5.' The odds was so much better that I went to him."

Doctors Lose by Telephone.

"Do you know," said the doctor apologetically to the patient waiting in his office," that this prescribing by 'phone is becoming a serious business for us doctors. Now, if I had no 'phone I would be called to the house and I would charge my regular fee for a visit. But if I attempted to charge for prescribing over the telephone I would be thought an extortionist. Yet there is no reason why I should not be paid for my advice over the telephone just as much as if I sat at the patient's bedside and prescribed. Take, for instance, a case which should be watched for three or four days. Instead I'm told, 'we'll call you, doctor, if there is any change.' And then proceed to call me over the telephone, give me the symptoms and ask what is to be done. Of course, there is no excuse for going to the patient's side after the telephone bulletin, unless there is a turn for the worse. So I'm cut right out of a fee for a visit. I believe that we physicians should get together and agree to charge a certain sum for prescribing over the telephone."

Artist and Parvenu.

Phil Morris, the eminent portrait painter, who died when his fame was at its height, had a very unpleasant experience whilst visiting a wealthy merchant who had commissioned him to paint his wife and baby for the sum of £700. The first evening Mr. Morris and his "employer" were discussing the "pose," and the artist, thinking that he had hit on a brilliant suggestion, said it would be effective if the child were lying on the hearthrug with just a vest on, and his mother leaning over, playing "This little pig went to market."

"How dare you, sir! Do you wish to insult me?" I've half a mind to countermand my order," roared the irate wealthy magnate. Poor Phil Morris couldn't think what harm he had done until a few days later he learned that his patron had made his money in "pork," and was known as the "bacon king."

Method of Spearing Fish.

In spite of the march of civilization, there remains much that is still primitive in Sicily, and a curious sight at Palermo is to see the fishermen spearing fish in the harbor by the aid of glass-bottomed buckets (says the Wide World Magazine). There are many corners of the world where fish are speared, but perhaps the use of the glass-bottomed bucket in this connection is to be seen only at Palermo. The fishermen lean far over the side of their boats, and hold the bucket on the water with one hand, poking their heads into it as if engaged in the Hallowe'en game of ducking for apples. They hold a spear poised in the free hand, and thus await the arrival of their victims, who are sighted through the glass bottom of the bucket, which acts as a kind of telescope.

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter or fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced, by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright, and energetic, but you will see the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 161 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores.

Beware of all attempts to sell you something "Just as good." Insist upon S. S. S.

A young lady from the city was going to make her first visit to a cousin in the country. At the station she was met by the cousin, and after a half-hour's drive he told her they were approaching his farm.

In one of the broad fields that met the young lady's attentive eye stood a windmill, and gathered around it, some standing and some reclining, were several hogs.

"Well, that beats anything I ever heard of!" exclaimed the fair one. "I didn't know that you farmers were so considerate."

"What does?" queried the country cousin.

"That over yonder," replied the city girl, pointing a pretty finger. "Just think of having a fan out in the field to keep those hogs cool."—Christian Endeavor World.

Walker is State's Leading County In Health Work

Dr. Grote Elected as County Health Officer

Montgomery, January 10—When Walker county elected Dr. C. A. Grote, who has been connected with the department of sanitation of Alabama two years, county health officer last week and gave him a salary and expense account that will allow him to give his entire time to health work, it took an advanced step that has been taken by only 12 counties in the southern group of states and made Walker the leading county in health work in Alabama.

Dr. Grote will be paid $2500 a year and allowed $500 for expenses. He has assumed his new duties and his resignation as a member of the state department of sanitation has been accepted. This creates a vacancy which will be filled by appointment by Dr. W. W. Dinsmore, head of the department.

"Walker is the first Alabama county to employ a health officer to give his entire time to the office,," said Dr. Dinsmore today. Dr. Grote is a graduate of the Southern university and the medical department of the University of Alabama, and has been interested in the hook-worm campaign which has been carried on by the department of sanitation for two years.

Death of Mrs. Louisa Dennis

On January 14, Mrs. Louisa Dennis was called from this land to a home beyond the skies. She was born in Greene County, Ga. on January 3, 1822. Her home has been in this county since 1834, She leaves a host of Friends and relatives to mourn for her death. She joined the Baptist church in 1884, and has been a devoted Christian ever since. Weep not dear children. She cannot come back to us, but we can go to her. Let us strive to meet her in the great beyond

Lee's Birthday at Soldier's Home

The old veterans and some of their friends fittingly observed 106th birtnday of the great Robt. E. Lee on the 19th. Mrs. Thos. A. Curry, wife of State Senator Curry, read a splendid paper on the life of the great Chieftain as a soldier, a general, and a scholar. Mrs. Curry's paper was replete with elegant words and sentences filled with facts as to the great general.

Mrs. Jeff Falkner made a short and pleasant talk on taking the chair, which Capt. W. J. Bethune resigned to her as the widow of the bounder of the Home, Col. Jeff Falkner.

Some good music and singing was interspersed through the program.

Capt. J. M. Simpson, G. A. Hornady and R. H. Long each made short and timely addresses as to the life of general Lee.

Hon. Thos. A. Curry wrote a letter in which he expressed his regrets at being detained at home on account of legal business.

Miss Carrie McMasters entertained the visiting ladies at dinner. Dr. J. P. Ellsberry also entertained friends.

Confederate flags were placed over the graves of each of the dead veterans buried here, and altogether the day was suitably observed.

Two Arrests On Murder Charge

Cullman, January 10—The arrest of two men, named George James and Lenox Williams, in connection with the assassination of Enoch Clayburn at his home near Bremen in this county, was the quick work of men of the neighborhood. These men were brought to Cullman and lodged in jail on Friday night, less than 24 hours after the killing of Mr. Clayburn.

The murdered man was shot while sitting by his fireside, just a few minutes after putting down the Bible which he had been reading. He had placed the Holy Book into the lap of his wife, who was sitting by his side, and began talking to her of what he had read, when shotgun in the hands of an assassan ended his life.

AGAINST FRATERNITIES AT ALA. UNIVERSITY

Plans Made For Ousting Greek Letter Organizations.

"The fraternities must go" was tne slogan of the meeting of students and alumni held in Morgan Hall at the University recently.

A movement was launched which, those interested believe, will eventually result in the driving of Greek letter fraternities from the University.

Last night's meeting was secretly called and was attended by a large number of representative students and alumni of the University from all parts of the state. Mr. B. E. Jones, an honor man of the senior law class, presided. Numerous speeches were made setting forth the grievences against the fraternities.

It was decided last night to carry the fight to the floor of the legislature when it meets next year, in the hope that the representatives and senators may be convinced that secret societies are detrimental to the best interests of the University and order them abolished.

In the meantime a vigorous publicity campaign will be carried on in every part of the state. A publicity committee that will have in charge this phase of the work will be appointed Monday, and will begin work at once.

PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The publicity fight will be waged in the daily and weekly newspapers of the state and by speakers, who it is said, will be sent to every county in Alabama. Several influential papers have already pledged their support to the anti-fraternity fight, it is claimed.

It is planned to seek to have every candidate for house or senate commit himself as to how he will vote when the matter comes up, and a vigorous fight will be made on all those who refuse to commit themselves against the fraternities. Also, the parents of students and those planning to send boys and girls to the University will be interested in the matter, and effort made to enlist their aid against fraternities.

It is known that the movement is backed by some of the strongest men in the state, former students of the University, and it is claimed that the necessary funds for carrying on the fight have been pledged to them. The student body is very much divided on the subject, each side claiming a majority of the more influential men.

A big mass meeting, to which members of the faculty and all fraternity men will be invited is planned for the near future, and may be held within the next week or two. A public debate, at which two representatives of each faction will discuss the situation, is under consideration.

Feeling among certain students against Greek letter fraternities has long existed on the campus and at times this feeling has become tense. The sentiment is apparently much stronger this year, indeed it seems to be growing all over the country, and the meeting last night was the culmination of plans. — Tuscaloosa News.

People Urged to Pay Poll Tax

Judge Reynolds Appeals to Voters of County.

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 20, 1914.
Editor Union-Banner:—

I ask just a small space to say a few words on the political situation as I see it.

In the first place if there ever was a time when every white man should pay his poll tax it is this year. There has been mass meeting after mass meeting, protest after protest, petition after petition, appeal on top of appeal; now it seems to me the only effect the people of this county can have is to pay their poll tax and at the election box they can be heard. I think the people of this county have learned that they have more influence with candidates than officers.

Did you ever hear a candidate say he would do a certain thing if every man in the county were opposed to it? It is reported that some of the officers have said they would do certain things if every man in the county were opposed to it.

I ask the people of this county if there ever was a time when there was as much confusion as there is now in the county? Did you ever hear as much complaint? Did you ever hear as much protest? In fact, did you ever see the whole state in such confusion? Did you ever hear such a cry for more taxes? Everything is taxed to death, and now they are talking of calling the Legislature to provide some way to get more taxes out of the dear people. They have sent out their tax gatherers to every nook and corner of the state to almost get blood money from the people, and have added thousands of dollars of cost on the tax payers, but still they are not satisfied. If the taxes go on for a few more years, will people who want to invest in our State not hesitate to buy property on account of high taxes?

The poor old soldiers have been dropped from the pension roll on every technical point that could be raised, because their money had been spent for high salaries, and to pay new officers where places had been created for special pets that could not make a living any other way.

Look at your tax receipts this year and compare them with a few years ago, and then think what you have got for the increase in your taxes.

I hope the people that think the same way will get together and have a primary and nominate good men for all the places to be filled this year, and then get together and elect them in November.

The State Democratic Committee has put up the bars, so their papers say, so high that an honorable man that did not vote the entire Democratic ticket last time will not even try to vote in their primary. I think they had better be trying to put the bars up so high that more of their voters will not jump out. Did anyone ever know a time in this state ween the Democratic party was in such a straight? The State Committee says that only those that voted the entire Democaatic ticket from bottom to top can vote in their primary, but county after county, has pulled down the bars, even old Chilton has pulled them down, so I understand, when they know the state has the power to fix the qualification of voters. This is all done to fool the dear people, but about once every twenty years is as often as the Democrats of Chilton can fool the people.

I hope we will have a harmonious primary this year, without any confusion, snd elect the ticket by the largest majority we have had for many yeris. The people have had a taste of Democratic rule.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Death of Veteran M. H. Welch

News has been received here of the sudden death of Veteran M. H. Welch, at the Confederate Infirmary in South Carolina. Mr. Welch for six years resided at the Alabama Soldiers Home, and is well known all over this State. During his life here he had the care of a flower garden which he was devoted to, and was always pleasant and entertaining to the many visitors of the Home who were attracted to his pretty plot. His death was a surprise to his many friends and acquaintances, and is much regretted by all who were favored with his kindly ways and disposition.

Messrs. W. P. Lowery and J. M. Smith,
Thorsby, Ala.

Dear Sirs:-

I have just received your communication conveying a vote of thanks of the Chilton County, Alabama, Farmers' Union, for the work of Messrs. Treat and Moran in co-operation with your Union. The request that a motion picture machine and films be furnished will be taken up with the Secretary as soon as practicable. It is possible, however, that the policy of the department may not permit the furnishing of these machines at government expense, but this office will at least be glad to do all it can to enable you to purchase a machine at the lowest possible figure.

I assure you that I deeply appreciate your vote of thanks and will do everything in my power to help along the work which you are doing in Chilton County.

Very truly yours,
T. N. Carver, Director
Rural Organization Service.

John L. Gore To Make Race

Will Seek Nomination for Sheriff in Progressive Primary.

The Editor of Thn Union-Banner has been authoritatively informed of the intention of Mr. J. L. Gore to make the race for the nomination for the Sheriff's office in the coming primary, on the platform of the Progressive Party. It is time some more of our men were coming out and letting the people know their intentions. We have plenty of good men to fill the offices which are to be filled in the next election and we are anxious to see them begin to put their policies before tne voters.

Resolution of Respect

Whereas God in His wisdom has seen best to call from our midst our beloved brother and friend I. W. Vinson, and whereas he was a member of Chestnut Creek Sunday school and church in full fellowship,

Be it therefore resolved, that we deplore and mourn his untimely death, and that in his demise, we have sustained an irrepairable loss. That the Sunday school has lost one of its most ardent supporters, and the church one of her most able workers; that our loss is His, and Heaven's gain.

Be it further resolved, that a page of our record be set apart and this resolution spread thereon, and a copy be furnished the family of our beloved brother; that our county papers be asked to publish the same.

Respectfully,
The Sunday School of Chestnut Creek Church.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

It is the desire of the management of The Union-Banner during 1914 to give to our readers the news of Chilton county, full and complete, of whatever nature it may be, provided first, that it is of interest to our citizens, and is worthy of being placed in the columns of a decent newspaper. In covering our field it is very necessary that, in order to do justice to all, and hold the interest of all, we have in our paper at intervals, the news of various rural communities. We cannot obtain such news in any other way than have someone in each community write us a communication each week, or as often as they can. We would be glad every community in the county would agree to fill a space in the paper. Anyone who will write for us from any community, by making known their willingness to do so, will receive from us stationery for that purpose, and in addition we will send that person our paper free, during the time he or she is writing for us. Let us hear from you at once.

Lest you forget, now is the time to be up and doing if you wish to win any of the prizes in any of the clubs and county Fair this fall.

Those interested in good hogs and beef cattle will be glad to know that there will be a public sale of 50 young Aberdeen-Angus bulls at the Montgomery Fair grounds Feb. 3. And a public sale of pure bred Berkshire hogs at Talladega on Feb. 18. Each breed are as good as grow. If interested you should be there.

This week we have a list of the prizes won by members of the Girls Tomato Club. These young ladies certainly deserve great credit and praise for the splendid showing they have made, as they are doubtless doing a great good. Their accomplishments of last season should stimulate them toward greater success in the next crop. Though they succeeded admirably this time, we hope they will still strive for better.

Read the letter from. Hon. L. H. Reynolds in this weeks issue of The Union-Banner, and take heed to what he says. He offers some ideas that are vital to the tax payers of our county. There are some conditions existing in our government that demand a change, and the voice of the people is all that we can depend upon to bring about this change. Pay your poll tax and you can command a hearing in bringing about better legislation in the affairs of our government.

With the coming of such bright spring-like days as we have had for the past week, also comes the beginning of operations preparatory to planting crops for the next summer. Such days remind us of times not far gone, when we were on the farm, and about this time of the year, were engaged in burning trash, corn stalks and cotton stalks, getting the ground cleared for the plow. And it also reminds us of something else—what poor farming this way of burning the corn and cotton stalks is. By a little reflection on the matter, anyone can see the practice is wrong. Then why continue doing it?

An article in a recent number of "The Progressive Farmer" offers plain facts on the subject in open figures, and we reproduce it thatour readers may have the benefit of same. They are as follows:

"Chemists have found by analysis that where 300 pounds of lint cotton is produced the leaves, burs, roots and stems contain about 23 pounds of nitrogen, worth at current retail prices, $4.60. Nitrogen is by far the most expensive fertilizing element we have to buy and it also is the element of value that is lost when the material is burned. Again, take the case of corn stalks. Where 40 bushels of corn has been grown there will be about 16 pounds of nitrogen in the stalks and fodder. This too, worth $3.20 is lost when the stalks are burned.

Summarizing a bit, let us see how much the two-horse farmer, for instance, the man with 20 acres each of cotton and corn, loses when he burns the stalks and trash off his entire 40 acres. We will assume that he makes 200 pounds of lint and 20 bushels of corn to the acre—a fine average for the stalk-burning type of farmer. Burning his cotton stalks, leaves and burs, he would lose a fraction more than $60 from the 20 acres; while from his 20 acres of corn, burning the stalks and fodder, the loss would amount to $32. To this $92 loss of nitrogen must be added the loss of vegetable matter--humus—so much needed, and which, if plowed under, would be as valuable in increasing yields as the nitrogen destroyed. In other words, such a farmer loses almost $200 a year by such practices; but, to be conservative, let us cut it in two, and say $100."

These figures are summarized in such a way as to make their facts self evident. The man who burns his stalks is destroying an amount of fertilizer which he must turn around directly and lay out cash to purchase again. This should be stopped by plowing these humus containing elements into the soil and saving them.

"RAISING THE BARS"

When the democratic executive committee of the state at its meeting January 7 "raised the bars," it accomplished more than erecting a barrier against the participation by republicans in the democratic primary of April 6.

As a matter of fact, as a result of that action of the committee of the party, a break between the democrats and the republicans has occurred. The former have told the latter that hereafter there shall be no compromise.

"You go your way, and permit me to go mine," was the sentence implied.

For a number of years, on account of the selfishness of candidates in counties and districts posessing a large percentage of republican voters, there has been an effort made to compromise with the republicans.

The democrats have said: "Of course, you do not believe in national democracy, but you believe in me."

And the republicans, thus invited, have participated in democratic primaries. But no good has been accomplished. The republican who votes for democratic candidates for county and district offices is never converted to the doctrine of "unqualified democracy." It is wise, therefore, to break with them.

It has been shown already that committees of several counties have displayed a disposition to court the friendship of the republicans despite the action of the state committee. No good purpose can be conserved as a result of this policy. As soon as it becomes known that a republican must vote for a democratic candidate for President if he is to vote for his neighbor for justice of the peace or sheriff, or coroner, or congressman, then will real converts begin to come into the fold. But as long as the democrats hold out the olive branch—not because they love the republican, but because they want his vote--the adherents of the "standpatters" will continue to "do as they please."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

It will be seen by reading the above editorial from the Age-Herald of Tuesday, that some democrats are not very much concerned about the results that will arise from the recent action of the State Democratic Executive Committee, which "raised the bars," in order to prevent those, who believe and vote Republican in national politics, and occasionally support the Democrats locally, from voting at all in the Democratic primaries. They seem to presume that it is everything gained for the Democrats and nothing lost.

But there are evidently other Democrats who see the matter in a different light, as is evidenced by the fact that some county committees are not adopting the plan set by the State Committee. An article in the Montgomery Journal of recent date, regarding the action of the committee, says:

"In setting a precedent, and establishing the regulations requiring the majority plan for county and Congressional elections, the Committee has placed the prospects of the Democratic party in Alabama in grave jeopardy.

"It is contended by citizens of twelve counties of the State—and there are probably others which have not been heard from—that by establishing the majority rule, the State Committee has placed it within the power of the Republicans and Progressives united, to overthrow Democratic rule, and put into office men who are not affiliated with the Democratic parfy.

"Figures gathered from the last Presidential elections show that in twelve, and probably more counties, there was a larger vote for the Progressive and Republican tickets combined, than there was for Wilson."

NOT LIKE THE REAL THING

Critic of Novelists Complains That Writers Do Not Properly Represent Life as it is.

Mrs. Durnford was known to disapprove of literary people, writes Mrs. Mary C. E. Wemyss in "People of Popham," and her proud boast was that she never read novels. "I can see life as it is, without its being made ridiculous by people who know nothing about it," she would declare.

"You see, Miss Hope, what I object to in writing is this," said Mrs. Durnford. "You set out to write a book, which heaven forbid! You write about me! Well, you haven't the least idea what I am thinking about! You say, 'Mrs. Durnford was very much touched when I told her about old Mr. Tubb's death. Her eyes filled with tears.' Well, they didn't. I wanted to sneeze, that was all! See?"

"Well, that would be called literary license. I am sure you would feel the death of a Mr. Tubb dreadfully; I can imagine any one would," I said.

"I just happened to think of the name. I don't suppose a name makes any difference," she replied. "And in describing love, my dear. You may have had proposals, of course. If you have, you will know that not one man in fifty kneels. I shouldn't have respected Doctor Durnford's intelligence if he had. Now take proposals in books! Pages and pages, chapters sometimes, whereas the real thing happens like this: Doctor Durnford met me at the corner of the road, by the sign post, and he asked me what I was going to do, and I said I was going for a walk. And he said, very naturally, I thought, 'May I come, too?' I bowed. Then he said nothing till we got to Dyer's Pond, and then he said, 'May I walk with you through life?' I said, 'Yes.' That was all. He gave me the ring; it was in his pocket. Diamonds and sapphires, small, but large enough."

"She went on:

"What could be simpler? We had an oak suite in the dining-room, a mahogany suite in the consulting-room, a satinwood suite in the drawing-room and ash in the bedroom. We had good carpets throughout, changing on the stairs from pile to cord at my bedroom. They are all as good today as they were then."

I said I thought she had chosen most wisely, both in husband and furniture.—Youth's Companion.

NOT SPOILED BY POSITION

President of the French Republic Pleased to Greet Humble Companion of His Boyhood.

A pretty little incident that throws a pleasing light upon the character of the president of France occurred recently at a banquet given by the French bar to President Poincare.

At the close of the dinner M. Poincare called up the waiter who had watched over his comfort. "Thank you, Jacques," he said quietly, and shook him by the hand. At the same time the president managed to slip a bank note into the waiter's palm.

"I won't have it!" cried Jacques, and to the amusement and astonishment of the guests there ensued a friendly struggle between the waiter and the president of the republic.

M. Poincare ended the amicable dispute by pushing the note into the man's pocket and good-naturedly slapping him on the back. The waiter could not resist this sincere geniality, and finally, after another handshake, retired, wreathed in smiles.

When the president turned back to the table he noticed the perplexed looks on the faces of the guests, who did not know what to make of the scene.

"You see," he explained simply, "I was at school with Jacques at Sampigny."—Youth's Companion.

Valuable Horse.

The talk in the lobby of a Washington hotel the other evening turned to horses, and Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia recalled an incident that recently happened in the south.

Rambling along the road one morning a colored party named Rastus met his neighbor, Sambo. Instantly it was seen that Rastus had large tidings to impart.

"Look yeah, Sambo," he excitedly remarked, "did yo' know dat somebody done gone steal Deacon White's hoss las' night?"

"Yo' doan mean it, Rastus!" exclaimed Sambo, with an expressive cast of countenance. "Did dey find any clue to de t'ief dat done de crime?"

"Yes, dey suah did," answered Rastus. "In de stable whar dey took de hoss from dey find a quo't bottle full ob gin."

Rabbits Know Geography.

Since the Connecticut game law went into effect there has been much trouble along the state line over Rhode Island shooters coming over to this side. Connecticut game wardens and protectors are scattered all along the line looking out for law violators who plead ignorance of the state line whereabouts.

Two Providence men were fined $30.44 for each rabbit "holed" for they hadn't caught any.

One of the men said:

Mars Hill

There is a great deal of sickness in this community at present. Mr. Tom Watson's wife is very ill, and Mrs. C. L. Langston has been confined to her room with paralysis for thirteen weeks. She has suffered wonderfully with that terrible disease.

I want to say a few words to the Poll Tax payers of the County. Boys. don' t fail to pay your poll tax. Now is the time to gei redy for the fight that is going to be made this year. Don' t let the time go by. It is limited to the first day of February. We have several officers to elect this year, and we should begin to look out somewhat. We will do it by all the people, not by a certain class. We want a set of Bull Moosers that will stand for the majority rule, not the minority.

I want you all to look what is going on in our country. The people are being ignored, even the majority. I wonder where we are going to before we stop. We have a Sheriff, Treasurer, two Commissioners, and Representative to elect this time, and we should be careful and get a set of good business men. Let's don't be fooled any more. You know that the voice of the people ought to be heard in all public buestions. Office seekers will soon want to shake your hand and get your vote, cut look out and don't get fooled again.

I am yours as ever, standing for the right thing on all questions.

Editor Union-Banner:—

I think every boy and girl who is advanced sufficiently to enter the High School appreciates the fact that it is almost in sight.

With seventy schools in the County to draw from, it should open with a good enrollment. I believe that with this opportunity many of our boys and girls can attend a high school who otherwise would be barred from that priviledge.

Talking to some school boys anp girls the other day, I noticed their appreciation that we would soon have a high school. I take it as an index of the boys and girles over the county.

Gets Right Twist On Rheumatism

Makes Short Work of Cleaning Out Your Entire System—Aches and Pains Go Fast.

In S. S. S. You Get a Twist on Rheumatism That Settles It.

Many a rheumatic sufferer has been to the drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. and been handed something claimed to be "Just as good." Truly, to ask for bread and be given a stone is still in practice. If you are troubled with rheumatism in any form be sure to use S. S. S. and note its wonderful influence.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to disolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You may depend upon it that the store that sells you what you ask for is a good place to trade. Write to the Swift Specific Co., 204 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their Book on Rheumatism.

OPENED UP WESTERN CANADA

Prince Rupert, Famous Soldier, Was First Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Six years from this month will mark the tercentenary of the birth of Prince Rupert, the great English military officer whose name is forever associated with western Canada by reason of the fact that he was one of the organizers and the first governor of the Hudson's Bay company. The territories of the company, now the western provinces of the dominion, were long called Rupert's land in honor of the prince. Rupert was the third son of Frederick V. of Bohemia and Elizabeth, sister of Charles I. of England. He was noted for his reckless bravery in battle, which he first displayed on the continent. He then went to England to assist his uncle, Charles I., and in 1648 was made admiral of the English fleet. After the restoration he was made lord high admiral and fought against the Dutch. His later years were largely devoted to scientific study and to the affairs of the Hudson's Bay company. Charles II. granted a charter to Rupert and 17 other nobles and gentlemen, incorporated them as the "Governor and company of adventurers of England trading into Hudson's bay." The part played by this company in the development of the west constitutes one of the many romantic chapters in the history of the North American continent.

Sublime Effrontery.

Labouchere's grandfather, Pierre Caesar, was one of Napoleon's brokers. On one occasion Pierre Caesar was sent by Mr. John Hope (his employer) to England to see Sir Francis Baring on some business and fell in love with Sir Francis' third daughter, Dorothy. Before leaving England he asked Sir Francis to permit him to become engaged to his daughter. Sir Francis refused. Pierre Caesar then said, "Would it make any difference to your decision if you knew that Mr. Hope was about to take me into partnership?" Sir Francis unhesitatingly admitted that it would. Pierre Caesar then went back to Holland and suggested to Mr. Hope that he might be taken into partnership. On Mr. Hope discouraging the idea, he said: "Would it make any difference to your decision if you knew that I was engaged to the daughter of Sir Francis Baring?" Mr. Hope replied, "Certainly." Whereupon the wily clerk said, "Well, I am engaged to Miss Dorothy Baring." That very day he was able to write to Sir Francis announcing the news of his admission to partnership in the house of Hope, and in the same letter he claimed the hand of his bride.

About the Human Eye.

Greenish, hazel and spotted eyes are accompanied usually with shrewd, quick, nervous, restless temperaments. According to Professor Hudson, Asiatics with hazel eyes are cunning and weasel-like. Contrary to the popular notion, persons with green eyes are too indifferent in passion to be at all jealous of the opposite sex; they are, however, frequently envious of their own.

Dr. M. A. Simmons, Vegetable Liver Medicine is one os the old time remedies. First offered to the public in 1840. To this day it ranks as the best remedy for the relief of biliousness, indigestion, constipation and all disorders due to a lithographed tin box. Ask for it. Price 25c. Sold by Alroad Drug Co.

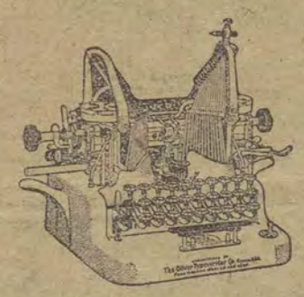
DON'T LET CONSTIPATION RUIN OUR HEALTH

It Deadens the Brain and Weakens the Body. Nature Needs Real and Harmless Aid to Overcome it.

Nature does her best to fight constipation and its evil effects. She fights to the last atom of her strength but usually she has to have assistance.

To avoid the sluggish brain and weakened body, the sick headache, coated tongue and biliousness it is unwise to use unpleasant calomel, a medicine so strong that it leaves most people "all knocked out." Don't take chances with your health.

A great number of people have learned that Dodson's Liver Tone (50.) makes one brighter, healthier and happier in a perfectly easy and natural way, with no pain nor gripe and no bad after-effect.



Alred Drug Company guarantee it without condition and will refund purchase price if you are not entirely satisfied. Dodson's Liver Tone is an absolutely safe, pleasant tasting vegetable liquid and a wonderful liver stimulant which takes the place of calomel, but be sure you get Dodson's.

WHAT THINKING MEN THINK

Many of the world's leading thinkers and doers have expressed thoughts of great value to the industrial and commercial world which have a direct bearing on the situation in Alabama.

"Ample, safe and rapid transportation facilities are even more necessary than cheap transportation."—Theodore Roosevelt.

"The benefactions derived . . . . from railroads is inestimable, and vastly exceeding any intentional philanthropy on record."—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

"Just as your servant can only properly discharge his duties when he is suitably fed, suitably clothed, and suitably housed, so the railroad can only properly discharge its duties when it receives proper treament from the public."—Hon. Chas. A. Prouty, of Interstate Commerce Commission.

"A government may hope to meet its obligations through its power to tax, but American railroads can only meet their obligations out of their own earning capacity."—London Economist.

"The prosperity of a railroad depends upon the prosperity of the territory it serves."

"Our railroad system is without parallel in the world, because we are living as a Nation, and in Europe they live as communities. That accounts in part for the wonderful efficiency of the American railroad."—Hon. Franklin K. Lane, of President Wilson's Cabinet.

"Our railway management has many faults and abuses in detail; but, taking its work as a whole, it has brought down rates to a cheapness which is unequalled elsewhere, and has developed the business of the country on a scale which would have been impossible under any system of rates based on cost of service."—Arthur T. Hadley, President Yale University.

"The American railway pays the highest wages in the world out of the lowest rates in the world, after having set down to capital account the lowest capitalization per mile of any of the great countries of the world."

"The railway, as a corporation, has no voice in the selection of those who frame and administer the laws for its regulation. Its physical property, extending in part through sparsely settled sections and through wildernesses perhaps, is the most defenseless property that exists. In the very nature of its existence, therefore, it can find safety only when, in the darkness of the night watches, in times of stress and peril, and in the enactment of laws for its regulation, the invisible sentinel of public opinion stands guard over its rights and property."

Each and every one of these thoughts came from the mind of one or more eminent men who have extended a great influence for development and upbuilding.

We present them here for your consideration in the hope that they will guide you in forming a correct estimate of the L. & N.

This Wonderful Blend Is a Secret

It is entirely different from ordinary coffees. The secret of the wonderful blend was brought from the coffee-growing countries years ago.

Until recently the only place in America where this rarely delicious coffee could be had was at the French Market in New Orleans.

Here the beauty and chivalry of the Old South gathered, here every notable visitor came—and these visitors numbered some of America's most famous names.

The French Market was society's rendezvous. All because of the wonderful coffee served at the quaint old stalls.

But since the establishment of the French Market Mills, and the invention of the new perfectly-sealed can, French Market Coffee in all its purity and aromatic flavor can be had on any private dining table.

STILL USE HORSE AND WAGON

Transportation Methods of Old Days Yet Employed by Majority of Mankind.

The history of highway transportation since the days of the Roman empire exhibits few phases and great turning points which have marked new eras in progress, in efficiency, in conveniences or economy. Historians of transportation tell us that man's first land vehicle was a boatlike structure without wheels, which was pulled by sheer brute strength, first by man and then by animals which he subjugated, the ox, horse and mule. The next step in land transportation was by means of crude rollers, which were clipped underneath the vehicle very much on the order of the rollers which we see in use in moving small buildings short distances.

When the revolving wheel was applied to vehicles a great impetus was given to highway transportation and for 4,000 years at least, until very recently, highway transportation saw very little change or improvement, says the Engineering Magazine.

If we carefully compare the methods of highway transportation in the days of the Roman empire and the year 1912 we find that the greater percentage of the world is still using the horse and wagon very much after the fashion of the Romans; we see no great evolution in highway transportation parelleling the wonderful advance that has been made in power transportation by rail or trolley. The delivery of our merchandise is much after the fashion of 5,000 years ago, although the motor, the iron horse of the highway, has reached mechanical perfection in the span of ten years; however, so great a slave to custom is man that he finds today comparatively little commercial utilization of one of the greatest civilizing agencies and efficiency tools that so far has been given the world.

The development of this efficiency tool has gone on so quietly and at the same time so thoroughly that the world at large, grounded in horse traditions, has not yet been informed on motor transportation. To an investigating mind it seems paradoxical that in the twentieth century the human race should be using for one purpose means that were employed dozens of centuries ago.

SHARKS SEIZE LIVING PREY

Man Who Has Had Experience Testifies to Voraciousness of the Sailor's Deadly Enemy.

"The question whether sharks attack human beings in the water when the persons are in action seems to have stirred up a lot of discussion" remarked Capt. Ben Michel, representative of the American Pilots' association. "I read recently in the Washington Post that Representative Collier of Mississippi was in doubt about Miss Beckley's statement that sharks do not go after persons swimming. In 1878 at South Point, off the Louisiana coast, Gulf of Mexico, a gig with four men aboard, put off in a pilot boat to meet a large vessel to pilot her into port. When near the vessel the swells from the steamer upset the gig and threw the men into the water. One of the men went down, though he was a good swimmer. There was a particularly strong fellow, a giant in stature, and an expert swimmer, who went to his companion's rescue. He heeded not the sharks that were plainly in view until one monster caught him and drew him under the water.

"There never was any doubt in the minds of the men who saw this tragedy about sharks devouring human beings. Ample proof of it was furnished a few minutes after the man disappeared beneath the water for the sea was red with blood.

"Miss Beckley may have discovered a new species of shark in the Hawaiian waters but there can be no doubt that in the Atlantic, and in other waters, sharks do go after and devour living persons."

Aids in Safe Lighting.

Possibly the excessive brilliancy of the new high-efficiency, nitrogen-filled tungsten filament lamp is a blessing in disguise because it renders imperative methods of shading the lamps and diffusing the light from such a source. There is little temptation to hang the bare lamp within the range of vision, as has been so commonly done with incandescent lamps of various kinds in the past. With a lamp of such high efficiency the losses inseparable from various methods of diffusion become less important in dollars and cents. For this reason, and because of the unbearable brilliancy of the unshaded lamp, the new nitrogen-filled tungsten lamp is likely to help rather than hinder the practice of illuminating interiors in a manner safe and comfortable for the eyes of the occupants.—Electrical World.

Never Be Confidential.

The Cynic, writing in the American Magazine, says:

"When you are talking to any one, always assume a secretive air and tell a few matters in 'absolute confidence' —'never to be repeated.' This will add a little to the interest of your conversation and possibly prevent your boring your companion to the point of weariness. But of course never really tell a friend anything interesting, and particularly never really tell him anything in confidence. If you do he will become so absorbed in his interest in the item of news, that in a week, he will utterly forget who told it to him and enter with genuine relish into the work of giving it the widest publicity."

Death of Uncle Patty Smith.

Time-Honored Citizen of Clanton Passes Away.

On last Friday night, after a long seige of sickness brought on by old age and general debility, the death of Uncle Patty Smith occurred, being as it were, the culmination of one of the oldest and most widely known characters in Chilton County's citizenship.

"Uncle Patty," as he was familiarly known by his hosts of friends and acquaintances, was at the time of his death, a few days over eighty-nine years old. He was a native of Coosa County, where he lived until about twenty-five years ago, when he came to Clanton. He was a soldier in the Civil War, and a faithful adherent to the cause of the South during the entire period of the struggle.

Funeral services were conducted from the family residence in Clanton Saturday afternoon by Rev. L. H. S. Chappelle, Pastor of the Clanton M. E. Church, after which interment was made with Masonic honors at the Clanton cemetery.

Little Merone Arrell Chandler

Infant of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Chandler, Died on January 14.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. J. N. Chandler on the 14th of January, and took from them their little daughter, Merone Arrell, age two years. The little one had been sick only about one week. She was buried in Pilgrims Rest Cemetery, on the 15th.

Mt. Creek News.

William Coburn has moved into his new residence near the Baptist church.

Veteran W. K. Fleming, Co. K., 24th Alabama regiment, died here in the Soldiers Home, and was buried in the Home cemetery last Friday. Mrs. Fleming, the widow, is at the Home at present.

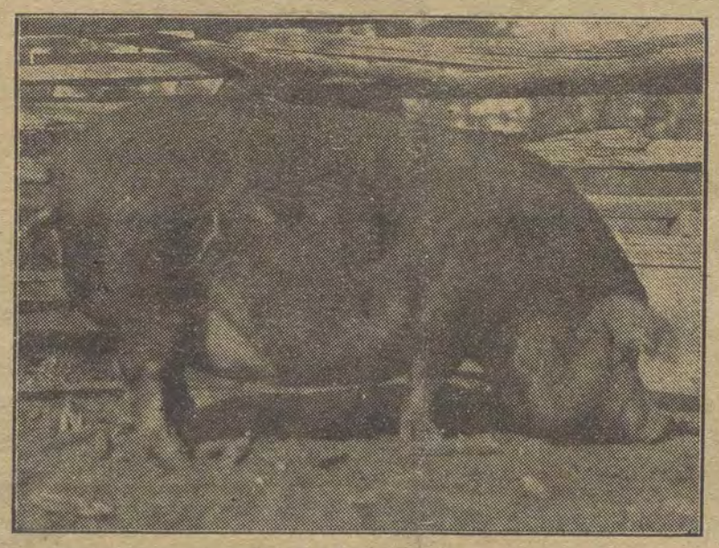
Drapers's Self Culture Club

On last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Upchurch, twenty two of Clanton's best known women gathered for the purpose of organizing a Club which should not only greatly enrich and benefit themselves, but be a blessingto the Homes of Clanton and to the Town at large. Mrs. L. A. Munden one of Alabama's most widely known and best loved organizers and promoters of The Draper Self Culture Club, made an interesting talk on what the club meant, giving a complete outline of the work; also emphasizing the fundamental principle and purpose of the Club which should be to promote higher ideals and self culture in the Homes and civic righteousness in the community. Mrs. Munden received the hearty support of all present. The next step in the organization was the election of officers, as follows:

Mrs. N. S. Johnson, President; Mrs. E. E. Upchurch, 1st Vice President; Mrs. P. I. Hopkins, 2nd vice President: Mrs. B. M. Roberts, Secretary; Mrs. J. C. Jones, Assistant Secretary; Mrs. J. R. Mullins, Treasurer.

It was voted that the name of the Club should be Draper's Self Culture Club and the time decided for the meetings was the first and third Tuesday of each month. For the next meeting Mrs. A. M. Gowan was assigned a paper, "What Constitutes a Good Mother?" Miss Emmette Mathews "The Calf Path." Mrs. Nix, "She Was a Phantom of Delight." Mrs. E. B. Deason, "Marrige." Mrs. W. H. Sartor 'The College Woman." Mrs. J. H. Middleton, song, "Speak Gently."



The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Deason.

To date a total enrollment of twenty nine members has been reported and if the interest manifested in this meeting is any indication of the future of the Club then there is no doubt but this will be one of the strongest links in the great chain of Clubs that are being formed through out Central Alabama.

After the business had been attended to a delicious Cofee course was served.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION CURED

BLANCO DURBIN'S PIG.

The above is a picture of the grade Duroc Jersey Pig, raised by the champion pig raiser of the Boys' Pig Club, in the state, Blanco Durbin, Clanton, Ala.

Blanco joined the Boys' Pig Club last March, and in April commenced caring for his pig, which was then 6 weeks old and weighed 30 lbs. His pig was fed regular and given good care according to instructions sent to the Pig Club Boys by the state agent of the club at Auburn. When 6 months and 21 days old, his pig weighed 341 lbs., and when 9 months and 19 days old it weighed 403 lbs., or a gain of 1.87 lbs. per day.

If every boy in Alabama would join the Boys' Pig Club and grow pigs, the pork problem for Alabama would be solved.

Blanco Durbin Best Pig Raiser

Pig Weighs 403 Pounds When 9 Months and 19 Days Old.

Blanco Durbin, age 11, Clanton, Route 7, the champion pig raiser of the state in the Boys' Pig Club, for the past year has proven that it is not necessary for Chilton county to import the $15,000.00 worth of pork each year as is now being done.

Blanco was one of the first of the 40 boys that joined the Boys' Pig Club last year in Chilton county. Being unable to get a pure bred sow pig, he took a grade Duroc Jersey pig to raise for pork. When he commenced caring for his pig April 20th, it was 6 weeks old, and weighed 35 pounds. He fed it according to instructions sent out by the state manager of the pig clubs. The feed consisted of some corn and shorts, but a very large per cent of the feed was green feeds and wastes from the kitchen.

On October 1st, his pig weighed 341 pounds at 6 months and 22 days of age, or an average daily gain of 1.87 pounds per day. His pig was slaughtered Dec. 8, when 9 months and 19 days old, and weighed 403 pounds net. This is an excellent record and the best made in the state in the Pig Club this year. The second best record was made by Bennie Hixon, Perote, Ala. with a pure bred Berkshire sow pig that weighed 350 pounds when 8 months old.

The boy's pig club work gives the boys excellent training in raising hogs and instills in them while young a love for animals that will result in their taking more interest in live stock farming and also gives them an opportunity to earn some money for themselves while at home. One pig club boy last year raised $150.00 worth of pigs, another has $100.00 in the bank that he made raising and selling pigs; still another boy sold $70.00 worth of pigs from his prize sow.

Any boy not under 10 nor over 20 years of age may become a member. It costs nothing to join. All that is asked of the boys is that they grow at least one prize pig, and keep a record of the amount and cost of feed used. They may use any breed of hogs and any age and sex pig they prefer. It is recommended however that they start with a pure bred sow pig 3 or 4 months old that they can keep for a brood sow. While a pure bred pig is preferred if it is not convenient for them to get a pure bred they can use a grade pig.

Superintendent of Education W. T. Bean has been urging the teachers in the schools to enroll all the boys in their schools who are in.erested in the pig club and it is expected that a large number of boys will be enrolled in Chilton county this year.

Man Shot on Local Train

Mountain Creek January 24—when M. B. Arrant a telegraph operator and Jack Fuquay left Montgomery on the local train today, they had some words before the train reached Coosada which resulted in the men commencing to fight. Before the scuffle was over Arrant fired fiye shots from a 38 revolver, two bullets taking effect in the neck, mortally wounding Fuquay.

Arrant took the next train for Wetumpka to surrender to the sheriff. Accounts differ as to the cause of the shooting.

Sheriff Jones Caught Tiger

On last Saturday morning about one o'clock Manuel Dubose, the celebrated "blind tiger," who for the past year has been occupying various quarters at Lock 12, again fell into the hands of Chilton's officers, just as he was in the act of bringing into his house a fifty-gallon barrel of whiskey to be meted out to his customers in the usual illegal way.

The barrel with its contents was conveyed from Birmingham to Shelby on an automobile, and thence to Lock 12 on a wagon. Just as he was unloading the cask and placing it in his house the Sheriff took possession of both the whiskey and man. Dubose is out under a bond of $1,-500, while the whiskey is in the jail at Clanton.

County Corn Club Committee

At the last session of the Chilton County Teachers Institute a committee of teachers was appointed for the purpose of perfecting and putting into operation the Boys Corn Club movement in this County. It is now time this matter was attended to, as we do not want to wait till it is too late to start, as we did last year. Therefore, I wish to ask that every teacher in the County who was appointed on this committee, meet at the Probate's office at the Court House on the first Saturday in February, for the purpose of perfecting plans and starting work in the club movement for this year. I hope that every member of this committee will make a special effort to be present, as we do not want to take the responsibility of the work on two or three of the members, when the others have an equal right in the matter. We want every member present so he can speak his own ideas in the matter, and will not think someone else is trying to run the thing without him.

Respectfully,
T. E. Williams, Chm.
W. L. Parrish, Sec'y.

There are extensive preparations being made for the growing of clover and other cover crops.

Our Sunday school is in very good trim now

We had a full grown hail storm on last Saturday. I saw balls that would have measured three inches in circumference.

It seems that our people must have forgotten everything but the high school and good roads. Personally, I think there are some things which we should think of before them; for instance there are men who are making no effort to send their children to the school already in reach.

Let everyone set to work with the year and try to make some improvement over the past one.

UNLESS you pay your poll tax by Saturday night you need not take the trouble to go to the polls to vote this year, for it will be a trip in vain.

THE boys who have any intention of getting in the corn clubs this year should pay especial attention to the papers, and keep informed as to the action of the corn club committee. The movement is going to be put forward this year with greater zeal than ever, and it behooves those who would take advantage of the opportunities it will afford, to be on the alert.

NOT only should the boys of the county who are going to try to win a prize in the corn club be on the lookout for rules, regulations, etc., but the merchants and business men should begin to think of the matter of what they will offer through the club as prizes for the boys who enlist in the contest. The promoters of the work in the county are coming to see you soon, and every business man should be ready with his prize to offer, and thus aid in creating among the boys a higher incentive along this line.

Notice.

All persons interested in the cemetery at Coopers will meet on Friday the 30th day of Jan. 1914 for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery and fixing up the graves. Bring the necessary tools and impliments with which to do the work.

WOMEN FIND THIS IS BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Many Mothers and Wives Have Learned That Dodson's Liver Tone is a Fine Remedy for Constipation.

Alred Drug Co. will tell you that it takes the women to realize the merits of a new remedy for conrtipation and biliousness quickly and surly, whether it is for themselves or someone else in their families.

There are today a great number of households in which Dodson's Liver Tone has come to take the place of dangerous calomel as well as all other remedies for such ailments and where an atmosphere of health and happiness now prevails.

Dodson's Liver Tone is unconditionally guaranteed by Alred Drug Company to be a safe liver remedy and regulator, absolutely harmless and with no bad aftereffect such as are liable with calomel.

Dodson's is a pleasant-tasting vegetable liquid and clears the aching head and suffering body with no pain nor gripe.

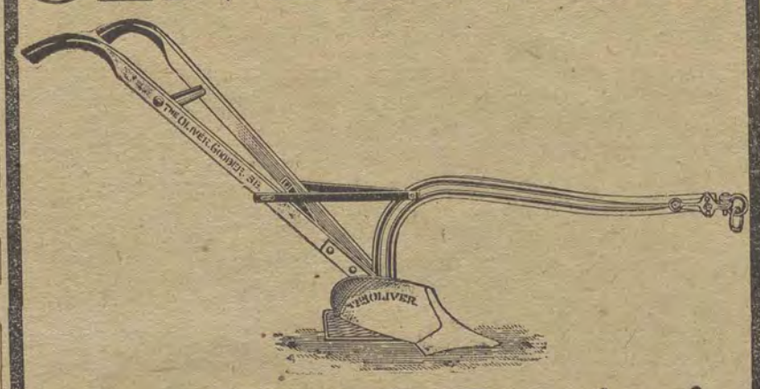
So perfect a remedy has Dodson's Liver Tone proved to be that your druggist will refund the purchase price (50c.) instantly without question if you are not thoroughly satisfied. They are authorized to do so by Dodson, who doesen't want your money unless his remedy can benefit you. Under such conditions a trial would seem the part of wisdom.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT.

The new year is before us charged with its new responsibilities and freighted with glorious opportunities, that strongly appeal to us for greater efforts than we have ever made. May all who are interested in School improvement work, cheerfully respond to the call for greater usefulness and more effective service.

In 1904 the Alabama Federation of Womans Clubs, desiring to be of practical aid to the cause of education in Alabama, approached Hon. I. W. Hill, State Superintendent, at that time, and offered their services. There was no state funds to finance the movement of organizing School Improvement work in the state. Thus, these women, as all good women, desiring no recompence save, "the joy of serving," gave their hands and hearts to the work out of which has grown the present State Improvement Association work. That in which every county in Alabama is deeply interested to day.

What are the present conditions? Is your schoolhouse and yard an ideal one! Is there any thing you can do to make your schoolhouse more attractive? Is the house a good one and painted inside and out? Of course it is seated with sutible patented desk and has good slated cloth or Hyloplate blackboard. There are Maps, charts, dictionaries a globe and a good teacher,s desk No doubt there are nice school room mottoes and pictures on the wall. The scool is supplied with dustless crayon and erasers and all the windows have shades and sash curtins. The library that you only have to pay $10.00 to get $30.00 worth of the best of books —how about that? That old comon drinking cup, is no more in use but each student has his individual cup. That means no more spreading diseases, in that way. The play grounds are in good shape and games are provided, so that the physical side of life can be developed. Your School Improvement association meets evry two weeks and discusses the plans of work and what you must do next without a doubt. That program you had last Friday night was excellent. it was supprising to see how the young people took an intrest. If you don't feel that you can do any more than put a few pictures on the wall, organize your Improvement work and do that. When that is done you will see tnat you can do something else and little by little you will have a new school house, and hardly know how it came. "As the communitie is, so is the school", will be a good motto. You only need a President avice Hresident a Secretary and a business and membership commitee. Keep a good record of everything done and the money spent so that youlmay be able to report at the end of the year. It es well to have a membership fee of 5 or 10 cts. dues per monte.



You will find that your community has its own individual needs. These every Association will have to work out to its own satisfaction. I will speak of the need of the Country schools and how the Association can help them, next week.

Let me make a personal appeal to every teacher and parent to make an earnest effort to organize an Association in your community. I shall be glad to co oporate with you in any way in your work as sending literature or assisting in person, when I can.

Yours in the work,
John A. Hunter,
Co. Pres. School Improvement work.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Keep a Thankful Heart.

The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and as the magnet finds the iron, so will it find in every hour some heavenly blessings; only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Hooray! Baby To Rule the House

No Longer Do Women Fear The Greatest of All Human Blessings.

It is a joy and comfort to know that those much-talked-of pains and other distresses that are said to precede child-bearing may easily be avoided. No woman need fear the slightest discomfort if she will fortify herself with the well-known and time-honored remedy, "Mother's Friend."

This is a most grateful, penetrating, external application that at once softens and makes pliant the abdominal muscles and ligaments. They naturally expand without the slightest strain, and thus not only banish all tendency to nervous, twitching spells, but there is an entire freedom from nausea, discomfort, sleeplessness and dread that so often leave their impress upon the babe.

The occasion is therefore one of unbounded, joyful anticipation, and too much stress can not be laid upon the remarkable influence which a mother's happy, pre-natal disposition has upon the health and fortunes of the generation to come.

Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers, thousands of whom have used and recommend it. You will find it on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Write to-day to the Bradfield Regulator Co., 130 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a most instructive book on this greatest of all subjects, motherhood.

No one can offer you "bulk coffee" that is a satisfactory substitute for French Market Coffee.

In the first place, the blend of coffees that produce that rich, aromatic flavor peculiar to the genuine French Market Coffee is a secret of the French Market Mills.

In the second place, even if the right blend was known, it would be impossible to reproduce the old time French Market slow roast and grinding process only obtainable by the splendid machinery of the French Market Mills.

In the third place, no one could reproduce the French Market process of packing coffee—untouched by human hands—in perfectly sealed cans.

If the leading coffee experts in the world cannot pick out the best coffees until they are roasted and served in the cup, how can you, Madam, afford to buy coffee in bulk that's without any guarantee as to its quality.

Let this coffee tell its own story. Serve French Market Coffee at every meal for several days. Be convinced by actual test that this is the best of all coffees.

I am not prepared to accept your offer of six boxes but hope to be able to do so by the time I have used the box I am now ordering. I believe I can notice a slight improvement since I began their use. Please mail this promptly. Yours truly,

"CAN NOTICE A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT"

"TEXAS LADY REGAINS USE OF HANDS."

A lady in Beaumont, Texas, who has been suffering with Rheumatism for years and who had lost the use of her hands, tried that great German Remedy "VIGORETTES" upon the advise of a friend. A weeks treatment and she began to improve. After taking three boxes she could do fancy needle work. She now has entirely regained the use of her hands and is greatly improved in health. Name will be furnished by The Vigorette Co., Houston, Texas, or if you have a friend who is suffering from Rheumatism or Stomach trouble they will send three full sized boxes by Parcels Post for $2.50, or have your druggist order it for you.

Sound View, Conn., Nov. 15, 1913
The Vigorette Co.,
Houston, Texas.

Gentlemen:

For many years I suffered from Sciatic Rheumatism in its most form, at times I could not get off the bed except by falling into a chair and from the chair to the floor. My pains was so awful that I often fainted away. Your splendid Vigorettes has affected a lasting cure. I highly recommend them to all sufferers, and will gladly answer all letters.

Yours truly,
Prof. C. J. Budlong,
Sound View, Conn.

Mr. Hartell in ordering a dozen boxes states: VIGORETTES certainly made a man of me. I am going to distribute a few boxes among my friends.

W. B. Miller of Houston, Texas says: When I began taking VIGORETTES I could hardly walk down stairs. I was a cripple from Rheumatism and could not walk without a cane. After taking the VIGORETTES for a week I began to improve. I took three boxes and I am glad to say I now walk without a cane and I feel like a new man. It is certainly a wonderful medicine.

Mrs, Barden has disiributed 4 dozen boxes among her friends. In her own case she states that the doctors had given her up. A physical wreck when I began taking VIGORETTES. A weeks treatment and I feel better. Now thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am well and happy.

HIS STOMACH TROUBLES OVER

Mr. Dyspeptic, would you not like to feel ihat your stomach tronble were over, that you could eat any kind of food you desired without injury? That may aeem so unlikely to you that you do not hope for an ending of your troble, but permit us to assure you that it is not altogether impossible. If others can be cured permanently, and thousands have been. why not you? John R. Barker, of Battle Creek, Mich., is one of them. He says, "I was troubled with heartburn, indigestion, and liver complaint until I used Chamberlain,s Tablets, then my trouble was over." Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

COST OF WAR DURING 1913

Many Converts Made to Peace Cause by the Fierce Struggle in the Balkans.

The Balkan war has made innumerable converts to the peace cause, declares Frederick Lynch in the Yale Review. It has revolted the twentieth century conscience. It has made thousands ask the question that Life asked under its famous picture: "Must It Always Be?" More men than ever have said: "Surely there must be some better way!" Many are saying: "Is what one gets worth the price paid for it?" This change of heart has been noticeable in the daily press. There has been a distinct progress toward the advocacy of judicial methods during the year. This has not all been due to the exhibition of savage hatred in the Balkans, nor to the inhuman atrocities perpetrated by all concerned, but it was partly come about from the revelation of the futility of it all. Hundreds and thousands of lives have been lost, thousands of homes are fatherless and poverty stricken, the nations are bankrupt and without resources for the future; for the next hundred years taxes will be of abnormal proportions; worst of all, there are no young men left to breed a future race. It has all caused many to ask if wars accomplish anything in the long run that could not much better be gained by judicial and peaceable methods. I have a lurking suspicion, from what I heard in Italy last year, that many Italians feel the same way after the war in Tripoli. Everywhere, in England and America, as well as in Germany, many have been asking: "Who starts war scares? Who advocates increase of armaments and big navies?" Yes, "Who originates wars themselves?"

PROBABLY DIDN'T GET JOB

Applicant for Federal Position Made Big Mistake When He Failed to Get Underwood's Name.

Early in Oscar Underwood's service in congress, when Mr. Cleveland was president, Underwood was made referee for federal patronage in his district in Alabama.

One day Underwood was out campaigning some miles from Birmingham, and he stopped at a little village where there was a sawmill that employed a good many hands. He knew the sawmill owner, and was talking to him when a doctor who lived in a village near by, where the postmaster had just died, came along in a buggy.

The doctor stopped at the sawmill. The sawmill boss introduced him to Underwood, but the doctor had other fish to fry, and paid no attention to Underwood, and apparently didn't get his name. He produced a petition and said:

"Now, boys, the postmaster over in our town has just died, and I'm a candidate for the job. I'm getting up a petition to send to Washington, recommending me for the place. I wish you boys would sign it."

Some of the boys did, and finally the doctor handed the petition to Underwood. Underwood looked at it. It was addressed to the Honorable Oscar Underwood, referee for federal patronage at Washington.

"I can't sign this," said Underwood. "I don't live in this community."

"Oh, go on and sign it," urged the doctor. "What difference does that make? That young fool Underwood won't know the difference when he gets it—and I want the job."

Skirts Wear Out Shoes.

"The close relation between garment styles and shoe styles is recognized by every manufacturer and distributor of footwear," says a trade authority. "The slit skirt, for example, accentuates the demand for neat footwear.

"To the extent to which the fashionable skirt displays the foot is also attributable the demand for the light, turned sole. The tendency to its adoption is growing stronger each season, and the output of turns as compared with welts, in nearly every factory, shows a large increase.

"The question has of late been asked, 'Why it is that turned shoes do not seem to wear as long today as they did in former seasons?' The answer is, it is the narrow skirt that does it. The well-dressed woman—and this applies to the great majority of American women—is obliged to take twice as many steps as she used to before the introduction of the present style."

Ancient Money.

In biblical days silver and gold coins were struck of such weight that one of them represented the value of a particular animal. Thus the word kesitah used in Genesis translated "pieces of money," means, literally, a lamb. The Latin pecunia, from which comes our word pecuniary, comes from pecus, a general name for sheep and the smaller animals. In early times coins bore figures of a horse, a bull or a hog, together with the names of the animals pictured. Afterward, as values changed, the figures upon the coins no longer bore representations of their value in cattle, but figures representing a rose, an eagle, etc.

World's Naval Armament.

Only eight years have passed since Britain laid down her first dreadnought, but by the end of this year the approximate number of dreadnoughts in the world, built or building, will be 150. The rate of increase is as follows: One in 1905, nine in 1906, 24 in 1907, 32 in 1908, 52 in 1909, 74 in 1910, 97 in 1911, 125 in 1912 and 150 in 1913.

Special Sermons by Rev. Herbert

At Thorsby, United Protestant Church, During February and March.

Arrangements have been completed to the effect that Rev. S. H. Herbert, Principal of the Thorsby Institute, will deliver during the months of February and March, five special sermons to young men, at the United Protestant Church at Thorsby.

Following is the schedule, and subjects to be treated:

Feb. 8. Why Young Men do not Become Christians.

Feb. 15. Sowing and Reaping.

Feb. 22. Bound or Free?

Mar. 8. The Danger of Delay.

On March 1st, there will be a sermon at the same church by the Rev. J. M. Graham. Also special services on February 25th under his direction.

The invitation to these services is extended to young men especially, but also to older men with young hearts, to their mothers and sisters, and to all others who may be interested. Special music will be furnished for the occasions by the quartettes of Thorsby Institute.

Mt. Creek News.

S. V. Sheperson, a worthy old Confederate veteran, died at the Alabama Soldiers Home in the hospital on Friday morning and was buried in the Home cemetery Saturday afternoon. The deceased was 88 years of age. Relatives from Montgomery, including a sister of the deceased came up to the funeral. Veteran Sheperson was a good old Christian gentleman.

Mr. Cooley, who resides here has purchased the residence belonging to Emmett Thornton near the depot, and will move in this spring.

Charley White, with a pack of 8 dogs was after that "same old fox" Tuesday morning. Postmaster Gray was in the chase.

Miss Katie Smith has improved, and is able to be up and about again. It will be remembered that Miss Katie contracted her sickness and almost complete prostration from her devoted attention to her grandpa, Patrick Smith.

Robinson Will Make Race

To Seek Sheriffs Nomination Also.

On Monday Mr. D. N. Robinson of Beat 2 was in our office, and stated that at the earnest solicitation of friends, he was considering announcement for the nomination to the Sheriffs office in the primary this spring, on the Progressive ticket.

Mr. Robinson claims considerable strength among the voters of the northen part of the county, and says that in case he determines to enter the race he is going in to win.

Union Springs

The Sunday school here seems to be in good working condition.

Mr. W. E. Smith has gone to Pickens county on a visit to his son.

The singing Sunday afternoon at the school house down on the south side was fine. Profs. Hodgens and Armstrong did most of the leading. A large crowd attended. There is talk of that society extending its work into an adjoining neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. James Langston of west Lawley visited relatives here Saturday, returning Sunday.

Prof. Snow of Randolph attended the singing Sunday.

Doubtless many were pleased to read the statement concerning Mr. Lee Vickers in last Union Banner. No one in Chilton county has done more for the people's cause than Mr. Vickers.

Several young men from Rockymount were at the singing Sunday.

It seems that Underwood has a tough proposition to meet in Captain Hobson. Hobson's backing is equal to the best; its banners emblazoned with purity and gold.

Monroe Atchison visited in Shelby Saturday.

Mr. Sorrel and family of Free Springs visited here Sunday.

Miss Sallie Russ has returned from a visit in Florida.

Mr. Wallace, the noted Sunday school worker of Randolph attended the singing Sunday.

After all, it seems that the high cost of living will not yield to the ponderous weight of the Underwood Tariff.

KEMP BROTHERS

Annual Report of Co. Health Officer

To the State Board of Health, the County Medical Society, and the Court of County Commissioners:

Gentlemen:

As required by law, I beg leave to submit my report as health officer for Chilton County for the year beginning Jan. 1st, 1913, and ending Dec. 31st, 1913.

The doctors and midwives of the county have reported births and deaths as follows:

Deaths—White, 159; Black, 51; Total, 210.

These births and deaths have been duly recorded in the Register kept for this purpose.

Estimating the population of the County to be, White, 18,257, Black, 4,930, Total, 23,187, the above figures give a birth rate of 23 per thousand of population. The death rate is 9 per thousand.

Estimating the normal birth rate at 25 per thousand of population per annum, there should have been 564 births reported in the county for the year. Estimating the normal death rate at 15 per thousand of population per annum, there should have been 347 deaths reported during the year.

As required by law I have made monthly inspections of the jail and almshouse and have reported their condition to the Commissioners Court from time to time.

During the year the presence of the following infectious diseases were reported, and the proper steps were taken to prevent their spread: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 6 cases; Scarlet Fever, 2 cases; Typhoid Fever, 30 cases; Rabies or Hydrophobia, 0 cases; Cerebrospinal Menigitis, 14 cases; Infantile Paralysis, 0 cases; Total cases infectious diseases, 67. In looking after these cases I made about 30 visits, and spent about 20 or 25 days.

I respectfully make the following recommendations: — That physicians attending infectious diseases should be more careful in the matter of isolation and disinfection. I would further suggest that physicians be prompt in reporting infectious diseases, more particularly typhoid fever, since I sometimes get death reports from typhoid where there has been no infectious disease report. I desire to go on record as recommending more perfect teaching of Hygiene and Sanitation in public schools.

The following ten diseases have ben the principal causes of death: The numbers given show the number of deaths from each disease during the year. Lobar Pneumonia, 20; Organic Heart Disease, 13; Typhoid Fever, 11; Malaria, 7; Tuberculosis, 7; Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis, 7; Enteritis, 5; Brights Disease, 5; Cerebral Hemorrhage, 4; Arterio Sclerosis, 3; All other causes, 128. Respectfully submitted,

V. J. Gragg, M. D.,
County Health Officer.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives who was so ready to lend a helping hand during the sickness and death of our dear father and mother, and especially the physician, Dr. J. P. Hayes, who was ready to do all he could.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Watson.

Thorsby News.

Since the fires Thorsby has been short on business houses, but readjustments have been made so that all the needs of the town and surrounding country can now be supplied as well as formerly.

The Union Cash Grocery Store is now open every day in the week with a good stock of groceries.

A. M. Johnson has opened a store in his residence with an entirely new stock of groceries, and is suppliting his trade in his usual obliging way.

P. C. Smith bought out Sam Collins' stock of goods, and has opened up a General Merchandise in the room formerly used as the Postoffice. The Postoffice having been moved to the other side of the building.

J. J. Stanley has put up a temporary building of sheet iron next to the Bank, and is now supplying his usual trade.

J. R. Parnell and Son have put up a frame building next to the house occupied by Sam Collins, and are now waiting on their usual customers.

J. T. Tunnell has opened a Cash Grocery Store in the room formerly used as a Barber Shop. The Barber Shop having been moved to the back room of the same building.

A. K. Horn has opened a Drug Store in the room back of the postoffice.

H. C. Junkerman has opened Dental office in his residence next to Thorsby Institute.

George Ere[illegible] has begun [illegible] for a new brick building.

W. L. Pyron has begun a brick building, to be completed soon.

A. K. Horn will soon begin the erection of a substantial brick building.

The Red Men and Woodmen are making plans for the erection of a two story brick building on the site formerly occupied by Stanley's store.

Arrangements have been made for the purchase of the city water works by Thorsby Institute. There is some talk of putting in a dynamo for the purpose of supplying electric light.

Mr. Thomas Uhrig has been absent in Birmingham for the past two weeks, but is back in school. While he was away he had two surgical operations on his throat.

Miss Sadie Belle Waites, from near Wetumpka, has entered school at the Institute, and is staying at the Girls' Dormitory.

Because of the change in the date for Smith Damron, the Potter Craftsman, the Chinese Operetta has been postponed until February 20th, but the practises now going on give promise of a very pleasing entertainment on that date.

SMITH DAMRON FEB. 14TH.

It has been necessary to change the dates of some of the numbers on the Thorsby Institute Entertainment Course. The revised dates for the remainder of the Course are as follows:

Beat Ten Will Launch Contestant for the Nomination.

The latest rumors regarding the political situation relative to the approaching primary are that Mr. H. A. This estimable gentleman has a wide reputation in the county, and will in all probability make a very formidable contestant for the place to which he aspires.

Woodley--Henderson

The marriage of Miss Irma C. Henderson of Mountain Creek, to Mr. J. Chester Woodley of North Carolina, took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Henderson last Sunday evening. Miss Irma was exquisety gowned for the occasion, and, after the ceremony the happy couple left for a bridal trip. The house was prettily draped, the refreshments were choice and the bride "looked" pretty in her travelling suit of blue.

One by one, our pretty, bright and pleasant girls are leaving the family circle, and their pleasant smiles and pleasing words are missed by former friends.

Death of Mrs. Mary A. Pinson

On January 14, 1914, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Tom Pinson and carried away their loving mother to the heavenly home above, where there is no pain. She was confined to her bed nine weeks, and she bore her sufferings with patience, and at the last moment she asked God to have mercy. She was born in Chilton county on Sep. 22, 1835; age 78 years and 23 days. She joined the Baptist Church in her youth, of which she was a faithful member at Mt. Creek Baptist Church until death. All that kind friends and physicians could do could not keep her. She leaves five sons and two daughters and a number of grand children to mourn her loss. She was always good and kind, and to know her was to love her. We pray that the window of heaven will open and pour out a blessing on her children, and that they may be strong soldiers in the Lord Jesus Christ. We know its hard to give her up, yet we know our loss is heaven's gain and we must be submissive to His will.

THE UNION-BANNER

Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama.
UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala. as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

It is said that the vote of the Republican party in St. Clair County will be materially increased by the ruling of the State Democratic Committee in "raising the bars."

Dr. Sanders, State Health officer, and Mrs. Owen, will address a meeting of the teachers of the County at the Red Men's Hall in Clanton on Saturday next, at eleven o'clock, in regard to better conditions of sanitation in the rural schools. In addition to the teachers of the county the public in general is invited to attend.

Mr. N. L. Gardner of Verbena, Route 1 reports that week he butchered one of the biggest hogs raised this season. The animal was two years old, and weighed 579 pounds. Besides the vast amount of pork secured from this hog there were 15 gallons of lard and 100 pounds of sausage prepared for use during the coming year. Farmers take heed! These are the things which mean your temporal salvation. The sooner you begin to raise your meat and lard at home, the sooner you will begin to reap the only true and enjoyable harvest your profession hands out to you—economical independence.

Those who are interested in the Progressive Primary which spring, will take notice that a meeting of the Executive Committee of said party will be held at the Court House on Saturday of this week. At this meeting all questions regarding the running of candidates in the primary will be taken up and settled. There are several who will need to know the action of the Committee in regard to these several matters, and we would suggest that all who possibly can come to the meeting, and thereby secure the information first hand. Then you will know what to do, and will not have to depend upon the thousand and one thing which you will in all probability hear floating around at random.

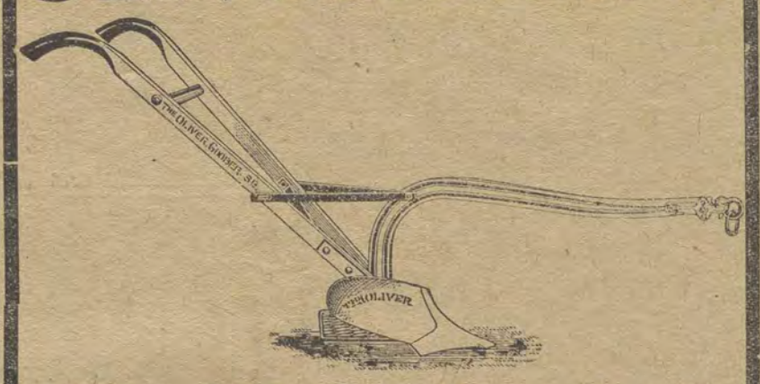
SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT.

If I should ask a farmer what he needed to make his business a success, he would readily numerate a number of things. The farm is his and he knows what is essential to be a successful farmer. He knows what he must have to yield good results next harvesting season. Every successful farmer is deeply interested in his seed for next season, his fertilizer, his tools his live stock and his farm at large. Now I ask you, what does your school need? Sit down and enumerate. The school is yours the same as your business. The things that are essential to the success of your school, you should enumerate and strive for just as earestly as those of your business. What will your children and your county's harvest be? What will yours be fellow-teacher? Harvest season is rapidly approaching," Just as I am" so is the community and as is the community so is the school. The seed are the efforts that we are putting fourth, to make our school better—our own and our neighbors children more efficient in life. Yes Gods children, who has lent them to us so that we may perpetuate ourselves therin.

Are our energies our efforts, and teachings fertilizing and stimulating, our youth to nobler and better life? The fertilization, of character is polonated in home and school. A love for the beautiful is created by making our home and school attractive, christianity and love for humanity is fostered there all this is needed.

No man ever had such tools, as our daily papers, magazines and thousands of the best books. Every home should have the Youths' Companion. We look closely to the need of our live stock that is well for we must have them but when that horse dies, he is no more. The human sleeps in death to be born a new make the home and the school life more attractive by giving it more of our time and labor?



Intrest, my fellow readers, is the essential thing in the school improvement work in the County at present. Work, which comes through intrest will make every school tell a different story in a short time.

Look at your school house and you will see a dozen needs sticking out visibly to every passerby. Let us realize that the school is ours and that we are making our property worth many times more by improving it, as well as making life better for all around us, more intrest on the part of us all. Skin Sufferers—Read!

We want all skin sufferers who have suffered for many years the tortures of disease and who have sought medical aid in vain, to read this.

We, as old established druggists of this community, wish to recommend to you a product that has given many relief and may mean the end of your agony. The product is a mild, simple wash, not a patent medicine concocted of various worthless drugs, but a scientific compound made of well known antiseptic ingredients. It is made in the D.D.D. laboratories of Chicago and is called the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

This is a doctor's special prescription—one that has effected many wonderful cures.

The effect of D. D. D. is to soothe instantly, as soon as applied; then it penetrates the pores, destroys and throws off all disease germs and leaves the skin clean and healthy.

We are so confident of the marvelous power of D. D. D. that we have taken advantage of the manufacturers guarantee, to offer you a full-size bottle on trial. You are to judge the merits of the remedy in your own particular case. If it doesn't help you, it costs you nothing.

D. D. D. Soap is made of the same healing ingredients. Ask us about it.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

Our Country

No citizen of the United States can help but experience a feeling of pride—not egotism—when he reflects on the accomplishments of his countrymen.

The United States, an in[illegible] but a giant in accomplishment when compa[illegible]ations of the world, is the home of the telegrap[illegible]ne, the cotton gin, the steam engine and steamboat, [illegible]icity, the flying machine, the moving picture and the automo[illegible].

All of the improvements and variations worked out for the comfort, convenience and enrichment of mankind all over the world are directly traceable to the origin ad discovery of one or more of those things.

The successful development of the various emrprises was made possible through the collection of comparatively small amounts of money, into a large amount to be applied to the work in hand.

Corporations became as necessary as the telephone, the cotton gin, the telegraph, the automobile, the railroad, have now become. Without the corporation none of the labor saving, comfort giving, economical devices would have ever attained to the importance they now occupy in the life of the average citizen.

The L. & N. Railroad is a corporation. It owes a debt, as do other railroads, to the discovery of steam, and to the thousands of thoughtful individuals who have spent their time devising ways and means for its practical and economical application.

The L. & N. Railroad owes a debt, as do other railroads, to those corporations which financed and developed the wonderful deposits of coal and iron, for without the iron there would be no steel rails, and without the coal there would be no steam to propel the engines.

The L. & N. is trying every day to discharge this debt by lending every assistance in its power; it co-operates with the coal and iron industry, supplying quick and satisfactory service to all parts of the world in search of ready markets that will pay a fair price for the output.

Do the people realize the debt the world owes to Thomas A. Edison?

If so, the people should realize the debt they owe to the L. & N. Railroad. They owe it the debt of fair, considerate treatment; the debt which is incurred when men and women risk their money in the construction of a railroad; the debt which the people incur when they are supplied unexcelled service, and when they accept the help and co-operation for the profitable development of the territory through which the L. & N. operates.

The L. & N. owes a debt to the farmer who grows his crops that create traffic; to the manufacturer who produces his article which creates traffic; to the merchant who orders the article, thus creating traffic; to the people who consume the articles of traffic.

Every effort is being made by the L. &. N. to satisfactorily discharge these obligations.

Quick and sure freight transportation; fast comfortable passenger service; co-operation for the profitable development of agricultural, mineral and industrial resources—all that each of us may share a common prosperity.

Instead of each of us condemning the other, let us remember the tremendous accomplishments of our country, and reflect that their success was due to co-operative effort.

Simplicity in Higher Life.

The higher we rise the simpler we become. There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity, and a childishness from which but few of those who are counted the wisest among men have freed themselves in their measured progress towards the reality of things.—Geo. MacDonald.

Ladies Guild of Thorsby

The Ladies Guild of Thorsby, at their recent annual meeting, had a season of "Looking Backward" to see what justification could be found for the existence of the organization which has for eight and a half years (since July 1905) comprised on an average ten of the busiest ladies of Thorsby. During the time mentioned they have raised in round numbers $1700, nearly all of which has been applied to a betterment of conditions for Thorsby Institute, especially in Dormitory improvement and equipment. By keeping everlastingly at it, they have been the means of adding greatly to the comfort and convenience of both teachers and students. During all these years they have steadily remained loyal to their purpose as an object well worthy of their best efforts.

This patient persistence in good works has at last borne fruit in arousing interest on the part of many who have not until recently identified themselves with the work. During the past year Thirteen new members have been added, and with more than double their former strength and an efficient corps of officers they are planning larger things for the current year.

WHEN OUT OF SORTS START YOUR LIVER WORKING

No Matter What Aids you Dodson's Liver Tone is Usually a Big Help in Getting Well Avoid Calomel.

Nine times out of ten, when you are ill or out of sorts, your liver is out of order and getting it right will better. When your liver is sluggish and torpid and you are constipated and bilious it is impossible to feel well.

There was a time when a great number of people took calomel when no trouble. But this is not true today. It has become widly known that calomel often has bad after-effects and is even dangerous to many. The use of Dodson's Liver Tone instead of calomel has spread wonderfully because it has proved so beneficial in so many households. Alred Drug Company recommend and guarantee Dodson's Liver Tone instead of calomel and guarantee to refund purchase price (50c.) to you instantly without question if you are not perfectly pleased with the way in which it relieves you from constipation sick headache, biliousness, etc. It "livens the liver" and is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable liquid, easy to take and causes no pain, no grip, no bad results, no change from your regular results, no change from your regular duties and habits.

To test Dodson's Liver Tone is a sensible matter because you get your money back if you are not satisfied.

If you have no appetite for your meals, feel dull, tired and sleepy, you are bilious. Take a little of Dr. M. A. Simmons' vegetable Liver Medicine (the powder form). It will sharpen the appetite, cleanse and regulate the bowels and put vim into your movements. Ask for the tin box with the picture of Dr. M. A. Simmons on the front. Price 25c Sold by Alred Drug Company.

When the bowels become irregular you are uncomfortable and the longer this conditions exists the worse you feel. You can get rid of this misery quickly by using HERBINE. Take a dose on going to bed and see how fine you feel next day. Price 50c. Sold by Upchurch Drug Company.

Great Travelers and Explorers agree that the food and drink peculiar to the country where it is used should always be adopted in that country.

French Market Coffee is the coffee of the coffee-producing countries, where climate most nearly corresponds to that of our Southern States.

It is therefore, much better suited for Southern consumption as regards food value, etc., than coffees roasted for other climates.

This accounts for the marvelous success of French Market Coffee; and why it is called the National Drink of the South.

Stork and Cupid Cunning Plotters

Many a New Home will Have a Little Sunbeam to Brighten it.

There is usually a certain degree of dread in every woman's mind as to the probable pain, distress and danger of child-birth. But, thanks to a most remarkable remedy known as Mother's Friend, all fear is banished and the period is one of unbounded, joyful anticipation.

Mother's Friend is used externally. It is a most penetrating application, makes the muscles of the stomach and abdomen pliant so they expand easily and naturally without pain, without distress and with none of that peculiar nausea, nervousness and other symptoms that tend to weaken the prospective mother. Thus Cupid and the stork are held up to veneration; they are rated as cunning plotters to herald the coming of a little sunbeam to gladden the hearts and brighten the homes of a host of happy families.

There are thousands of women who have used Mother's Friend, and thus know from experience that it is one of our greatest contributions to healthy, happy motherhood. It is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle, and is especially recommended as a preventive of caking breasts and all other such distresses.

WOOD OF IMMENSE VALUE

Greenheart, South American Product, Has Most Wonderful Qualities for the Shipbuilder.

Greenheart, the wood which the Isthmian canal commission is desirous of securing for use in the construction of docks and similar works in the Panama canal, because it is said by experts to resist more than any other wood the attacks of marine borers which rapidly destroy piles and other submarine structures, is one of the most valuable of timbers. It is native of South America and the West Indies, and from its bark and fruits is obtained bibirine, which is often used as a febrifuge instead of quinine.

The wood is of a dark green color, sap wood and heart wood being so much alike that they can with difficulty be distinguished from each other. The heart wood is one of the most desirable of all timbers, particularly in the shipbuilding industry. Indisputable records show that the best grades surpass iron and steel in lasting qualities in salt water, submerged logs having remained intact for one hundred years.

In the Kelvingrove museum, Glasgow, there are two pieces of planking which illustrate better than anything else this durable quality. They are both from a wreck which was submerged eighteen years off the west coast of Scotland. The one specimen —greenheart—is merely slightly pitted on the surface, the body of the wood being perfectly sound and untouched, while the other—teak—is almost entirely eaten away.

It is extensively used in shipbuilding for keelsons, beams, engine bearings and planking, and it is also used in the general arts, but its excessive weight unfits it for many purposes for which its other properties would render it eminently suitable.—Below the Rio Grande.

TOO LIBERAL WITH ADVICE

Bank Cashier Meant Well, But Sad Experience Taught Him a Great and Lasting Lesson.

The story sifted down from St. Paul the other day that "Jim" Hill engineered a shakeup in a bank there because he found an ink spot on his monthly statement, which recalled to a bank official of this town the reason why one cashier ceased to be a little ray of sunshine. Persons who can coax more than a conversational bit out of him nowadays are indeed skilled. "He was a conservative guy —and good," said the banker. "He was the sort of a man who would leave a light turned on in the hall at night so that burglars might think that some member of the family had not returned home. He was especially strong on temperance. Strong drink had never seared his pure lips. He cashiered in a savings bank in the edge of the town. One day a Hunky blew in with an active hang-over. If he'd had any more liquor in him he wouldn't have been legal without a revenue stamp. He said he wanted the $50 he had on deposit. The cashier stepped to the rear limits of his cage and refused to pay until he came around sober. 'Your signature,' said the cashier, 'looks like a dog-bite when you're in this condition. I will not accept it.' So the Hunky went hooting up and down town announcing that the savings bank had refused to pay his money. By alarm-clock time next morning the streets were full of yammering Hunkies, waving bank books. The reserves were called out and the depositors were chased away. Then the bank officials investigated and the cashier confessed. He's stopped giving good advice."—New York Globe.

The Inspector's Disguise.

Some days ago, about five o'clock in the afternoon the principal police inspector of the Second district was called to an affair as delicate as it was urgent.

He quickly made up his disguise. For his bourgeois melon hat, he substituted a cap, the classic cap of the Apache. He then jumped into an auto.

He was not recognizable, or rather he would not have been if the honorable inspector had not retained upon his breast the red ribbon of the legion of honor, a ribbon that he had heroically won at Sholsy-le-Roi, under tragic circumstances that no one has forgotten.

And the malefactors in the midst of whom this disguised officer insinuated himself could not refrain from laughing and are laughing yet at this man clothed like one of them and decorated with the legion of honor!—Le Cri de Paris.

Evil of Gossip.

Every man and woman will be entitled to think better of themselves and will have a stronger claim to the regard of others, if they cease to be on the lookout for something to find fault with, to treasure up and repeat and magnify every scandal, little and big, and to retail and spread every small item of tea table gossip, which carries with it ridicule or censure for some one. Suppose all that were dropped, and really it is unworthy of intelligent, well meaning people, and the habit formed of only speaking well of others. Would it, after all, be as stupid as some seem to think?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Gentlemanly Pig.

The pigs that are reared in the neighborhood of Harvard may be gentlemanly and highly cultured but in this section of the country they are very careless about themselves.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

PROGRESSIVE PRIMARY FOR APRIL 21, 1914.

Executive Committee Met Saturday and Set Date, and Appointed Campaign Managers.

As per the call of the Chairman, J. O. Midddleton, the Progressive Executive Committee of Chilton County met at the Court House Saturday, and acted upon matters concerning the Party Primary for this Spring. The date set for said Primary was the 21st of April. The plurality plan was adopted for determining the nominees of the election.

It was voted by the Committee that two committeemen from each beat be elected at the primary, the same plurality plan to determine the vote as in the nomination for the other offices.

By move of Judge Reynolds, and vote of the Committee, the Chair was empowered to appoint J. N. Dennis, M. D. Foshee, and W. T. Bean as managers, with full power to conduct any matter relative to the Primary.

By unanimous vote of the Body, an invitation was extended every qualified white voter in the county who would support the nominee in the general election, to participate in the primary.

Short talks were made by different members of the Committee, urging concentrated effort among the supporters of our party to put into action the best that is in our principles, and thereby demonstrate to those who doubt it that ours is the party in which the citizens of the county have double assurance of the best and most harmonious government.

Limit Reached in Hog Raising. Biggest Hog Yet

We have from time to time been getting reports of large hogs killed, all of which seemed indeed good records for our farmers. But we have now one to spring upon our readers that will cause the fellow who has been vieing for the record on big hogs get to work, for a long time to surpass. On Monday Mr. J. W. Patterson of Route 2 came into our office, and stated that he would like for us to tell our readeas of how he had succeeded this year with his hogs, being as some others had been reported in the papers as killing remarkably big hog. We agreed to publish his story, and he stared us in the face with following particulars about his hog: The animal was butchered last Saturday, and when weighed tipped the scales at the 720 pound mark. The stock was a cross between Poland-China and Duroc-Jersey, and was 2 years and 10 months old.

This is what we would term "some hog," and we also venture to state that it will be some time before anyone gets ahead of Mr. Patterson on the hog raising question.

Capt. R. F. Kolb Coming to Chilton

In a letter addressed to Capt. W. J. Bethune, Mountain Creek, Captain Kolb says:

"I am coming to Chilton County soon to speak in the interest of my canvass for Governor. I shall speak at Clanton and at Mountain Creek, and, probably other places in Chilton County. I look forward to the visit with much pleasure, especially so as it will afford me an opportunity to see the "Old Soldier Boys," once more, at the Home."

Captain Kolb was one of the "Old Soldier Boys" that participated in the "hot times" during the "dark days" in 1861-5, and the old men at Mountain Creek will be pleased to meet him.

The Potter Craftsman At Thorsby Institute, February 14.

J. SMITH DAMRON.

THE POTTER CRAFTSMAN.

J. Smith Damron carries with him for his lecture an old fashioned potter's kick wheel. Laying aside his coat and vest, he takes a ball of clay and places it upon the potter's wheel, which he revolves with his foot by means of a treadle. He soon forms, in full view of his audience, a beautiful piece of pottery, all the while talking upon pottery as an ancient art, its origin and the process of making, while he also relates in connection therewith humorous stories and draws important lessons for everyday life.

Mr. Damron gave one of his lectures before fourteen hundred men at a Y. M. C. A. gathering in Indianapolis and deeply impressed his listeners. The lecture which he gave there was one particularly appropriate for Sunday and which he entitles "The Master Potter." The Indianapolis Star on Nov. 21 gave nearly a column writeup of Mr. Damron's lecture. The Star is one of the big papers of the United States.

Union Springs.

The cold snap of last Saturday caused some of our spring plans to fall very suddenly. So it seems that the Ground Hog discovered his shadow on "Candlemas" day.

Ross Waldrup fell from a wagon last week and broke his arm, but he is doing nicely at present. Dr. Pickrum of Randolph is treating the case.

Our popular merchant, Mr. Glass made a business trip to Selma last week.

The Rockymount writer struck the key note last week. All who have real salvation never find the religion of the Cross a failure. The forces of darkness are more and more being driven to the wall, hence the battle is more pronounced as it draws to a finish. So no cause for surprise at the fight against Capt. Hobson. Same principle applies both politically and religiously.

Mrs. Erven has been quite sick with acute indigestion.

Misses Eva and Eula Armstrong had the best of company Sunday afternoon.

Fertilizer is one of the leading questions here at present.

S. N. Waldrup went to Selma Tuesday to hear Mr. Johnson lecture. Mr. Johnson is a saved Jew; one of the members of the I. B. S. Association. The burden of those lectures now is to the Church to get ready to depart; that the time is short; that the opportunity to be of the glorified church will soon close and never be repeated; but after the church has gone beyond the vail, then the human race will receive showers of blessings unparalled; like the rain falling on the new mown hay; such an uplift as earth has never known since the fall of man into sin.

As the candidates keep coming out we would emphasize one fact and that is, don't fail to give honor to the faithful party workers; those who are known to be fully on the right side. They are the ones to place in power. Beware of those who fight you under cover.

Uncle Joe Smith was out Sunday afternoon. He is one of our active widowers; seems quite spry as spring comes on. Some one has said in the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.

Our singings are enjoyable and causes us to think back when we were learning to sing the songs of Zion.

HEALTH CONSERVATION IN CHILTON COUNTY.

The Rural Organization Service through its field agent in this county, has gotten along far enough with its survey work to begin putting some of the remedial agencies at its disposal.

It was thought that one of the first and most important moves would be the conservation of public health, by putting a trained Red Cross nurse in the county, giving her whole time under the direction of the Superintendent of Education and the County Health officer. The funds to support this work have been made possible by the foresighted policies of the county school board, and the board of County Commissioners who each contributed one third of the necessary funds.

Mrs. Thomas. M. Owen, of Montgomery, President General of the Women's Auxiliary of the Southern Commercial Congress, was in Clanton on Saturday, Feb. 7, and spoke to a very enthusiastic group of county teachers and townspeople about the work of the auxiliary, and the possibilities and needs of such a work in Chilton County.

Dr. W. H. Sanders, health officer of Alabama, was also present, and spoke of the need of county health conservation and preventing disease. He showed that the State loses in actual dollars and cents, two million, five hundred and ninety thousand dollars per year from deaths caused by typhoid fever and tuberculosis, not counting the terrible cost of suffering, doctors bills and anxiety occasioned by the illness of those who do not die. He said that 75 per cent of deaths from tuberculosis and 85 per cent of deaths from typhoid fever are easily prevented if the proper precautions are used.

Dr. Gragg, the County Health Officer, also spoke of health conditions in the county, and emphasized the need of having a trained nurse in the field.

The Women's Auxilliary of the above named organization was formally launched by Mrs. Owen with Miss Mary Carr Gibson of Verbena, as President and Mrs. J. M. Horn of Jemison as Vice-President. The Secretary-Treasurer to be elected from Clanton.

Another very important feature of the meeting was the splendid dinner served to all present, by the Ladies Aid Societies of the churches of Clanton. The thanks of the meeting was also extended to the Red Men for the use of their commodious hall.

The first efforts of the Womens Auxilliary will be directed toward the raising of the balance of the funds necessary for putting the nurse to work before the close of the present school year.

This money to be raised by popular subscribtion and we believe the business men and others of Chilton County will be farsighted and philanthropic enough to make the goal easy of attainment.

The Sunday school at Marbury is progressing nicely under the management of Superintendent, D. H. Marbury.

RED BAY SUSTAINS $50,000 FIRE LOSS

Franklin County Town Swept By Two Disastrous Blazes Friday and Saturday.

Red Bay, Ala., Feb. 9.—Two disastrous fires visited this place Friday and Saturday, resulting in losses totaling about $50,000. The first fire occurred Friday night, in which seven business houses were burned, with R. L. Neighbors the greatest loser. He owned two of the buildings and a stock of dry goods. Brice Bonds, O. O. Wade, T. A. Bullard, Dr. O. Copeland and the Misses Riddle were others who suffered.

Fire Saturday night destroyed the three-story concrete furniture and hardware building of the Tiffin Hardware and Furniture Company. The stock of Waldrop & Epps, next door, was damaged in removal.

Friday night's fire originated in the building owned by Brice Bonds, while the second fire was believed to have been of incendiary origin.

The two fires wiped out the larger part of the business section of this town, which is in Franklin County.

Mt. Creek News.

There is soon to be an election held at this place for municipal officers, and Mr. Spears is spoken of as the new mayor. It seems now that he is the man who will be elected.

Dr. J. P. Ellsberry, the Soldiers Home physician said yesterday, "The health of the men at the Home is as good as I could expect at this season.

Captain J. M. Simpson has purchased a fine Jersey bull. The stock at the Soldiers Home is good, and the Captain intends to try and improve it.

The recent cold weather did not injure fruit trees and spring vegetation very much here. Mr. E. F. Culver and Thos. J. Henderson, rural route men, say that on their travels they hear very little as to losses, etc., and Mr. Henderson says that the cold wave and severe weather has, to a great extent helped prospects by the extermination of early insects that had been induced by former warmth to leave their "happy winter homes," and then to be nipped by the minature Dekota blizzard.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Commissioner in the first district, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary April 21, 1914.

S. E. WALDRUP.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Representative in the Legislature from Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary, on April 21, 1914.

HOWARD L. FOSHEE.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary, on April 21, 1914.

JOHN L. GORE.

FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, in the Progressive Primary April 21, 1914.

D. N. ROBINSON.

FOR SHERIFF

We are authorized and requested to announce the name of H. A. HARRIS, as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary on April 21, 1914.

The Tax Collector informs us that there were this year in the neighborhood of 1600 poll taxes paid in the County.

Mr. D. N. Robinson of Beat 2 announces this week for the nomination for Sheriff. He is a man who has long been devoted to the principles of our party, and in all probability, would make a competent man for the office to which he aspires. He claims considerable strength in the northern precincts of the county, and stands well wherever he is known.

The editor has been personally requested by Mr. Lee Vickers to state that he had concluded that he would not make the race for the nomination for Sheriff as announced probable some weeks ago. His reasous for doing so are entirely personal, and not due to any lack of interest in the party. He will stand by us, and do all he can to establish Progressiveism in the hearts and minds of the people of the County more firmly than ever.

We are pleased with the privileg of announcing to our readers this week the candidacy of Mr. Howard L. Foshee for Chilton's Representative in the Legislature. It is useless for us to attempt any introduction here, for by his active efforts as a teacher Mr. Foshee has during the past few years, made an honorable record among the people of this, his home county. He is doubtless thoroughly acquainted with the conditions that confront not only his home districts, but also the state at large. He is a past student at the State University, but for several terms has been teaching in the High School of Thorsby. He will make a good man for the place he is asking for, and it is confidently expected that the people will show their confidence in him by bestowing upon him this high honor.

The readers of The Union-Banner, and the supporters of the Progressive Party in Chilton County will note with interest the announcement in this issue of Mr. H. A. Harris of Cooper for the nomination for Sheriff in the Primary for April 21. Mr. Harris is widely known, having had long and successful business dealings with the people of this county, and his standing is universally that of a competent and reliable man for the office of Sheriff. He is a Progressive pure and simple, and a very strong fixture in the party as a whole.

Let us not lose faith in the Progressive Party. Some will tell you that it is no longer a party of national strength, and that Teddy will never ally himself with it again, and all kinds of stuff to get you to lose confidence in it. It is recognized now by great national characters as the coming power of America. All over the country men are thinking and planning for the Progressive Party, and laying out the course that is going to bring our government back into the long tried and true principles of the party, and thereby restore it to progress, peace and prosperity.

We have this week the announcement of Mr. John L. Gore for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County on the Progressive Primary of April 21, 1914. This estimable gentleman needs no introduction to our readers, as he is probably known over the entire county. For quite a period he was a popular teacher of music in several communities, and all the while he made for himself a record for worth and sincerity that is almost unsurpassed. It is not necessary for us to say that he is a staunch supporter of the principles of the Progressive Party. He has never been anything else, and can be depended upon to enact them into our government if elected to the place he seeks.

The meeting held at Clanton Saturday under the direction of the State Health Department was very enthusiastic, and will doubtless be productive of great and lasting good. It was attended by numbers of teachers, and through them it was intended to carry the substance of the lecture and demonstrations to the rural communities. Matters of health and sanitation were fully discussed by such experts as Dr. Sanders, the head of the State Health Department, J. Sterling Moran of the Government Economical Survey and Dr. Gragg, the County Health Officer. The teachers were treated to a splendid dinner by the Ladies Aid Societies of Clanton. This is but the beginning of a movement to provide definite instruction in matters of health and sanitation for the rural schools of the County by an expert. Elsewhere in this issue will be found a fuller account of the meeting.

FARMERS WILL BE LOSERS.

A Free-Trade Tariff means that every country, including Canada can dump as many and as much of her products into the United States as they like without any restrictions or any redeeming features in the way of a swap. Canadians thought the United States had an advantage in the reciprocity treaty and turned it down. But we do not hear Canada, South America or any other foreign country finding any fault with our new Tariff Law. It is a great thing for the foreign farmer and manufacturer, as well as the importers in this country, but there is no evidence to show that anybody else will receive any benefit therefrom. It is very evident that our farmers are going to be heavy losers. The bill kills the sugar and wool industry of this country and brings in competition with our farm products, cattle, hogs and grain. It admits free of duty tin plate and foreign manufactured goods, which throws mechanics and other laboring men out of employment and then they have no money to buy what the farmer grows and they need to eat. — Syracuse (Neb.) Journal.

Keep a Thankful Heart.

About the Human Eye.

Greenish, hazel and spotted eyes are accompanied usually with shrewd, quick, nervous, restless temperaments. According to Professor Hudson, Asiatics with hazel eyes are cunning and weasel-like. Contrary to the popular notion, persons with green eyes are too indifferent in passion to be at all jealous of the opposite sex; they are, however, frequently envious of their own.

Cause and Effect.

"It is very curious to me," said Slithers, "what a musical voice Mrs. Brighteyes has, and yet whenever she speaks in French it is hard and rasping—almost metallic." "Oh, that's only natural,' said Bingo. "You see, Mrs. Brighteyes learned French by phonograph, and she has mistaken the imperfections of the records for accent."—Judge.

WASN'T ENTITLED TO MEDAL

President of Anti-Cruelty Society Made Decision Positively Brutal in Its Frankness.

"Mrs. Waldorf Astor at the port of New York declared the other day that she never wore aigrettes or the feathers of song birds, or the plumes of anything that flies. Yet she was wearing sables at the time; her boots were of calfskin; her gloves were kid, and she would go to the Ritz-Carlton for luncheon and swallow tiny, living oysters, afterward eating young trout, cutlets of lamb, grilled quail, and so forth and so on. Oh, consistency!"

The speaker was Dr. L. G. Witherspoon, the San Francisco dietician. He continued:

"Man is cruel toward the animals. There is no denying it. And hence Mrs. Waldorf Astor is rather foolish to prate of her kindness as regards aigrettes when, on her behalf, we slaughter daily birds and sheep, sables and seals, fish and kids.

"Yes, as the world is constituted, any talk of kindness toward animals strikes me as absurd—reminds me, in fact, of the Anti-Cruelty Society of Nola Chucky.

"A man with a big club appeared at the annual convention of this society and demanded the annual medal, or first prize.

"'What kindness,' the president asked him, 'what kindness have you shown, my man, toward the lower animals that entitles you to our medal?'

"'Wal, yer honor,' said the man, 'I spared the life of a b'ar. I might 'a killed him with this here club. But I let him off.'

"'Where was this bear?" the president asked. 'Where was he, and what had he done to you?'

"'He'd killed my wife,' the man replied.

"'Ho, ho!' cried the president. 'And you demand our gold medal? My friend, you've been sufficiently rewarded already.'"

"CAN NOTICE A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT"

"TEXAS LADY REGAINS USE OF HANDS."

A lady in Beaumont, Texas, who has been suffering with Rheumatism for years and who had lost the use of her hands, tried that great German Remedy "VIGORETTES" upon the advise of a friend. A weeks treatment and she began to improve. After taking three boxes she could do fancy needle work. She now has entirely regained the use of her hands and is greatly improved in health. Name will be furnished by The Vigorette Co., Houston, Texas, or if you have a friend who is suffering from Rheumatism or Stomach trouble they will send three full sized boxes by Parcels Post for $2.50, or have your druggist order it for you.

Gentiemen:

For many years I suffered from Sciatic Rheumatism in its most form, at times I could not get off the bed except by falling into a chair and from the chair to the floor. My pains was so awful that I often fainted away. Your splendid Vigorettes has affected a lasting cure. I highly recommend them to all sufferers, and will gladly answer all letters.

Yours truly,
Prof. C. J- Budlong,
Sound View, Conn.

Mr. Hartell in ordering a dozen boxes states: VIGORETTES certainly made a man of me. I am going to distribute a few boxes among my friends.

W. B. Miller of Houston, Texas says: When I began taking VIGORETTES I could hardly walk down stairs. I was a cripple from Rheumatism and could not walk without a cane. After taking the VIGORETTES for a week I began to improve. I took three boxes and I am glad to say I now walk without a cane and I feel like a new man. It is certainly a wonderful medicine.

Mrs. Barden has disiributed 4 dozen boxes among her friends. In her own case she states that the doctors had given her up. A physical wreck when I began taking VIGORETTES. A weeks treatment and I feel better. Now thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am well and happy.

All Blood Disorders Quickly Driven Away

Astonishing Results With the Greatest Blood Purifier Ever Discovered.

Strength, Power, Accomplishment are all Typified in S. S. S.

Some blood disorders become deeply rooted in the glands and tissues, and the mistake is made of resorting to drastic drugs. These only aggravate by causing other and worse troubles. A host of people know this to be true. They know from painful experience.

This remarkable remedy contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced-health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation on these local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.

In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are obseved. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence. Not one drop of drugs or minerals is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to The Swift Specific Co., 205 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "Just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.

KEMP BROTHERS

DECLARATIONS TWENTY-THIRD TUSKEGEE NEGRO CONFERENCE.

For the twenty-third time the Tuskegee Negro Conference says to the Negroes of the South "Stay on the soil, buy land, improve your farm, have more gardens, raise your food stuffs, build better churches and schoolhouses, lengthen your school terms, and have better equipped preachers and teachers."

The report made here today that 225,000 Negro farm owners have acquired 20,000,000 acres of land, an area greater than the State of South Carolina, and the many instances of improvement in methods of farming, in building better farm homes, and in improving rural churches and schools, indicate that the advice of the Conference is being heeded.

There is, however, much room for improvement along all lines. Almost 80 per eent of the Negro farmers in the South still rent the soil that they till A large majority of the farm homes are yet without gardens—too many of our people are still living out of the stores. we find that there is too often a tendency for a farmer to buy too much land. The Conference strongly advise the people when buying land not to buy more than they can profitably farm and pay for. The Conference further advises that more attention be given to the business side of farming and that careful accounts be kept of all receipts and expenditures so that each farmer may know whether he is making or losing money.

The boll weevil is here. In order to meet its ravages the Comference says to the Negro farmers of Alabama and other states: Follow the directions of the agricultural experts, diversify your crops, grow more oats, corn and sweet potatoes, raise more livestock, do not depend entirely on cotton.

Every intelligent Negro farmer helps to advance the farming progress of the South; every ignorant Negro farmer retards this progress. The Conference, therefore, respectfully requests that through individual planters, state aid, and otherwise, more be done to improve Negro rural schools, to provide more prizes for Negro farmers, and more agricultural demonstration agents to teach the farmers on the soil. All of these things will help to increase the efficency of the Negro farmer. We appreciate and are grateful for what has already been done, for the growing spirit of helpfulness and co-operation that is manifested by the white people of the South; and for the increasing number of planters who are taking a deeper interest in their tenants, providing for them better school facilities, better homes, and in every way encouraging them to improve and help keep up the property on which they live. we would, however, respectfully call attention to the pitiable condition of the majority of Negro rural schools, too many of which are still unprovided with school buildings, have teachers receiving from $15.00 to $18.00 per month, and terms only two or three months in length. To help teach the one million Negro farmers better methods of farming, and thus make them more efficient, there are throughout the South less than fifty Negro agricultural demonstration agents.

The Attraction.

A rather eccentric man, calling on a family blessed by an observant little son, wore kid gloves that had been cleaned. The little boy, seeming to be much attracted by the visitor, stayed close at his side. "You like to stand by Mr. Blank and hear his funny stories, don't you, Jimmie?" presently asked Jimmie's father. "I don't care about his stories," replied the honest youngster, "but his hands smell just like our automobile."

A child that has intestinal worms is handicapped in its growth. A few dosees of wHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE destroys and expels worms; the child immediately improves and thrives wonderfully. Price 25c. per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Company.

Simple Cement.

For mending ornaments and delicate china there is nothing better than rice-flour cement. It is very easily made, it being only necessary to mix rice flour or ground rice thoroughly with cold water, simmering gently over a slow fire until it thickens, thereby forming a most durable adhesive substance which can be used hot or cold, in the usual way.

When the bowels become irregular you are uncomfortable and the longer this conditions exists the worse you feel. You can get rid of this misery quickly by using HERBINE. Take a dose on going to bed and see how fine you feel next day. Price 50c. Sold by Upchurch Drug Company.

HID DISGRACE FROM PARENTS

Cases on Record Where Convicts Successfully Concealed the Fact That They Had "Done Time."

In most cases men sentenced to imprisonment are only too glad to receive the sympathy of their relatives. The case of Nolan L. Gartner, an exconvict who returned to Kingston, O., the other day after serving a two-year sentence for wrecking a bank, is an exception. During all the time he was in prison his mother, eighty-six years of age, had supposed he was "in the west on business." She greeted him with smiles on his liberation, little thinking that the weekly letters she had received from him telling of business movements were mailed from a prison through the friendly assistance of the officials.

Another case was that of Adolph Rebstock, an immigrant who killed a man in a quarrel at Chicago shortly after his arrival in this country. He received a sentence of ten years. He gave a cousin $2,500 for investment when he went behind the bars.

The cousin opened a corner grocery store in the name of the convict. The latter wrote monthly to his parents in Berlin that he was prospering slowly. He was paroled in six years.

The grocery store had grown into a flourishing business. He took his cousin into partnership and sent for his parents. They never knew of his imprisonment. Shortly before they died a discharged clerk told the story to them but they refused to believe him and they declared him a lunatic.

Curiosity of Fashion.

One of the curiosities of fashion is the return of the walking stick to favor. It has had its ups and downs ever since the days of Pericles, when no Athenian gentleman dared be seen abroad without it. Just as five-and-twenty years ago the Oxford undergraduate, when not in flannels or academical, must carry a walking stick.

It is certainly not the undergraduate who is bringing the former fashion in again, for his pose in a Norfolk jacket and a slouch in slippers—and without a hat. A "clouded cane" would be out of place with such accompaniments. Nor do we think it is the actor, which has always stood out—literally—against the support of the stick in the streets, knowing that its "nice conduct" will spoil his poise. And really, to a young man, the cane seems the most superfluous of encumbrances.

This Coffee is Never Sold in Bulk!

You buy coffee for its flavor—its aromatic stimulation—which is so largely due to its flavor. The old secret blend—the genuine French Market Coffee—is a combination of many different coffees that are grown in different countries, hence that peculiar delicious flavor cannot be imitated.

If you would have the genuine French Market Coffee ask for it by name; see that you are given French Market—not the ordinary kind of coffee. The picture of the old French Market on the label assures you of the genuine French Market Coffee—accept no other.

Let French Market Coffee tell its own story. Serve it several days with your every meal—then see if anyone in your family wants to go back to the ordinary kind of coffee. Remember, Madame, that the flavor of coffee is everything.

Directions—We recommend that you make French Market Coffee in your usual way. If you find it too strong reduce quantity until strength and flavor are satisfactory. French Market makes more cups of good coffee to the pound than other brands, thereby reducing your coffee bill. (107)

Philately and History.

An interesting chapter in philatelic history, and in the history of Europe, is closed by the decision to suppress the foreign postal agencies in Crete as the result of the union of that island with Greece. Austria, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy have all maintained post offices in Crete, as in Turkey, and there is at the moment much speculation in philatelic circles as to whether the Levantine post offices maintained by the powers, among which Germany is also included, will not be closed as well.

Hard to Satisfy.

"Some men are not even satisfied when they marry and are supported in the style to which they have been accustomed," caustically remarked a woman.

Cemetery Advertisement.

Advertising a cemetery is something not generally encountered, but this recently has occurred at Sydney, N. S. Wales, Australia. A newspaper advertised a local cemetery as "commanding so beautiful a view of the bay that people who have tried it cannot be persuaded to go elsewhere."

When the Eyes Are Gray.

Among the gray eyed there are few who retain any spiritual emotions. People with gray eyes are superficial, frivolous, given to embrace false idols, running down blind alleys, following false prophets, thoughtless, inconsiderate, wanting in sympathy, neurotic unstable, not firm and deliberate, but rash and impetuous.

How to Avoid Those Pains and Distress Which so Many Mothers Have Suffered.

It is a pity more women do not know of Mother's Friend. Here is a remedy that softens the muscles, enables them to expand without any strain upon the ligaments and enables women to go through maternity without pain, nausea, morning sickness or any of the dreaded symptoms so familiar to many mothers.

There is no foolish diet to harass the mind. The thoughts do not dwell upon pain and suffering, for all such are avoided. Thousands of women no longer resign themselves to the thought that sickness and distress are natural. They know better, for in Mother's Friend they have found a wonderful, penetrating remedy to banish all those dreaded experiences.

It is a subject every woman should be familiar with, and even though she may not require such a remedy, she will now and then meet some prospective mother to whom a word in time about Mother's Friend will come as a wonderful blessing. This famous remedy is sold by all druggists, and is only $1.00 a bottle. It is for external use only, and is really worth its weight in gold. in the United States and the surprising truth is that most cases are preventable with timely, intelligent treatment.

These appalling facts should warn us that after sickness, colds, overwork or any other drains upon strength, Scott's Emulsion should be promptly and regularly used because tubercular germs thrive only in a weakened system.

The tested and proven value of Scott's Emulsion is recognized by the greatest specialists because its medical nourishment assimilates quickly to build healthy tissue; aids in the development of active, life-sustaining blood corpuscles; strengthens the lungs and builds physical force without reaction. Scott's Emulsion is used in tuberculosis camps because of its rare body-building, blood-making properties and because it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drug. Insist on Scott's.

City Attorney Romaine Boyd, of Birmingham, is also a candidate for the Supreme Court for one of the places now held by Judges DeGraffenried and Mayfield, whose terms expire next January.

Captain Boyd is the only candidate for the Supreme Court from the North Central section of the State and his fitness and qualifications are highly endorsed by many of the leading lawyers throughout the State.

He has discharged the difficult duties of City Attorney of Greater Birmingham with marked success and fidelity to the people and his candidacy for the Supreme Court is meeting with a friendly response throughout the State.

All doctors have reported births and deaths except the following: Dr. V. B. Potts, Maplesville, Ala.

All midwives have reported.

The vital statistics are as follows:

Births, white, 40; colored, 10; total, 50.

The following cases of infectious diseases were reported, and have been properly looked after: 3 cases small-pox, and 3 cases of measles.

Respectfully,
V. J. Gragg, M. D.,
County Health Officer.

Jemison

Editor Union-Banner:—Please give me a small space in your paper to say to the voters of Chilton County that in announcing myself for Commissioner, that, as I have served one term, that I am better qualified to do the work than I was before, and my platform is equal rights to all and special favors to none. If we can help in any way, help all; if we have to raise money, charge all. If the above is not right, I don't know what is right. Now let me say to the people that, as I am a farmer and now is the time that we have got to prepare our lands, I can't canvass any. I will leave my case with the people and will stand by our ticket made April 21. So I will await your verdict.

Yours to serve,
S. E. Waldrup.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives who were so ready to lend a helping hand during the sickness and death of our dear brother, and especially the physician, Dr. R. B. McNeel, who was ready to do all he could.

Mt. Creek News

Rev. J. A. Cannon, a Baptist minister living near Mountain Creek was severley bitten by a mad dog on Friday. Mr. Cannon immediately left for Pasteur Institute for treatment. The dog was killed and its head sent to Montgomery for examination.

Mr. Charley Kendrick died of Brights disease and was buried on Sunday. A large number of friends attended the funeral. Mr. Kendrick was well liked by his neighbors.

The recent severe weather did not injure fruit trees and early vegetation very much in this vicinity. Trees and early stuff was not far enough advanced for the Minnesota blizzard to accomplish much in the way of damage.

Brady Simms, son of Judge Simms meet with an ugly accident by breaking his leg yesterday.

There was a real "fox hunt" "pulled off" in this vicinity last week. Mr. Charles White, of this place "entertained" 9 friends and 27 dogs by keeping them out all night. The gentlemen were all mounted on spirited horses, and soon after the chase commenced a "fleet footed" Chilton County fox was started; barb wire fences were tackled during the chase, and other obstacles favoring the fox made the chase last all night. Finally the "sly" ranger of the hills and dales was captured.

So well pleased with the pastorate last year were the congregation of the Baptist Church at Mountain Creek, that the Rev. O. W. Greer has been called for another year. Mr. Greer is very popular, not only with his own congregation, but is generally well liked by the people.

Union Springs

Everything quiet at this writing. Everybody busy.

Mrs. Erven had a stroke of Paralysis recently.

Our genial friend, Mr. John S. Waldrup was at the singing last Sunday afternoon.

Saturday and Monday were fertilizer days at Oakley, which brought several visitors to that town.

Mr. S. M. Russ is applying his fertilizer now to a crop of spring oats.

The junior classes in the Sunday school here are doing well; just leading the grown people; having good lessons all the time. Miss Neelie Waldrup and Mrs. Crumpton are teachers in charge of that department, at present.

J. D. Atchison, one of Randolph's fine young business men attended singing here Sunday.

The excitement about the mumps at Randolph and vicinity seems to have subsided.

It seems to be a sad fact that young people are losing the proper reverence for sacred things, due of course largerly to indifference on the part of parents Such a course will ulti mately result in serious trouble. But such a course serves to draw the lines sharply between mere nominal professors and those who are out and out for the right and truth.

A certain administration organ alludes to the fact that eggs are getting cheaper, which will be good for the consumer. Yes, but how about the producer? We fail to hear of the farmer who is the producer complaining about e gs being too high.

Thorsby News

Our new brick buildings are rising up apace. The outside work of Mr. Freeman's and Mr. Horn's buildings is about completed, Mr. Pyron is running his up for a second story. Work has begun on a building for Mr. L. C. Robinson, and one for Mr. Mims. Ground is being broken for the Building proposed by the Woodmen and Redmen, and another good-sized building is to be put up on the lot adjoining it.

The Institute building is being re-painted, a gift from a friend of the school in Connecticut having made this possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Maben who have been residing at the Quarry,have moved to Thorsby that they may put their children in school.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, of Michigan, are here looking for a home They have traveled over quiet a territory, but think Thorsby is the best place they have found.

Nearly 15000 strawberry crates have been shipped in recently and are awaiting the coming of the luscious berries in the coming months. If all are filled it will mean the largest amount of strawberries that has ever been sent out of Thorsby.

P.K. Villadsen, J.S. Moran and wife, H. H. Dahl, W. L. Leary, J. W. Collins, and S. H. Herbert attended the County Meeting of the Farmers' Union at Mineral Springs, and report an interesting and profitable meeting.

Mr. J. S. Damron, the Potter Craftsman, who delivered his lecture on the making of pottery at Thorsby Institute Saturday night, remained over for Sunday and spoke to a goodly crowd Sunday afternoon on "The Bible and Men," showing that all the great men of the nation had been believers in the Bible. He also spoke at the Baptist Church on Sunday night.

Rev. J. M. Graham will hold a week of special meetings at the Congregational Church beginning Sunday morning, Feb. 22nd Services will probably be held every night during the following week.

Mr. Treat and Mr. Davis, the Government Motion Picture experts, who have been traveling in the West and Southwest, nave returned to Thorsby.

The Boy Scouts of Thorsby meet every Friday afternoon for a business meeting, and on Saturday afternoon they take a "hike" in the country, if the weather permits. They are learning to "Be Prepared" for every emergency. Mr. Sereno G. Norton is Scout Master, and Mr. Arther Villadsen is Assistant Scout Master.

Mt. Creek City Officers Elected

An election of town officers was held and the following gentlemen selected:

E. V. Speer, Mayor; Messrs. Cawley, Coburn, Baxley, Long, and Kicker were elected as alderman.

The election passed off quietly, though was some talk of the ballot boxes having been held back in the down town precincts and being "stuffed" in order to control the result.

Mr. Speer is an excellent business man and says he will administer the town affairs in an earnest manner, always looking to the betterment of conditions.

Randolph, Ala., Feb. 11th 1914

Editor Union-Banner:--I note you are always ready and willing to publish anything of a public nature and that which tends to stimulate the farmers to better effort thereby increasing their bank account. I wish to say that many of the land owners of our state can not only increase the production of their farms but they can help their tenants increase their gross income by offering prizes to those who make the most cotton and corn per mule

It has been the custom of Major Allen P. Howison of Randolph Ala. to offer his tenants a prize of $20.00 in Gold to the man who raised the most cotton for each mule worked, and $10.00 in gold for the most corn raised per mule worked.

The Major, has a large farm on the Cahaba River south of Centerville Ala. as well as large farming operation near Randolph Ala. and he offers prizes to tenants working at both places. Last year (1913) Mr. Rube Smitherman won the prize for the most cotton raised per mule near Randolph, Ala. on what is known as the Lou. Smitherman Place., he having made 18 bales of cotton with two mules, the cotton weighed 9160 lbs. and M. J. Payne 13 bales cotton and raised the most Corn at this location(300 Bu) and won the Corn prize, he having worked two Mules.

A negro man named Will Howard made 15 bales of cotton and 125 bushels of corn

He will be placed on trial Thursday at Columbiana, according to a statement made to Governnor O'Neal Monday.

Oakley is alleged to have drawn the money on a check signed by himself as president of the convict board. He is said to have received the money in New York exchange and to have deposited it in the Bank of Monteqallo to his credit. Later it is charged, he drew out on his personal check $517.80. and later the sum of $3000 which it is claimed he paid to G. F. Peter for land he is alleged to have purchased from the Braddock Town and Improvement company.

Oakley was arrested by the Shelby county Sheriff several days ago, but the news only leaked out Monday.

Allen Child Died Suddenly

It is reported that a child of Mr. Tom Allen who lives at Cooper, died very suddenly last Friday morning. The little fellow went to the table to eat breakfast, and when finished leaned over on the table as in a sleeping posture. Soon he attracted the attention of his parents by his peculiar actions. A physician was called and in a few minutes the child was dead.

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Commissioner in the first district, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary April 21, 1914.

S. E. WALDRUP.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Representative in the Legislature from Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary, on April 21, 1914.

HOWARD L. FOSHEE.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary, on April 21, 1914.

JOHN L. GORE.

FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, in the Progressive Primary April 21, 1914. D. N. ROBINSON.

FOR SHERIFF

We are authorized and requested to announce the name of H. A. HARRIS, as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary on April 21, 1914.

We are convinced more and more of the validity of the principles of the Progressive Party. In its platform are planks which we as Southern men, can stand upon without any confliot with our patriotism and devotion to the honored principles for which are fathers so daringly fought in the Sixties. It, like the Republican party, is not contaminated with that class of politicians which veritably drew blood from our veins by the hated carpet bag government. It fondles no such element, and has for its purpose modern progress and prosperity, working upon the basis of a necessity for two political parties in the South. It is modern in its precepts, and instead of opposing the Democratic party with the old way of the Republicans which aroused in every Southern man the hatred that was bred by the Civil war and reconstruction days, it offers us an opportunity to better social moral and political conditions by way of the universal law of competition upon present day matters, in the abministration of the affairs of the government.

Ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge in Colliers Weekly of January 31, gives full justification of the existence of the Pregressive Party, in the following words:

"If the Progressive party did nothing more than break up the solid South by giving the people of that section two vital; sincere and effective political parties, that fact alone would justify the Progressive party's existence and make future generations of Americans rise up and call its name blessed. And the Progressive party is doing that very thing right now, as is proved by the epoch-making gathering in New Orleans last November. If there was nothing else to show that the time has come for the Republican party to go, the single fact that it cannot destroy sectionalism, but on the other hand that it keeps sectionalism alive, is more than enough to prove that it has out lived its usefulness."

We received this week a communication from Mr. D. N. Robinson, who is a candidate for Sheriff, but are sorry to state that it reached us too late to get in this issue, owing to the fact that our space was already filled. It will appear next week, which we hope will be satisfactory to Mr Robinson. And just here it might be appropriate for us to add for the information of all who might be concerned, that it is necessary for all communications to reach us not later than the first mail Tuesday morning to insure insertion in paper of that week. We ordinarily have our paper practically set up by Tuesday night, and consequently we have no space for articles reaching us at that time. Correspondents will please take notice of this, and govern themselves accordingly.

PROBLEM OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

If business conditions in the North and East are in such a booming condition as the New York Herald reports, it is strange to us that such a vast number of men are out of employment. Facts and figures presented by the New York Evening Sun in a recent issue show that in New York City alone there are more than 325,000 men without work. Of course it would not be just to say this entire number are idle because of the decline in the progress of industries, for there are at all times more or less men who have no work to do. But evidence has been produced by various employment bureaus that this year the number of idlers is abnormally large.

Owing to the fact that the "Herald" reports flourishing conditions, and the "Evening Sun" an excess of unemployed labor, it may be said the latter is merely croaking over the situation because the Democratic administration has not failed as was predicted. But if the report of the "Evening Sun" is not correct, why is it so directly in line with the move that is being instituted by the national government to secure employment for the idle thousands who are loose in the country?

It seems that the policy of the Democrats in securing employment for these men is right in at least one respect: after they have put them out of a job with their free trade and low tariff, they surely ought to try some way to restore them to some means of earning a living. The quickest way they can get a job for these idle fellows is to do away with the great free list clause of the ponderous Underwood Tariff law.

Old Folks, Here's Real Joy For You

Wonderful ROOT JUICE Will Have You Feeling Ten Years Younger in That Many Days. Guaranteed.

After fifty or sixty years of hard use and abuse the human engine needs frequent coaxing to keep it running smoothly and you'll be surprised at what a little of the right kind of coaxing will do. Rheumatic twinges, sore, stiffened joints, and muscles, lame back, weak kidneys, and bladder, nerve weakness, indigestion, loss of appetite, interrupted sleep and other ailments so common in advanced years are being made to disappear almost as if by magic.

"Ha, I'm Ready for Anything Now."

Wonderful ROOT JUICE, made from a collection of Nature's own restoratives, roots, herbs, leaves and barks, is accomplishing things for old folks that you'd scarcely believe possible. The way it builds up the system, cleans out the blood, stirs up the bowels and the liver, tones the stomach and strengthens the weak places is remarkable. It exerts a splendid action upon the weakened nervous system too. It's different from anything else you ever tried and so dependable in its action that it is sold under a positive guarantee.

No one takes any chances with ROOT JUICE. It has got to benefit and please everybody who uses it or back goes every cent paid for it. That's the best kind of proof of its merits.

Best of all, you don't have to take it for the rest of your natural life to get results. Most people feel its benefit within ten days. The appetite improves, so does digestion. That frequent and troublesome kidney action is regulated, so is the bowel action and almost before you realize it that stiffness and soreness in the limbs and muscles disappears. That shaky, nervous feeling gives way to returning strength and force and you feel like a different person.

Try it. You're not taking the slighest risk because you've got to get results or your money back instantly. You'll say it's worth ten times the price and you'll feel better and stronger than you have in many a day. All good druggists sell ROOT JUICE at one dollar per large bottle and they positively guarantee it. Get ROOT JUICE this time and get relief.

Ruben Grant Died Wednesday.

The sudden, though not unsuspected death of Ruben Grant, a young man about nineteen years of age, occurred at the home of his fathers, Mr. Jim Grant, about five miles south of Clanton on Wednesday morning about six o'clock. He had been confined to his bed about six weeks with heart trouble.

Bethel

We are glad to say that the health of this community has improved some for the last few days.

Cold and rainy weather for the last few days seem to have stopped the progress of the farmer with their winter plowing.

Fall oats seem to be doing fine.

Well, we notice politics are beginning to warm up some nowadays, as the Democratic primary draws nearer the fight between Hobson and Underwood grows more bitter. If the democratic condidates are guilty of what they are charging each other with, it does not make any difference which one of them wins, the common people need not expect any good from them, which goes to prove all the time that the only hope of the common people for relief is in the Progressive Party. Now I want to say to the people of Chilton County, that they are in the best shape that they have ever been to give the Democrats the most stunning defeat they have ever received in this County. Now my friends, do not be misled by no democratic tricks or false reports, but investigate for yourself the conditions of your County's affairs; now and then compare them with the condition of the affairs of the County four years ago when Judge Reynolds went out and Judge Deason went in and you can plainly see that it is better for the people when they keep the Democrats out. So, now my friends, remember that April the 21st is the day set for our Primary, and on that day we want to turn out and nominate the men that we want to fill our offices for the next four years. Respectfully,

W. H. Gillespie.

Death of Mr. M. P. Robinson

Health of this community is very good at present.

The people in this beat are moving fences and clearing some land and everywhere you can see signs of stock law. Still there is a lot of our people that dislike stock law, and it will be rather hard on some, as most of them have had to make new pastures; but I hope that after all get their farms and pastures in good shape that they will be better satisfied with stock law. There is always a bright side to every cloud if we will just see it, and I think the bright side of stock law will be better stock and more farm land opened up, and better conditions generally. (Oh, but I am only an old grandma and my opinion is not worth much, is it?) All the same, I have visions and wish for prosperity.

The new devices, refinements, improvements and conveniences found on the No. 7 represent an enormous outlay and vastly increase its value—the price has not been advanced one penny. We shall even continue in force our popular 17-Cents-a-Day purchase plan, the same as on previous Oliver models.

The OLIVER No. 7, equipped with the famous Printype, if desired, without extra charge.

You owe it to ypurself to see the new machine before you buy any typewriter at any price. Note its beauty, speed and easy action, its wonderful automatic devices. Try it on any work that is ever done on typewriters. Try it on many kinds of work that no other typewriter will do.

It is a significant fact that the typewriter that introduced such epoch-making innovations as visible writing, visible reading, Printype, etc., should be the first to introduce automatic methods of operation.

JOHN WHITE & CO. LOUISVILLE, KY.

U. S. S. CONNECTICUT.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Feb. 8, 1914

Editor Union-Banner:—Please give me space in your paper to say a few words to my old friends in dear old Alabama, as I have been away for fifteen months.

When I left there, I enlisted in the U. S. Navy and was sent to Norfolk, Va. training station and after four months training, I was transferred to the Connecticut and came about at Hampton Roads, Va. in April, 1913, and we had target practice. Then we sailed for Philadelphia, Penn. and only being there one week, we started for Vera Cruz, Mex., and arrived on the 28 of April. But the worst of it was that we could not go ashore, so we had moving pictures every night except Wednesday and Saturday nights in which we had smokers and ministrel shows. We were only there two months, when we were relieved and returned to our home port, Philadelphia, where we went in dry dock for repair, and got a thirty days leave, and most everybody went home. After three months in the Navy yard, we sailed for Italy, and having some bad weather and some nice weather, we arrived at Genoa, Italy the 8 of November and coald ship the 9th, and then prepared for a ten days leave, and as I could not understand their language very well, I did not enjoy it at first, but I soon became to where I could speak the Italian language very well, and I enloyed myself very well. I went to Rome and there I sure enjoyed myself walking around seeing the sights, and while I was there I was in the Kings Palace, and it is the beautifulest place I ever saw. They have the finest churches that I ever saw; made of stone that look kindly like pearl. After spending five days in Rome, I returned to the ship in Genoa.

We were ordered to Vera Cruz, Mexico, and on the 30 of November we got underway, and after 17 days at sea we arrived at Guantoma Bay, Cuba, where we coaled ship and finished our cruise. Now we have been here two months, and expect to be here for two more, so we are not out of heart, but hoping for the time to come when we sail for dear old Philadelphia, and I hope to come home and spend a few days with my friends, for I sure would like to be with them and go to a few singings, as we never have anything like that aboard ship.

I will close with best regards to all, hoping to see you all in the near future, I remain as ever,

J. C. Hancock.

The Attraction.

A rather eccentric man, calling on a family blessed by an observant little son, wore kid gloves that had been cleaned. The little boy, seeming to be much attracted by the visitor, stayed close at his side. "You like to stand by Mr. Blank and hear his funny stories, don't you, Jimmie?" presently asked Jimmie's father. "I don't care about his stories," replied the honest youngster, "but his hands smell just like our automobile."

A scald or severe cut heals slowly if neglected. The family that keep a bottle os BALLAKD'S SNOW LINIMENT on hand is always prepared for such accidents. Price 25c, 50c, and $1.00 der bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co

Our Enterprises

It is apparent to the most casual observer that the average firm, corporation or individual is more progressive than the average city, state or federal government.

The firm, corporation or individual business enterprise will adopt new methods, employ new inventions far in advance of their employment or adoption by the city, state or federal government. This, too, in spite of the fact that the public servant has time and machinery for research and investigation.

The business enterprise will investigate and invest in an automobile truck far in advance of the purchase of an auto-garbage truck, or an auto-police patrol by the city government.

The business enterprise will maintain a school for employees and pay the teachers well and promptly, while many of our counties find schools a scarcity, and the teachers often go long periods before receiving their salaries.

The corporations maintain laboratories and stations for experimental purposes, while the states grant inadequate support to the commendable movement for agricultural schools and colleges.

The individual, firm or corporation works out successfully and makes money for the stockholders, while the city, state and nation is struggling with taxes and tariff.

And yet the average candidate for public office announces that he is a Progressive Democrat, or a Progressive Republican, as the case may be, and makes an appeal for votes on the ground that he has discovered a remedy for all the public ills and has the ability to apply it. He is elected to office, and the same old order of things continues in the same old way, the only explanation being that his efforts to lead the public out of darkness into light is backed by the "reactionary" business enterprises.

The L. & N. is a successful business enterprise. That success was won through constant labor and untiring research in an effort to discover the best methods and devices for properly conducting a railroad and developing the territory through which the road operates.

Instead of devoting its time and energies to picking flaws and finding fault with the politicians, the L. & N. has devoted its time and energies to a careful study and analysis of the methods by which other enterprises succeeded; to improving on those methods, and to applying them to its own business.

The L. & N. has found time—has taken time and spent money and found it to be a good investment—to offer helpful suggestions and render practical assistance to farms and farmers; to manufacturers and dealers; to mines and miners; to industries and industrious individuals.

And yet there are some people who charge the L. & N. with being a reactionary, with being ultra conservative, with blocking progress.

We ask the thoughtful people to give consideration to these things, and urge them to join with the L. & N. in its effort for constructive development along practical and successful lines.

The L. & N. has unexcelled passenger and freight facilities which cannot be utilized to the maximum until the business enterprises in the territory through which its lines operate are developed to the maximum. To co-operate for the speedy consummation of this object is good business, and is the earnest desire of the L. & N.

Monster Horticultural Exhibition

At the last annual meeting of the Alabama State Horticultural Society held at Bay Minette, in January last, resolutions were adopted and a Committee apointed to make arrangements for an exhibition of all kinds of horticulture products of the State, at the next annual meeting of the Society. Plans have bee devised to make this exhibition the greatest event in the horticulture history of the State. As the Society and this Committee are without funds to supply premiums to give for the display of these products, they plan a campaign throughout the State to solicit the donations from interested persons, of such premiums as they may be willing to give in order to encourage the bringing -ogether of the largest display of products ever exhibited in the State.

It is the purpose of this Committee to solicit in each county of the State and secure if possible the donation of at least $150.00 worth of premiums in each county and the three largest counties viz., Jefferson, Montgomery and Mobile will be asked to double that amount $300.00 each—making a total of $10,500.00 in premiums to be awarded for meritorious exhibits. Everybody who wishes to help boom the State and its products will be asked to contribute toward these premiums such as they may have to donate. Nurserymen can donate of their products; Real Estate men, lands and town lots; Merchants manufacturers of their stocks and products; newspaper men, subscriptions to iheir publications, etc.

Help us raise donations of premiums asked for from your county and then help your people to bring out the products that will win the prize. and make the greatest advertisement for the State that has ever been brought together.

Philately and History.

An interesting chapter in philatelic history, and in the history of Europe, is closed by the decision to suppress the foreign postal agencies in Crete as the result of the union of that island with Greece. Austria, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy have all maintained post offices in Crete, as in Turkey, and there is at the moment much speculation in philatelic circles as to whether the Levantine post offices maintained by the powers, among which Germany is also included, will not be closed as well.

Simple Enough.

"How does your husband account for the high cost of living?" "Very simply. He just blames me for it."

Genuine Pity.

"Mr. and Mrs. Whiffer never have any arguments. "How does that happen?" "Mr. Whiffer won't argue." "The poor woman!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

People Worth Watching.

There are certain persons whom physiognomists say should be avoided by certain other persons. Thus, the talker is warned to keep away from the person with the overhanging forehead, for he will prove exceedingly deep in argument. The business man is advised to watch carefully when dealing with the man with the receding forehead and chin, the large, curved and prominent nose, for he will prove shrewd in business.

Hard to Satisfy.

"Some men are not even satisfied when they marry and are supported in the style to which they have been accustomed," caustically remarked a woman.

Simple Cement.

For mending ornaments and delicate china there is nothing better than rice-flour cement. It is very easily made, it being only necessary to mix rice flour or ground rice thoroughly with cold water, simmering gently over a slow fire until it thickens, thereby forming a most durable adhesive substance which can be used hot or cold, in the usual way.

PLAIN STATEMENT FROM J. DAMSKY.

Our attention was to move back to Birmingham, but after looking over the situation and careful investigation, I find that Maplesville is a Garden Spot and good enough for me. So after giving up my stsre here, I decided to remain. I refer anyone to the Cashier of the bank here, and also to Mr. Hill Forshee who will gladly coroborate this statement. They will bear me out, that my plans were all made to move. Then came the change of mind which caused new rent contracts, bank arrangements, etc., to be made.

Mother's Friend in Every Home

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. UPCHURCH DRUG CO. TO HAVE NEW STORE

Will be Most Up-to-Date Arrangement in the State

For many years the record of the Upchurch Drug Co., for square and honest business dealings in Clanton has been a very noticeable feature. With modest adherance to the fundamentals of successful business activity, its growth has been marked and steady, till now the demands of the trade of the institution can no longer be accommodated in the limited quarters which it has been occupying. Mr. Upchurch, the manager, has secured a lease on the new modern two-story brick building which is to be constructed on the site of the wooden store which has been recently vacated by the Clanton Millinery Co., and in his new quarters will place one of the most elaborate arrangements to be found in any drug store in the state. Being on the corner, the building will have two street fronts, which will show up handsomely with heavy plate glass throughout. The floor will be of beautifully designed tiling, ceiling of the prettiest patterns of steel decorations. New fixtures throughout the entire store will be put into use. Not only will this new store take first rank among the institutions of its kind for towns of this size, but it will be an equal champion of the "swellest" city drug stores of today.

Mt. Creek, Ala., Feb. 23, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—Permit me, through your paper to say to the old Confederate Soldiers that I think we owe a duty to our comrade Capt. R. F. Kolb, and that now, in this election for Governor of our grand old State we all who served in the Confederate army, as he did during the tnrbulant times of 1861-5, should rally to his support in this gubernatorial race.

Of course, Mr. Editor, we realize that you personally, through the influence of your paper may prefer another, but then, as a journalist, we think that you will give publicity to the wishes of Capt. Kolb's old Confederate friends by publishing this. With much respect, I am,

Poison Meat Plays Havoc

Several Persons Suffer From Eating Infected Souse Meat.

As a result of eating some souse meat that proved to be poison, for a time last Friday night the lives of a number of persons in Clanton were in grave danger.

The family of Mr. J. P. Gore were the first to be taken with the effects of the poison. While the physician was there attending those suffers, he received a call from the family of Dr. Marcus, which later proved to be the same trouble. In the meantime physicians were busy with a number of persons at the hotel.

Upon investigation it was found that the whole trouble was due to the persons having eaten some souse meat that was brought to town by Mr. Crayton Lenoir of Mulberry, and sold at McKee's Market, from where it was distributed to the people in town who later suffered from having eaten of it. Some cases of the poisoning were indeed bad, and required careful attention of physicians in order to avoid serious consequences.

The opinion given out by physicians who attended those who were poisoned are to the effect that the meat was infected with germs of ptomaine poison, which is usually attained in the following ways: By allowing a delay in the use of the meat for food after the animal was slaughtered; by the employment of improper methods in the preservation of the meat from the time the animal was slaughtered till it was used for food; or by the presence of disease germs in the body of the animal before slaughtering.

Guilty of Killing Wife and Child

Blount County Man Convicted of Brutal Crime by Jury Last Friday

William Wilson, aged 35, a farmer, was found guilty by a jury in the circuit court at Oneonta, Blount county, for the murder of his wife and 6-year-old child.

It is alleged Wilson killed his wife and child, dragged their bodies to the bank of the Warrior river and hid them among the rocks, and later set fire to the brush Months later the charred skeletons were discovered and suspicion pointed to Wilson. The evidence was largely circumstantial, but more than a hundred witnesses testified. An appeal will probably be taken.

Wilson's second wife was with him at the trial and has been loyal to him in the face of conviction.

The State S. S. Convention

The plans for the thirty-first annual convention of the Alabama Sunday School Association to be held in Mobile, April 21, 22-23, are nearly complete, and the indications now are that this will be by far the strongest and most largely attended of any Sunday School Convention ever held in the State.

General Secretary Leon C. Palmer, of Montgomery, who has just been on a tour extending from extreme south Alabama to extreme north Alabama, reports that the popular interest in the approaching convention is greater than in any previous year. Registration at the last State Convention showed 1,403 delegates from fifteen denominations and representing every County in Alabama except Lamar, Winston, Monroe and Choctaw. It is believed that this year every county will be represented,

The Program Committee have secured as speakers some of the most prominent Sunday School specialists of North America, and in addition about forty of the Sunday School leaders from all denominations in Alabama. Among the out-of-state speakers will be two men of international reputation who have never before attended any similar gathering in this State. Names of the speakers and the full program will be announced later.

One of the attractive features of this convention will be the fact that the music will be led by Prof. E. O. Excell, of Chicago, generally considered the leading convention chorus leader of the world today, assisted by Prof. A. W. Roper, of Winona Lake the famous composer and pianist.

The various railroads of the State have granted a reduced rates of about half price for the round trip. In anticipation of the heavy attendance expected from all parts of Alabama, the railroads have already arranged for three special Sunday School trains, instead of one as last year to carry only delegates to the convention. The possible necessity for a fourth special train is also being considered.

Full details as to arrangements for the convention will be given out by the State Executive Committee in the next few days.

Hobson Auto Kills Boy

Congressman Was Speaking When Youth Trying To Board Car, Falls Under Wheels.

Capt. R. P. Hobson's automobile in which he toured Chambers County today in the intrest of his candidacy for the United States Senate, ran over and killed the eight-year-old son of James Napp, at Riverview, a small town near here. Capt. Hobson was not in the car at the time but was speaking in a nearby hall. The boy was dead before Capt. Hobson heard of the accident.

Captain Hobson who spoke here tonight, said a chauffeur named Lindsey was in charge of the car, and was preparing to bring it to a stop when the boy ran to it and jumped up on the step. The throbbing of the automobile, he said threw the boy off and under the wheels. The wheels passed directly over the boy's body.

Mt. Creek News

Miss Lillian Hancock, the natural musician, of Highland Home, Ala., who is now principal of the Morganville Public school, visited Birmingham last Friday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cooper. While in Birmingham they had the exquisite pleasure of hearing the greatest pianist in the world, Mr. I. J. Paderewski, play at the Jefferson Theatre. To say that Mr. Paderewski's music was enjoyed by the audience, is expressing it very lightly indeed—in fact, we fail to find words in the English Vocabulary, with which we could adequately express the pleasure his music afforded.

Morganville's new school building is nearing completion, and we hope to get moved in this week. Our County Superintendent, Mr. W. T. Bean, tells us that we are the only ones in the county that have built our school building in keeping with the state's plans and specification.

Morganville is very much interested in the "Trans-Continental Highway," connecting the Great Lakes with the Gulf, and we feel confident that a suitable right-of-way can be secured, and other aid in addition thereto.

The Underwood club are arranging for a meeting next week in the interest of Mr. Underwood. Capt. W. J. Bethune, Dr. W. A. Maddox and Mr. Roberts have the matter in charge.

Mr. D. H. Marbury held a stock sale last week and auctioned off a large lot of blooded stock of wnich he had a big surplus.

The new Mayor, Mr. E. V. Speer intends to improve the street, etc., of Mountain Creek.

Rev. Mr. Cannon, the minister bitten by a mad dog last week is getting on very well. He is taking the 21 days treatment at the Pasteur Institute at Montgomery.

The health of the men at the Soldiers Home, Dr. Ellsberry says, is as good as he could expect.

Miss Mary Henderson chaperoned seven pretty young ladies over the grounds at the Soldiers Home on Sunday. Spring violets and pretty girls were in evidence.

Miss Kate Smith has recovered from her recent illness.

Governor O'Neal has requested that Judge H. D. Merril order a special term of the Shelby Circuit Court to be held April 7 to try James G. Oakley, former President of the State Convict Department, on a charge of embezzling $3,517 of State funds.

Governor O'Neal held a telephone conference Saturday with Judge Merril, of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, and at this conference Judge Merril agreed that April 7 would be the most convenient date for the trial.

Would Aspire to Serve the Interests of the People of Second District.

Our readers will notice this week the announcement of Mr. R. J. Williams as a candidate for the office of Commissioner from the Second District of Chilton County. Mr. Williams is well known in the County, and any eulogy we might make of his sterling character and honest manly ability would only be a repetition of the standing he has with every man of his acquaintance. It is with pleasure that we commend such a worthy man to our citizens for a public office, knowing full well that the affairs of the county are safe when entrusted to his care.

Pike Planter Shot By Son

Boy Points Gun at Father When Latter Quarrels With Wife.

Troy, Feb. 23.—James Herndon, aged 35, was shot and killed yesterday evening by his son, Herbert Herndon, aged 12 years.

The version of the killing made public is that the father was quarrelling with his wife and struck her. The boy grabbed a rifle and pointed it at his father, asking his mother if he should shoot. She told him no and the father attempted to wrench the gun from the boy's hand. The boy either pulled the trigger or the gun was discharged accidentally during the scuffle. The load struck Herndon below the heart, causing death in a short time. No arrests have been made.

Keep it in mind—the best of its kind.—Ed Popwell's Pressing Shop, Kicker Building.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Commissioner from the second district of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Progressive primary on April 21, 1914. R. J. WILLIAMS.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Representative in the Legislature from Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary, on April 21, 1914.

HOWARD L. FOSHEE.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary, on April 21, 1914.

JOHN L. GORE.

FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, in the Progressive Primary April 21, 1914. D. N. ROBINSON.

FOR SHERIFF

We are authorized and requested to annonce the name of H. A. HARRIS, as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary on April 21, 1914.

Judge Deason has officially announced his candidacy for the nomination to Congress from the Fourth District to oppose Fred L. Blackmon of Anniston, in the Democratic primary.

The total vote polled in the Republican primary in Chilton County on May 6, 1912 was 1076. We should strive to enlist this full number for the Progressive Primary on the 21st of next April. By so doing we may be sure of triumphant victory in November.

When it is no longer possible for the Democrats to say wait and see what the Tariff and currency legislation will do toward lowering prices, sensible men will probably turn their attention to the task of learning just what has made them take their upward flight. — San Francisco Chronicle.

The division in the election results of the last campaign in Chilton County was no doubt due to the fact that some voters remained in support of the Republican ticket, thereby bringing about a division which should have been a solid opposition to the Democrats. The Republicans seem to be making preparations for putting a ticket in the field this time, and we predict it will be left to an open combat between the Democrats and Progressives. By uniting the Republicans with the Progressives as they were in the Primary of 1912 there is little possibility but that we can put out a ticket that will stand the battle in November without any fear of defeat.

One physician in Clanton was particularly active—or possibly it may be more proper to say inactive—last Friday night over the consequence of eating the poison souse. But it happened this time that this particular physician was not among those who were dispensing aid to the suffering, but he was a recipient of the attention of another physician. The one we refer to was Dr. T. J. Marcus. He had recovered from the effects of the poison Monday, however, and stated to his friends that he had already sworn off from eating souse in future.

The success with which the boys corn club movement has met so far is very satisfactory indeed. Mr. T. E. Williams, who has the matter of securing prizes in charge has been doing some good work among our business men, and they have certainly done their part well also, which is evidenced by the liberal donations they have made. In both cash donations and prizes together, Mr. Williams has already secured values to the amount of $211.25, and there are yet others who will donate something for the work. We would like to say by way of a side remark to the boys of this county that this year the corn club is to be something worth being in, and there should be a great number to enlist for the contest.

Besides what Clanton is offering, there are other business men in the various towns of the county who can be depended upon to contribute liberally to this worthy cause. Boys, get in the game. You are losing out if you don't.

THE PROGRESSIVE SOUTH

Senator Beveridge in "Collier's."

This is proved by the facts that only last November thousands of Southern men of highest standing in their State met in New Orleans and pledged the best efforts of their lives to the Progressive party. This notable and historic gathering was the first ever held in the South since 1850 to put into the field in that great and important section of the Republic a vital, sincere, and effective political party in opposition to the Democratic party. These men are not politicians. They are the bone and sinew of the intellectual, moral, and social South.

For many years they have been disgusted with the rule of the professional politicians, which the fact that only one political party exists in the South has fastened on the Southern States. For years these men have seen that the welfare of the South itself, as well as the good of the whole country, demands that there shall be two parties in the South just as there is in other sections of the Republic and just as there is in every free country in the world. And yet they could not bring this about so long as the Republican party was the only rival of the Democratic party.

But they can bring it about with the Progressive party as the rival of the Democratic party And so they are going ahead, right now, to bring it about.

As the season of spring primaries approaches, evidences of unusual political activity multiply all over the country. The political pot is already simmering in many states, and before very long it will be boiling merrily. Thus far the preliminary activities are chiefly among the Progressives. The Democrats have not given much indications of awakening energy. The Republicans, however, are showing considerable activity, but it is along a line which makes open confession of their distress. The Republican efforts to pursuade or cajole the Progressives into some form of amalgamation having been met with uniform and persistent refusal on the part of the Progressives to be enticed or deceived, the Republicans are now shifting their ground, and in numerous localities exerting themselves to the utmost to lead the Progressives into a new kind of ambush. They are declaring themselves to be for the nomination of Col. Roosevelt as the Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1916, in the hope that by this procedure they can fool the Progressives out of nominating straight tickets this year. There is no more indication, however, of the success of this game than there has been of the other stratagems attempted by the standpatters. They are working this ruse hardest in West Virginia, where the Republican State Committee members are appearing one by one in a series of public interviews declaring themselves for Roosvelt. Of course, there is neither intention nor desire on the part of those who control the Republican machine to nomination Colonel Roosevelt in 1916, and this talk is all a bluff, put out for the sole purpose of attempting to trick the Progressives and with the hope that by this means the Republicans ultimately may be able to save some of their standpat Congressmen who are doomed to early retirement from the Senate and House

Meantime, the Progressives are busying themselves actively in strengthening their organization throughout the country. In several states tickets are already in the field, uniformly headed by clean, honest, able men of high standing and ability The tide of Progressive octivity is rapidly rising throughout the middle west, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, and Nebraska are already hard at it, and in several of tnese states tickets are in the field. On the Pacific coast there is a similar line of activity. On the Atlantic coast, Maine, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are hard at work. And in the south, where the Progressive party offers the first opportunity since the Civil War for a political division on consistent lines, the Progressives are busily at work and making good headway.

The campaign of 1914 is going to be fought out by the Progressives with the utmost energy all down the line, and the standpatters, who have been solacing themselves for the last year with the contemplation of what might be secured in the way of offices by adding together the Progressive and Republican votes, are going to find the utmost difficulty in saving here and there their political lives.

Letter From Mr. Robinson

To the voters of Chilton County:

I wish to make a few statements about my candidacy for the office of Sheriff. Nearly all the older citizens of the county know me, as I was born in eight miles of the court house, and reared in Chilton. I have been to school with a number ot people that still live in the county. In my childhood days I was a mischievous brat, but as a rule what a boy delights in when he becomes a man, he has nothing to do with. I lived right among the people of Chilton till I became a man; cast my first vote and paid my first poll tax here. Never before have I asked my fellow citizens for an office of any kind, and I would not now, but I need it, and need it bad I know there is some who will say that he is nothing but a renter. I will admit I am a renter, but a good one, which I am satisfied you can find others will say. Reason will teach any man that if I were one with a fine farm or a great mansion, I would not want the Sheriffs office. As it has never yet fallen to my lot to have a job but that it was a hard one, I do ask the people this one time for a change. If they see fit to give me the office. I will do everything that lies in my power to make as good a Sheriff as they have ever had. All who knew me, know that I was born a Republican, and have never been anything else, and have always been glad I was. I have spent 50 yeaas in the state, and 25: of them in Chilton county. These has never been a single year that I did not visit the county at some time. I would be glad to see the face of every man in the county, but it will be impossible, as I shall be too busy with my farming. There is one more thing I want to say. I have been told by some my only fault is that I will drink my dram. Now boys, I will say to you as Paul said in his day: If my drinking offend the brethren I will drink no more. So I close with best wishes to all.

Flowers Used as Food.

Flowers of Music.

The graces—namely, the shake, the turn, the appogiatura, etc.—are the flowers of music: and the clear, correct, and delicate execution of them embellisnes and exalts every melody and every passage. But when they are played stiff, hard, or unintelligibly, they may rather be compared to blots of ink or spots of dirt.—Carl Czerny

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

Cemetery Advertisement.

Advertising a cemetery is something not generally encountered, but this recently has occurred at Sydney, N. S. Wales, Australia. A newspaper advertised a local cemetery as "commanding so beautiful a view of the bay that people who have tried it cannot be persuaded to go elsewhere."

Genuine Pity.

Comer is the only candidate for governor who is fighting these tremendous wrongs, or whose election holds out any hope of righting them.

It is Comer and anti-Comer, four against one. The railroads and allied interests are for any one of the four to beat Comer. WHY? Echo answers WHY?

PRE-ELECTION PLEDGES.

The enemies of Comer agree with the friends of Comer on one thing and only one thing—What he promises before election he will perform after election.

Comer's election means no backward step in education, but progress along all lines. He has preached always the doctrine that the State's best asset is its boys and girls and the State's first duty is to give adequate public school facilities for every one of them. As he believes in helping the rising generation, he would also smooth the last years of the old Confederate soldier.

Here is the record:

During the four years (1907-1911) of the Comer Administration, the State Appropriations were increased:

To the public school fund.	$2,893,893.52
To school buildings	1,118,000.00
To the pension fund ...	1,763,621.95
Total increase for education and old soldiers ...	$5,775,515.47

Every dollar was given back to the people where it rightly belonged.

Comer doesn't ask the people to take him on trust. He has already saved them millions in railroad taxes and increased their public school facilities by the million dollars worth.

When he says he will do all in mortal power to release the railroad embargo on rivers and harbors, and carry forward the great business of public road buildings, the people know he will do it.

He didn't increase the tax rates, either.

THAT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

Before the advent of Governor Comer, the L. & N. Railroad and allied interests ran the politics of Alabama and controlled its legislatures. Comer broke their strangle hold and restored the people to power at Montgomery.

In three years the L & N Railroad and allied interests have renewed their grip on the Democratic Party, elected to the chairmanship of the State Committee their most subservient attorney, elected a full majority of the committee from among their followers and servants

Here is how ex-near-Senator Glass, the journalistic mouthpiece and agent of the railroads, and Governor O'Neal, managed the Democratic State Committee at Montgomery, as told by Hon. Gardner Greene, a member of the committee, who could neither be cajoled nor coerced.

"On the evening before the meeting of the committee, when there was reasonable doubt as to whether or not the majority plan would be successful, Col. John Moffatt, recording secretary of the Governor, informed me that the Governor wanted to speak with me. I was directed to rooms 514-515.

"When I entered room 514 I found the Governor, Frank P. Glass, an editor, strongly opposed to Mr. Comer, and others. The Governor wanted to know if it was true that I favored the plurality plan.

"When I told him that his information was correct, he replied:

" 'Then you are for old Comer.'

"I answered in the negative. When he pressed me to give a reason, I told him that in my opinion the success of the effort aimed at Mr. Comer would give substance to the cry already ringing throughout the State in regard to 'ring' politics, and that the success of the plan would tend undeservedly to hurt the cause of Oscar Underwood.

"The Governor, whereupon exclaimed, 'What to h—ll has Oscar Underwood to do with it,' or 'To h—ll with Underwood,' or words to that effect."

THE CRY OF ECONOMY.

Parrot-like, the Anti-Comer candidates for Governor go up and down the State preaching that Comer wrecked the Treasury; that the great issue of the campaign is economy with the $6,000,000 of taxes raised by the State. They are silent wit hone accord about the $40,000,000 of taxes in freight rates and passenger fares which the railroads are collecting every year from the people. Why? Because not one of them dares to say a word against the railroads and the allied interests whose support is the hope to which every one of them is clinging. It is Comer and anti-Comer. Comer contends for economy in the $40,000,000 fund as well as the $6,000,000 fund. None of the quartet can see the $40,000,000 tax fund of the railroads, or the discrimination practiced in its collection.

It is not true that Comer wrecked the treasury. He did not even embarrass it. Here is the record:

TRUTH ABOUT BALANCE IN TREASURY.

At the expiration of the Comer administration (January 16, 1911), the incoming legislature appointed a joint committee of the House and Senate to examine and report on the condition of the treasury. This committee reported as follows:

"The amount of money received by the present treasurer (who entered upon the duties of his office on January 18, 1911), from his predecessor was $975,237.23." See House Journal, Vol. I, page 1466.

The records further show that it was not necessary for the State to borrow money until after the end of the fiscal year succeeding the Comer administration.

PLANKS FROM COMER'S PLATFORM.

"THE ONLY MASTER I know is the people. I want it understood that I am as much opposed to the Liquor Boss as to the Railroad Boss."

"The tune, 'LISTEN TO THE MASTER'S VOICE,' will never be played while I am Governor."

"The majority of the Democratic Executive Committee at their recent meeting would not let you have a convention so as to write a progressive platform. Charles Lewis wrote the last platform and they won't let you change it. It's up to you. What do you want?"

The National Democratic Party is destroying the INTER-LOCKING DIRECTORATES. The most dangerous inter-locking directorates is where the railroads and other allied interests inter-lock with the State Government, controlling same."

"In three years with an expenditure of less than $100,000, we saved the shippers and passengers of Alabama more than $6,000,000. We will PUT THOSE RATES BACK, or there will be the biggest scrap in Alabama."

"When you use money for educational purposes, you don't spend it, YOU INVEST IT."

"You don't have to trace what we spent by an INVESTIGATING BOARD —they say we spent the money—they never said we took it."

LET'S TAKE A BROOM AND SWEEP OUT THIS GANG which is endeavoring to control our State, not in the name and for the good of the people, but for those interests which control for the purpose of using and taxing."

"THE LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE Railroad Company spent $142,285.25 to defeat me for President of the Railroad Commission, and are again hard at work to defeat me for Governor."

"IT'S COMER AND ANTI-COMER. Comer stands for the proposition that the L. & N. should get out and stay out of Alabama politics; that we can never have good government or equitable freight rates as long as they boss and control."

"REMEMBER that more than half the roads have had the rates in for six years—freight and passenger—and prospered; that other roads have had them in for three years and prospered, and that our neighboring States have had them in for many years and prospered."

"THE ALABAMA SHIPPER'S MONEY should buy as much freight rate as the Georgia shipper's or the Carolina or Virginia shipper's money. To maintain the contrary is nonsense."

COMER AND THE FEDERAL COURTS.

When the next Legislature enacts laws to compel justice and fair dealing for Alabama shippers, Judge Jones cannot step in and enjoin them and threaten the people of Alabama with fines and jail sentences. The iniquitous sight of a single inferior Federal judge setting aside at will the laws of a State led to the passage of a law by Congress requiring three judges to sit on all cases involving the validity of a State law. For this great service Mr. Comer earned the gratitutde of all the people of all the States.

FINANCES AND THE RURAL DISTRICTS.

Adequate eleemosynary and educational systems, without which the people cannot progress, must be financed by the State. Many counties and all the rural districts are now receiving for these causes more money than they pay into the State Treasury.

If those who attack the Comer appropriations should be successful at the polls they would be bound to repeal them. Thus would those counties and all rural districts lose what they have gained. The schools, the roads and the old soldiers would pay the penalty of reduced appropriations.

Four of the candidates for Governor are fighting side by side with the allied interests to defeat the policies of the Democratic Administration at Washington, to tie the hands of President Wilson, to turn back the hands on the dial plate of freedom and to block the President and the party's way to further reforms. Comer stands with Wilson and finds in these great utterances of the President, "words that breathe and thoughts that burn."

WHAT PRESIDENT WILSON SAYS ABOUT IT.

"Our government has been for the past two years under the control of heads of great allied corporations with special interests."

"It is an intolerable thing that the government of the Republic should have got so far out of the hands of the people."

"An invisible empire has been set above the forms of Democracy."

"Why do we continue to permit these things? Isn't it about time that we grew up and took charge of our own affairs?"

"Are Americans ready to ask the trusts to give us in pity what we ought, in justice, to take?'

"Well, we have started at all events. The procession is under way. The stand-patter doesnt know there is a procession. He is asleep in the back part of the house."

"Americans are not yet cowards. True, their self-reliance has been sapped by years of submission to the doctrine that prosperity is something that benevolent magnates provide for them with the aid of the government."

"The American people are not naturally stand-patters. Progress is the word that charms their ears and stirs their hearts."

"We have seen many of our governments under these influences cease to be representative governments and become governments representative of special interests controlled by machines."

"Honest American industry has always thriven, when it has thriven at all, on freedom; it has never thriven on monopoly. It is a great deal better to shift for yourselves than to be taken care of by a great combination of capital. I, for my part, do not want to be taken care of. I would rather starve a free man than to be fed a mere thing at the caprice of those who are organizing American industry as they please to organize it."

"We wanted to regulate our public service corporations so that we could get the proper service from them and on reasonable terms."

THE NEAR-SENATOR'S LEADERSHIP.

Comer is absolutely and unalterably opposed to such demagogic leadership as ex-near-Senator Glass, made so by the grace of Governor O'Neal, is undertaking in Alabama. The ex-near-senator, posing as the exponent of the National Democracy in Alabama, is fighting at home against the vital principles of that government which protects the common people and for which President Wilson is making a winning fight at Washington. This principle is that no power must be greater than the government, that no power shall control the government, and that the law shall protect the people.

Governor Comer would make it forever impossible that there should be another scene in Alabama like that recently enacted at Montgomery, where Charles Lewis, Tyler Goodwyn, Geo. Jones, Frank Glass and Emmet O'Neal manipulated the Democratic State committee at their own sweet will, with the sole purpose, as they unblushingly avowed, "To beat old Comer."

It is of utmost importance to every citizen of Alabama that on April 6th the rule of the allied interests should be forever abolished in Alabama.

Men Welcome Mother's Friend

A Duty that Every Man Owes to Those who Perpetuate the Race.

It is just as important that men should know of progressive methods in advance of motherhood. The suffering, pain and distress incident to child-bearing can be easily avoided by having at hand a bottle of Mother's Friend.

This is a wonderful, penetrating, external application that relieves all tension upon the muscles and enables them to expand without the painful strain upon the ligaments. Thus there is avoided all those nervous spells; the tendency to nausea or morning sickness is counteracted, and a bright, sunny, happy disposition is preserved that reflects wonderfully upon the character and temperament of the little one soon to open its eyes in bewilderment at the joy of his arrival. You can obtain a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store at $1.00, and it will be the best dollar's worth you ever obtained. It preserves the mother's health, enables her to make a quick and complete recovery, and thus with renewed strength she will eagerly devote herself to the care and attention which mean so much to the welfare of the child. Buying Fertilizer

This is the leading agricultural questions in the minds of the average farmer at this season of the year. He wishes that a chemical analysis of his soil might be made in the hope that this would inform him what fertilizers to use. Unfortunately, a chemical analysis does not show what fertilizers are needed, for it shows only the total amount of plant food presant and does not indicate how much of it is in soluble form.

This question can be answered only by results of field experiments made on similar soil. Recognizing this fact, the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn conducts each year in practically every county in the State fertilizer experiments with cotton as well as numerous fertilizer experiments with other crops.

The results of fertilizer experiments made with cotton in south Alabama in 1913 have just been published as Bulletin No. 174 of the Alabama Experiment Station

In this bulletin the reader will find that soils vary greatly in their need for fertilizers. For example, in one experiment the largest net profit due to fertilizers $16.54 per acre, was obtained by the use of acid phosphate alone; on another soil a complete fertilizer, containing nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, was by far the most profitable, affording a net profit of $27.54 per acre, or 453 per cent in the investment in fertilizers. Is any reader applying all three of these, when perhaps only two are needed, or is he employing only two of these kinds of plant food on soil that would make much more profitable use of all three of them? A study of this bulletin and of the corresponding bulletin for north Alabama, Bulletin No. 175, will throw light on this question.

These bulletins have been sent to addresses on the regular mailing list of the Station and will be sent free to anyone else who may write for either of them to J. F. Duggar, Director Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

Maplesville

On Wednesday evening the social set of Maplesville were summoned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Whitsell, where a delightful three course dinner was served. The spacious dining room was decorated with green and potted flowers, while in the center of the table stood minature twin trees which made quite a unique center piece. After the dinner, cards and forty two games were played and it was not until a late hour did the happy throng adjourn.

Those invited to partake of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Whitsell were as follows:

Mrs. C. F. Smith of Louisville, Ky., Messrs. Harting and Saunders of Grand Rapids, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Northrup, Dr. and Mrs. V. B. Potts, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Foshee, Mr. and Mrs. Harvie Wylie, Miss Minnie Branch, Mrs. Hull, Miss Cora Allison, R. P. Richardson, Walter S. Moore, J. E. Foreman and T. D. Woods.

The occasion was, by far, the most enjoyable of the year, and we hope, only the beginning of many more.

A heavy cold in the lungs that was expected to cure itself has been the starting point in many cases of disease that ended fatally. The sensibie course is to take frequent doses of BALLARD'S HOREHOUND SYRUP. It checks the progress of the disorder and assists nature to restore normal conditions. Price 22c, 50c, and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Company

DODSON'S GUARANTEE EXPLAINED BY DODSON

Read What Dodson Says About His Liver Tone to You Who Suffer From Constipation.

"Dodson's Liver Tone takes the place of calomel. Instead of being dangerous, it is harmless and works easily and naturally, without bad after-effects. I have authorized Alred Drug Co. to refund purchase price (50c.) to you instantly without question if you are in any dissatisfied with it. If Dodson's Liver Tone can't help you, I don't want your money."

That's how Dodson feels about this pleasant-tasting vegetable-liquid liver regulator and reliever of constipation and biliousness.

The lives of so many people have been brightened and bettered by this great remedy that leading druggists now recommend it and seven of America's most prominent physicians O. K'd it, after thorough analysis of its ingredients and effects.

It is generally known that calomel, being a poison, is a peril to many. It stays in the system and, while it may seem to give you a temporary relief, often "knocks you out" for several days.

With Dodson's Liver Tone you are set right without ache or gripe and with no bad results to interfere in the slightest way with your regular occupation and habits. So great a number of former sufferers from constipation and inactive liver have been vastly benefitted by Dodson's Liver Tone that it would seem wise for you to give it a trial now. Children like it and it does wonders for them.

Clanton Votes Majority For Waterworks Bonds

Monday's Polls Yield Handsome Majority In Favor of the Proposition. Universal Satisfaction at the Outcome.

At the municipal election held in Clanton Monday to determine whether or not the city should be authorized to issue bonds to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a system of waterworks, the proposition was carried by a decisive majority. The exact vote was 130 for water works bond issue, and 14 against it. This occasion will be marked as the beginning of greater things for Clanton. It will release avenues of progress for the town that have hitherto been strangled by the many impediments which waterworks will remove, and every citizen can in a short time point to his home city—Clanton—as the pride of Central Alabama. Now the beginning has been made by voting in waterworks, we wish to start something else, namely, a live commercial organization. We shall need some means to guard the greater trade and industrial advantages which a good waterworks system will throw in our way, and there has never been any better way to look after these things than by organizing and promoting a good live commercial club. Let our citizens and business men think of this matter, and if you get a chance talk it up. Let's keep the mill of progress continually grinding, now we have once got her started.

No More Saloons In Tennessee

According to the "nuisance" act passed at the last session of the Tennessee legislature, the licensed sale of whiskey in that state was made a thing of the past on March 1. In the city of Memphis alone more than five hundred saloons are closed as a result of the law.

Girl Accidentally Shoots Sister

Father Reaches Home and Finds Daughter With Head Blown Off.

Collinsville, Ala., March 2. John Gladden went to his home at Lay Springs, near here, this morning, and viewed the dead body of his younger daughter, then turned to lend a hand toward saving the life of his older daughter. The head of the dead girl had been shot off the night before by the one who now lies on her bed grief-stricken, with her life despaired of.

Miss Boithe Gladden was instantly killed by Miss Lois Gladden at their home early Sunday night, when a shotgun, which both believed to be unloaded, was discharged with the contents of a barrel going into the back of Miss Boithe Gladden's head. The young women were playfully snapping guns at each other as they sat together in a room.

Miss Boithe Gladden was 14 years old. The other young woman is 20 years old.

Gladden was away from home at the time of the accident. He is a well-to-do farmer.

Union Springs

Rev. Champion filled his appointment here Sunday, the 22. The Baptist people expected an ordination service here Sunday, but owing to the absence of some of the presbytery it was defered.

Joseph Waldrup and family of Rockymount visited here the 4th Sunday.

The 21st and 23rd were two more fertilizer days at Oakley.

Some of the West Chilton people attended singing at Center Hill the 4th Sunday. They report a good singing—a sweet season of refreshing among the lovers of the songs of Zion. Prof. T. C. Jackson, president of the county singing convention, was present and made an impressive talk. Also Rev. Aldritch was there, and made a few remarks, which were fine, showing that real success was based on Harmony. The voices of the singers in harmony with each other, they in harmony with the author of the song, and all in harmony with God, thus making all in harmony with everything that was in harmony of the good the beautiful and the true.

Mr. Crumpton of Randolph visited here the 22nd.

The speeches on Lincoln's birthday by Joseph Cannon, Senator Borah, and last but not least, the suffragists were enough to fire anew the hopes of every one who admires the party of Lincoln and McKinley. Party names may change, but those time tried principles of the party of Lincoln and McKinley remain, they have made America great.

Several cars of fertilizer were wrecked on the Southern just north of Six Mile Creek the other night.

Oscar Waldrup is making his home in Dallas near Pleasant Hill.

Mr. J. W. Hays for Commissioner

Second Candidate in the Second District.

We have this week the announcement of Mr. J. W. Hays as a candidate for Commissioner in the Second District of Chilton County. Mr. Hays is the second man out for the place, his opponent being Mr. R. J. Williams, whose announcement appeared last week. As a citizen of the county, as well as his immediate community, Mr. Hays is well known for his upright and straightforward character, and he may be depended upon to make an officer for the best interests of his constituents.

Mt. Creek News

On Sunday last Adjutant J. A. Crowley's family of little Misses Katie, Ida Lou, Carrie Belle, two sons Chas and Harry visited their father and the old veterans at the Soldiers Home. While the March wind went whistling through the trees, these pretty little girls' prattling voices lent cheer to the old veterans whom they visited in the cottages, and no doubt, reminded them of when, 70 years ago, they too, were young and joyful.

Early Monday morning fire was seen to be on the roof of the post office. The alarm was given and the citizens with buckets succeeded in extinguishing the flames. No mails were damaged.

The weather was severe here on Sunday night and some fruit was damaged.

Corinth

Health here is about normal.

Well, it seems that the farmers are going to do their best for a good crop of corn this year, and have less acreage in cotton. Personally, I think this is the very best thing to do.

There is more grain being sown and extensive preparation being made for cattle and hog raising.

Our Sunday school is in fair shape. Our church is pulling in the right direction to success.

We are pleased to note that the measles are on the decline.

We are looking forward to better times in the near future, if our people will awake to their duty to God and man, for our possibilities are great—greater even than the most of us realize, in things temporal and spiritual.

Bull Moose In National Politics

The Progressive party is planning to put up a strenous fight in every State in the union at the fall elections. In Michigan, carried by Roosevelt in 1912, Henry Ford, the auto man, is being boomed as Bull Moose candidate for Governor. In Ohio, James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior under Roosevelt, will head the State ticket. In New York it is planned to name Roosevelt if he will accept. The Progressives are particularly anxious to carry New York this year and it is believed that the colonel is the only man who stands a chance of winning the governorship in that State.

John L. Gore Is Still In the Race for Sheriff

Rumors That He Must Get Out of the Contest Are Proven to be Without Foundation. His Poll Tax Has Been Paid.

The rumors that have been recently asserted that John L. Gore would have to "come down" from the race for Sheriff on account of not having paid his poll tax for a certain back year have been proven invalid, by his producing his receipts for every year since he became 21 years of age. He wishes to acquaint his friends that he is now as earnestly in the race as ever, and will be in till the Primary casts its decision on the matter, and says whether or not he shall "come down" and yield up his aspirations for serving the people in the capacity of Sheriff.

Mt. Pleasant

It seems that all Democrats are looking for federal office or some kind of an office these days.

The trial of Theo. Lacy, who stole $92,000 of the peoples money, is just showing what the Democrats will do.

We are sorry to say that Mrs. G. H. Massey is on the sick list.

Messrs. A. J. Duncan and Dudley Smith made a business trip to Birmingham last week.

Mrs. Julia Thomas spent part of last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Duncan.

Mr. Marshall Dozier is spending part of the week in Coosa county.

Misses Katie and Gracie Duncan spent the week end with friends and relatives at Cooper.

Mr. Sam Purdue and family, and Mr. Frank Purdue of Shelby spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiley Foshee.

Mr. Ed Duke of Coosa county spent part of last week with friends here.

Mr. Julius Blankenship of Coosa spent part of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dozier.

Mr. Oscar Hall of Talladega Springs, who has been here erecting a nice dwelling for his sister, Mrs. Belle Baxley, has returned home.

Mrs. Jim Webb and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sydney Webb of Weogufka, spent Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Duke.

If Comer, Henderson and Seed are as mean as Cobb claims they are, and Cobb is as mean as they all claimed that he was in 1892-4, in the event of the election of either of them as Governor of Alabama; in the name of common sense, what kind of a governor will we have?

Again the Democratic State Executive Committee is called together to decide who they will let vote in their primary April 6, and if all reports are true after April the 6th, they will wish that several more had voted with them.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, in the Progressive Primary April 21, 1914. D. N. ROBINSON.

FOR SHERIFF

We are authorized and requested to annonce the name of H. A. HARRIS, as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary on April 21, 1914.

The democratic State Executive committee are making so numerous and varied ruling in regard to the Primary that it is going to be a difficult matter for their voters to exactly locate themselves and vote according to the requirements. And too they have ordered so many primaries that dnring the months of April and May the Democratic farmers will be so busy voting that they will have little time for other things.

The Editor recently had the pleasure of a long conversation with Mr. J. M. Dunn, Clanton's new hardware dealer, and the impression he made upon us seems indeed worthy of the notice of our readers. Mr. Dunn comes to Clanton, not alone to build up for himself a reliable business upon sound and honest principles, but also to make the town feel his presents for good in many ways. He is a broad minded and sincere man with true sympathy for his neighbor. He believes in selling goods for the price they are worth, and not merely to keep the other fellow from getting the trade. Upon all matters concerning the good of the town at large, he is an enthusiast, and believes in the promotion of harmony among our citizens to the good of all. Give us men of such ideas as Mr. Dunn, and you will see Clanton soon take the foremost rank among towns of her size in the state.

The citizens of Clanton should feel justly proud of the fact that we have coming into our midst such a worthy institutution as a live business college. The proposition is being strongly backed by the Southern Business College of Mobile, and is under the direct management of Mr. F. L. Heaton, Field Manager of the above named institution. The required number have almost been obtained, and it is very probable that within another week the real work will be begun. It is the greatest advantage in commercial education that has ever been extended to our young men and women, and if they have any regard for such splendid opportunities, they will not hesitate to enroll their names and take the course.

It is interesting to notice the machinery of the Democratic party as it works in state politics, grineing away day after day, bringing first this thing and then that into prominence, and occasionally extinguishing some character forever. And too the working of this committee down to the county committees is a case of clever maneuvering, especially with those counties where the local committees have not seen fit in all respects to strictly comply with its ordinances. In this county the executive committee, following and contrary to the first action of the state committee in putting up the bars, met and let them down. Whereupon Chairman Goodwyn saw to it that they met again and "licked their calf over." Their first act was spread abroad far and near, but when they were ordered to do the thing over, they did so without saying anything of what they had done. So as it stands now, the Democrats of Chilton are "in line" with the state committee, and have the bars up. Let the Progressive voters look well to their paths, and see that none of them are entrapped by this confusing machinery and induced to turn away from their way and vote for their principles. Let us stand to our posts and do our duty, Watch carefully and you will see something in the near future that will materially resemble the fatefull proceedings of the Democratic party which were enacted back in 1892. Then will come the deluge.

About the Human Eye.

Greenish, hazel and spotted eyes are accompanied usually with shrewd, quick, nervous, restless temperaments. According to Professor Hudson, Asiatics with hazel eyes are cunning and weasel-like. Contrary to the popular notion, persons with green eyes are too indifferent in passion to be at all jealous of the opposite sex; they are, however, frequently envious of their own.

Popped Corn a Good Food.

A government bulletin says that popped corn is superior to many breakfast foods now on the market. Sometimes it is eaten with milk and sugar. In many farm houses popcorn is considered a necessary adjunct to Christmas festivities, and the ears of the little Tom Thumb variety are particularly popular for Christmas tree decorations.

Stringing Pearls.

Only the finest silk is used for stringing the finest pearls. Great beads, round and shiny, unmistakably artificial, and with no more real luster than white marbles, with the exception of what are called Roman pearls, manufactured many years ago, may be allowed to hang together on catgut, but orients must be threaded, pearl kissing pearl, on silken strands, worthy of their shane and "skin."

We do not mean to encourage you not to labor, but "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." So when you are ready for a little outing with the "finny tribe," we can furnish you with the necessary equipment.

UNDERWOOD FARMER'S FRIEND

AUTHOR OF THE CURRENCY BILL

Also Testifies as to Mr. Underwood's Aid in Passage of Measure Affecting Farm Credits.

"The report has been made from several counties that agents of Captain Hobson are continuing the misrepresentations of Captain Hobson and Mr. G. T. McElderry with reference to Mr. Underwood's attitude on questions affecting the farmer. Their original attack was made as to Mr. Underwood's not free-listing 'cotton bagging and ties.' This invention was persisted in, despite the fact that Mr. Underwood put bagging and ties on the free list which was vetoed by Mr. Taft—despite the fact that he included them on the free list when the tariff bill was introduced at the special session called by President Wilson—and it died only when I secured vigorous assertion from the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Hamlin, that cotton bagging and ties have been admitted free without question since the act went into effect. Mr. McElderry notified me, in substance, that he intended to continue to damn Mr. Underwood for not making bagging free—or more free—but as that would involve the payment of a bounty, I pass him on to the Republicans.

Farm Credits.

"The same gentlemen continue their lament as to Mr. Underwood's attitude toward the farmer in the consideration, in caucus, of the currency bill.

"In his telegram to me of January 30th, Mr. Hobson admitted his endorsement of McElderry's notoriously inaccurate remarks. Refefring to McElderry he said:

"He cited Mr. Underwood as opposing provision for national banks to accept improved farm property as basis for credit. I agree with him in this."

The assertion of Mr. Hobson has been reverberated by him all over the state, and is being persisted in during the present tour through the remote districts.

"Of the same brand of statement is the Hobson-McElderry assertion that Mr. Underwood opposed legislation to prevent cotton gambling, notwithstanding the fact that both Hobson and McElderry knew that the amendment introduced by Mr. Underwood on that subject was received from and introduced at the instance of the President himself.

The Final Proof.

"Like the assertion as to cotton bagging and ties, it is necessary to nail these misrepresentations by securing a statement from a source of final authority.

"The responsible author of the currency bill is Representative Carter Glass of Virginia. I invited an expression from him as to Mr. Underwood's attitude. It will gratify Alabamians to read the generous appreciation with which he recognizes Mr. Underwood's efficiency, and the humiliating repudiation with which he crushes the misrepresentation now being circulated by Mr. Hobson and G. T. McElderry. The letter from the Honorable Carter Glass, Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, is as follows:

House of Representatives,
Committee on Banking and Currency.
Washington, February 9, 1914.

Mr. Forney Johnston,
Birmingham, Alabama.

My Dear Sir:—

Concerning the inquiry made about the attitude of Hon. Oscar W. Underwood toward the farm credit provisions of the new Federal Reserve Act, I desire to state that there is not one word of truth in the suggestion that Mr. Underwood antagonized any proposed amendments relating to agricultural credits. As a matter of fact, Mr. Underwood, more than any single man in the House, was actively instrumental in settling the only real controversy on the subject. This had reference to the rediscount provision of the bill, and the difficulty arose over a proposition to clarify the meaning of this provision so as to make it plain that no discrimination against farming interests was intended. To my personal knowledge it was very largely due to Mr. Underwood's sensible advice that the whole dispute was cleared up to the satisfaction of the entire membership of the Democratic caucus, minus about a half dozen malcontents.

I may add that the Federal Reserve Act, as passed by Congress and approved by the President, which was strongly endorsed by Mr. Underwood, affords immensely increased credit facilities to the farmers of the country

If you will get the February issue of the Country Gentleman and read the analysis of the bill by Mr. Charles A. Conant, a currency expert of wide reputation, you will note how abundantly this new currency law takes care of farm credits. We did not complicate the currency bill with the other question of co-operative rural credits for the reason that the President advised against such a course, and the Banking and Currency Committees of both the House and the Senate were almost unanimously opposed to the delay that would necessarily have ensued had we pursued a different course. Should the expert investigation now being conducted on this latter question warrant action, there will very likely be supplemental legislation at this session of Congress.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) CARTER GLASS,
Chairman & c.,

The Farmers' Union.

"On the general subject of Mr. Underwood's attitude to the farmer, I respectively refer to the following letter, written by the General Counsel of the Farmers' Educatonal and Co-Operative Union, of which Mr. Barrett, of Georgia, is President. Mr. Patten is their representative in Washington, is thoroughly familiar with the real views and efficiency of the Congressmen, and this letter was written in response to a letter directed to him by a citizen of Clarke county, and not at the instance of anyone representing Mr. Underwood. The letter follows:

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America.
J. H. Patten,
General Counsel,
204 Second St., S. E.,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 5, 1914.

Mr. David M. Spinks,
P. O. Box 181,
Thomasville, Alabama.

Dear Sir:—

I have your good letter of the 5th instant inquiring about Congressman Underwood's attitude toward cotton bagging and ties, and other legislation in which the farmers have a direct interest.

To Underwood, more than any other man in the House, belongs the credit for placing bagging and ties on the free list. He put them on the free list in his famous Farmers' Free List Bill that he put through Congress two years ago, only to be vetoed by Taft, and put them there in the Tariff Bill which he introduced at the beginning of this Congress, and which, although modified by congressional committees, the House and Senate, became law with bagging and ties made free.

He has been equally active and effective furthering every one of the legislative demands of the Farmers' Union and other farmers' organizations. For instance, twice he has made speeches for and helped pass by his presence and votes the Scott Bill aimed at gambling in cotton; three times he has worked for, argued for, and voted for the immigration legislation the farmers have urged; he was very active in securing postal savings banks; he has stood strong for more liberal appropriations for agricultural purposes; he and Shackleford of Missouri are given credit largely for having created the present Road Committee of the House which has brought in a splendid road bill that will soon pass; etc.

His attitude is well illustrated by the splendid part he has just taken in working, voting, and arguing for the passage of the splendid 58-page immigration bill that passed the House yesterday. It took five legislative days to get the bill to a final vote, and the fight was one of the fiercest known, the big interests and influences in opposition being desperate. As you know the cotton gamblers, the mill men, and certain other selfish interests have been endeavoring to flood the south with any and all kinds of foreigners in order to increase the cotton acreage and keep down the price of the staple. A car load of them came on from New Orleans, and many were here from other points, including the agents and attorneys of the foreign steamship companies and other corporations, button-holeing congressmen to vote against this needed legislation demanded by people and the farmers in particular. When the fight in the House was at a white heat Underwood took the floor and ably argued for the legislation, and settled its fate, if there was ever any doubt about it. Every congressman from Alabama, except Richardson, who is fatally ill, and could not be present to work and vote for this bill as he did previously, Blackmon, who has been confined to his rooms with serious blood poisoning, and Hobson who was present in the House the last two days of the fight, but who would not say a word or take part in any of the voting, followed Underwood and Burnett in their patriotic and successful effort to put this needed legislation through the House.

The attitudes of Underwood and Hobson upon this occasion is quite typical of the attitude of each toward legislation demanded by and in the interest of the farmers. Underwood is always on the job, doing what he can to get our bills out of the committee and through Congress, while Hobson never seems to take any interest in or active part in furthering our legislative demands. He is seldom present when our measures come up and if he is he is apt to do as he did yesterday and the day before, fail to say a word in their behalf, fail to vote on the division and teller's votes which can be done even though paired, and then be recorded as "Not Voting" on the final votes, having a "general" pair with Fairchild of New York. It might have at least been paired specifically for the bill. But more important he might have voted for the bill, because a pair does not apply where both parties would vote the same way, and the question is non-partisan.

Some time ago President C. S. Barrett of the Farmers' Union said something in one of his speeches to the brethren that seems to me to be very appropriate in this connection:

"If you want your congressman to be what he really wants to be—your friend, your defender, your advocate—you should prove your loyalty to him for his devotion to your cause, if he proves himself worthy, and stand by him in every conflict. This will give him courage. It will make him determined. And it will encourage young men, who really want to do something for their fellowmen, to enter politics and be among those who were described by the poet as

"'Large brained, clear eyed, of such as he Shall freedom's young apostles be.'"

Trusting that this will give you my opinion of Congressman Underwood's legislative record on matters of particular interest to the organized farmers, and assuring you of my readiness to answer further in detail any questions pertaining either to his or the record of Congressman Hobson, or any other member of the House or Senate, I am, with fraternal greetings,

Sincerely yours,
J. H. PATTEN.

P. S. I am personally much interested in the passage of the Webb-Kenyon bill. Living in South Carolina a part of the year I know the need of such legislation, and other similar laws to keep liquor away from the negro in particular. On that occasion Underwood was a tower of strength, as was Hobson, also, but if it had not been for Underwood's assistance and his great influence the fate of that bill over the veto might have been different in the House, in my opinion.

Satchel-Toters Desperate.

The closing days of the campaign promise to become lurid with Hobson's frenzy. His secretary, Monette, who showed his democracy some time ago by writing a letter stating how he had rejoiced at Taft's election over his great Democratic opponent, W. J. Bryan, announces that he intended to return to Alabama and make charges. He is now in the state for that purpose and Hobson's paper, the Advance, has begun to give circulation to a list of imaginary instances of Mr. Underwood's derelictions. The time will soon arrive when many persons who are giving utterance to these desperate charges will blush to be reminded of them, and the common sense Democrats of the state should resent this effort on part of Hobson's satchel toters to discredit an Alabamian of the fine character and overwhelming national efficiency of Mr. Underwood.

"FORNEY JOHNSTON,
"Chairman Underwood State Campaign Committee."

The telegram from the Treasury Department referred to in the foregoing is as follows:

"Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.

"Mr. Forney Johnston,
First National Bank Bldg., Birmingham, Ala.

Bagging for covering cotton and ties for baling cotton are now being admitted free of duty by treasury department under paragraphs four hundred eight and five hundred nine of tariff act October three, nineteen hundred thirteen, without question.

"C. S. HAMLIN,
"Asst. Secy. U. S. Treasury."

EXERCISE IS AN INVESTMENT

Better Three Hours a Week at Sensible Play Than Three Weeks of Sickness.

Tennis is over with for the year. Golf is at an end. The great open out of doors which has been the training master to millions for some happy months is closing up its season. What are you going to do about it? asks Collier's. You Mr. Hardworking Man who have sacrificed your few pounds of flesh to the healthful strain and have received in exchange a tonic better than any drug in the pharmacopoeia, are you going, now that winter is here, to let your hard muscles soften, your clear eye dull, your quickened vitality slump and slacken?

If so, don't blame providence or the weather because you fall a prey to tonsilitis or grip or find yourself presently wincing from the tweaks of rheumatism or hobble forth next spring feeling somewhat more than a thousand years old. It's all your own fault. You will have wasted capital, the capital of bodily and nervous force which you have laid up for yourself by your summer's exercise. Why not keep it up in the winter? Surely there is some sort of athletic opportunity in your town—club or squash or hand ball court or Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

If there isn't there ought to be. Get busy and start one. Indoor exercise may not be as enlivening or quite as beneficial as outdoor play, but it is an incalculable number of times better than none at all. Of course, there is the familiar can't afford the time argument, but the man who advances this plea is usually the man who, about February, takes three weeks off to go to the hospital with stomach trouble or gets invalided off to a sanitarium to recuperate his depleted nerves. Three hours a week in a gymnasium isn't very much time to expend. Five is better, but three, conscientiously adhered to, will keep the average man going and enable him to get through his winter's work in sound condition. Give it a trial. It isn't an amusement only. It's an investment.

Mt. Pleasant

There will be a mock trial at Mount Pleasant School house next Saturday night, March 7th. All are invited to come and enjoy the occasion.

Wonderful Blood Remedy That Works in the Tissues

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter or fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues it has a rapid and positive antidote upon all those irritating influences cause rheumatism, sore throat, eyes, loss of weight, thin pale che that weariness of muscle and ne is generally experienced, by all with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright, and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 201 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores.

Beware of all attempts to sell you something "Just as good." Insist upon S. S. S.

Death of Mr. Elias Clark

Early Tuesday morning occurred the death of Mr. Elias Clark, who lived near Coopers. He was an old citizen of this county, and his death will be learned with sincere regret by his many acquaintances. Mr. Clark leaves behind him a life of the greatest exemplary worth and a character beyond reproach. For many years he was a loyal member of the Missionary Baptist Church. Ais remains were interred at Liberty church in Autauga county on Wednesday.

Hooray! Baby To Rule the House

No Longer Do Women Fear The Greatest of All Human Blessings.

It is a joy and comfort to know that those much-talked-of pains and other distresses that are said to precede child-bearing may easily be avoided. No woman need fear the slightest discomfort if she will fortify herself with the well-known and time-honored remedy, "Mother's Friend."

This is a most grateful, penetrating, external application that at once softens and makes pliant the abdominal muscles and ligaments. They naturally expand without the slightest strain, and thus not only banish all tendency to nervous, twitching spells, but there is an entire freedom from nausea, discomfort, sleeplessness and dread that so often leave their impress upon the babe.

The occasion is therefore one of unbounded, joyful anticipation, and too much stress can not be laid upon the remarkable influence which a mother's happy, pre-natal disposition has upon the health and fortunes of the generation to come.

Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers, thousands of whom have used and recommend it. You will find it on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Write to-day to the Bradfield Regulator Co., 130 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a most instructive book on this greatest of all subjects, motherhood.

Suffered with Throat Trouble.

MR. B. W. D. BARNES, McMinnville, Tenn.

Mr. Barnes used to be sheriff of Warren County, Tennessee. From exposure to the elements he acquired throat trouble. He supposed that his health was entirely ruined, in spite of all the treatment he could procure.

After using four bottles of Peruna he claims that he was entirely restored to health.

Catarrh of the throat is not only an annoying disease of itself, but it exposes the victim to many other diseases. We are constantly breathing into our throats numerous atmospheric germs. Disease germs of all sorts. This cannot be avoided. If the throat is healthy the system is protected from these poisonous germs. But if the throat is raw and punctured with numerous little ulcers, by catarrh, then the disease germs have easy access to the system.

Keep the throat well and clean. This is the way to protect yourself against contagious diseases. Gargle the throat as explained in the new "Ills of Life," sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Barnes says: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone. I concluded to try Peruna, and after using four bottles can say I was entirely cured."

The extremely bad weather we have been having for the past few days is resulting in quite a deal of sickness in this community. Mrs. C. L. Langston is still on the sick list.

It seems that candidates are a ltttle slow in coming out, but there are already more out than will get offices. When you see such men as S. E. Waldrup, they will do alright. He was tried thoroughly, and stood the test to a finish. I am glad to see such men as he and Robert Williams coming out for Commissioner. I want to tell the people that in my opinion they could not have put out men that are any better. I have served with Mr. Williams on the Committee for 14 years and I find him to be a genteel man in every respect. Mr. Gore and Mr. Harris are nice men. We want men who will represent the farming class of people. We want to see W. H. Conway come out for Representative from Chilton County. If the farmers ever expect to get any good out of the legislature we have got to send men there who will represent our interests. In my opinion there is not a better man for the place than Mr. Conway. We want to see his name come out in the next issue of the paper. A man so widely known as he is can do the farmers some good in the legislature. We might as well send nobody as to send someone who is not interested in the cause of the farmers. We want to hear from Mr. Conway at once.

Your Brains

You hear with your brains, you feel with your brains, you see with your brains, you smell with your brains and you taste with your brains.

You have at times felt dimly conscious that some one was talking to you. You did not hear although your ears were in position, because your brain was occupied with something else.

You have at times looked directly at an object without seeing it, because some mental picture was between your brains and the object at which your eyes were directed.

Everything is done with the brain. The fingers and hands are but nerve centers, tools with which the brain works. The eyes are but lenses which contain the optic nerves that photograph the picture on the brain. The palate in your throat is the nerve center which conveys the sense of taste to the brain.

The more care you exercise in the cultivation of your brain the greater is your capacity for hearing, feeling, seeing, smelling, tasting.

You cannot take a step, or stretch out your hand, or open your mouth without the consent of your brain. If the nerves which lead from your hand to your brain become incapacitated, paralysis sets in and the hand hangs helpless at your side, without feeling or action.

It is therefore extremely desirable that you cultivate your brain by exercise, by which we mean thinking. Thinking is to the brain what physical exercise is to the body.

The L. & N. writes of these things because the success of the L. & N. depends on cultivated brains, by which we mean right thinking.

Right thinking means fair thinking, just thinking, followed by fair and just treatment, provided you carry out the dictates of your brain.

One of the best mental exercises we know is for the people to think about the relation of the L. & N. to the people of the state, and how inseparable is the success of the one from the other.

If by seeing and hearing you feel that the L. & N. is doing a good work for the development and upbuilding of the territory, we ask that you co-operate and lend a helping hand.

But, above all, we ask that you think carefully before you act; think of what the L. & N. has done, of what it is doing, of the service it renders, of the equipment it offers, of the constructive policy it pursues.

We are content to rest our present and future welfare with the thinking, fair minded people, because we have faith in the judgment of the just individual.

THE VOTERS' GUIDE

WHEN YOU GO TO MARK YOUR BALLOT APRIL 6TH
It Is Proper You Should Know About the Candidates

ROMAINE BOYD, who is a candidate for the Supreme Court for one of the two full terms, is the head of the Legal Department of Greater Birmingham. His election as City Attorney of Birmingham, by the people in 1910, marked the beginning of the passing of the old Birmingham city organization, which had not met defeat before in nearly fifteen years.

CAPTAIN BOYD was born in Selma in 1873 and was educated in the public schools of Selma and Talladega. He is a graduate of the Law School of the University of Alabama.

His father was William G. Boyd of Selma, who was a member of the Fourth Alabama Infantry from First Manassas to the battle of Knoxville, and thereafter, until the close of the war, a member of Russell's Fourth Alabama Cavalry.

ROMAINE BOYD raised and commanded a company of Alabama volunteers in the war with Spain and, upon the muster-out of his regiment, located in Birmingham, where he formed a law partnership with the late James B. Head, ex-justice of the Supreme Court, under the firm name of Head & Boyd. He was attorney for the City of Ensley for a number of years and has been City Attorney of Greater Birmingham since 1910, and by reason of his exacting official duties he has been compelled to do most of his campaign work at night.

From 1893 to 1897 he was a citizen of Mobile.

NOTE—ROMAINE BOYD is a candidate on his fitness and qualifications, supported by his plea for a fairer geographical distribution of the Supreme Court Judgeships.

HE IS NOT ALLIED WITH ANY OTHER CANDIDATE FOR ANY OFFICE.

LITTLE PROGRESS BY PARTY NOW IN POWER

Leaders Believe They Can Convince People Money Is Well Spent.

Washington, March 9.—It may be possible that at some point in the democratic administration of Woodrow Wilson, the party in power, may sustain and live up to its platform declarations of economy. So far, however, it must be admitted, and may as well be, before the Republicans charge it, that little progress, and less promise of such results has been made, except, of course, the platform and campaign promises. The blame for this is not chargable either to the President or the leaders in Congress, but rather to a system. Until Congress adopts new rules governing appropriations, and perfects a more thorough system of control over the various committees now exercising authority to initiate appropriation bills, there will be little improvement.

Of course the Democratic party is able to defend the propriety of all its appropriations. Their contention is that the money, while spent, is distributed in all cases for the best interest of the country at large, and the projects—Democratic projects long advocated by the party, such as parcel post and other innovations—have warranted the big appropriations. The wisdom of appropriations equalling and in some instances exceeding appropriations made by the Republicans for similar purposes is vigorously defended by the party leaders, and they claim that they are willing to rest the verdict with the people.

Graphite Co. Improve Plant

The Graphite Mining Co. have put new machinery in their ore crushing works, and, by this action has improved the output of their plant very much. This money these men receive help to swell the receipts of the merchants in the small near-by towns.

Seventh Grade Examination

Outlook is splendid for the First Time in This County.

Prof. W. T. Bean, County Superintendent of Education, informs us that there is the best of prospects in view for the first rural seventh grade examinations ever conducted in this county, which he plans will be held some time next month. According to estimates furnished him by various teachers over the county, there will be near one hundred graduates of the rural schools to take this examination, and it is most certain that the greater per cent of them will pass successfully. Students passing such examinations will be admitted to high school upon certificates which they will obtain, and will not be subject to examination. This means a great deal to the pupils themselves, and still more to our educational system. It will eliminate a great many unnecessary circumstances which have heretofore surrounded that period of a student's career in which he is passing from the rural to the high school, and make the road from the rural school to higher education a well defined path, instead of a dim uncertain trail as it has ever before been.

Letter From Mr. J. W. Hays

Thorsby, Ala., March 9, 1914

Editor Union-Banner:—I wish to write a short letter to the people of Chilton County, as I am in the race for County Commissioner. I have not the time to canvass this county over or solicit the support of each man. I am just a farmer as most of the people in this district and I think I am as well acquainted with the situation of our county affairs as anyone. Now I am not asking any more of the people than anyone else will. The agreement of my opponent and myself that we will not canvass, as we are both farmers. This is my first time asking for an office at the hands of the people in life, and if elected I wish to assure you I will do all I can to make you as good a Commissioner as this county has ever had.

Respectfully yours,
J. W. Hays.

In Memory of Mrs. J. Latham

Mrs. Julia Latham died at her home near Randolph on the 4th inst. She was well known in the western part of the county where she has one son living in the Mulberry community. She was a daughter of Rev. Isaac Hicks who is remembered by some of Chilton's older people. Mrs. Latham lived to old age, when the dreaded pneumonia fastened its fangs upon her and in a few days the silver cord was loosed and she had passed away. She was a lovely woman of great kindness, of deep thought. In her early church relations she was connected with the Baptist church to which she was true and devoted—a model; but in her last years she recognized but one church—the church of the living God. She was also one of the International Bible students. Her Christian profession was high, entire consecration. She believed according to Bible chronology that the resurrection of the saints is due, and when dying now they have no long sleep in death as those of past centuries, but at once pass beyond the veil. That being correct, her loved ones can rejoice with her that she has joined the beautified above. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth." Her remains were laid away in Rehoboth cemetery, funeral conducted by Rev. Waldrup.

Winter lingers with us.

Hurrah for the Mt. Pleasant correspondent.

Say, what is wrong with Hon. Fred Blackmon? The Clanton Press praised him highly, particularly as a friend to the farmer, but nothing said just now. Ah, the farmer is of great value when some man needs his vote. Yes, they may pose as the farmers friend, raised on the farm, etc., but they are not there now. Looks to us like the man who remained on the farm would come nearer being the farmers friend. If Underwood should be nominated we wonder if Hobson can take his "cold crow" and vote for him? Can't be a consistent Democrat and not do so. And can he do so and cling to the lofty principles of prohibition he has espoused?

They tell us Coxey's army is going to Washington again. That sounds like old times. The unemployed multitudes seems to be a problem just now. Where is the good times coming when only the other night a number of the unemployed filed into a church saying they wanted something to eat. What will it soon lead to?

Card of Thanks

I wish to tender my great appreciation to the friends who showed such devoted kindness to my brother E. W. Clark, of near Coopers station during his long and last illness. Also for the kindness shown me while visiting him.

I feel sure that the Lord blesses the cheerful doer as he does the cheerful giver.

In Memory of Mr. J. M. Dykes

By the request of the bereaved wife and children of Elder J. M. Dykes, I will try to give a short sketch of his life. Elder J. M. Dykes died Feb. 27, 1914; was 82 years old. He joined the Primitive Baptist when young; preached for them 40 years; was Moderator of the Wetumpka Association for meny years; represented Chilton County in the Legislature one term. He went far and near to proclaim the glad tiding of great joy to a dying world without charge to anyone. Many yet remember how faithful he was to his charge. While poor in this world's good he was rich in grace. God's love in his heart made him willing to forsake all to comfort God's little children. He believed in a God of love of rich and free grace, and in a God that is able to save His people with an eternal Salvation; he believed in good works which God has ordained, that we should walk in them; he believed these good works was an outward sign of an onward grace; he believed the Lord was worthy of all the praise, honor and glory; he believed tho we die and turn to dust that we will be raised from the grave when the great judge comes, again to meet him in the air, when the Lord shall wipe away our tears, where there will be no more sorrow, no more crying, no sickness or death or parting; but we all will sing redeeming grace to a dying lamb. children and grand-children, and friends without number to mourn his loss.

J. W. Howell.

Mt. Creek News

Senator Thomas A. Curry delivered a splendid speech before the Underwood Club, in which he spoke of the political and private life of Alabama's favorite son and as to his qualifications to properly represent Alabama in the U. S. Senate.

Mrs. Thomas A. Curry and Miss Hartmon were present and during their stay here met a number of the old veterans for whom they had pleasant words.

Dr. J. P. Ellsberry, the Home physician, had Senator Curry, Mrs. Curry and Miss Hartman to dine with him.

Mr. Curry made friends and votes for himself while here simply by mixing with the voters after the meeting was over. During his speech he did not refer to his candidacy for Lieutenant Governor.

PROBABLE CANDIDATE FOR LEGISLATURE.

Mr. W. E. Thomas Contemplating Making Race.

According to information given out to his closest friends, it is very probable that at an early date the name of Mr. W. E. Thomas of Jemison will be announced for The Legislature. Everyone knows this gentleman and is well aware of his worth and ability. He will make a strong candidate, and if elected to the place will represent the county in a way that will be an honor to himself and his constituents.

Work Begun on State Highway

On Monday morning work was officially begun on that section of the Birmingham-Montgomery highway which reaches between the towns of Mountain Creek and Clanton. The survey includes the selection of a suitable right of way, and is under the supervision of an engineer furnished by direction of State Highway Engineer, W. S. Keller. The funds for building the road are already subscribed, and will actively begun as soon as the survey is completed.

Jas. E. Dorminy Died on Tuesday

Another old and honored citizen of Chilton whose death occured on Tuesday of this week was Mr. Jas. E. Dorminy whose home for more than fifty years nas been in the neighborhood of Union Grove church near Jemison. He was the father of Dorminy Brothers who are well known and prominent citizens of the county. The remains of the deceased were interred in the Robinson cemetery on Wednesday, attended by a large number of friends and relatives of the family.

BUSINESS COLLEGE HAS SPLENDID OPENING.

Fine Prospect for Locating Perminent School

A branch school of the Southern Business College of Mobile was formally opened in Clanton on Monday morning with an enrollment of thirty two pupils. The showing is splendid, and is indeed a just reward for the diligent efforts that have been put forth by Mr. F. L. Heaton, the field manager of the college, to give to Clanton this very desirable educational advantage. The opportunities it offers our boys and girls in securing thorough business training here at home is of inestimable worth, and we cannot afford to treat it otherwise than with the profoundest support. It fully merits it. The first session will last five months and will consist of three study periods daily. After the first five months have expired, if the support warrants it the school will be made permanent.

Mr. Dennis For Mr. Conway

I hear some talk of Mr. Conway getting in the race for Representative from Chilton County. I ask him to come on as I think he is the man for us this time, as he is interested in us farmers. He will do us more good than anybody I know of now. I will say to Mr. Conway to come out County as we want a Chilton that will work for the interest of the farming class of people.

Yours truly,
John S. Dennis.

FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Democratic Progressive Primary April 21, 1914. D. N. ROBINSON.

FOR SHERIFF

We are authorized and requested to announce the name of H. A. HARRIS, as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Progressive Primary on April 21, 1914.

This week we have an article clipped from the Birmingham Age-Herald, of Tuesday, which is a press dispatch from Washington, openly confessing the lack of the democratic administration in promotion material progress in the affairs of the county. It has been said that an open confession is good for the soul, and it seems that the party leaders have that in mind in letting out this statement, for they admit that they had as well acknowledge their shortcomings before the Republicans charge them with it.

We wish to make a brief explanation to our readers, and those who may fail to see our exact motive, in regard to the political reading matter which we are carrying from time to time. We wish to clear ourselves by stating that we are running this matter, not because we favor the candidacies of the men whom we advertise, but because they pay us for it. We need the money, and it is for that alone that we run their advertising. We are not asking any of our political friends and supporters to vote for these men. On the other hand, we would urge you not to, for reasons which you already understand, without any recitation of same on our part here.

Daily Thought.

The man that loves and laughs must sure do well.—Pope.

Various papers are saying great things about the first year of Wilson's administration, which came to a close on the fourth of this month. But they did not say much about how he has carried out his party pledge to reduce the cost of living.

MOBILE'S CANDIDATE

For Associate Railroad Commissioner.

The Bankers and Merchants of Mobile Vouch for His High Integrity and Fitness for the Office.

(Two to be Elected)

Subject to action of Democratic Party.

S. P. GAILLARD.

I pledge myself to initiate, when necessary, corrective measures for the relief of any citizen or community against whom discrimination may exist, or where the safety and comfort of the public may require. The law requires this of the Commissioners, and I will comply with the law.

Alabama's only seaport and her second largest and richest city has no representation in any elective department of State government, and has had none for a quarter of a century. Mobile asks Alabamians to now respond to the state-wide desire to help make her the great seaport for Alabama she is destined to be, by giving her representation on that arm of the government most vital to her future.

Can Alabama refuse this one request from her "Gateway to Panama?"

WOOD OF IMMENSE VALUE

Greenheart, South American Product, Has Most Wonderful Qualities for the Shipbuilder.

Greenheart, the wood which the Isthmian canal commission is desirous of securing for use in the construction of docks and similar works in the Panama canal, because it is said by experts to resist more than any other wood the attacks of marine borers which rapidly destroy piles and other submarine structures, is one of the most valuable of timbers. It is native of South America and the West Indies, and from its bark and fruits is obtained bibirine, which is often used as a febrifuge instead of quinine.

The wood is of a dark green color, sap wood and heart wood being so much alike that they can with difficulty be distinguished from each other. The heart wood is one of the most desirable of all timbers, particularly in the shipbuilding industry. Indisputable records show that the best grades surpass iron and steel in lasting qualities in salt water, submerged logs having remained intact for one hundred years.

In the Kelvingrove museum, Glasgow, there are two pieces of planking which illustrate better than anything else this durable quality. They are both from a wreck which was submerged eighteen years off the west coast of Scotland. The one specimen—greenheart—is merely slightly pitted on the surface, the body of the wood being perfectly sound and untouched, while the other—teak—is almost entirely eaten away.

It is extensively used in shipbuilding for keelsons, beams, engine bearings and planking, and it is also used in the general arts, but its excessive weight unfits it for many purposes for which its other properties would render it eminently suitable.—Below the Rio Grande.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling,—could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

MRS. JOSEPH SNYDER,
262 Hudson St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit.

TOO LIBERAL WITH ADVICE

Bank Cashier Meant Well, But Sad Experience Taught Him a Great and Lasting Lesson.

The story sifted down from St. Paul the other day that "Jim" Hill engineered a shakeup in a bank there because he found an ink spot on his monthly statement, which recalled to a bank official of this town the reason why one cashier ceased to be a little ray of sunshine. Persons who can coax more than a conversational bit out of him nowadays are indeed skilled. "He was a conservative guy—and good," said the banker. "He was the sort of a man who would leave a light turned on in the hall at night so that burglars might think that some member of the family had not returned home. He was espe cially strong on temperance. Strong drink had never seared his pure lips. He cashiered in a savings bank in the edge of the town. One day a Hunky blew in with an active hang-over. If he'd had any more liquor in him he revenue stamp. He said he wanted the $50 he had on deposit. The cashier stepped to the rear limits of his cage and refused to pay until he came around sober. 'Your signature,' said the cashier, 'looks like a dog-bite when you're in this condition. I will not accept it.' So the Hunky went hooting up and down town announcing that the savings bank had refused to pay his money. By alarm-clock time next morning the streets were full of yammering Hunkies, waving bank books. The reserves were called out and the depositors were chased away. Then the bank officials investigated and the cashier confessed. He's stopped giving good advice."—New York Globe.

About the Human Eye.

Greenish, hazel and spotted eyes are accompanied usually with shrewd, quick, nervous, restless temperaments. According to Professor Hudson, Asiatics with hazel eyes are cunning and weasel-like. Contrary to the popular notion, persons with green eyes are too indifferent in passion to be at all jealous of the opposite sex; they are, however, frequently envious of their own.

AVOID WHEEZY BREATHING.

Take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for an inflamed and congested condition of the air passages and bronchial tubes. Harsh racking coughs weaken the system, but Foley's Honey and Tar is safe, pure and certain in results. Contains no opiates. For Sale by all Dealers Everywhere.

Simplicity in Higher Life.

The higher we rise the simpler we become. There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity, and a childishness from which but few of those who are counted the wisest among men have freed themselves in their imagined progress towards the reality of things.—Geo. MacDonald.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Announcing the New Typewriter
OLIVER NO. 7

WE ANNOUNCE AN AMAZING MODEL—The OLIVER No. 7—a typewriter of superexcellence, with automatic devices and refinements that mark the zenith of typewriter progress. A marvel of beauty, speed and easy action. Typewriting efficiency raised to the nth power.

The OLIVER No. 7 embodies all previous Oliver innovations and new self-acting devices never before seen on any typewriter. A leap in advance which places The Oliver ten years ahead of its time. So smooth in action, so light to the touch, so easy to run, that experts are amazed. A model that means to the typist delightful ease of operation.

A model that means a higher standard of typewriting, longer and better service.

The No. 7 is now on exhibit and sale at all Oliver Branches and Agencies throughout the United States.

The new model has more improvements, refinements and new uses than we can even enumerate here.

The "cushioned keyboard" with 'anchor keys" and the new automatic features mean less work for the hands, less strain on the eyes, less manuel and mental effort.

With all of these masterly mechanical improvements we have made the machine more beautiful and symmetrical. From every standpoint The OLIVER No. 7 attains superlative excellence.

Nothing you could wish for has been omitted. The new devices, refinements, improvements and conveniences found on the No, 7 represent an enormous outlay and vastly increase its value—the price has not been advanced one penny. We shall even continue in force our popular 17-Cents-a-Day purchase plan, the same as on previous Oliver models.

The OLIVER No. 7, equipped with the famous Printype, if desired, without extra charge.

You owe it to ypurself to see the new machine before you buy any typewriter at any price. Note its beauty, speed and easy action, its wonderful automatic devices. Try it on any work that is ever done on typewriters. Try it on many kinds of work that no other typewriter will do.

It is a significant fact that the typewriter that introduced such epoch-making innovations as visible writing, visible reading, Printype, etc., should be the first to introduce automatic methods of operation.

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Cure

How many hospital patients, suffering the frightful itch, the raw scorching pain of skin disease, have been soothed to sleep by a soothing fluid washed in by the nurse's hands?

That fluid is the famous D. D. D. prescription for eczema.

THE SUPERVISING NURSE of one of our prominent Catholic institutions (name of nurse and institute on application), writes regarding a patient. "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression."

How many eczema sufferers are paying their doctors for regular treatment and are being treated with this same soothing, healing fluid?

DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes "D. D. D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Soft and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D. D. D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle. Follow these directions—and see!

And it certainly takes away the itch at once—the moment the liquid is applied. The skin is soothed—calmed—so thoroughly refreshed—delightfully cooled.

All druggists of standing have the famous specific as well as the efficient D. D. D. Skin Soap.

But we are so confident of the merits of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

The SOURCE OF AMMONIA is the most vital consideration in the selection of fertilizers. Being the most expensive element of plant food, it should be bought in such form that it will neither leach out in the soil nor lie dormant because of its slow process of nitrification.

The MORRIS BRANDS are ammoniated with the world's best nitrogen bearing materials, and have proven their superiority in crop production over other fertilizers by scores of tests. This claim is substantiated by the testimony of farmers who used them last year by the side of others, and whose letters appear in our current Year Book. Call on your dealer, or write us for a copy.

This is the guarantee we attach to every bag of guano we ship. Can you get a similar WRITTEN GUARANTEE on any other goods on the market?

OUR GUARANTEE:

"TO THE PURCHASER OF THIS GUANO: We guarantee the Ammonia in this guano to be 100 per cent PURE ANIMAL MATTER, derived solely and entirely from the HIGHEST GRADES OF PACKING HOUSE BLOOD AND ANIMAL TANKAGE, made and selected for us by our parent organization, Morris & Company. Philately and History.

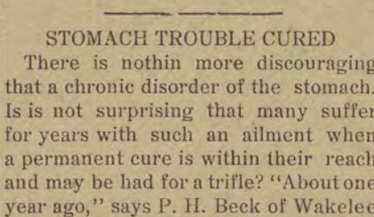
An interesting chapter in philatelic history, and in the history of Europe, is closed by the decision to suppress the foreign postal agencies in Crete as the result of the union of that island with Greece. Austria, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy have all maintained post offices in Crete, as in Turkey, and there is at the moment much speculation in philatelic circles as to whether the Levantine post offices maintained by the powers, among which Germany is also included, will not be closed as well.

STOMACH TROUBLE CURED



There is nothin more discouraging that a chronic disorder of the stomach. Is is not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck of Wakelee Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously nsed any numcer of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by Upchurch Drug Company.

Simple Cement.

For mending ornaments and delicate china there is nothing better than rice-flour cement. It is very easily made, it being only necessary to mix rice flour or ground rice thoroughly with cold water, simmering gently over a slow fire until it thickens, thereby forming a most durable adhesive substance which can be used hot or cold, in the usual way.

Stork and Cupid Cunning Plotters

Many a New Home will Have a Little Sunbeam to Brighten it.

There is usually a certain degree of dread in every woman's mind as to the probable pain, distress and danger of child-birth. But, thanks to a most remarkable remedy known as Mother's Friend, all fear is banished and the period is one of unbounded, joyful anticipation.

Mother's Friend is used externally. It is a most penetrating application, makes the muscles of the stomach and abdomen pliant so they expand easily and naturally without pain, without distress and with none of that peculiar nausea, nervousness and other symptoms that tend to weaken the prospective mother. Thus Cupid and the stork are held up to veneration; they are rated as cunning plotters to herald the coming of a little sunbeam to gladden the hearts and brighten the homes of a host of happy families.

There are thousands of women who have used Mother's Friend, and thus know from experience that it is one of our greatest contributions to healthy, happy motherhood. It is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle, and is especially recommended as a preventive of caking breasts and all other such distresses.

Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 131 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their very valuable book to expectant mothers. Get a bottle of Mother's Friend to-day.

Popped Corn a Good Food.

A government bulletin says that popped corn is superior to many breakfast foods now on the market. Sometimes it is eaten with milk and sugar. In many farm houses popcorn is considered a necessary adjunct to Christmas festivities, and the ears of the little Tom Thumb variety are particularly popular for Christmas tree decorations.

SPECIAL "HEALTH WARNING."

March is a trying month for the very young and for elderly people. Croup, bronchial colds, lagrippe and pneumonia are to be feared and avoided. Foley's Honey and Tar is a great family medicine that will quickly stop a cough stop the progress of a cold, and relieve inflamed and congested air passages. It is safe, pure, and always reliable. Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

FOR BACKACHE AND RHEUMATISM

Foley Kidney Pills are so thoroughly effective for backache, rheumatism, swollen, aching joints, kidney and bladder ailments that they are recommended everywhere. A. A. Jeffords, McGrew, Nebr., says: "My druggist recommended Foley Kidney Pills for pains in my back, and before I finished one bottle, my old trouble entirely disappeared." For sale by all Dealers Everywhere.

The Attraction.

A rather eccentric man, calling on a family blessed by an observant little son, wore kid gloves that had been cleaned. The little boy, seeming to be much attracted by the visitor, stayed close at his side. "You like to stand by Mr. Blank and hear his funny stories, don't you, Jimmie?" presently asked Jimmie's father. "I don't care about his stories," replied the honest youngster, "but his hands smell just like our automobile."

PLAIN TRUTH that's WORTH MONEY

Using Foley's Honey and Tar for a cough or cold may save you both sickness and money. F. F. Monahan, Menomonie, Wis., says: "I am exposed to all kinds of weather and I find Foley's Honey and Tar Compound always fixes me up in good shape when I catch cold or have a bad cough. I recommend it gladly." Refuse substitutes. For Sale by all Dealers Everywhere.

JUDGE E. PERRY THOMAS.

Judge Thomas is at present an Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals of Alabama, and is a candidate in the approaching primary to succeed himself. The only candidate opposing him is Mr. J. B. Brown, of Cullman, Ala. Judge Thomas has already heard from an overwhelming majority of the leading lawyers of the State, who are for him, and who assure him that in their opinion he has made good as an Appellate Judge. Ask those in your county as to his fitness and competency. He would greatly appreciate your support.

Are You One Of Those Who Habitually Catch Cold?

Investigation Shows That Certain Occupations and Professions Are Constantly Prolific Causes For Frequent Colds. What Can Be Done About It?

We read a lot of medical literature that only entertains, but does not instruct. In this strenuous period, when life is put to such a severe strain, we need light and facts how to prevent disease more than talk that entertains.

Do you know that the clerk and the shop girl, the merchant and the professional man, confined to sedentary work, are daily creating those conditions that conduce to colds?

Mental fatigue, worry, heavy strain, nervousness resulting from desk or store work are the easiest means for the development of colds. The average life of a clergyman is less than that of a farmer—cause, sedentary work.

Sedentary life, especially where it means the consumption of brain tissue, often leads to over-eating; there is no more common cause of colds than over-eating.

When the digestive organs are weighed down with an excess of food, the liver and kidneys and other important vital organs are overworked, vitality is lower and there is less resistance; slight exposure, which under ordinary conditions causes no harm, results in a bad cold.

To relieve a cold, a good expectorant or cough remedy such as PERUNA should be conveniently at hand to be taken at the very first attack of the cold. But what can be done to stop the frequency of colds to such people that are confined to sedentary work?

Start with a cold water towel bath, walk to your place of business, or devote an hour of each day to outdoor life, take a dose of PERUNA before each meal to tone up your system, eat moderately, retire early and sleep in a room full of fresh air.

Mr. L. A. Richardson, a substantial druggist from Marine, Illinois, commenting on the merits of proprietary medicines, writes as follows:

"I have been engaged in the retail drug business here for the past forty years. During this time I have seen many patent medicines come into use, flourish for one or two years and then gradually disappear. There are very few of these remedies that possess enough real merit to insure them long life. Peruna has always been a good seller with us, with a marked increase from year to year. The change in the formula some years ago, by the addition of the slightly laxative properties, has made it a reliable remedy for constipation and for colds. I take pleasure in urging my brother druggists to recommend it for these two ailments."

Those who wish to begin the cold water towel bath should have a copy of the Ills of Life. Sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

THE VOTERS' GUIDE

WHEN YOU GO TO MARK YOUR BALLOT APRIL 6TH

It Is Proper You Should Know About the Candidates

ROMAINE BOYD, who is a candidate for the Supreme Court for one of the two full terms, is the head of the Legal Department of Greater Birmingham. His election as City Attorney of Birmingham, by the people in 1910, marked the beginning of the passing of the old Birmingham city organization, which had not met defeat before in nearly fifteen years.

CAPTAIN BOYD was born in Selma in 1873 and was educated in the public schools of Selma and Talladega. He is a graduate of the Law School of the University of Alabama.

His father was William G. Boyd of Selma, who was a member of the Fourth Alabama Infantry from First Manassas to the battle of Knoxville, and thereafter, until the close of the war, a member of Russell's Fourth Alabama Cavalry.

ROMAINE BOYD raised and commanded a company of Alabama volunteers in the war with Spain and, upon the muster-out of his regiment, located in Birmingham, where he formed a law partnership with the late James B. Head, ex-justice of the Supreme Court, under the firm name of Head & Boyd. He was attorney for the City of Ensley for a number of years and has been City Attorney of Greater Birmingham since 1910, and by reason of his exacting official duties he has been compelled to do most of his campaign work at night.

From 1893 to 1897 he was a citizen of Mobile.

HICKEN, DUMPLINGS, PIES AND CUSTARDS

These are just a few of the any good things the red skins f Omercee Tribe at Mountain reek had prepared for the yisi-ng braves from Waxahatchie ribe Saturday night. And cour-geously did we eat as if determ-ned to exhaust the supper, but ur efforts were folly to those who had prepared the feast. They knew they had prepared or us, and more too. The at-empts of such fellows as Joe ore and "Mitch" Bates and ther famous chicken eaters were absolutely futile in doing way with those ceasless rounds f fried pullets and young"roost-rs". The more we ate the nore they gave us till finally we ad to acknowledge to Mr. Will Gray the good host of the eve-ning, that he had us beat. He ad surely heard of some our great "pie rollers" for he was mply prepared for us.

After the bounteous supper was over, the red skins of the wo tribes retired to their coun-il fire and proceeded to intro-luce twa pale faces to some of he mystries of the hunters trail.

A short but rousing speech on Redmanship was made by Rev. W. J. Armstrong.

After extending thanks to the entertainers for their great hos-pitality, the Waxahatchie braves returned to their native hunting grounds greatly elated over the reception they received from heir brothers to the south.

Letter From Mrs. L. E. Simonton

Birmingham, Ala., March 16, 1914

Editor Union-Banner:—As I have been a subscriber for your paper for some time, I feel at liberty through your good paper to write a little letter to my many friends in Thorsby. I cannot find time to write them separate-ly, as I am busy with many du-ties. I left Thorsby on short notice, as the position I was try-ing to secure depended on my meeting the parties at a certain time in Birmingham; therefore, I could only say good bye to the few whom I incidently met, and several who went up to Birming-ham with me on the 10:30 train. Those whom I saw before leav-ing asked me to write them, and I am glad to let them hear from me through this paper.

I accepted a position in a nice home about nine miles from the City with people whom I had known before, and where I could have the little ones with me, and where I could have Harold in a good school. So far I like my new home, and it is much better for me in every way than the many responsibilities I had in Thorsby. However this is only a temporary home, as I expect to return to Thorsby in time to pack strawberries for my old friend and neighbor, Mr. Krah-mann, whom I have worked for for the three years that have just passed. I prefer that work to all others for the short season, and as I am fond of many peo-ple in Thorsby, who have been very kind to me in the past, I am anxious for the berry season to arrive, so that I will feel sure of work and seeing old familiar faces once more.

We are all enjoying the best of health and trust everyone in Thorsby is the same. Wishing you all success in all the affairs of life, I remain, yours sincerely.

Mrs. L. E. Simonton.

Misses Clara and Lucile Smitherman, of Randolph, Route 1, attended singing Sunday evening.

Rev. Waldrup said some good things at the singing, feelingly alluded to the Christian influence over him in the past, as he was learning the songs of Zion.

Woman suffrage is one of the burning questions of our day. We wonder how our candidates for Representative stand on that question? Their views would be interesting reading. That question will be before the next legislature. We think it would be an honor for our law makers to just say yes, "give woman the ballot;" or let the State vote on it. The way the chief magistrate of the nation met the question recently was not pleasing to us.

Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely under the careful management of Mr. T. J. Mims.

Rev. Jim DuBose filled his regular appointment here Saturday night and Sunday.

The literary school closed here Friday last. The pupils are sorry to see Prof. Parrish leave, for he was one of the best teachers that has ever taught here. He not only taught them their books, but taught them to always do right in everything.

Miss Lilla Driver spent last week with her brother, Mr. J. W. Driver.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. A. Popwell visited the formers parents last Sunday.

Mr. Dalton Giles and Miss Lizzie Ellison made a trip to Lock 12 Sunday.

DR. B. A. WALKER KILLED AT THORSBY.

Birmingham Dentist Shot by His Father in Law Sunday Morning.

About eight o'clock Sunday morning Dr. B. A. Walker a Dentist of Birmingham was shot and almost instantly killed by his father in law, a man named Carter at the latters home near Thorsby.

There seems to have been recently some trouble between Dr. Walker and his wife, wheraupon they had separated, and she had gone to live with her father, the farme named Carter. On Saturday night Dr. Walker came down from Birmingham, in an automobile, and Sunday morning early went out to the Carter home to see his wife and child.

Upon reaching the house, the car was stopped, and the Doctor entered. He remained in the house a short while, and then came out to the automobile, and falling into same, instructed the chauffeur to drive him to Thorsby. At that time other members of the party observed that he was wounded, and hastened with him to Thorsby in the hope of securing the attention of a physician. Before they found a doctor the man was dead.

Doctor Walker appears to have been shot with a shot gun, and rumors have it that he was also shot with a pistol.

Soon after the shooting, Mr. Carter came to Clanton and surrendered to the officers as the man who did the work.

On Monday the wife of Doctor Walker was also placed in jail, upon a charge of having taken part in the shooting.

No arrangements have so far been made to have a trial, and it is probable that action will be suspended until the assembling of the grand jury, which will be within a few weeks.

UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

If egotism were votes, Oscar Underwood would be a whole election.

Mr. Blackmon seems to have imbibed the old Underwood slogan of "Stay on the job," to some extent at least. It is a good policy to look after your job, but in the case of Mr. Underwood the objection seems to be with the job he is looking after.

This week we have elsewhere, the announcement of Mr. W. E. Thomas for Representative in the Legislature from Chilton County. Also over his own signature is a letter written by himself, in which he states his position very plainly. Further comment on our part is unnecessary. Mr. Thomas is well known over the county, and occupies a standing which we feel sure willl not humiliate him when revealed at the polls on April 21.

Next Saturday, according to the resolution of the committee invested with the management of the Progressive Primary, is the last day on which candidates for nomination to offices to be filled in the next general election can announce for such nominations in the primary set for the 21st of next month. The field seems to be covered very well already, and some possibly weuld move that "nominations close." But some seem to be still urging other candidates for certain offices. They will have to act in a hurry if they get their men out.

You are going to vote for someone to represent your county in the next legislature of Alabama. In connection therewith are several questions which should be considered, and many things to be determined before you can conscientiously cast your ballot in the belief that you are voting in the best interests of the people of the county and state. How does your candidate stand on questions of education? What is the extent of his sympathy with the cause of the farmer in its varied and important applications? Is he a man who can be depended upon to foresee things that will tend to advance rural development? How does his pulse beat on good roads matters, taxation, and other kindred subjects pertaining to civic righteousuess and clean government? These are a few little questions which should be considered by the voter—and they are not questions which have no answers.

Petition

We, the undersigned citizens of Chilton county, do hereby respectfully request that Hon. W. H. Conway announce as a candidate for Representative from this county in the next legislature. Signed: B. L. Cobb, B. T. Rogers, W. R. Scott, L. A. McGraw, T. J. Cobb, J. E. Cobb, M. F. Studeant, M. D. Ray, J. E. Edwards, W. A. Glass, A. L. Sammons, W. E. Langston, W. N. Thomas.

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The rich chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children. 3

If the first box fails to benefit, the price is returned. Ask your druggist. A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

A LETTER FROM MR. W. E. THOMAS.

Jemison, Ala., March 16, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—I wish to write a short letter in regard to my announcement for Representative for Chilton County, as I feel my inability in this undertaking, and it has never been my desire to offer for this important office, but for the last few days I have been urged to announce by a good many of my friends, and I have decided to make the race. I am not doing this with any ill will against Hon. H. L. Foshee, as he is a fine young man, and if he represents the nominee over me I will certainly support him in his campaign and help to elect him in November. But if I am the choice of the people on April 21, I will make every effort in my power to be elected in November, and if I should be, I will do everything I can to do something while in office to accomplish something in the interest of our County, and as I have only a short time before our primary election and not have been looking forward to this, I find that it will be impossible for me to see a great many people as my business at this place is such that I cannot leave it at this time without a loss to myself. However I know that I am well known in the most of the county, and I expect to trust my success or fate in the hands of the voters until April 21, then if nominated I will try to see a good many of you before November.

Thanking all for the interest they have shown me, and hoping to be the nominee on April 21, I am, Respectfully,

W. E. Thomas.

CALOMEL IS A FORM OF DEADLY MERCURY

Instead of Such Dangerous Stuff it is Recommended that You Take Dodson's Liver Tone for Constipiation.

Dodson's Liver Tone was made to take the place of calomel

Calomel is a form of mercury, a mineral and a poison. Dodson's Liver Tone is an all-vegetable liquid—never harmful.

What calomel does unpleasantly and often with danger for constipation and sluggish liver, Dodson's Liver Tone does for you safely and pleasantly, with no pain and no gripe. It does not interfere in any way with your regular business, habits or diet. You feel good after taking it.

The great success and wide sale of Dodson's Liver Tone are the result of what it does for the people. Its merits is backed up by a guarantee of "satisfaction or your money back," as Alred Drug Co. the druggists will tell you.

Dodson's Liver Tone was intended from the start to take the place of calomel. The label on the bottle always has said so, beginning with the first bottle sold.

Dodson's Liver Tone "livens the liver," overcomes consiipation agreeably and makes you feel good, and if you are not satisfied completely with it Alred Drug Co. will hand back the purchase price (50c.) to you with a smile.

When you go to buy a family remedy, don't fail to judge between the plain simple truth about Dodson's and the loud claims of its imitators. That the public does so accounts for the enormous increase in the sales of Dodson's Liver Tone month after month.

Simplicity in Higher Life.

The higher we rise the simpler we become. There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity, and a childishness from which but few of those who are counted the wisest among men have freed themselves in their imagined progress towards the reality of things.—Geo. FOR SHORT TERM of Ragland, Alabama.

SENATOR WATT T. BROWN

Who is asking for your support in his candidacy for short term only in the U. S. Senate. He is an active worker in the cause of vocational education. He believes that the greatest good can come to the masses by giving them a practical education and training; also, that the greatest asset of the State is the development of its boys and girls, and that Nation and State should assist. If elected to the Senate, he can immediately take hold of legislation which is now pending in Congress along this line.

Senator Brown is also an advocate of the improvement of public roads and highways; the opening of our streams and rivers for navigation; the improvement of harbors; more recognition of the debt due to Confederate Veterans, one of whom was his father; and the upholding of President Wilson and his administration.

Senator Brown was reared on the farm; is a successful merchant, banker and independent coal operator. He is the only business man in the race, and, if elected, will be one of the few men who go to the Senate who are not lawyers. Under no circumstance will he be a candidate for the long term in the Senate.

CATARRH OF THE THROAT

Is Liable to Produce Catarrhal Deafness

CLARENCE BOWMAN.

A Case of Catarrhal Deafness.

Mrs. Wm. Bowman, R. F. D. 1, Coon Rapids, Iowa, writes:

"Some time ago I wrote you about my little boy, Clarence, five years of age. He was troubled with his ears. They were very sensitive to the touch, and he was quite deaf at times. He seemed to be worse after catching cold. I had taken him to doctors, but they did not seem to be able to relieve him, and I was very much afraid he would lose his hearing entirely. He was getting more deaf every day.

"I wrote to you for advice, and you prescribed Peruna. I began giving it to him, and can now say that he is entirely cured. He is now well and hearty and can hear perfectly."

Catarrh Causes Many Diseases.

Many diseases are caused by taking cold. A cold is very likely to settle in the nose, causing nasal catarrh. It may settle in the upper part of the throat, called the nasal pharyngeal space. In this space are two little tubes called eustachian tubes, that lead to the middle ear.

If the catarrh settles in the pharyngeal space it may follow the mucous membrane through the eustachian tubes into the middle ear. If it does it will cause noises in the ear, and later on be sure to cause deafness.

Catarrh of the throat may follow the eustachian tubes up into the middle ear without causing much concern on the part of the patient. The partial loss of hearing is apt to be overlooked. A person may lose half his hearing before he knows it.

For instance, suppose a man can hear his watch four feet from the ear. If he loses his hearing to the extent that he can only hear the tick of his watch two feet from the ear he may not suspect it at all. His hearing is good enough for ordinary purposes. He goes on without the slightest suspicion that he is losing his hearing. He may have ringing in the ear, or cracking and snapping sounds in the ear, or a feeling of pressure in the ear, but he is not aware that he is losing his hearing.

Testing the Hearing.

It is a good thing to test your hearing with a watch. First hold the watch against your ear, then move it gradually away from the ear and see how far away from the watch you can actually hear it tick. Try it on the other side and see if both ears are alike. If you find that you are unable to hear the watch on both sides alike and at a distance of four feet from the ear, you may know that deafness has already begun. You should begin taking Peruna at once. Gargle the throat with cold, strong salt water, as directed in the "Ills of Life," sent free by Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio. Persist in this treatment until a cure is effected.

The Best Way to Gargle.

Sometimes catarrh of the nasal pharyngeal space will cause an accumulation of secretions in the throat, that completely fill the space. Unless these secretions are promptly removed by frequent gargling polypi may be formed. Once formed the polypi or adenoids, as they are sometimes called, will require a long time with the gargling to remove. Gargling according to the proper method will sometimes remove polypi or adenoids, and no surgical operation is required.

In order to understand exactly what is meant by proper gargling send for a free copy of the "Ills of Life."

During the whole course of gargling Peruna must be taken according to directions on the bottle.

People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

CAPTAIN FRANK S. WHITE

CANDIDATE FOR THE UNITED STATES SENATE FOR THE SHORT TERM.

WHAT HE STANDS FOR.

He is against the monopolies which are crushing the poor and middle classes; he is against the stock gambling system which keeps down the farmer; he is for good roads; he is in favor of securing the very largest available appropriations from the United States Government for the purpose of deepening the Harbor at Mobile and for improving the rivers of the State; he agrees with, and proposes to use his utmost efforts to assist President Wilson in carrying out his policies; he is for good citizenship, good government, and LAST but not LEAST, for the masses who need protection, instead of for the classes, who have demonstrated too clearly already that they are able to take care of themselves.

This will probably be your last opportunity of electing a Confederate soldier to the United States Senate. Captain White served his country when a mere youth under the leadership of the undaunted General Bedford Forrest.

This race does not involve the long term contest, but is for the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Johnston

Congressman F. L. Blackmon will address the voters of Chilton County at the Court House at Clanton, Saturday next at 11 o'clock. At this meeting he will give an account of his Stewardship, and tell you why he should be returned to Congress. Everybody invited.

J. W. LITTLEJOHN

"High Kicking and Low Thinking."

A woman who is one of the most potent influences for the uplift of the stage in America made the remark that "High kicking and low thinking had brought the stage into disrepute."

This influence permeates much of the business life in our country.

Demagogues, without mental ability to impress, have adopted a pyrotechnic style of appeal. Suspicious by nature, they have by mean insinuation and reckless assertion, tolled many people into the hog-wallow of distrust. They are the type that had rather condemn than praise, that had rather tear down than construct, that had rather find bad than good.

This type of individual, a pessimist by design and nature, is devoid of the milk of human kindness, knows not the impulse to stretch forth a helping hand, is too preoccupied with schemes and fault finding to plan for constructive development and aggressive prosperity.

He is the high kicking, low thinking influence making business development and social advancement more difficult than it should be. He sows the seed of distrust, and plants the germ of greed.

The L. & N. calls attention to these things because this high kicking and low thinking has hampered L. & N. work of constructive development; it has put a handicap on the financial and social welfare of the territory through which the L. & N. operates; it has created distrust where cordial co-operation should exist.

We ask the people to give thoughtful consideration to the utterances of the low thinking, high kicking demagogues; to give careful consideration to the work the L. & N. has done and is doing in the territory through which it operates.

We ask the people to think over the tremendous increase in property values, to consider the created wealth, to observe and experience the unexcelled passenger and freight facilities—all a result of the L. & N.

If the people will only think we are quite sure they will not think of the hog-wallow, but will follow the dictates of their business judgment, and enjoy a healthy development of the rich natural resources of a magnificent section.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

"I don't care about his stories," replied the honest youngster, "but his hands smell just like our automobile."

EX-GOV. B. B. COMER

HIS LATEST MESSAGE TO VOTERS

Henderson and O'Neal Sell Alabama to the Railroads.

USE PEOPLE'S MONEY BY THE MILLION

Henderson, Lewis, Sheehan—Shameless Confession of an Editor.

"Let Us Take a Broom and Sweep O'Neal Gang From the Capitol"

Governor Comer's appeal to the people to help him sweep out the gang that now infests the Capitol of Alabama, made weeks ago, is emphasized over and over as the election day approaches.

In these closing days one false charge may be expected to tread upon another's heels, so fast they follow. Everybody remembers the game played by the railroads in a previous election—MAKE A FALSE AFFIDAVIT on Comer in the closing days—too late to correct it. LOOK OUT FOR THEM NOW!

The chief journalistic fugleman of the Capitol gang and the allied interests at Montgomery, is one Will T. Sheehan.

He is the man hired by ex-near Senator Glass to edit his Montgomery Advertiser. It remained for Sheehan to fling into this campaign the meanest libel of the campaign.

Sheehan charges that Comer has been negotiating with Charlie Lewis for the liquor vote.

A statement evolved out of a wicked mind—not a faint shadow or circumstance of truth to start from!

HERE IS THE TRUTH.

Sheehan and Sam P. Kennedy went to Nashville, and there met Charlie Lewis on January 16. It is natural for a liquor editor to go and meet a liquor boss. But Kennedy is Charles Henderson's campaign manager. He is clerk to the Railroad Commission also. What was Henderson's campaign manager, what was Kennedy, the State official, doing in Nashville, secretly meeting the financial agent of the liquor vote? Sheehan says he went to protest against Lewis turning the liquor vote over to Comer. Henderson's campaign manager must have been there to conspire with Lewis for holding the liquor vote for Henderson.

Lewis is the dispenser of political money for the liquor interests. His methods are well known. He never issues checks. He disburses the actual cash, just before election, through trusted agents. Was it the cash that Sheehan and Henderson's manager were after in their secret conference with Lewis?

In telling his fearful falsehood on Comer, the small editor of a great paper, read between the lines, admits much. When he protested against Lewis delivering the vote of the liquor-Capitol gang to Comer, he admitted that Lewis was the man who could do it; that he has been delivering that vote; that Sheehan and all the balance take their orders and do his work. For Lewis to regulate that vote is the natural, usual, proper course. But to deliver it to Comer is too much. Sheehan will rebel. He will kick the fat in the fire before he will do it.

A SERIOUS MATTER.

It is a serious and solemn thing for the people of Alabama to think about—that the editor of a leading newspaper should declare over his own name what Sheehan admits so unblushingly in his card, that Lewis does dispose of a large vote in Alabama, and that this newspaper is one of his dependents, with no right left except the poor one of protest.

HENDERSON AND LEWIS.

Henderson's campaign manager in consultation with Lewis in the solemn watches of the night—far from home—in another State, secretly and hoping to keep it secret. What does it all mean?

Henderson hopes to be Governor through the liquor vote and money delivered by Charles Lewis, and through the railroad vote delivered by Sid Bowie and George Jones, and such honest men as these can deceive.

SELLING OUT A STATE.

But, after all, men lying, consorting with liquor bosses and making arrangements for corruption money are small matters compared to the offense committed by Mr. Henderson and Governor O'Neal in the recent compromise made by them with the recalcitrant and rebellious railroads.

In that compromise they surrendered the State and the people to the railroads and got no consideration in return.

The people had been saving up rebate coupons and excess freight receipts, estimated all the way from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000. Nobody puts it lower than the first figure. These were the property of the people, waiting for collection on a decision of the United States Supreme Court, foreshadowed for the people by decisions in similar cases in Missouri, Arkansas and Minnesota. The eminent attorneys for the State who had fought the cases for seven years, were confident of victory and were on the eve of establishing for all time the power of the State to regulate the charges of its public service corporations.

WITH THE DASH OF A PEN.

Without notice to the people, without consulting the State's attorneys, without even consulting one of the associate Railroad Commissioners, without a single stipulation of value to the people, Charles Henderson, president of the Commission, and Emmett O'Neal, Governor of Alabama, scratched out millions of the people's valuable securities. Why did they do it?

"TO BEAT OLD COMER."

Because they thought they could turn it into a political advantage for Charles Henderson in his race for Governor. For a fancied political advantage they surrendered all the State had gained; they gave back a perpetual power over rates to Inferior Federal Judge Jones; they sold out coupon and excess freight receipt holders bag and baggage, and made Alabama a laughing stock in every railroad office in this country.

Here is what Governor Comer and other authorities say about it:—

COMER ON THE SURRENDER.

In a speech at Lapine Governor Comer said:

"You take this railroad settlement. They say it was a compromise. A compromise is where one gives and takes where one accepts and grants concessions. In this agreement the railroads got everything and the people nothing. It was an absolute surrender of the rights of the people.

"They say you got a two and one-half cent passenger rate, but you did not. You had a two and one-half cent rate and three Federal judges had declared that the rate could not be made higher. Had the case been carried to the Supreme Court everybody knows it would have been affirmed.

SURRENDERED EVERYTHING.

"They say the State withdrew the cases following an agreement. It did not; it surrendered everything it ever won when the names of the officials were affixed to that agreement. If an army had surrendered in the way the State surrendered it would have been tried for it, and if there is any way this gang can be put in jail for the surrender it ought to be done."

Mention of the name of O'Neal, followed by that of Henderson, brought half-uttered hisses from the audience.

EX-ATTORNEY GENERAL GARBER.

Col. Alex M. Garber, who is Comer's campaign manager, says:

"The thought has found lodgment in the minds of many people that the negotiations leading up to the compromise finally effected have a political significance, aimed at the defeat of B. B. Comer and the elevation of Charles Henderson, president of the commission. It does seem strange that Colonel Stone, Major Steiner, other railroad attorneys and officials, met the present Governor, the Attorney General and Mr. Henderson unexpectedly in Montgomery. If not, and an appointment was made by these gentlemen, why were not Judge Weakley and Mr. Selheimer, the special counsel for the State, who had devoted practically their entire time to the rate case for about seven years, invited to the conference? They were absent during the entire negotiations—in fact, were entirely ignored. Was this due to the fear that these gentlemen, with their thorough knowledge of the rate cases, would not have given their approval to the agreements reached, or was it due to the fact that they were said to be good friends of B. B. Comer?"

JUDGE WEAKLEY NOT CONSULTED.

"I do not want to criticize the compromise. I don't want to criticise the Governor of Alabama. But on the other hand, I do not want to be charged or credited with the compromise that has been effected. I don't want any blame or praise. I have fought the cases for seven years. I want to say that I did not recommend this compromise and had nothing in the world to do with it. It is the work of Charles Henderson, of the commission, and the Governor of Alabama. I was not consulted concerning any detail of the proposition and am in nowise responsible for the outcome."

WHAT JUDGE SELHEIMER SAYS.

Mr. Selheimer, co-counsel with Judge Weakley in the rate cases, said that the people of the State would be the loser of "some millions." He said the rebate certificates would not be paid, as the decision of Judge Jones effectively cancels the rebates which were to have been returned those who paid the 3-cent fare.

"I was not consulted concerning the compromise. I had nothing to do with it. I am informed that the matter was handled by the Governor and Charles Henderson. As far as Judge Weakley and myself are concerned we were not even faintly apprised of the probable outcome of the case. I was very much surprised when informed that the affair had been settled as it was. I did not recommend it and would not have recommended the compromise effected."

MURRAY BROWN.

Murray Brown, member of a great Birmingham wholesale house, Goodall, Brown Dry Goods Co., voiced the sentiments of the business man:

"In my opinion the State is handing to the Louisville and Nashville something over $1,000,000 on a silver platter. In other words, the people of Alabama love the Louisville and Nashville so well that they want to present this road with a few million dollars. Other railroads in the State have not only been able to operate under the 2 1-2-cent rate, but have shown a profit. I think this is amply attested to by virtue of the fact that the Southern Railway's president a few days ago in Birmingham outlined plans for an expenditure of $1,500,000 in improvements in this district.

"Of course, the $1,500,000 which the Louisville and Nashville will be saved will not come from the coffers of the State, but will be paid by the traveling men, wholesale men and jobbers of the State.

"In my opinion, if B. B. Comer had been in the Governor's chair the compromise would never have been effected. It is apparently an attempt to weaken his candidacy."

IN A BLAZE OF INFAMY.

The melancholy ending of the O'Neal administration is a solemn and portentous warning to the people not to elect another Governor to serve the allied interests. Mr. O'Neal was elected as the instrument and agent of these allied interests. He has served them well, and behold! the clouds of scandals and infamies amid which his star hastes now to its setting. For the Lacy theft is less a crime than the sale of the people to the railroads. The scandalous bargaining with Lacy is less a scandal and reproach than the bargaining of Henderson for a surrender of the State and people in exchange for the support of Milton H. Smith and the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and its attorneys. Shamelessness has no limit when a man gets his consent to serve the interests rather than the people.

So Mr. Henderson strikes his Gubernatorial bargain with the railroads at Montgomery and sends his campaign manager to Nashville to make such terms as Charlie Lewis chose to demand as the price of his support.

COMER'S ANSWER TO SHEEHAN.

"In full answer to Mr. Sheehan's card, I have never seen Charles Lewis or communicated with him either directly or through his agents. I have never offered in any way, shape or form to any interest any consideration in exchange for influence or votes. The charges of Mr. Sheehan against me are unqualifiedly false."

VOL. 2 | THE UNION 11th Year | CLANTON, ALABAMA, THURSAY, MARCH 26, 1914 | THE BANNER 21st Year | NO. 50

HOWARD L. FOSHEE FOR LEGISLATURE

To the voters of Chilton County:

In announcing myself a candidate for membership in the legislature from this county, subject to the action of the progressive primary on April 21, I desire to ask the support of those who favor progress and upbuilding among the citizens of the county and of the state. I wish to represent the people who believe in as much liberty as is consistent with good government, and equal rights in the matter of all laws effecting the common interest, with special privileges to none.

It is my conviction that in the upbuilding and progress of our state we must give more attention to the rural communities than has been done in the past. I favor the enactment of any measure that I feel will be of any direct benefit to the farmer or the rural districts, upon which, as we all know, the prosperty of all largely depends.

Alabama stands at present almost at the bottom of the roll of states in the matter of education, and should I be elected my efforts will be directed towards the passage of laws for the betterment of our educational conditions. I feel that the first step necessary toward the betterment of our educational system is the passage of such laws as will give more aid to the common schools. We can never build a perfect system of schools without beginning at the bottom and working from the rural schools to the higher institutions. I believe that any community should be allowed to tax itself for the benefit of its school. I favor the passage of a reasonable compulsory attendance law. In asking for election to this office, I pledge myself to do the best I can to see that such laws are enacted as will enable this county and the state to use all the means within the constitutional power to the end that every child in Chilton county and in Alabama be given every means and every opportunity possible of acquiring at least a good common school education.

I favor the abolition of all non-service-producing offices in the interest of economy and efficiency. I am sure that we could elect men for Tax Assessor and County Commissioners who are competent to assess our taxes without the aid of the Tax Commissioner. The office of Game Warden is not enforcing the law and is an expense and I think should be abolished. Also the office of Jury Commissioner.

I favor the revision of our judicial procedure, so that the present delays in the administration of justice, both civil and criminal, may be more certain, simple, speedy, and less expensive.

I favor the improvement of our roads and especially those of the rural communities. There should be some means of applying the special road tax to the district from which collected just as poll tax is returned to the school district from which it was paid.

I favor any other measure that will insure life, secure justice, promote order, and effect a more equitable distribution of happiness.

If I am nominated by you in April, I will make every possible effort to be elected in November.

If elected, I shall go as the representative of our whole people, neither influenced nor restrained in the performance of duty by any faction or individual prejudice; and my sole aim shall be to work for what seems to be best and to vote as I believe to be right. Respectfully,

Howard L. Foshee.

Walker Trial at Thorsby Begins

Register Chaney 2Apr12

The preliminary trial of Mrs. Julie Walker, widow of the late Dr. B. A. Walker of Birmingham, who was shot and killed on Sunday morning, March 15, at the home of his wife's father, R. L. Carter at Thorsby. Mrs. Walker was brought from the county jail at Clanton this morning, accompanied by her father. Johnathan Bice, mayor of Thorsby, presided at the trial, while A. C. Smith and Lawrence Gerald, Clanton lawyers, assisted by a lawyer from Birmingham appeared for the defence.

No direct testimony was presented tending to implicate Mrs. Walker in the shooting of her husband, but on circumstantial evidence she was held to appear before the next grand jury in the sum of $2000. Mrs Walker promptly made bond and was released. Mr. Carter, who admits that he shot Walker, returned with the sheriff to the jail at Clanton to await his preliminary trial.

Union Springs

A few cases of the mumps in this locality.

Thomas Waldrup of Marvel visited the home folks last week.

Mr. Will Smitherman was at Lawley latter part of last week.

Mr. Frank Martin in crossing the railroad Thursday afternoon at Randolph happened to a painful accident. His horse fell and falling on Mr. Martin, broke his limb just above the ankle, causing the broken end of Mr. Martin's limb to protrude.

It seems like only a few more tustles like those going on now between Underwood and Hobson and Deason and Blackmon will produce a new party in the Democratic ranks. They just can't afford to longer affiliate with each other after so much being said.

It looks now like the Union Springs Sunday School will be liberally represented at the convention at Oak Grove next Sunday.

Some of the West Chiltonites visited the Center Hill singing society Sunday. They report a good singing. The greater portion of the leading was by Messrs. Northcutt, Hodgens, Martin and Lowery brothers.

Well, well; have all of Blackmon's efforts in Congress been a failure? Judging by the Clanton Press, he has made poor success; but strange we never heard it until recently; but it looks like Hobson and Blackmon are keeping things well stirred.

On April 1st and 2nd, Mr. Wisdom, V. D. M. of the International Bible students association will deliver a series of Bible lectures in this community. He will also be in Thorsby April 3rd.

Reading Circle

The Chilton County Teachers' Reading Circle and Association will meet at the schoolhouse in Clanton on the first Saturday in April, 10 a. m., at which time we hope to have as many teachers present as can possibly attend. Program will be mailed out later.

The History of Modern Elementary Education,"—Parker, is the book being read now, and every teacher is urged to procure the book and begin the study of it at once.

NEGRO LYNCHED LAST SATURDAY

Body Suspended by Rope From Tree, and Riddled With Bullets

On last Saturday night about nine o'clock about two miles west of Clanton Chas. Young, a negro man about twenty years of age was suspended from a limb of a large oak tree with a rope around his neck, and his body literally riddled by bullets, at the hands of a violent mob of unknown parties. Young was lynched for a terrible crime which he committed early Saturday morning, in which he brutally assaulted Mrs. Andrew Wilson, a white lady about sixty years old, and wounded her very severely by attempts to take her life and rob the house.

After it became known among the neighbors that the crime had been committed, feeling ran high for revenge, and a diligent search was instituted for the negro, who had effected his escape after committing the crime. All day the search was continued till about five o'clock in the afternoon he was captured about seven miles west of Clanton, making his way towards Maplesville.

The captors returned to the scene of the crime with the object of their fury in posession, and hastily did the work of extinguishing his wretched life. The Sheriff and his deputies arrived on the scene a few minutes after they heard the shooting of the mob, but no one was to be seen. They had avenged the crime with the life of the one who committed it, and dispersed.

The negro was an employee on the farm of Mr. Wilson, and had been around the house for probably several months. At the time of the assault there was no one in the house but Mrs. Wilson. The negro entered and knocked her down. After accomplishing his purpose he tried to lock her in a wardrobe, and then lock the house, but could not secure the keys readily. It was his purpose to get what money there was in the house, but he became frightened and ran away without it.

On Sunday morning a coroner's inquest was held over the body, and a verdict of death at the hands of unknown parties was rendered. The body was taken down and brought to Clanton and buried.

The companies of State militia were called out to quiet the mob, but the execution had been completed before they arrived on the scene. Great excitement prevailed, but was soon quieted after the soldiers arrived.

THE UNION-BANNER

Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama.
UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

We have only heard of one Democrat who says he would vote for O'Neal again for Governor.

Who is running this election, O'Neal and the interests he represents, or the good people of the State?

Do not forget that when you go into the Primary of April 6th, you are giving your endorsement to the O'Neal administration.

Farmers who desire good roads will please further the cause by not plowing up the stakes set by the Highway Engineer for the State.

Imagine the feeling of an Underwood man supporting Hobson, or a Hobson man supporting Underwood after April sixth. It would almost make one sick since hearing the autobiography of each.

It seems to be pretty generally agreed that the counting board is considered as of as much importance as the votes on April 6th. Look out for a repetition of the nineties in Alabama politics.

It will be a bitter pill for any good democrat to sign the pledge endorsing all the acts of the present administration in Alabama in order to get his vote counted on April 6th.

If you want a square deal, wait till April 21st, and vote with the party which invites all qualified white electors to participate, regardless of past party affiliation.

If the people represent the power, then why do Democrats get notice from headquarters to see that such men as John Stanfield, who are not in sympathy with the administration, must be beaten?

What we wish Mr. Wilson would tell us is why it was he put Mrs. Longstreet, a Democratic general's widow out of office in Georgia and keeps H. L. Johnson, a Georgia nigger in office as Recorder of Deeds in Washington.—Yellow Jacket.

By keeping H. L. Johnson, a Georgia nigger, as Register of Deeds for Washington City at a salary of $4000 a year and Pat Tumulty, an oathbound Knight of Columbus Roman Catholic as his private secretary it is no wonder Woodrow Wilson has so few admirers in the Sunny South.—Yellow Jacket.

Think of the consistency of a Democratic paper, appealing to the common people to come into their Primary on April the sixth, yet require them to sign the pledge, and expect them to hollow themselves hoarse till November election for a Congressman, whom they have refused space to write to the voters of his own district in the behalf of his re-election, upon the payment of regular advertising rates. Yet such is modern Democracy.

Owing to several requests from subscribers to our paper, we contemplate within a short time, installing the ready-print service in the Union-Banner, as it was some years ago. This will enable us to furnish, along with the news of the county, items of interest in happenings over the State. Also interesting serial stories, illustrated news articles of various natures, and live literary features.

The members of the boys corn club of Chilton county should preserve a copy of this issue of The Union-Banner because it contains a list of the prizes that have been donated to the cause by the business men of the county, and also the rules and regulations governing the county board of awards in giving these prizes. The same rules and regulations apply to the girls tomato club, and the boys pig club, as the prizes in each club are awarded by the same board.

We wish to state to our correspondents that it is necessary for them to sign their names to articles which they send in for publication. It does not mean that they must have their real names published in the paper. You have the privilege of using a nom de plume in print, but you must send your real name with the commuuication, in rder that we may know who it is from. And further, we do not want any foolishness. Write good sensible news, and we will appreciate it and be glad to publish it. Otherwise, we do not care to be bothered with it. Our time is too valuable to be taken up with frivolities.

Speak softly, Mr. Lacy. The fair name of the State of Alabama is in danger of being disgraced. How the angel of honor justice and dignity must be held in awe at the way the affairs of government in our state are being twisted and distorted! What must be the opinion of our sister commonwealths of this state of things? "Oh that we had the power to see ourselves as others see us!" But lamentation is empty. Therein is found no remedy for the ailment. The power of restoration lies in the vote of the masses. But then if they be under the throes of tyranny themselves, how can they rise up against it? Where, where, O Lord, will the termination be? Is there sunshine beyond the vale? Is peace honor and happiness wrapped in corruption, to be unfolded to us in the future?

Editor Union-Banner,

Please allow me a small space in your paper to say just a few words. I notice where some say that Mr. Gore and Mr. Harris are nice men. I will go him halves in the matter. They are nice men, so far as I know, of which there are several in Chilton county; men of enough intelligence to see that there are three out on the Progressive ticket for Sheriff. I feel assured that there are a lot of voters in the county who have noticed that there are three in the race. I have heard that it was said by one man that I would not get two votes in my own beat. I will say this: if it has been said, I am not the least bit offended. I know the kind of stuff Chilton county is made of. They have proved their faith by their works. But I just wanted to let the people know there are three in the race, provided one had been overlooked. Understand I am not mad at all, but I just want to show you that a man who expects to be Sheriff must have a little reasoning. So now boys as I am a poor man, and have told you so before, and am deprived of the opportunity of seeing you all as I have got all I can do in my crop. You men that have accumulated a lot of property in this county, I want your vote too. I am not above you just because I am poor. Yours truly,

D. N. Robinson.

DECAY OF DEMOCRACY

That democracy will decay unless there is a change in our elective system is self evidence to any observer or thinker.

First no voter no matter how intelligent can post himself on the qualifications of the various candidates, as there are too many of them.

Second no candidate, can afford to advertise his qualifcations so as to reach all voters, as it would be too costly, figured on the basis of the return from the office for which he is running and figured on any other basis it would lead to one of two things, either graft to get back the enormous expense, or what would be as bad the elimination of poor men as candidates for office.

At presnt the voters only make a guess, and the politicians gamble on the fact that enough may guess for them to get them the office, thus making a gamble of the whole affair, when thinking people know that government should be a purely business proposition.

Another thing that must be taken into consideration is, that all expense adds to the high cost of living, that all is ultimately paid by the consumer and that all are consumers.

Some people appear to be under the delusion that its the candidates business, how much he spends, but that is a mistake as it is and should be the voters business, and every effort should be put fourth to reduce the expense of the election machinery, the tendency however appears at present to be to increase the expense and if it continues too long democracy will cease to exist—Foley Onlooker.

Announcing the New Typewriter
OLIVER NO. 7

WE ANNOUNCE AN AMAZING MODEL—The OLIVER No. 7—a typewriter of superexcellence, with automatic devices and refinements that mark the zenith of typewriter progress. A marvel of beauty, speed and easy action. Typewriting efficiency raised to the nth power.

The OLIVER No. 7 embodies all previous Oliver innovations and new self-acting devices never before seen on any typewriter. A leap in advance which places The Oliver ten years ahead of its time. So smooth in action, so light to the touch, so easy to run, that experts are amazed. A model that means to the typist delightful ease of operation.

A model that means a higher standard of typewriting, longer and better service.

The No. 7 is now on exhibit and sale at all Oliver Branches nd Agencies throughout the United States.

The new model has more improvements, refinements and new uses than we can even enumerate here.

The "cushioned keyboard" with 'anchor keys" and the new automatic features mean less work for the hands, less strain on the eyes, less manuel and mental effort.

With all of these masterly mechanical improvements we have made the machine more beautiful and symmetrical. From every standpoint The OLIVER No. 7 attains superlative excellence.

Nothing you could wish for has been omitted. The new devices, refinements, improvements and conveniences found on the No. 7 represent an enormous outlay and vastly increase its value—the price has not been advanced one penny. We shall even continue in force our popular 17-Cents-a-Day purchase plan, the same as on previous Oliver models.

The OLIVER No. 7, equipped with the famous Printype, if desired, without extra charge.

You owe it to ypurself to see the new machine before you buy any typewriter at any price. Note its beauty, speed and easy action, its wonderful automatic devices. Try it on any work that is ever done on typewriters. Try it on many kinds of work that no other typewriter will do.

It is a significant fact that the typewriter that introduced such epoch-making innovations as visible writing, visible reading, Printype, etc., should be the first to introduce automatic methods of operation.

Small Boy's Essay.

A youthful American citizen for the time being resident in Germany was asked to observe Independence day by writing "a patriotic American composition." Bobby chose "The Cow" for his subject, and this was the essay he turned out: "The cow is an animal. She has two horns and four legs and a tail. Sometimes this tail waves. 'Long may it wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!'"

Some Excitement

By Higgins the Reliable Watch ahd Eye Man Last Saturday.

Higgins the Jeweler has up a new way of advertising. During this entire year every Saturday at eleven o'clock he will sell to the highest bidder for cash, a nice watch. The one sold last Saturday was a $16.00 Elgin, with gold case. It sold for $5.30. There was some excitement and a fine crowd last Saturday. The crowd was divided in three principal parts. Higgins had one part, another part was chasing the negro, and the third went to hear Congressman Blackmon at the Court house, but this was only a small crowd, for no man unless he is paid, will throw down one of our county born and raised men and go off and hunt another man to vote for. But Higgins had some crowd. Three times did Leander, the policeman have to get the crowd off the sidewalk in order to clear the public highway in front of his store. Next Saturday, and every Saturday you be at Higgins store and bid on the nice watch. One will be sold every Saturday, whether you are there or not. Come for you will make five or ten dollars by so doing, and you will not make that much if you stay at home. Come and bring your brother and his brother. And you can also bring your brothers cousin with you. No one objects. Its every Saturday at eleven o'clock, at J. V. Higgins, The Reliable Jeweler.—Adv.

Division of the Days.

Bessie and Bertie, at a loss for a new game to play, hit upon the idea of being "at home" and having "a day." Bessie hit upon the plan, that is. Bertie wanted to know what she meant by "at home" and "a day." "Why, don't you know?" asked Bessie, astonished. "All the stylish people have days for being at home to visitors. All Blood Disorders Quickly Driven Away

Astonishing Results With the Greatest Blood Purifier Ever Discovered.

Strength, Power, Accomplishment are all Typified in S. S. S.

Some blood disorders become deeply rooted in the glands and tissues, and the mistake is made of resorting to drastic drugs. These only aggravate by causing other and worse troubles. A host of people know this to be true. They know from painful experience.

To get right down into where the blood is vitiated requires S. S. S. the greatest blood purifier ever discovered.

This remarkable remedy contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced-health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation on these local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.

In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are obseved. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence. Not one drop of drugs or minerals is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to The Swift Specific Co., 205 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "Just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.

In Bavaria and some other parts of Europe the Monday before Lent was at one time known as Blue Monday. This community seems to have almost an epidemic of measles at the present time.

The farmers seem to be waiting patiently for spring time to come, so they can get busy and plant corn.

Well it seems that politics continues to grow warmer. According to the Montgomery Journal it looks like the Democrats were going to resort to some of their old time methods and practice (that of stuffing ballot boxes and using fraud and rascality) in order to defeat some of their men (like Hobson) who are advocating some Progressive principles. According to statements from Hobson's friends in some of the counties they have refused to appoint and accept Underwood men as officers of the election on April 6th. Of course the Democrats claim that they had quit their rascality and I guess they had when they did not think it was necessary to save the machine crowd. But they seem to think that there is some danger; that their machine might get smashed, so in order to save the bosses who are backed up by the corporations and whisky interests it seems that they have decided to resort to the methods mentioned above.

I noticed the last weeks Press and it almost made me sorry for the Hon. Blackmon when I read it. I wondered if he was the same Fred that the Press had so much to say about being such a good friend to farmers two years ago.

I notice that Rich. Hobson is not the only Congressman who is at home making campaign speeches and drawing pay from the federal government at the same time. From an out-siders viewpoint, it looks like the Democratic party is getting in the most desperate straits that it ever has been before, which ought to encourage every voter in Alabama who are opposed to a special interest. Democratic political machine bossed government that the time is here when they have got the best chance of their life to over throw this Democratic oligarchy here in Alabama and put the government into the hands of the common people.

Well I hope that our people will all turn out on April 21st and nominate the men that they want to fill the offices for the next four years.

CATARRH OF THE PHARYNX.

Clearing out your throat every day, all day. That is what you have been doing for months. Possibly years. A little mucus covers the pharynx.

If you were to go to a doctor he would tell you that you have pharyngitis. If you were to look into your own throat you would find just back of the soft palate a red, lumpy, granular appearance of the back part of the throat. Pharyngitis the doctors call it.

Perhaps he would call it, folicular pharyngitis. It causes you constant annoyance. You are always making slight disturbances when seated in an audience. Can't hold your throat still. Stringy mucus bothers you. Worse in the morning.

A-hem! A-hem! A-hem! That is the way you are going nearly all day. Sometimes in the night when you wake up. You ought to gargle your throat with salt water every morning. Cold salt water. That clears out the throat perfectly and makes it ready for treatment.

Peruna is the treatment. Begin with a teaspoonful before each meal and at bedtime. Try it for a week. You will be convinced. Of course, Peruna will not entirely relieve you in a week. That is too much to expect of any remedy. But it will benefit you so much you will be convinced. Yes, it will. It has done this many times.

Folicular pharyngitis. Big words. Almost as bad as the disease. But if you take Peruna for one month regularly, you may forget that you ever had such a disease. Then you will have a perfect right to forget the big words too.

People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

TALES OF THE ANANIAS CLUBS

Vicious Carpet-Bagger Attacks Upon Alabama's Foremost Democrat in Congress Exposed.

Southern Democrats are Justly Aroused Over the Self-Evident Canards.

The Hobson Committee has been sending out from Jefferson County a circular signed by various so-called Hobson Clubs; and we now find much of it reproduced in the Hobson carpet-bagger hand book, printed in Ohio for the purpose of assaulting Alabama's Democratic leader. This is in line with the other ammunition imported to shoot Underwood in the back, while he is doing the people's work in Congress.

The circulars are filled with false criticism of Mr. Underwood's work in Congress—the best they could find—and they show the foundation of the whole fight against Underwood—false criticism and false statements. Here are a few samples:

LIE NUMBER ONE: "That in the Fifty-sixth Congress, First Session, June 1st, p. 6426, he (Underwood) voted against giving Congress entire control of the trusts," and in the interest of the trusts.

THE FACT: The question was on a proposed amendment to the United States Constitution giving Congress exclusive power to define, regulate, control, prohibit and dissolve trusts, monopolies, combinations, etc. At that time (1900), thirty-one States had laws against trusts, and every one of them had become the subject of judicial inquiry and had been sustained. The effect of this amendment would have been to nullify all of these laws, and leave the trusts absolutely free until Congress should see fit to regulate them and the Federal Court should finally interpret the laws. The adoption of this amendment would have deprived the states of all power to act, and would have conferred legal sanction upon the trusts of their continued control over that which they already held in violation of law.

LIE NUMBER TWO: "That Mr. Underwood, in the Fifty-seventh Congress, on March 11th and April 18th, voted in the interest of the sugar trust."

THE FACT: The amendment for which Mr. Underwood voted would have had the effect of reducing the price of sugar twelve and one-half cents per hundred pounds. No sane man could honestly construe the vote mentioned as in favor of any trust; nor could any honest man.

LIE NUMBER THREE: "That Mr. Underwood voted against a measure to regulate the telephone lines of the District of Columbia, and in the interest of the telephone trust."

THE FACT: The bill against which Mr. Underwood voted was artfully called "A bill to regulate the use of telephone wires in the District of Columbia" but expressly gave the telephone company the power to extend its conduits and maintain its poles, without any limitation as to time, without one word of prohibition on the one hand or requirement on the other. It conferred on the Commissioners of the District unlimited power to grant to that company all future privileges the company might desire, without restraint. The true purpose of the bill was to foster the special privilege, and Mr. Underwood voted against it.

LIE NUMBER FOUR: That Mr. Underwood supported the bill, which as finally enacted, is now resulting in the construction of the great lock on the Warrior River which will facilitate navigation by many years, and save hundreds of thousands of dollars for the government. The Hobson Campaign lie asserts that this was in the interest of the great water power trust.

THE FACT: When this bill came up for consideration, Hobson, was, as usual, absent. It was for the most important bill ever introduced in Congress to facilitate navigation in the Sixth District. It was not in the interest of the water power trust, and the electrical installation which might have been authorized by the bill, would have furnished an independent competitive source of electric current to the people. The facts as to Hobson's inexcusable absence on this occasion are set forth on page 20 of the Underwood campaign book.

The company which received the recommendation of the War Department for the grant of the right to use the surplus water for electricity was a small independent company of men holding no interest in any other electric company, and is not and never was a part of any trust. That assertion is merely an outrageous lie—more abominable than most of them for the reason that W. S. Welch, of Bessemer, Alabama, Hobson's Campaign manager there, and a man who is making speeches for Hobson all over the state, was and is a stockholder in the company.

The charge is merely intended to divert attention from the fact that Hobson was absent, drawing pay in violation of the rules, and lecturing for money when that important legislation was before the House.

LIE NUMBER FIVE: "That Mr. Underwood voted against the currency reform measure."

THE FACT: The vote was merely against limiting the debate upon a banking and currency bill to the inadequate period of five hours for discussion. Instead of voting in the interest of the banking trust, his vote was in the interest of a full and proper discussion of a matter of extreme importance. He voted against the Republican banking and currency bill, and sided with his Democratic colleagues. Captain Hobson was absent. not voting, and unaccounted for at the time of this vote, and he should explain why he abandoned his country and his party on this important measure.

LIE NUMBER SIX: "That Mr. Underwood voted against the publicity of corporation returns, and against the corporation tax, in the interest of big business."

THE FACT: R. P. Hobson was absent, as usual, drawing his pay for services not rendered. Mr. Underwood opposed the resolution in question, because it was inadequate, in that it provided for publicity in favor of the president alone, giving him an arbitrary power and expressly authorizing the president to suppress the facts as to corporate returns, if he so desired. Mr. Underwood's position was expressed in these words:

> "Why not have honest, straightforward, full publicity, and let all know what is going on, and not a subterfuge of this kind?"

LIE NUMBER SEVEN: "That Mr. Underwood voted against the Postal Savings Bank, and in the interest of the banker's trust." (2 votes.)

THE FACT: The best Mr. Hobson could do on one of these votes was to dodge the question and vote "PRESENT;" on the other vote mentioned HE VOTED WITH UNDERWOOD. Mr. Underwood voted with the entire Alabama delegation present and voting, and with practically all the Democratic members of the House. The charge is stupid, ridiculous and false. Citizens, what an outrage for these people to attack Underwood, when on one of these votes Hobson voted with Underwood and on the other did not vote at all, and Underwood voted right. The record shows (61st Congress, p. 7765-7768) that Underwood was present, argued, and voted to establish the postal savings bank—Hobson not voting.

THE FACT: Hobson failed to vote at all, and on these questions Mr. Underwood voted with the Democratic party. We have fully explained the falsity of Hobson's charge in this matter in the Underwood Campaign Book, and have shown that Hobson himself was the offender.

LIE NUMBER NINE: "That in voting and speaking against the so-called Phossy-Jaw Bill, he acted in the interest of the match trust."

THE FACT: The match trust is the Diamond Match Company, and that company was given an absolute monopoly when Congress adopted the bill taxing white phosphorus matches out of existence. The independent match companies were very much opposed to this bill, and showed that with reasonable sanitary precautions employees' lives and safety would be and had been protected. The framers of the constitution never intended that the taxing power should be used for discriminatory purposes; and, as usual, on this vote R. P. Hobson was "not voting." The Match Trust maintained a large lobby and a magazine and newspaper campaign for the bill.

LIE NUMBER TEN: "That Mr. Underwood voted against the parcel post and in favor of the express companies."

THE FACT: This charge is a peculiarly inexcusable lie, but it is characteristic of the statements with reference to Mr. Underwood, which have appeared in Hobson's paper, THE ADVANCE, and in the circular in question. It is absolutely without foundation in fact.

The vote in question was not a vote on the passage of the parcel post measure, nor to adopt any proposition as a part of any law. It was simply a vote as to whether certain things should be in order on the appropriation bill, which otherwise would not have been in order: the Honorable R. P. Hobson, dodging and voting "Present." Underwood not only favored the parcel post measure, but voted for it. The bill when actually adopted was so overwhelmingly approved, that no record vote was called for, the vote on division being 227 in favor and five against the bill.

LIE NUMBER ELEVEN: "That Mr. Underwood is recorded as not voting when a measure to investigate the money trust was being considered."

THE FACT: How can a Hobson Committee have the effrontery to complain because Mr. Underwood, on one occasion, is recorded as not voting. Hobson himself was recorded, as usual, as "not voting." Shame on you, Hobson! You charge Mr. Underwood with "not voting"—although you were as usual, silent and absent or not voting.

LIE NUMBER TWELVE: "That Mr. Underwood voted for the water power trust in voting for the Coosa River bill.

THE FACT: At the time of the passage of the Coosa River Bill, authorizing the Alabam Power Company to construct a dam on the Coosa River, that Company was in bitter warfare with the so-called electric trust. The General Electric Company's interests were bitterly opposed to the passage of the bill, and it was shown to the Congressional Committee in charge, that the Company proposed to spend nearly two million dollars in improving navigation on the river and for the purpose of manufacturing lime nitrogen to fertilize our farms. Underwood, and the Alabama delegation, who voted for this bill, need no defense before the people of Alabama for their position. Hobson was, as usual, absent.

LIE NUMBER THIRTEEN: "That in the Sixty-third Congress Mr. Underwood voted against a measure requiring the President to make known the endorsers of the appointees for Federal District Judges."

THE FACT: The proposed measure would have been unjustifiable, had so little merit that it has never been revived. Where was Captain Hobson lecturing when this important (?) subject was before the House? Why did he fail to vote on this measure? Absent, not voting and drawing pay!

LIE NUMBER FOURTEEN: "That in the Special Session in 1913, Mr. Underwood is reported as being opposed to the incorporation of the income tax in the Underwood Tariff Bill."

THE FACT: This charge is an absolute falsehood. Mr. Underwood has always favored an income tax to equalize the tax burdens and to give elasticity and productiveness to our revenue system. Mr. Underwood intended and proposed from the very first to incorporate the income tax in the tariff bill, and we challenge Hobson to state over his own signature his responsibility for this false "report" of Mr. Underwood's attitude.

LIE NUMBER FIFTEEN: "That Mr. Underwood is 'reported' to have opposed in caucus the consideration of currency reform questions, etc."

THE FACT: Representative Carter Glass, the author of the currency bill, has indignantly repudiated this lie, and, if Captain Hobson is responsible for this false "report," we challenge him to admit it over his own signature, in order that he may be exposed to the contempt of his colleagues in the Democratic caucus who know the facts.

Additional lies about Mr. Underwood's attitude toward the farmer and toward the New York Cotton Exchange have been repudiated by the records and by officials and persons of unimpeachable character and the highest authority. The Democrats of Alabama should repudiate and overwhelm this effort on the part of a band of political fortune-hunters, maintained in Birmingham by Republican and foreign contributions, to discredit the greatest Alabamian of his time, and destined to go down in the history of the United States as one of the most constructive of American statesmen—and all these lies in the interest of a man who has abandoned his duties, received pay in violation of the Federal Statutes, ignored his oath of office, and deliberately and persistently disregarded the rule of the House of Representatives, which provides that:

> "Every member shall be present within the Hall during its sittings, unless excused or necessarily prevented; and shall vote on each questio nunless he had a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the event of such question."

OSCAR UNDERWOOD AND CLARKE THE COTTON GAMBLER

The falsehood about Underwood introducing legislation in favor of cotton gambling and defeating the Clarke amendment is exploded by the following facts:

Clarke, of Arkansas, after losing $20,000 in cotton gambling introduced an amendment to the Underwood tariff bill, which was intended to destroy the cotton exchange which now provides the market for about eighty per cent of the cotton crop of the South. Mr. Underwood, President Wilson, and his leaders, have for years desired legislation to restrict cotton gambling. Representative Lever and Senator Smith, Democrats, together with Secretaries Burleson and Houston, had prepared a bill which they thought vastly better than the Clarke amendment. In conference with President Wilson, and these gentlemen, Mr. Underwood was requested to introduce the amendment which has been made the subject of such outrageous and bitter attack by Hobson and McElderry. Nothing more contemptible has been seen in the history of American politics.

To criticise Mr. Underwood is to criticise President Wilson. To call him the tool of the cotton gamblers is to call President Wilson and his cabinet the tool of the cotton gamblers. The charge is false and baseless and Hobson knows it, McElderry knows it. Remember, Democrats, Underwood is your representative, laboring for the American people, shedding honor upon Alabama, while the frenzied Hobson, the venomous McElderry, and others who have no appreciation for Underwood's services, character and renown, are trying to stab him in the back. Alabama expects every fair man and every Democrat to do his duty.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

THE SILENT AND ABSENT HOBSON
NOT PRESENT IN CONGRESS WHEN FARMERS BILLS AT STAKE

Favors Automobile Speedways Dodged the Immigration Bill, and Was, as Usual

Absent When the Shackleford Good Roads Measure Passed the House.

McELDERRY LAUGHS AT CAPTAIN HOBSON

Request was recently made by Hobson's Secretary upon President Ford of the Farmer's Union that he try to secure the services of Mr. Barrett in having the organizers call meetings in order that McElderry of Talladega might take advantage of the meetings to "talk Hobson." It is understood that this effort of Hobson's Secretary to use the Farmer's Union for Hobson's purposes was repudiated, and that President Barrett has expressed great regret at the efforts of certain parties to "use" the Union. We have been shown a telegram from McElderry requesting that the sendee of that telegram try to make it appear that the Underwood people were attacking him in order to discredit a Farmer's Union man. In other words, says McElderry, say anything that will help Hobson—whether it is true or not. As admitted by McElderry, "nothing but the power of God can keep men from lieing.

In writing with reference to Hobson, this same McElderry says that Hobson did not appeal to him (McElderry) in the least, and referred to Hobson as the "Big Navy" man. The reason Hobson did not "appeal to McElderry in the least" and why McElderry declared his intention of supporting Mr. Clayton against Hobson, will abundantly appear from Hobson's record on agricultural questions shown by the recent letter of Mr. Patten, for many years the legislative agent of the Farmer's Union in Washington, from which we quote below.

McElderry only came into the Hobson fold when Mr. Underwood introduced the Underwood substitute on cotton gambling at the express request of President Wilson, who handed the substitute to Mr. Underwood with his own hands. Since that time McElderry has been furiously for Hobson. Here is Hobson's partial record of absences and silences on legislation of great importance to the Southern farmer:

Vital Measures Affecting South.

"The Congressional Record for the Sixty-first, Sixty-second and Sixty-third Congresses show that when the agricultural appropriation bill was up before those Congresses Underwood was here working and voting for more liberal appropriations for agricultural purposes and that on the other hand Congressman Hobson took absolutely no part in the matter and is recorded as absent and not voting. (Congressional Record Sixty-first Congress, page 1680; Congressional Record Sixty-second Congress, page 4174; and Congressional Record Sixty-third Congress, page 4801.)

The Congressional Record shows that all during the four months' fighting one year ago in the House for parcel post Mr. Underwood was on hand working and voting for parcel post and that Congressman Hobson took no part in that long fight and is recorded as absent and not voting. (Congressional Record Sixty-second Congress, page 11,761 and pages previous.)

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-first Congress, at pages 7765 and 7768, show that Underwood was present arguing and voting when the bill was up for establishing postal savings banks and that Hobson was recorded as absent and not voting.

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-second Congress, page 242, shows that Underwood was present and worked and voted for the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators and that Hobson did not vote.

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-second Congress, page 4226, shows that Underwood worked and voted for the establishment of a children's bureau and that Hobson took absolutely no part in the matter and failed to vote.

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-first Congress, page 4174, shows that Underwood worked and voted for placing agricultural implements on the free list and that Hobson did not even vote on the bill.

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-first Congress, pages 8860 and 8957, shows that Underwood led the fight, argued and voted for the Scott bill, the first time it was up, aimed at gambling in cotton and that Hobson failed to say a word and neglected even to vote.

Immigration Bill.

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-second Congress, at pages 610, 675, etc., shows that Underwood voted for the immigration bill, urged by the Farmers' Union, when it passed the House in December, 1912, and that Hobson failed to say a word and neglected to vote. Likewise when the 60-page immigration bill was up in the House during the 3d and 4th of February, this year, although in the city and present on the floor during the 3d and 4th of February, Mr. Hobson failed to say a word or to even vote while Underwood, on the other hand, took the floor, agued for the bill and voted on every vote.

Speedways or Farm Roads?

The Congressional Record for the Sixty-third Congress, page 3432, shows that Mr. Underwood voted for the Shackelford farmers' road bill and that Hobson did not vote. The vote on this bill came on February 10. It was known when Mr. Hobson was in the city on February 3 and 4 that the Shackelford bill would be up immediately after the immigration bill was disposed of. Consequently, if he had been interested he could have easily stayed over to vote for this needed legislation. But he does not seem to be in favor of market or business roads for the farmer. His preference is for the transcontinental and automobile speedways. For the Congressional Record of January 28, 1914, shows that he introduced a bill, H. R. 24,471, "by request," which authorizes the construction of two trunk line roads. The trunk line proposition is backed by such big interests as the road material manufacturers, certain big engineering concerns, and the automobile manufacturers. The road material manufacturers are opposed to the farmers' little dirt road proposition because it means the improvement of little roads running from the farm to the nearest market or town. This would get the farmer and his produce out of the mud. The road material manufacturers and the engineering concerns want the government to build transcontinental trunk lines, because that will mean large, juicy contracts for building its links. Likewise the automobile manufacturers and tourists want trunk lines for pleasure purposes.

As I stated above Underwood led the fight for the first anti-gambling in cotton bill that passed the House and the precise thing that the Farmers' Union has always indorsed and still indorses."

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE DEMOCRATIC ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES

THE PRESIDENT

Can any Democrat vote to deprive this Commander-in-Chief of his ablest and wisest general — Underwood of Alabama?

THE FIELD MARSHAL AT THE FRONT

Keep him there, and thank God we have him!

What would the people of the South have replied to a suggestion that Robert E. Lee be retired and replaced by an inferior officer of his army who deserted his duties and attacked the good name of his general?

WHO IS JOHN H. PATTEN?

Mr. Patten is the son-in-law of the late Senator Latimer, of South Carolina, who was known as the leading farmer senator from the South for many years. The family owns a large amount of cotton lands around Belton, S. C., and Mr. Patten is interested in the agricultural development of the South. He is also Assistant Secretary of the Farmer's National Congress of the United States of America. Mr. Patten is and has been for years identified with the World's Purity Federation, of which Rev. B. S. Steadwell is president. This organization is urging the passage of laws curbing the liquor traffic and aimed at the white slave traffic and commercialized vice. A recent issue of "The Light," which is the official publication of the Purity Federation, gives Mr. Patten and Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts the credit for having introduced and pushed the passage of the Kenyon Red-Light bill for the District of Columbia, which is directed at the red-light district of Washington. Rev. W. F. Crafts is the leading spirit in the International Reform Bureau and is well known by the clergy throughout the country.

Mr. Patten occupies a very prominent position as the representative of farmers' societies and uplift societies throughout the country, and is a man of fine character and standing.

HOBSON, THE ABSENTEE.

Are not these record facts, showing Underwood's constancy in the performance of his duties and the eternal absence of Hobson, enough to paralyze the normal mind with the conclusion that the American people and the Democratic party are justified in the faith and confidence reposed in Underwood and in the profound distrust they feel toward Hobson.

FREE WHISKEY AND PROHIBITION.

Oneonta, Alabama.

Captain R. P. Hobson said in his speech here on Feb. 13, 1914, in substance, as follows:

I have very little hope of reforming the old man who has drunk whiskey all of his life. My idea of nation-wide prohibition is not to interfere with the manufacture of wine or whiskey by the individual on his own premises or plantation for his own use. My idea is simply to prevent the sale of or the manufacture of it for sale, by taking the profit out of the traffic of it. I do not want the United States Government to interfere with the individual manufacturing it for his own use. I do not want the strong arm of the law to interfere with the home. THE SOUTH'S ETERNAL PERIL.

Words can not express the orgy of vice, the domestic horror, the murders in the cabin, the unspeakable crimes upon the country road, which would follow Hobson's plan to allow the white man and the negro unrestricted license to make whiskey over his kettle, to allow the old drunkard to make it and give it away to his friends and his children. The editor of the Enterprise-Journal has depicted the results which Hobson invites in these words:

"It means that every negro tenant, every negro turpentine hand, can make all the rum, utilize all the cane skimmings, all the rotten peaches, all the corn whiskey they choose to manufacture, rig up a still with a coffee pot and cane reeds and let a saturnalia or pandemonium reign; passion and lust, murder and arson, rape and assassination stalk abroad and Hell and its Imps will reap a harvest such as has not been visible since the days of Beelzebub and his cohorts broke loose from the chains of Hades.
and arson, rape and assassination stalk abroad and Hell and its Imps will reap a harvest such as has has not been vision since the days of Beelzebub and his coherts broke loose from the chain of Hades.

"Is that prohibition? Or, rather, is it not a figment of a brain disordered by greed for office, a fantasy of mind that is either ignorant of the logic of events or purposely playing to galleries of a fanatical cohort?"

Union Springs

March with its wailing winds and cold grows more lamb-like.

Mr. and Mrs. Smitherman went to Riderville Saturday.

Mr. Will Redding of Randolph visited here Saturday night.

Rev. Posey has been quite sick.

If Hon. Mr. Blackmon had turned Republican surely, the Clanton Press would not be more against him than it is.

The Progressives and Republicans are very quiet, but Oh my, what a clamor in the other camp; it is sickening.

Mr. G. W. Hodgens of Bibb was in this part Sunday afternoon.

Misses Clara and Lucile Smitherman were shopping in Randolph Saturday.

Edgar Scott's little child died last week. Funeral services conducted by Revs. Posey and Waldrup. Mr. Posey directed his hearers to the tender love of Christ toward little children. Mr. Walbrup emphasized the glory to follow in the consumation of the great plan of the ages.

If we remember right, the Clanton Press has liberally praised Mr. Blackmon, then if he was such a good Congressman, he is the logical candidate and should be returned to Congress.

Rev. M. C. Abercrombie of Centerville will preach at Union Springs chapel the 2nd Sunday in April at 11 o'clock a.m.

Some from here attended the district Sunday school convention at Oak Grove Sunday, and report a good session. The speeches were fine. Rev. Winkler sure did make a fine talk. Miss Gidson read one of the finest papers we ever heard.

The light is breaking in; surely the greatest preparation of all history is now being made for the boys and girls of today, who will be the voters of tomorrow. It all points to a golden future. Everything is roseate with hope. Underwood may be triumphant now, but the work of the gallant Hobson, for the rescue of the boys and girls will never die. The whole church of Alabama must be for his work for prohibition.

Baker Schoolh'se

Health of this community is very good except Mrs. J. J. Foshee. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Jim Lockhart and family visited C. C. Ward's Saturday night.

Prof. J. D. Weldon visited in this community Saturday night and Sunday.

Several from this place attended the concert at the Littlejohn Schoolhouse and report a nice time.

Mrs. L. R. Blackmon and son, Lucion, visited relatives near Verbena Thursday.

T. J. Baker and daughter, Miss Etta, and John W. Baker, visited relatives in Shelby county Monday.

W. J. Watson and wife visited the latters brother in Tuscaloosa Friday.

Jim Dunlap of Highland was a visitor at W. T. Ward's Friday night.

The rains are making our muddy roads still muddier. We need a better system of working them. I am in favor of Prof. H. L. Foshee's plan, that is putting the road tax money back in the district where it was paid from. The traction engine is not the thing for Chilton county. Our roads are too narrow, and there is too much mud. We need the road money back on the roads to gravel those muddy places, and hire teams to work to the small scrape, and force the hands subject to road duty, to put in their 10 days. I believe if this could be done, we would have better roads all over the county. So let us hear from some one else on this subject. Let's not wait for the officers to fix the plan of road working; let's all have a word in the matter. Let's all go to the polls and vote for the men that we think will use our tax money for the benefit of the masses of the coming people. We have been living on promises; "so for these many years," so let's try to elect men who we think will stand by us.

Clanton, Ala., March 30, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow space in your paper to say a few words to the people of Chilton county; especially the Progressives and Republicans. Of course as you know the Democratic primary comes off April the 6th, and not withstanding the fact that the democratic committee claims to have put up the bars, there will be some of them who will make streneous efforts to get all of the progressives and republicans they can into their primary. Of course if they (the democrats) thought or had any hopes that they could elect their county ticket without the help of some of our votes, they would not want us in their primary, but they know that they have not got democratic votes enough to elect their ticket, unless they can get our people divided, so you can see that they would like to get enough of our fellows to help them to elect their ticket in November. Of course some of our people may have some preferenece among democrats, but I want to warn the people to be wise and stay away from their (the democratic) primary.

Now my friends, if there is any of you who has any idea or intention of voting in the democratic primary I will just ask you to think and consider, to see what you might gain by so voting. Now I want to say that the very same crowd of political bosses that had control of the machine 18 or 20 years ago when they were stealing and stuffing ballot boxes in every election has yet got control of the same machine, and backed up by the railroad corporations and whisky interests. They expect to continue control if they have to steal and stuff ballot boxes again. We all know that the democratic party in Alabama will not give the people any relief. It has been Comer one time and O'Neal the next, and the corrupt conditions grow worse all the time. So judging by past experience, how can we expect anything better from the democrats?

Now my friends, take the record of the democrats here in our county, and we all know how taxes have been raised for the last 3 years, and we also know that the money has all gone and very little to show what it has been spent for. Now I want to say if there is any voter in the county who does not know the conditions of the county affairs now, and who did not know the conditions of the county's affairs 4 years ago, he certainly ought to investigate for himself and find out the conditions as they existed 4 years ago, and also see how they are at the present time, and I feel assured that you will see that it will be better to keep out of the democratic primary, and you will also see that it will be better for the people when they keep the democrats out of the offices in Chilton county.

Say, Mr. Editor, I want to ask a question for information; what was the cause of Mr. John Stanfield withdrawing from the race for Representative in the democratic primary? Of course you know we can hear rumors and reports. I would just like to know. Of course Mr. Editor, if you can't answer the question, why maybe you can pass it up to some democrat that can answer it.

Now in conclusion, I want to again call the attention of the people to the importance of turning out to the Progressive primary on April the 21st and nominating the men that you want to fill the various offices for the next 4 years. I want to say that so far as I know, we have got a set of candidates who are all fine men, therefore I feel assured that after our primary we will have a ticket composed of good clean and competent men, and I feel assured that we will be able to give the dem[illegible] the most stunning d[illegible]at they have ever had in this county.

Yours respectfully,

W. H. Gillespie.

There Is No Prosperity About It.

Democratic reports are wonders for cheerful mention of a great increase of exports. They indicate that since the Democrats put the Protective Tariff into the Free-Trade column there has been an increase of many million dollars in the value of exports from the United States. In the next line, after the flash of the glorious news has blinded the eyes of the innocents, there is the information that two-thirds of that increase is the sale of raw cotton to foreign lands, more of that cotton than ever before and at higher prices. That is what the Democrats call a sign of prosperity. It is the process of sending more of the cotton of the South to other countries to be made up by the cheaper labor there, the labor which cost less than half what labor in this country cost for the same work. Then the cotton goods are coming back here to be sold, and the profit in that business is going to the foreign manufacturers and the exporters there and the importers here. [illegible] means a profit got one [illegible]merican and a dozen foreigners, or 100 here and thousands there.

That is one Democratic measure of prosperity. The other third of increase in exports is almost entirely made up of steel products. That means a mass of machinery made in this country going abroad for use in the factories of other countries, machinery made in duplicate of the machines which are left idle by the change of base of manufacturing, in cotton and other goods. That machinery is to be used abroad by workers who get from a fourth to half the wages of Americans in this country, and the goods made on that machinery are to be sold here at not one cent smaller prices than similar goods made here have been sold for years. Everybody who knows what mill machinery is understands that that quick increase of exports of American steel products cannot be kept up for long, because as soon as the foreigner get enough of it to manufacture the goods they are to sell here they will not need more machinery for years.

There is the truth of the misleading Democratic claims of an increased foreign trade with the cash coming back this way to do Americans good. There is no prosperity about it. The elements of idleness for hundreds of thousands of people in this country are in it. They will appear on the surface soon. Democrats will come to understand them. Then this country will vote itself back into Protective Tariff Americanism and proceed to get back into the only way by which prosperity can be worked out. There is never any prosperity in providing other people with raw materials for manufacturing and then buying the goods they make.

DEFICIT IS NOTED BY STATE AUDITOR

DURING PAST FISCAL YEAR EXPENDITURES EXCEEDED RECEIPTS $256,903.67.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS ITEMS

Doings of the Various Departments of e Commonwealth Given for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

The long looked for annual report of the state auditor was put on in printed from, showing that the state, during the fiscal year which closed October 1, 1913, spent $256,903,67 more than was received from all sources.

The entire receipts were $6,288,-992.07, and the disbursements were $6,545,895.74.

"The balance in the treasury at the close of business on September 30, 1913, was $99,267.54," the auditor said, in a foreword to the governor. The previous year he said it was $262,052.38. The outstanding warrants on October 1, 1913, were $482,464.61, and a temporary loan of $100,-000. "You will see from this report, that our expenditures are far in excess of our receipts," he said.

A comparative statement by the auditor shows the disbursements for the past fiscal year to be $266,874.91 in excess of those for the previous year.

Count Covers Election Day.

Members of the Alabama Supreme Court are preparing for the spring term, which will begin April 6, with the call of the first division cases. During the first division week the impeachment proceedings brought against Probate Judge W. T. Lawler, of Madison County, will be argued before the court. The testimony in this case was taken at Huntsville last week by Addison White, special master for the court.

Judge Lawler is charged with corruption in office and wilful neglect of duty. The charge of incompetency was ruled out of the proceedings. The charges against Judge Lawler grew out of an examination of his accounts made by Judge W. F. Wilkinson, examiner. 'It was charged by the examiner that warrants were illegally issued by Judge Lawler and that these warrants were not entered on the minutes of the commissioner's court.

Cases from the first division will be heard during the first week of the court. The counties composing the first division are Mobile, Baldwin, Washington, Choctaw, Monroe and Clarke.

Lacy Silent Before Grand Jury.

Theo Lacy, convicted Chief Clerk of the State Convict Department, refused to say a word when called before the Grand Jury to testify about his charge that he gave Governor O'Neal $27,000 in May or June, 1911, and that it had not been returned, according to reports in Montgomery lately.

Lacy was before the Grand Jury about twenty minutes, and afterwards the inquisititorial body recessed. While no information has been obtained from the Grand Jury, many are placing credence in the report that Lacy would not talk.

It is understood that Lacy refused to testify on the ground that he did not care to say anything that might incriminate himself.

W. T. Seibels, County Solicitor, refused to discuss anything that transpired in the Grand Jury room. He told newkspaper representatives they would have to use their own discretion about sending the report, and that he had not one word to say.

In his charge to the Grand Jury Judge Brown warned the members that he would punish any person guilty of giving away secrets of the investigation.

Lacy refused to comment on the reports in circulation.

Accounts of Ex-Officials Correct.

Books and accounts of Arthur Cunningham, former Treasurer of Conecuh county school funds; J. N. Grenade, former treasurer of Washington county school funds, and G. M. Harper, former superintendent of education of Conecuh county, were correctly and accurately kept, according to a report filed in the office of Governor O'Neal by J. T. Gorman, examiner of public accounts.

R. R. Commission Meets April 8.

Owing to the conflict in date of the primary election on April 6, and the monthly session of the state railroad commission, announcement has been made of the postponement of the meeting of the commission until Wednesday, April 8. The commission will have under consideration at that time a lengthy docket, the various coal rate cases having been set for the April session. A large number of other matters are also scheduled to come before the commission at its next meeting.

May Go Before Grand Jury.

The governor of Alabama is willing to appear before the Montgomery county grand jury at any time and furnish any information the body desires in connection with the charge made by Theo Lacy that he gave to the governor in 1911 $27,500.

The governor declared that he has notified Solicitor Temple Seibels of this fact, and that he will go before the body and testify freely.

Two examiners of public accounts were summoned to appear before the grand jury, but when they arrived the body had adjourned until Friday. These were H. Y. Brooke and former Examiner Frank V. Evans. They were summoned to give testimony in connection with the Lacy charge.

The governor declared that Examiner Brooke is not making any examination of the state convict department and that no examination of any kind in that department is under way. Examiner J. T. Gorman is in Montgomery, but he is examining the books and accounts of the Ninth district agricultural schools.

Second Trial of Oakley.

Attorneys for the State are preparing the records, which will be submitted to the Shelby County Circuit Court on April 7, when James G. Oakley will be tried on a charge of embezzling about $3,500 of State funds. When this case was called at the last term of the court Oakley's physician appeared and stated that his patient was too ill to stand trial.

Oakley is charged with the conversion of about $3,500 of State funds, which he is alleged to have used personally. When he was tried in Montgomery County recently on another indictment, Oakley admitted that he had used the State funds, but that he did so in the belief that he was using his own money. He declared that in 1911 he paid over to Theo Lacy, former chief clerk of the State Convict Department, $27,500 and that he thought that he was using this money when he converted State checks. Oakley was president of the State Convict Department at the time that Lacy left Montgomery carrying with him about $90,000 of State funds.

Reports in Pamphlets.

Pamphlets containing the reports of the State Examiners of Public Accounts for the last year will be mailed to all the newspapers of the State by Governor O'Neal. These reports are filed as they are finished in the Governor's office, but Governor O'Neal believes that the people should be permitted to see them, hence he will compile a condensed statement of the reports and send them to the papers in various parts of the State.

This is the first time these reports have been handled in this fashion.

NEGRO MINISTER MUST DIE

He Was Arrested While Baptizing Member of Flock.

Montgomery. — Louis Johnson, a negro, was sentenced to death for the murder of W. H. Underwood, well-knwn Montgomery county planter, by a jury in the criminal division of the city court. Johnson was charged with being the man who fired the gun, while three other negroes participated in the commission of the crime. Justice Arrington was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Johnson is a minister and was arrested last fall while baptizing a member of his flock in the middle of a creek in the interior of Montgomery county.

SURVEY ISLANDS IN BAY

Mobile Hopes to Obtain Titles Giving It Increased Water Frontage.

Mobile. — The dream of Mobile city fathers who have looked forward to the time when the municipality would have control of the greater part of the water front of the port, neared the beginning of its materialization when the city commissioners took the first steps towards the establishment of a terminal facility system on sand islands that have been thrown up in the deepening of the Mobile channel.

The commissioners ordered a survey of the city's bay front property south of Mobile and of the newly-made land in the bay, with a view to erecting one or a pair of half-mile piers extending out upon the islands, parallel with the channel, a system of docks and a railroad line connecting the islands with the tracks of the Louisville & Nashville, Mobile & Ohio and New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago railroads, on the mainland.

It has been practically assured that the city has a clear title to the artificial island bordering the channel.

TO REGULATE TRADE

ONE ANTI-TRUST MEASURE IS WELL ON ITS WAY TO PASSAGE.

WILL BE INDEPENDENT BODY

Interstate Trade Commission Given Power to Investigate Organization and Business of Any Corporation Engaged in Commerce.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—One of the anti-trust measures prepared by the Democrats in congress with the approval of President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds is on its way toward passage. The measure is the one establishing an interstate trade commission. The Democrats in congress have found that a good many of their Republican brethren approve the bill in the form in which it has been submitted and there seems to be little doubt that on its final passage a considerable Republican vote will be recorded in its favor.

This commission measure was unanimously agreed upon by its framers who constitute a subcommittee of the house interstate commerce committee and in the membership of the framing body were both Democrats and Republicans.

An Independent Body.

Of the bill Representative Covington has said:

"The whole theory of the creation of the commission has been to make it an efficient independent body. In most of the matters of publicity it has entire control of the facts gathered. Publicity is left to its discretion, and the bill contains ample authority for it to prevent the disclosures of those necessary trade secrets, valueless to the public, in promoting lawful competitive business, but which, was disclosed, simply afford opportunity for injurious use by competitors. Powers of investigation, safeguarded by proper constitutional limitations against unlawful searches and seizures, are taken from a new subordinate department under the control of the executive and given to this nonpartisan body."

Under the interstate trade commission bill all the powers and duties of the present bureau of corporations and of the commissioner of corporations are transferred to the commission of three members, all of whom are to be presidential appointees, subject to confirmation by the senate, and each of whom will draw a salary of $10,000 annually. Only two of the commissioners can be of the same political party.

Every corporation that is engaged in interstate commerce, except corporations subject to the act to regulate commerce, and which has a capital of $5,000,000 or more, or having less capital belongs to a class of corporations which the commission may establish, is to be obliged to furnish to the new body annually "such information, statement and records of organization, bondholders and stockholders and financial condition, and also such opinion, statements and records of its relations to other corporations and its business and practises while engaged in commerce, as the commission shall require."

Powers of the Commission.

Here is section 10 of the bill which shows specifically the powers of the commission in matters of investigation:

"Section 10. The commission shall, upon the direction of the president, the attorney general, or either house of congress, investigate the organization, management and business of any corporation while engaged in commerce, to aid in ascertaining whether or not the corporations investigated is violating the acts relating to restraint of trade. And the commission shall make a report of such investigation, which may include recommendations for readjustment of business in order that said corporation may thereafter maintain its organization, management and conduct of business in accordance with law. Reports made after investigation may be made public in the discretion of the commission."

The annual reports which corporations shall turn in containing the required information and statistics for the previous year must be made out under oath and filed with the commission at its office in Washington within three months after the close of the year, for which the report is made. In cases of necessity it will be within the power of the commission to grant additional time.

If a corporation delays in turning in its report the bill as drawn penalizes it at $100 for each day of the delay. A provision of one of the bills proposed, but not accepted, placed the fine at $1,000 a day for delays in turning in reports, but congress seems to have thought that this was excessive.

Reading Test Is Sure.

Some weeks ago it was said in these dispatches that before many months had elapsed adult aliens seeking admission to the United States would be tested as to their ability to read. This was written with full knowledge that President Wilson would prefer that the literacy test should be excluded from the law. Members of congress who seemingly are in a position to know Mr. Wilson's mind on the subject now seem to have no doubt that the measure will get his signature. It is virtually certain that neither senate nor house will insist that the literacy clause be excluded from the pending legislation.

Senators and representatives who oppose the literacy test as a part of the immigration bill still believe that because of its presence in the measure President Wilson will interpose his veto. The friends of the test clause in congress, however, are insistent in their belief that the measure will get the president's signature.

This division of opinion with friend on one side and foe on the other makes it appear that the wish is father to the thought in each case. Perhaps it is, but the accumulating evidence is that while the president personally is opposed to submitting aliens to the reading test, he will sign the bill with the objectionable clause included.

Ask Reading Test.

The legislatures of Ohio, Tennessee, Virginia and Vermont and of several other states have adopted resolutions asking congress to impose a reading test on adult aliens seeking admission to this country. The great labor organizations, the largest organizations of farmers both of the North and South, and other organizations all over the country have been petitioning the lawmakers for years to put the "reading test" on the statute books.

It is said in Washington that President Wilson, while personally opposed to the literacy test, has made up his mind that he should pay heed to the wishes of congress and especially to a report made by the commission which spent four years investigating and studying in this country and in Europe the whole immigration subject. The report of the commission was made to congress some time ago. The majority of the commission favored not only a writing test as "the most feasible single method of restricting undesirable immigration."

Strong feeling, bitter feeling, in fact, is expressed by some members of congress against the reading test. The basic argument of opponents of the literacy clause is that this country will be untrue to its traditions and to the spirit in which the republic was founded if it shall refuse admittance to men and women otherwise fit for citizenship simply because they cannot read. These opponents of the literacy test say that economic considerations ought not to weigh against an effort to maintain a true democracy.

Great Naval Pageant.

It finally has been definitely decided by the navy department that the sixteen most formidable American battleships, the dreadnaughts of our navy, shall be designated to lead the great procession of vessels through the Panama canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific on the occasion of the big celebration marking, although some months afterward, the completion of the waterway.

There has been no change of intention with regard to giving the place of honor at the head of the line to the old battleship Oregon, now almost out of date, but with a record which makes it fitting that old as she is and feeble by comparison as she is, that she shall lead the way as she has lead it on battle occasion once before. In the immediate wake of the Oregon will come the sixteen war monsters of the American battleship fleet.

The dreadnaughts of the navies of the world will pass in procession through the Panama canal early next year. It will be "power on parade." The mountains back of Culebra and of Empire will look on a scene which will diminish to nothingness the scene of the sweep of the Spanish Armada toward Flamborough Head.

Rapidly the preparations are making for the gathering of the warships in Colon harbor. It may be that the great event may be set forward from January to March, for it is possible that the operating force of the canal will not be trained to a point of efficiency to make it absolutely safe to entrust it with the safeguarding of the great fleets in their course from ocean to ocean, but within twelve months the procession will pass, and it will be such a one as never before was witnessed in this world of ours.

Many Nations Promise.

Washington officials already have been definitely informed that 85 warships of foreign nations will take part in the Panama canal parade. Tentative promises have been made that other "ships of the alien" will be added to the list and that when the great day comes there will be 120 foreigners in line to take the wake of the American craft.

While the American battleships will lead the procession other American vessels will be distributed at different points along the line of parade. One Yankee detachment will consist of 28 torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

Every nation on earth which has a navy, or enough of a navy to supply vessels for other than home guard purposes, will be represented in the sailing line.

It is 42 miles from Colon harbor to Panama harbor. The first eight miles of the canal from the Atlantic side are at ocean level. Then the first of the flight of three locks built by Lieut. Col. William L. Sibert will be reached and each battleship must be locked up the stairway separately. Only one ship will be admitted to a lock at a time, which means, however, that locking operations for three ships can be going on simultaneously, for the flight of three locks at Gatun is so arranged that one vessel can be on each one of the three steps at once.

It needs only an appreciation of the huge number of ships that are to be locked through the Panama canal on the day of the great procession to make one understand the delicacy and responsibility of the work of the operating forces of the locks.

SPRING FLOODS PLAYING HAVOC

HEAVY PROPERTY LOSS SUSTAINED BY MISSISSIPPI MERCHANTS BY RISING WATERS.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED $200,000

Many Sections of the Country Report Rivers Above Danger Line and Damage Is Feared.

Jackson, Miss.—Fed by five inches of rainfall within 48 hours a creek running through Jackson broke out of its banks and the business section of the city was flooded. At one time the rising water was two feet deep in the lobby of the Royal hotel, the principal hostelry of the city. The rear wall of the Auto Supply Co. garage collapsed and it is fear the raging water will undermine the entire structure.

Damage so far done is estimated to be at least$200,000. As far as known no person has been hurt.

The water rose so rapidly that merchants did not have time to move their stocks from basements and first floors. The Illinois Central freight depot is flooded and freight damaged. The plant of the Capital Light and Power company has been put out of commission.

Ohio Suffers.

Columbus, O.—With the Great Miami and Whitewater rivers raging, the Scotio climbing a foot an hour and the Muskingum and Licking rivers out of their banks along the lowlands, anxiety was felt of a recurrence of the disastrious floods of March 25-28, 1913.

A cessation of rainfall followed by colder weather, however, has checked the rise. Damage so far reported has been confined to the southwestern sections of the state, where bridges have been washed out.

Above Danger Line.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Susquehanna and Delaware rivers, which rise in New York state, are greatly swollen by the melting snow in the mountains in eastern Pennsylvania, and by the steady rain that set in.

At Wilkesbarre the lowlands are covered with water and street car traffic with towns on the west side of the Susquehanna has been cut off.

The state water supply commission has issued a warning that the river will go above the danger line at several points.

Hudson River Rising.

New York.—Spring floods have set in throughout the valleys of the state and already much property damage is reported. At Troy, where the Hudson river is rising rapidly, merchants along the river front are removing goods to safer places.

Amsterdam reports part of the bridge over the Mohawk river there carried away and the southern section of the city is cut off from the main part of town.

The Chenanga and Susquehanna rivers are overflowing into the lowlands about Binghamton.

At Syracuse, Onondaga creek is leaving its banks and entering miles of territory. Ithaca and Schnectady also retport flood conditions beyond usual spring freshet marks.

At Schnectady the Mohawk river is over the Scotia dike and the lower streets of the city are flooded. Ice is jammed against the bridge connecting Schnectady and Scotia. There is also a heavy ice pack against the Erie canal equeduct, four miles east has already been rshrldu etaoinnp of the city. The Rexford bridge has already been carried away. The river is rising rapidly.

High Above Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Flood stages were reported from the upper Allegheny river because of melting snows and heavy rains. At Warren, Pa., it was rising rapidly and much damage had been done. Trolley and railroad lines were reported in trouble and a number of factories had shut down. There is no flood in the Monongahela and no immediate prospect of one.

Two Men Drown.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Two unidentified men were drowned when Freeman's bridge over the Mohawk river, two miles west of here, was swept away. The damage done here by the high water thus far amounts of $200,-000. The river is falling and it is believed that the danger has been passed.

City in Danger.

Binghamton, N. Y.—A steady downpour of rain all night increased the gravity of the flood situation here. The Chenango river broke over its banks, flooding the residential section of the city. The Susquehanna rose to a point at daylight which imperilled the central section of the city.

Hudson is Rising

Albany, N. Y.—The Hudson river is rising rapidly here and dwellers along the river front are moving to places of safety.

WAITING ATTIUDE IN IRON AND STEEL

New Bookings Will Not Equal Febary—Buying Held Back.

New York.—Dun's review of trade says:

Expected improvement in trade conditions has not yet materialized and while indications of progress are manifest in certain directions, there is still a lack of uniformity in leading centers. A somewhat backward spring has militated against a normal demonstration of seasonable merchandise.

The country's agricultural outlook constitutes a highly important factor, and it is extremely gratifying that prospects for the winter wheat crop leave little to be desired.

Similiarly, cotton is entering upon the new year under favorable auspices on the whole, and prices of the great southern staple have lately shown somewhat less firmness.

News from the iron and steel industry—the foremost business barometer—reflects a waiting attitude upon the part of consumers and new bookings this month will not equal those of February.

Failures this week in the United States are 343, against 248 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 38, against 25 last year.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Retail trade expands where bright warm weather prevails and jobbers feel some of this in reorders for the late spring season, but wholesale trade, industry and new financial operations go forward haltingly.

Distant buying is held in check by conservation, producers of steel need orders to maintain operations; financial interests proceed caustiously in the matter of new financing, pending the establishment of the regional banking system; poor country roads, following the thaw, restrict interior movements; industrial lines as a whole are not doing better than fair and while some are working to about full capacity, more of them are operating at only half speed, the whole investing the situation in this respect with a ragged appearance.

Failures for the week 299, against 289 last year. Wheat exports, 2,780,-352 bushels, against 3,077,494; bank clearings, $3,153,872,000, an increase of 14.3 per cent over year.

Reach Compromise on Siegel Claims.

Effects of Child Labor Law Shown.

Boston.—The new law prohibiting the employment of children between 14 and 16 years of age, more than eight hours a day resulted in the discharge during the first year of 4000 out of between 25,000 and 30,000 employed, according to a special report filed with Governor Walsh by the labor and industries commission.

Citizens Deported.

Nogales, Sonora.—Twenty-two citizens of Sonora, suspected of being in sympathy with Huerta, were deported. One was Juan Bojorquez, a prominent busines man of Hermosillo. M. N. Bernel, a broker, was arrested here yesterday and lodged in jail. The charge was not divulged.

Lillian Bogue Divorced.

Wellesly to Resume Work.

Wellesly, Mass.—President Ellen F. Pendleton announced that arrangements made since the recent fire which destroyed College hall assured college April 7.

Protest Against Men's Suspension.

Altoona, Pa.—Following the suspension of 1200 employes from all departments of the Pennsylvania shops as a result of the company's retrenchment policy, a meeting of suspended men was held to protest. Speakers urged the men to resist what they claimed to be an assault on union labor. The speakers claimed efficiency and seniority were disregarded in making suspension. The suspensions have disturbed business in this city, the railroad shops being virtually the sole dependence of Altoona.

DEMOCRATS OF ALABAMA STAND TO YOUR GUNS

Democracy Attacked and Alabama Humiliated in Hobson Publications. Preparing an Assault on President.

To the Alabama Democracy:

We present the name of Oscar W. Underwood, a Congressman from Alabama, for nomination to the Senate. We ask your approval of his services to State and Nation. Christian citizen, renowned Alabamian, and one of the foremost Democrats of his time; to speak evil of him does credit to no man.

Big enough to have been overwhelmingly elected by his colleagues to the position of leader in the House, he has made good—beyond the record of any Southerner since the early days of the Republic—and he is big enough to stand to his guns, with the guns on the enemy, and with a courage that is past the understanding of mean souls.

In this State there are men who charge this great and simple Democrat with every vicious motive, and rejoice in vulgar reference toward him and toward those who present his claim to his people. Beware the bears of Abraham!

Where the Fight Leads.

Behind Underwood is the President and the first successful Democratic administration for 50 years—just beginning its wholesome career, together with an overwhelming majority of the Democrats of the Nation. Behind Hobson are many good people in Alabama, and more in other States who look without favor upon our party and people—eager for the disintegration to begin, eager for a revolution in Southern social and political conditions.

Win or lose, the resentment of Hobson toward the administration, coupled with his recklessness of statement and his ambition, are certain to result in an attack on the President and his administration for their estimation of Underwood and their concern to retain his fine efficiency in active service. Will you give official dignity to that inevitable assault? You put both President and party in power. Yours is the privilege and duty to sustain them.

The Inevitable Assault.

That Hobson is preparing to go before the people of other sections in pursuit of his ambition, with bitter charges against Woodrow Wilson and his administration, is certain and inevitable fact. In his Tuscaloosa speech (March 21) he charged that Woodrow Wilson was in conspiracy with or duped by Governor O'Neal and Mr. Glass; that the administration substitute for the Clarke cotton futures bill, handed to Mr. Underwood by President Wilson, and offered by Mr. Underwood as an administration measure, was a conspiracy with Wall Street interests. Even now, after Burleson's just and honorable statement, Hobson and his followers sound the bitter charge.

With scant restraint now, win or lose, the primary will release the flood gates of his fury.

Imagine Underwood, with the battle on—shot down intentionally by his own people! Imagine Hobson, at large with a Senator's commission and the habits of a privateersman, revenging himself upon the President! We would excite the derision of the world, the everlasting resentment of Democracy.

The Distant Scene.

Success in this contest for Captain Hobson would bear no suggestion of patient service in the Senate. It would mean for him the distant scene, the conquest of new horizons, under the remorseless pressure of his ambition. His platform for the approval of distant sects and alien sympathies has been laid bare with astounding frankness. Sent here for the purpose, and after conferring with Hobson or his managers, Angus McSween has written the most remarkable series of articles ever reproduced in a Southern paper, defining the issues as seen by the Hobson forces, and stating Hobson's appeal for the approval of the distant people.

War Declared.

Declaring war against Democracy, State and National, and against the traditions of the State of Alabama, the articles ring with defiance and picture Hobson as a leader, towering above a backward, sullen, sordid people.

Remember, Democrats, these articles, written in conference with Hobson or his managers, were featured and republished in his campaign papers (Advance and Citizen), and are stoutly defended in the Hobsin advertisements. We quote:

Backward State and Ignorant People.

"Whiskey and special privilege fighting together against the aroused prohibition sentiment and progressive spirit of a backward Southern State * * * are the real issues.

Whiskey and special privilege * * * are tremendous forces in controlling the action of voters especially when many of those voters are ignorant and can be easily misled, and a great many of them are poor and easily intimidated."

Down With Traditions.

"This effort to defeat Underwood * * * is the first * * * organized effort to break away from the traditions of the past."

The Old Appeal.

The articles display the old appeal to alien prejudices, complaining that segregation of the races "tends to make the situation worse, for the white man has more self-control, and he has a great restraiinng influence upon the negro," adding that here in Birmingham and throughout the State the negro is now the victim of the cruelest oppression, without any rights which the white man feels bound to respect, and without the right to vote. Then follows the loathsome statement that respected white firms in the liquor trade—mark you, respected firms—sold whiskey to negroes in bottles with indescribable pictures and mottoes, leading to the inevitable result and punishment, and that the negro has no justice because the fees of his prosecutors depend upon his conviction. What degredation of bitterness to proclaim of Alabama, all to gild Hobson as an heroic spirit risen out of so vile a Nazareth; and all of it approved, republished and defended by the Captain's managers.

The Cloven Hoof.

The reason for it all is declared, republished, approved and defended by the Hobson forces in this pregnant sentence, threatening war upon Underwood, Wilson and Democracy.

"Oscar Underwood, Democratic leader in the House of Representatives and Democratic organization candidate for the United States Senate in this State, with the support of President Wilson and the whole national administration, is charged with being a * * * representative of the special interest. The evidence in support of this charge is so manifest and overwhelming that the charge has to be set down as true. It is not only true with respect to Underwood, but it is true concerning the whole Democratic organization behind Underwood."

Wilson, Underwood, Democracy.

In short, says the Hobson summary, Woodrow Wilson and Oscar Underwood, scholars, gentlemen and Democrats, have seduced the Democracy of the State and Nation into a conspiracy to keep Alabama "backward" in morals and defeat Hobson's effort to change our traditions and disintegrate our social status.

Will you, on such a theory as that, commission Hobson as Senator to go abroad through the land after his changing gods, seeking the approval of a distant people, or will you stand by your President, your party and the man proven in the house of his fathers?

"The Angels Smile."

A nation looks with curious gaze upon Alabama. Democracy stands tense with alarm—but the angels smile with the knowledge that you, Democrats of Alabama, are going to kill the fatted calf for the son who deserted not the house of his fathers.

Candidates for the Legislature from Jefferson county are being urged by the Real Estate Association of Birmingham to take up the question of equitable tax assessments over the State. The conference of business men throughout the State of Alabama and State educators, which was to have been held in Birmingham on April 8, immediately preceding the Alabama Educational association convention in Birmingham, has been postponed indefinitely. WALTER D. SEED.

Walter D. Seed favors educational appropriations mainly for public schools; the payment of old soldiers in full; appropriations directly for the advancement of the farmer upon the farm, and the repeal of the Back Tax Commission law. He opposes any further increase of taxation; any further raise in salaries, or added number of office holders.

After the railroads surrendered, the benefits to be derived from reduction in railroad rates have been delayed until after May 18th, just one week after the second primary. Is not this delay caused in order that Charles Henderson may continue his candidacy undisturbed? If the reduction in freight secured should prove to be three or more millions of dollars annually, has not this delay for several months cost the people of Alabama a million of dollars?

Mr. Seed is a farmer; not a single farmer has been Governor of the State since the sixties.

The impression prevails that about one hundred thousand dollars has been spent in the interest of the two candidates for Governor virtually trying to buy the office. Do you endorse this? The impression is growing that Seed is the only man who can certainly win if in the second primary, and should therefore be voted for in the first. Every Seed man has been made a vice-president of the Seed Club; let him post himself and either deliver speeches in his behalf, or work in his behalf, from now until the close of the election day.

FOUND THE MEANEST MAN

Little Doubt That Turk's Bequest Was Bestowed as He Intended It Should Be.

A Turkish story runs that, dying, a pious man bequeathed a fortune to his son, charging him to give $500 to the meanest man he could find, and $500 to the most foolish.

The most foolish man is another story; as to the meanest, accounts agreed that a certain cadi filled the bill. Accordingly the dutiful son offered him $500.

"But I can't take your $500," said the cadi, "I never knew your father; there was no reason why he should leave me money."

"It's yours all right," persisted the mourning youth.

"I might take it in a fictitious transaction," said the cadi, relenting. "Suppose—I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll sell you all that snow in the courtyard for $500."

The young man agreed, willing to be quit of his trust on any terms. Next day he was arrested, taken before the cadi, and ordered to remove his snow at once. Being unable to comply he was fined $100 for contumacy.

"At least," he said, ruefully, as he left the court, "father's $500 went to the right man."—New York World.

Fatal Premonition.

Grant Duff in his diary tells a curious story of a "seeress." Mlle. Lenormand was consulted by Robespierre and Napoleon I. Grant Duff's father had a strange experience with Mlle. Lenormand. He said a friend went to consult her, and after she had told him what he wanted to know, she tried with the friend, but became confused, said her heart failed her and begged him to leave the house. He persuaded her to try again, and again the same result followed. Then, declaring that this had never happened to her before, she lost all patience and implored him to leave instantly. He did so, and as he passed out of her door was knocked down and killed by a heavy wagon.

An Arab who visited New York city is said to have sent this letter home: "People in America travel like rats under the ground (meaning the subway), and like squirrels in the air (meaning the elevated railways), and the buildings are so high that people have to be put in square boxes and pulled to the top by heavy ropes (meaning the elevator). In the day the sun furnishes the light the same as in Morocco. At night the light is as strong as the day, but people here do not seem to have much use for sleep, as the streets are just as crowded at night as in the day."—Outlook.

MALICE IN HOST'S REMARK

Even Thick-Skinned Man of Wealth Could Hardly Fail to Understand the Insinuation.

It was probably only Robinson's wealth that had allowed his intrusion in the very select shooting party. He was certainly quite the worst shot that had ever happened in the neighborhood, and everyone was determined after the first day that either he should retire or that on the morrow he should have the moors to himself. Blissfully unconscious of the impression he had produced, he was talking very big after dinner.

"By Jove, yes!" he remarked, in reminiscent mood. "In my young days I brought down a grizzly in the Rockies. They told me it was the biggest they had ever seen."

His host leant forward very quietly.

"You don't say so," he observed, with glassy eye. "And what were you aiming at?"

Bruno Was Vindicated.

A lady leading a Scotch terrier by a silver chain entered a street car, eastbound, the other afternoon. The dog crawled under the seat and went to sleep. Presently a stout man carrying a market basket took the vacant place beside her. In a few blocks the woman began to get nervous. "Stop it, Bruno!" she cried in a shrill whisper. She had no dog permit and the situation was delicate.

Presently she turned pale and, jerking the chain, cried: "Lie down Bruno, and behave yourself!" A moment later she jumped up and began to do a solo dance. The fat man beside her stared at her in astonishment. Then an idea struck him, and he stooped over and looked at his basket. Recovering himself with a great effort, he said:

"Madam, when you are through with my lobster will you kindly return it to me?"

It took smelling salts to bring the lady to herself. But Bruno was vindicated.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The old and good jokes come precious near to being matched in real life. Phil May's little girl, watching the boy at the hokey-pokey stand, and remarking: "Don't he make a gawd of his stummick? That's the second 'ap'orth I've seed 'im 'ave this mornin'," was capped by a certain pony-coated one of the "facile prink-ups" at a tango tea. A slim and satisfied-looking young man had just bade her goodby. He was off to another occasion of the same kind.

"Gee," she sniffed, "don't that guy woiship his feet? It'll be the thold time he's tangoed this afternoon!"

THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION DEFENDS O. W. UNDERWOOD

Burleson Crushes Attacks of Hobson and McElderry on Cotton-Futures Bill.

Hobson and McElderry and the Hobson writers have fiercely attacked Mr. Underwood on account of his substitute for the Clarke amendment to the tariff bill, saying that Underwood was in conspiracy with the Wall Street gamblers. (Hobson's Tuscaloosa speech, March 21, and everywhere.) Shamed out of all other charges, they have stuck to this to the last.

Underwood's Statement.

Many months ago Mr. Underwood stated the facts about this matter in the following words:

"As to the Clarke amendment (relating to the cotton exchange dealings), the amendment we offered in the House was prepared by Postmaster General Burleson and the Secretary of Agriculture, Houston, and handed me by the President of the United States in the presence of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina. He asked me to offer it as a substitute for the Clarke amendment, all of these gentlemen believing that it better protected the farmer's interests and at the same time did not work the injury that would have been done by the Clarke amendment.

As stated in my former letter, I offered this substitute in the House, passed it and sent it to the Senate, and we would have legislated on the subject if the Senate had not receded from its own amendment and carried my substitute out of the bill."

The Final Word.

Office of Postmaster General,
Washington, D. C., Mar. 23, 1914.
Hon. O. W. Underwood,
House of Representatives:

My Dear Mr. Underwood—My attention has been attracted by an article which appeared recently in the Birmingham Ledger, wherein it was sought to show that you, in proposing and advancing your cotton amendment to the Underwood tariff bill, acted in a manner prejudicial to the interests of the cotton growers.

The statements contained in this article are calculated to do you a grave injustice, and it is in the interest of fairness that the public be correctly informed as to the true origin of the amendment and its real merits.

The amendment originated with the Secretary of Agriculture and myself, and was sponsored by you at the request of the Preesident. Both Mr. Houston and myself are intimately acquainted with the conditions in the cotton industry and are keenly sensitive to the needs of the producers. Our plan was designed to free the cotton growers from the iniquitous trade conditions, the correction of which has for several years engrossed the attention of the best friends of the cotton growers. The amendment, as approved by the President and advocated by you, was the result of our combined judgments.

Cotton Legislation.

Under the present economic conditions the cotton exchange is a necessary institution designed to perform a useful function for the industry, and if properly regulated it will contribute materially to the welfare of the grower. The amendment proposed by you would have defined the proper field for the exchange and would not in any way have impaired its usefulness. The growers would be protected against those speculators whose operations for many years have created artificial trade conditions under which the value of cotton has been depressed. It is conceivable that such speculators might oppose this proposed legislation, but there is no possible ground on which it might be opposed on behalf of the producers.

Underwood's Untiring Efforts.

It therefore seems clear that in no act in your long record of untiring effort in the interest of your agricultural constituents have you ever displayed greater foresight or more zeal in their behalf than in presenting this amendment.

Yours very turly,

What was the Democratic executive committee called for last Saturday? Was it not to intimidate certain Democrats and make them fall in line?

Think of a railroad lawyer of Montgomery dictating to the democratic committee of this county what to do and who shall be allowed to vote in their primary.

Talk about boss rule! The crowd that "busted" the Democratic party in 1892 had no gall at all compared with the gang that is operating the machine at present.

There are a few Democratic politicians in this county trying to get some of the Progressive Republicans to go into the primary April 6th and vote for the Democrats.

What can a Progressi ve promise him self in return for voting in the Democratic primary at this time? A great many of the Democrats themselves are getting tired of the methods being used by their party in this state.

Will any of the Progressives go into the Democratic primary and by their acts indorse such methods as are being used in this county and state by the democrats? Can any Progressive take such a pill?

Remember what the chairman of the Democratic party of the State says about those who vote in the Democratic primary and did not support the democratic ticket last time from constable to President.

After anyone stops and thinks of the condition of things in this state, and of of the record of some of the leading officials, how can he go into the primary and endorse such? Think of the graft in New York City. Is not Alabama getting almost as bad?

Tyler Goodwyn, chairman of the Democratic party in Alabama, says that he will see to it that every man that votes in the Democratic primary who did not vote the entire Democratic ticket last election will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law, $100 each.

The Progressive executive committee of the State will meet in the near future to arrange to have a full state ticket in the field this year. This will be the time for all men who believe in fair play, to get together and elect a state ticket this fall.

Didn't the chairman of the Democratic executive committee of this county, who is a member of the town council, tell the Marshal of the town of Clanton that unless he fell in line he would be discharged and someone else hired in his place? Has the time come when a man cannot vote as he pleases without losing his job?

The Democratic party in Chilton county would not be in line with the party in the state and nation if it were not divided into different factions at odds with each other. But if such may be termed a fit criterion for its sincerity and sympathy with the bosses, it seems that it would register a rather high degree.

"A house divided against itself cannot stand." The truth of this remark has been demonstrated too many times to carry with it the least doubt in its truth and correctness. As difference after difference arises in the Democratic party, and forces the elements farther and farther apart, we are caused to wonder which way the structure will fall.

After the Democratic Executive committee of Chilton county met and invited all qualified white voters of the county to participate in their primary, who was it that had Mr. E. M. Pinckard, the chairman of that committee, to call a second meeting and say to all men who did not support the democratic ticket at the last election, that they could not participate in their primary.

The music department of the Clanton High School will give a concert at the school building, Friday April 3rd at 7:30 p. m. admission of 15 cents for adult and 10 cents for children will be charged to help defray the expencse of the pianos used during the school session.

FOR THE GRIP

Peruna Is Sometimes Used With Good Results

Mrs. Jane Gift.

A great many people use Peruna for the grip. Some use it as soon as the grip begins, taking it during the acute stage of the disease, claiming for it great efficacy in shortening the disease, and especially in shortening the after stages.

Many people take it after they have had the grip. Their convalescence is slow. They have suffered along for a month or two, without any signs of complete recovery. Then they resort to Peruna as a tonic, with splendid results.

Mrs. Jane Gift, R. F. D. 1, Athens, Ohio, whose portrait appears above, writes: "I think I would have been dead long ago if it had not been for Peruna. Six years ago I had la grippe very bad. The doctor came to see me every day, but I gradually grew worse. I told my husband I thought I would surely die if I did not get relief soon.

"One day I picked up the newspaper and accidentally found a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. I told my husband I wanted to try it. He went directly to the drug store and got a bottle of Peruna. I could see the improvement in a very short time and was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was entirely cured."

Mr. Victor Patneaude, 328 Madison St., Topeka, Kas., writes: "Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength, but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again. This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system. My wife and I consider it a household remedy."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

ONE THING THE NEW TARIFF HAS DONE.

There is a direct relation between the slashed Tariff rates, the diminished factory output and the large army of unemployed. Even if the new rates have not pulled down the cost of necessaries they have greatly decreased the demand for labor.

Statistics of imports for the first four months of the new Tariff are illuminating. In that period the value of raw materials brought to this country dropped $47,000,000, and the imports of finished manufactures increased $10,000,000. The falling off in the importation of raw products not found in this country means the silencing of so many humming factory wheels and that, of course, means so many fewer men with steady work. Things we were manufacturing Europe is now making and sending to us.

Of course it is possible that the Democratic Tariff has beneficent features, but they are long in disclosing themselves. But don't be too impatient, just continue your watchful waiting and they may appear some day.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Woman Finally Recovers From Nervous Breakdown

Impoverished nerves destroy many people before their time. Often before a sufferer realizes what the trouble is, he is on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. It is of the utmost importance to keep your nervous system in good condition, as the nerves are the source of all bodily power. Mrs. Rosa Bonner, 825 N. 18th St., Birmingham, Ala., says:

"I have been suffering with nervous prostration for nine or ten years. Have tried many of the best doctors in Birmingham, but they all failed to reach my case. I would feel as if I was smothering; finally I went into convulsions. My little girl saw advertised in the papers and I at once began to take it. I continued to take it for some time and now I am well."

If you are troubled with loss of appetite, poor digestion, weakness, inability to sleep; if you are in a general run down condition and unable to bear your part of the daily grind of life, you need something to strengthen your nerves. You may not realize what is the matter with you, but that is no reason why you should delay treatment.

has proven its value in nervous disorders for thirty years, and merits a trial, no matter how many other remedies have failed to help you.

Sold by all druggists. If first bottle fails to benefit your money is returned.

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

Boy or Girl? Great Question!

This brings to many minds an old and tried family remedy—an external application known as "Mother's Friend." During the period of expectancy it is applied to the abdominal muscles and is designed to soothe the intricate network of nerves involved. In this manner it has such a splendid influence as to justify its use in all cases of coming motherhood. It has been generally recommended for years and years and those who have used it speak in highest praise of the immense relief it affords. Particularly do these knowing mothers speak of the absence of morning sickness, absence of strain on the ligaments and freedom from those many other distresses which are usually looked forward to with so much concern.

There is no question but what "Mother's Friend" has a marked tendency to relieve the mind and this of itself in addition to the physical relief has given it a very wide popularity among women.

It is absolutely safe to use, renders the skin pliable, is penetrating in its nature and is composed of those embrocations best suited to thoroughly lubricate the nerves, muscles, tendons and ligaments involved.

You can obtain "Mother's Friend" at almost any drug store.

It is prepared only by Bradfield Reg-ulator Co., 329 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta Ga.

H. C. SELHEIMER SAYS O'NEAL STATEMENT ABOUT HIM IS "FALSE"

State's Chief Counsel in Rate Litigation Says His "Opinion Was Not Asked as to Whether the Compromise Should Be Made," and It Was a "Humiliating Surrender to the Railroads."

SAYS AGREEMENT WAS SIGNED TEN DAYS BEEORE IT WAS MADE PUBLIC

Declares That He Had Advised the Governor and the Railroad Commission That the State Would Be Successful In All the Litigation"—Says O'Neal and Henderson Ignorant of Rate Litigation.

UNMASKS THE COMPROMISE CONSPIRATORS

Birmingham, Ala., Mar. 26.—When Governor O'Neal made his speech in Montgomery Monday night he little realized that he had stirred up a hornet that would turn on him and sting him as a Governor of Alabama has seldom, if ever, been stung. This hornet is Mr. H. C. Selheimer, chief counsel for Alabama in the railroad rate cases that have been in process of litigation for the past seven years. He issued today a reply to that part of Governor O'Neal's address which related to the compromise with the railroads, in which Governor O'Neal stated that Governor Comer had toyed with the truth when he said that Mr. Selheimer had not been consulted and had not agreed to the settlement.

Mr. Selheimer characterizes the statement of the Governor as it relates to himself as "utterly false," and again as "false in all its parts." He says further that his "opinion was not asked as to whether the compromise should be made," and that the "entire proceeding was a humiliating surrender to the railroads." Declaring that the Governor and the president of the railroad commission, Charles Henderson, were "entirely ignorant of the facts" in the State's litigation, he says that the only attorneys they seem to have consulted were railroad attorneys.

Mr. Selheimer also makes the startling disclosure that the agreement was signed with the railroads ten days before it was made public, and that he had advised the Governor and the Railroad Commission that the State would "be successful in all the litigation."

Quotes Governor's Words.

Mr. Selheimer's statement in full:

"In his speech at Montgomery on Monday night, as the same is printed verbatim in Tuesday's Birmingham News, Governor O'Neal is reported to have used the following language with reference to my connection with the recent settlement of the rate cases:

"'Before the agreement was signed Mr. Selheimer was called up at his office in Birmingham and had the agreement fully explained and read over to him, and every suggestion which he made embodied in the agreement. Not one word of objection did he express to the compromise.'

"This statement was evidently made for the purpose of conveying the impression to the people of Alabama that I was consulted with as to the advisability of making the compromise agreed upon between the railroads and Governor O'Neal and the railroad commission, and that I approved the compromise so effected. As such the statement is so utterly false, so misleading and inconsistent with the fact that I feel that I should not allow it to pass unchallenged. It is false in all its parts (except the bare fact that I was called up over the phone) and in the inference that was intended to be drawn from the whole.

Selheimer's Connection.

"My sole connection with the matter was as follows: The agreement of compromise was signed on Saturday, February 21, 10 days before it was made public. Between 1 o'clock and 1:30 on that day the Attorney General called me up over the long distance phone and told me that the railroad people (naming them) were in Montgomery to settle the rate cases. He said they had agreed to put in a 2 1-2-cent rate for intrastate and interstate passenger travel, and that all litigation was to be dismissed. He then said he wanted to read to me 'one paragraph' of the agreement and get my opinion about it. He then read to me over the phone the third paragraph of the agreement which provides that nothing in the agreement nor in the decree of Judge Jones shall be construed or pleaded so as to preclude the railroad commission from exercising its lawful powers to revise the passenger and freight rates in the future. This was the only part of the agreement that was read to me and the only part that was explained to me except that the railroads agreed to put in a 2 1-2-cent rate. Not a word was said about that part of the agreement which relieves the railroads from liability to redeem the passenger coupons and freight receipts, representing excess charges in the past. The part of the agreement read to me was so unimportant and so unnecessary that I gave it no particular thought. I made some suggestion in regard to it so unimportant that I do not now recall what it was.

"I then inquired what the railroads had agreed to do as to the freight rates. He replied that they had not made any agreement as to the freight rates. I then told him to insist on their settling the freight rates as well as the passenger. He replied that they were unwilling to agree upon a settlement of the freight rates then; that they wanted to take that matter up with the railroad commission later. I then asked him if he wanted Judge Weakley and myself to come to Montgomery. He replied by asking whether we could get there by 6 o'clock. I replied that we could not; that the train did not get there until about 7. He then said that the railroad people intended to leave at 6 o'clock. I ended the conversation by asking him to let me know if anything definite was determined on.

Called a Second Time.

"About 3:30 the same afternoon the Attorney General again called me up. He said the railroads had adopted my suggestion as to the third paragraph above mentioned. I asked him if the agreement had been signed. He replied, 'Why, it was signed this morning.' He then said he would send me a copy of the agreement for my opinion. On the following Monday, February 23, I received from him by mail a copy of the agreement. It was dated February 21, and was signed 'Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co., by Henry L. Stone, general counsel, and William A. Colston, general solicitor; Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, by H. F. Smith, vice president; Western Railway of Alabama, by R. E. Steiner, its attorney in fact and assistant general counsel; Central of Georgia Railway, by R. E. Steiner, its attorney in fact and special counsel. Charles Henderson, president, * * * constituting the railroad commission of Alabama. Approved by: Emmet O'Neal, Governor of the State of Alabama; Robert C. Brickell, Attorney General.'

"In reply to the Attorney General's request for my opinion of the signed agreement, I wrote simply that the agreement seemed to express the intention of the parties. I perfunctorily congratulated him on the fact of the settlement (not on the terms) and on his being relieved of the burden of the rate cases, and expressed my pleasure at being likewise relieved.

"The telephone conversation with the attorney general above detailed in full was the first intimation I had that any compromise was even being contemplated. This conversation, it will be observed, was after all the terms of the compromise had been agreed upon and reduced to writing.

False and Misleading.

"So I repeat that the statement alleged to have been made by GOVERNOR O'NEAL, IN ALL ITS PARTS and in the inference to be drawn from it, is FALSE and MISLEADING. First, IT IS FALSE wherein it states that the agreement was fully explained to me. Second, IT IS FALSE wherein it states that the agreement was read over to me. The agreement was not fully explained to me, nor was it read over to me, except as above stated. NOTHING WHATEVER was read or explained to me relating to the immunity of the railroads from liability for passenger coupons and freight receipts representing excess charges in the past. Third, IT IS FALSE wherein it says that every suggestion which I made was embodied in the agreement. THE ONLY material suggestion I made, and this was merely volunteered, was to insist that the FREIGHT RATES be settled as well as the passenger rates. This suggestion was not adopted. NOT A WORD is said in THE AGREEMENT about the FREIGHT RATES. The failure or refusal to adopt this suggestion CHARACTERIZES the entire proceeding as a HUMILIATING SURRENDER TO THE RAILROADS and deprives it of all semblance to a compromise. Fourth, IT IS FALSE wherein it says 'not a word of objection did he express to the compromise.' My objection, expressed to the attorney general, that the agreement did not settle the question of freight rates was certainly a sufficient objection. Even this objection was volunteered. My opinion was not asked as to whether the compromise should be made. Neither the governor nor the president of the railroad commission asked or desired my opinion as to whether the railroads' proposition of compromise should be accepted, although Mr. Henderson says that the matter of compromise had been under negotiation by him for some time. They knew that I would NOT RECOMMEND a settlement of the PASSENGER RATES ONLY thus leaving the question of the FREIGHT RATES OPEN TO LITIGATION IN THE FUTURE.

Studied Cases Seven Years.

"I had worked over and studied these cases for seven years. I WAS THOROUGHLY FAMILIAR WITH ALL THE FACTS NECESSARY TO BE taken into CONSIDERATION in determining upon a just settlement of the litigation. The GOVERNOR and the PRESIDENT of the railroad commission were ENTIRELY IGNORANT of THESE facts. Yet upon a presentation to them by the railroads of a proposition of settlement they accepted the proposition, agreed upon the terms thereof and reduced the same to writing before I had any intimation that a settlement was even contemplated. Under these circumstances DOES ANYBODY BELIEVE that the GOVERNOR or the RAILROAD COMMISSION DESIRED ANY ADVICE FROM ME as to the advisability of accepting the proposition of the railroads? Is it not apparent that from SOME MOTIVE NOT YET DIVULGED, but EASILY SURMISED, THEY DID NOT want either of the special counsel to have ANYTHING to do WITH THE COMPROMISE or to be CONNECTED WITH IT IN ANY WAY? The only attorneys with a knowledge of the facts whom the governor and the railroad commission seem to have consulted were R. E. Steiner, attorney for the Western of Alabama and the Central of Georgia, and Col. Henry L. Stone and William A. Colston, attorneys for the Louisville & Nashville railroad. I do not believe even the attorney general's advice was asked as to whether the compromise as proposed should be made. I believe he was consulted only as to whether the agreement already prepared expressed the terms that had been already agreed upon. I do not believe that the attorney general knew that a compromise was even contemplated until the railroad attorneys appeared at the capitol with an agreement already prepared. These, however, are surmises based upon the fact that the attorney general was in New Orleans most of the week with Judge Weakley submitting the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis cases to the three judges, and that he did not return to Montgomery until the morning of the day on which the agreement was signed.

Success Was in Sight.

"At the time this compromise was made there was EVERY PROSPECT THAT THE STATE WOULD BE SUCCESSFUL IN ALL THE LITIGATION. The passenger rate had already been won and the 2 1-2-cent rate was in force on all the roads, except the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, whose case had not yet been decided. There was every probability that on the appeal that had been taken from the decree of Judge Jones that decree would be reversed and the freight and passeengr rates would be declared by the United States Supreme Court to be valid. Of these facts the governor had been advised by the special counsel. Every prospect was favorable to the people winning their fight all along the line. The railroads knew this and the governor and the railroad commission knew it. Yet, notwithstanding these facts, they made an agreement with the railroads the effect of which was, in the words of a prominent citizen of Birmingham, who was himself once connected with railroads, that 'the railroads graciously permit the State to retain the fruits of its victory, the 2 1-2-cent passenger rate, and graciously permit it to litigate the freight rates in the future.' The governor's statement in his speech as to the enormous cost to the State of the appeal, being a large annual amount for five or six years, is ridiculous, coming as it does from a lawyer. The appeal could have been submitted to the Supreme Court within a year and the expense would have ended with the submission. It could not have exceeded $75,000, and if the appeal had been successful a part of this would have had to be refunded by the railroads. In return for this expenditure the people who have been saving their passenger coupons and freight receipts would have received the full amount of the excess charges paid by them in the past.

Historic Discovery.

Mr. W. T. Oldrieve, chief architect of the government office of works in Edinburgh, has announced that he has discovered remains in Edinburgh castle of the ancient fortress known as King David's Tower, and also the well which supplied the castle and garrison with water. Excavations revealed much of King David's Tower still standing, its walls eight feet thick, and rising to a height of nearly fifty feet above the original rock surface.

The Only Way.

Little John was full of mischief and during his first year at school hardly a day passed that he was not sent to stand in the corner.

When the schoolhouse burned down and a new one was immediately begun, the little boy went to his father, who was the county superintendent.

"Don't you think we could get the carpenter to build a round schoolhouse this time, father?" he said.

"Why, son?" his father asked in astonishment.

"Because," the little fellow answered, "I'm getting very tired of corners."

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. —Adv.

Flooding and Cramping!

STELLA-VITAE STOPPED IT!

This has a world of meaning to every woman who suffers as Mrs. J. S. Blair, of Enterprise, Okla., suffered and there are many thousands such.

Mrs. Blair tells the story of her suffering and cure much better than we can tell it. We quote her own words:

"I had been flooding, cramping and vomiting for five months and taking medicine from as good a doctor as the country affords, but he did me no good. I got tired of doctor's medicine and sent to the drug store for a woman's medicine and the druggist sent me STELLA-VITAE.

"One bottle stopped everything and I felt like a different woman. I have used six bottles already and will continue to use and praise STELLA-VITAE whenever I need a woman's medicine."

What STELLA-VITAE did for Mrs. Blair it will do for you. We guarantee the first bottle to benefit you. Your money back if it don't. You cannot afford to not try it—when you have all to gain and not a penny to lose.

Go to your dealer today and begin trying STELLA-VITAE, trying to become well. We lose the price if you are not benefited. In many years of guaranteeing STELLA-VITAE less than one bottle out of every thousand has failed to benefit.

Your chances of being benefited are a thousand to one!

DRINK LOTS OF WATER TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat and Take Salts for Backache or Bladder Trouble—Neutralize Acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Was Neither, Naither Nor Neether.

A group of Scottish lawyers were gathered round a brew of toddy one evening. The conversation turned upon a question of pronunciation.

"Now, I always say neether," one of the lawyers said in discussing the pronunciation of the word "neither."

"I say 'naither,' remarked another lawyer.

Turning to a third, he asked: "What do you say, Sandy?" Sandy, whose head was a little muddled by too many helpings of toddy, woke up from a gentle doze.

"Me?" he said, "oh, I say, whusky."

Brushing Up.

The other day the H. Lieber company, among other pictures displayed in the show window, had one that attracted special attention. It was a large picture representing an immense lioness and four cubs. Together with the praise bestowed on this group, there was some criticism. "What fool artist got up that picture?" said an elderly observer. "Anyone ought to know that two cubs is the limit for any lioness. This word picked up by a listener was taken into the picture house. "This is rather overdoing the cub business," said the critic. "Any one ought to know that two lion whelps are enough." The people in the picture house were greatly distressed under this cirticism, until a friend hunted up a cyclopedia of natural history and read these lines: "From two to four whelps are produced at one time. They are born with eyes open, but are helpless for several weeks."—Indianapolis News.

CLEVER WIFE
Knew How to Keep Peace in Family.

It is quite significant, the number of persons who get well of alarming heart trouble when they let up on coffee and use Postum as the beverage at meals.

There is nothing surprising about it, however, because the harmful alkaloid—caffeine—in coffee is not present in Postum, which is made of clean, hard wheat.

"Two years ago I was having so much trouble with my heart," writes a lady in Washington, "that at times I felt quite alarmed. My husband took me to a specialist to have my heart examined.

"The doctor said he could find no organic trouble but said my heart was irritable from something I had been accustomed to, and asked me to try and remember what disagreed with me.

"I remembered that coffee always soured on my stomach and caused me trouble from palpitation of the heart. So I stopped coffee and began to use Postum. I have had no further trouble since.

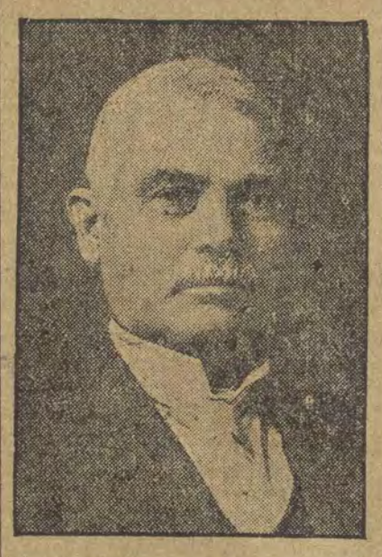
"A neighbor of ours, an old man, was so irritable from drinking coffee that his wife wanted him to drink Postum. This made him very angry, but his wife secured some Postum and made it carefully according to directions.

"He drank the Postum and did not know the difference, and is still using it to his lasting benefit. He tells his wife that the 'coffee' is better than it used to be, so she smiles with him and keeps peace in the family by serving Postum instead of coffee."

Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.



Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

THE OLD SOLDIER'S CALL

CAPT. FRANK S. WHITE, OF JEFFERSON COUNTY

Candidate For the United States Senate (Short Term)

"Yes," said the old, one-armed Confederate Veteran, General E. W. Rucker, "I am for my old comrade, Captain Frank S. White, for United States Senator, for the short term. Everything I can do for him I am gladly doing, and I would do more if I only knew how I could lend him more than all the strength and influence I have got.

"Did you know that he and I rode with Forrest together? He was a young man then—a boy soldier, as brave and gallant as any that ever followed the 'Wizard of the Saddle.' And he was with us to the last, doing his last fighting here in Alabama at Selma, defending your State and mine, and the honor of his beloved Southland. His head is white now with the snows that never melt, but his heart is as stout and his patriotism as abounding as it was in the war times, and in the dark days of reconstruction times that followed after—the times that tried men's souls. I believe all the old Veterans will vote solidly for our old comrade. He is the last of them to seek so high an honor, and we will all be there on election day.

"But the trouble, my young friend, is that there are so few of us left. Why should not the sons of our old comrades come and stand with us and vote with us this last time before we all go? It will cheer every Confederate heart in the land to see you with us at the ballot box one more time, and it will do every young man good to have it shrined in his memory that he voted for so true and tried a man as this old soldier I am talking about. Remember your fathers, boys, and your grandfathers and your mothers. My friend, Frank White, appeals to you through them, and I am but seconding his claim on your affectionate and reverent support. The voices of the past call to you as well as to me. Don't ignore the past, young man. Its claims are sacred.

"Let the Veterans of this grand old State of Alabama and their sons join with all the citizenship of our State in giving Capt. White, the fittest man in all our borders, an overwhelming majority to the place he seeks."

Planting Hardy Azaleas.

The hardy azaleas are usually increased by seed sown as soon as ripe, or in early spring, in boxes placed in greenhouse or frame. The soil is sandy peat; the seeds are scattered on the surface, and a little soil sifted over them, then well watered. Seed may also be sown in live sphagnum moss where it germinates promptly, but the seedlings must be moved as soon as they can be handled. As soon as the little plants appear, they need plenty of air, and a daily syringing. In fall they are transplanted into boxes or frames, the proper soil being sandy peat. The second year, in spring, they are planted out in well prepared beds, with space for two years' growth; long and ungainly shoots should be pinched back to form a compact plant.—Rural New-Yorker.

Supervised Play.

During the past ten years this idea of organized and supervised play has had a wonderful spread. It has developed into a world movement; there is not a civilized country in either hemisphere that has not adopted the scheme upon a more or less extensive scale. Three other cities in Maryland, besides Baltimore, now maintain summer playgrounds, but the towns and villages have not yet fully awakened to the significance of the movement. Every town in the states with a thousand population ought to have a playground with sports organized and directed in accord with the ideals of the national association.—Baltimore Star.

China Revising Laws.

BROUGHT HER BACK TO LIFE

Remarkable Cure That Was Effected By the Administration of Ardent Spirits.

On his return to his native heath a year or two ago, P. J. O'Keefe found the neighborhood very much agitated. Nellie, the oldest woman in the parish, was dying.

Her friends, arriving at her home, found her lying back in her easy chair, apparently about to pass over the last threshold. Nellie, being a good housewife, carried a bunch of keys at her girdle and, thinking that she was now gone, one of the neighbors reached under the folds of her dress to find the key that would unlock the closet where her shroud was kept. As the good woman was fumbling at the girdle she felt a sly pinch of her hand and knew by that that there was still a spark of life remaining.

"Perhaps," she suggested, "a wee drop of brandy would revive her."

A teaspoonful of brandy was administered, but with only a flickering response. So the friends departed sorrowfully, forgetting, however, to remove the bottle from her side. On their return a few hours later they discovered that the brandy had vanished and that Nellie had completely recovered. She lived to be more than one hundred years old. "But that," says Mr. O'Keefe, "was the story of Nellie's dying."

DOES ALL OF HER OWN WORK

And is Glad to Do So, as She Was Denied this Privilege For Two Years.

Richmond, Ky.—Mrs. N. V. Willis, of this place, says: "I suffered for over three years with womanly trouble, and tried many different treatments, but none of them seemed to do me any good. I had almost given up to die, when a friend of mine begged me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I got a bottle, and began to feel a great deal better after the first few doses. I then got four bottles, and after taking these I was cured.

I don't know what a female pain is now, do all of my work, eat anything I want, and feel like a 16 year old girl.

I never expect to be without Cardui in my house as long as I live, as I firmly believe it saved my life, and I will praise it to all of my suffering lady friends."

Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy, containing no harmful mineral products. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution. It has been relieving womanly troubles for over half a century, during which time it has proven of more than ordinary value as a tonic for weak women.

You can rely on Cardui. It will do for you what it has done for thousands of others. Begin taking it today.

The Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Holy See, relates that in one of the female secondary schools of Rome the teacher of history is an atheist and that recently, while explaining the crusades, she asked her pupils whether they believed in Jesus Christ. Flies Cost Us $350,000,000.

Uric Acid is Slow Poison

Unseen in its approach, hard to detect in its early stages, and cruelly painful in its later forms, uric acid poisoning is a disease too often fatal.

Bright's disease is one of the final stages of uric acid poisoning. It kills in our country every year more men and women than any other ailment except two—consumption and pneumonia. Bright's disease and uric acid poisoning usually start in some kidney weakness that would not be hard to cure, if discovered early, so it is well to know the early signs of kidney disease and uric poisoning.

When uric acid is formed too fast and the kidneys are weakened by a cold, or fever, by overwork, or by overindulgences, the acid collects, the blood gets impure and heavy, there is headache, dizziness, heart palpitation, and a dull, heavy-headed, drowsy feeling with disturbances of the urine.

Real torture begins when the uric acid forms into gravel or stone in the kidney, or crystallizes into jagged bits in the muscles, joints or on the nerve tubings. Then follow the awful pains of neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, sciatica, neuritis, lumbago or kidney colic.

"I don't know what ails me."

It is but a further step to dropsy or Bright's disease.

Be warned by backache, by sediment in the kidney secretions, by painful, scant or too frequent passages. Cure the weakened kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a medicine made just for weak kidneys, that has been proved good in years of use, in thousands of cases—the remedy that is recommended by grateful users from coast to coast.

Doctors Couldn't Help Her

Georgia Woman Almost Gave Up in Despair

Mrs. Sabra Burgess, Toccoa, Ga., says: "Twelve years ago I began to suffer from rheumatic trouble and kidney disease. Doctors said my system was filled with uric acid poisoning. The kidney secretions were scanty and too frequent in passage and bothered me greatly at night. My back got terribly weak and painful and there was a bearing-down sensation through my loins. As the disease progressed, severe pains ran from my head and neck, down through my shoulders, into my right side and limb. I tried almost everything, but nothing helped me, even six months' treatment by doctors brought no relief. I was in despair. While in this critical condition, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and the relief was miraculous. By the time I had used six boxes, all the ailments had left me. That happened four years ago and I have never suffered since."

Too Much to Ask.

Little June Marie's mother is very indulgent, but there are times when even she draws the line.

One very hot day last July, when all nature drooped, a neighbor saw June Marie and her mother toiling along the street under a blazing sun. June Marie was weeping aloud, struggling and holding back, but her mother dragged her firmly on over the road.

"Why, what's the matter with June Marie?" the neighbor asked.

Her mother looked patiently at the neighbor, while the perspiration ran down her glowing face. "She's crying because I wouldn't let her wear her mittens," she said.—Youth's Companion.

RINGWORM SPREAD ON HAND

R. F. D. No. 2, Box 67, Ellijay, Ga.—"My son's ringworm began on the back of his hand. A fiery red spot came about as large as a dime and it would itch so badly he would scratch it till it bled. It began to spread till it went all over his hand. He would just scream every time I went to wash it. The nail came off on the middle finger.

"I used ——— and it got worse all the time. The trouble lasted two or three months. Then I sent and got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and began to use them. I would wash his hand with the Cuticura Soap and dry it good and apply the Cuticura Ointment. WAS NOT REVENGEFUL MAN

But at the Same Time Dog Owner Meant That His Pet Should Have a Fair Show.

"I am not a revengeful man," said a Brooklyn real estate dealer, "but now and then I do want to get even. A few days ago I drove out as far as Mineola in a horse and buggy, and my dog followed me. He's no fighter as a dog, and it was a bad trip for him. Every time we passed a farm house a dog came rushing out to roll my canine in the dust, and he was licked 36 different times before we got home. I was sorry for him and mad at the other dogs, and three or four days later I got a loan of a mastiff and made the trip over again. There was fun from the start to finish. The same farmers' dogs came bounding off the fence to chew up something, and most of them got hold of the mastiff before they knew whether he was a poodle or an elephant. They saw their mistake too late. Lord, he slayed 'em right and left. He simply left a trail of howling, limping dogs from Prospect park to Mineola and back, and I've been told that some of the farmers along the road have offered as high as $20 for my scalp. No; I'm not a revengeful man, but I want to see my dog have a fair show in this world, don't you know."

The Music Makers

The closing entertainment of the season 1913-14, held under the auspices of Thorsby Institute, will be given by "The Music Makers," a Male Quartette, from the Redpath Lyceum Bureau. Thorsby people who heard them last summer at Winona Lake, Indiana, say "They are Fine." That may be conceded anyway, as the Redpath people do not keep any organization before the public as entertainers for six years, (as they have the music makers,) unless they are making good. Lovers of good music interspersed with clean fun, will appreciate the work of these young men. Remember the date, April 7th, 8 p.m., and don't miss it.

VOTE FOR
D. H. RIDDLE
OF TALLADEGA, FOR Attorney General
OF ALABAMA.

Mr. Riddle was a candidate for this office four years ago, with two other candidates in the race. He carried twenty-two counties; ran second in thirty-four, and received in round numbers 40,000 votes. The railroad and other corporation lawyers of Alabama succeeded in that election in defeating Mr. Riddle.

During the past four years it has been costing the state about $50,000 a year to pay lawyers to help run the Attorney General's office.

MR. VOTER: Do you want Geo. W. Jones, the L. & N. railroad, and the Alabama Power company to control the Attorney General's office? If you do, vote against Riddle for Attorney General.

If you desire that the L. & N. railroad respect the laws and if you desire that the rights of the people of Alabama be protected, Vote FOR RIDDLE. His name will be fourth and last, under Attorney General, on the ticket.

He is endorsed and highly recommended by such prominent Judges as Chancellor W. W. Whitesides and Judge Hugh D. Merrill, of Anniston; Judges W. J. Pearce and E. J. Garrison, of Ashland; Judge E. S. Lyman, of Shelby.

The people of Alabama are determined to elect Mr. Riddle Attorney General, a lawyer who is fully capable of running the office, and who cannot be used by the L. & N. railroad and other corporations, but who can and will execute the law in the interest of the people.

Want to know how the watch sale came out last Saturday. It is like this, every Saturday to advertise his business, Dr. Higgins, the Reliable Watch and Eye Man sells in front of his store a nice watch to the highest bidder for cash. Two weeks ago a nice $16.00 Elgin watch in a good case was sold to Mr. Marion Driver near Cooper, for $5.30. Last Saturday Mr. Tippett of Clanton bought a nice Waltham watch in a gold case for $6.75. It was worth $18.50. Some seem to want one size watch and some another. Some want an open face watch, and some a closed face. So hereafter he will change his sale a little bit. He will put up three watches: one open face, one closed face and one ladies size gold watch, and the watch that brings the most dollars and cents will be the sold watch for that day. So if you need a nice watch at a low price, be there Saturday at eleven o'clock.

Tackle Catarrh Now
Be Free All Winter

Avoid Colds, Stall Pneumonia, Keep Your Nose Clear and Your Throat Free.

Don't Wait Till You're All Bunged Up. Use S. S. S. Now.

If you will go into any first class store and get a bottle of S. S. S. you are on the way to getting rid of Catarrh. But don't let anyone work off that old trick of something "Just as good."

S. S. S. is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, comes through all the veins and arteries, enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectually cleanse the system and thus put an end to all catarrhal pollution. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure, blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

The medicinal components of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritive properties of the grains, meats, sugars, and fats of foods. Any local irritating influence in the blood is rejected by the tissue cells and eliminated by reason of the stimulating influence of S. S. S.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely catarrh often infests the entire system.

You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood. AN UNSPEAKABLE FORM OF STUPIDITY

To Disrupt the Economic Equation by the Leveling Down Operation of Free-Trade.

A survey of the economic conditions throughout the world shows that the cost of living is higher in the new countries than in the old. Buenos Ayres boasts the highest cost of living of any great city in the world, and the greatest prosperity. There is no immigration from the new to the old countries; the flow is unceasingly from countries where the low cost of living is characteristic to countries where the high cost of living is notorious.

Living cost nothing in the hunting age. The rise is progressive as mankind passes from simple agriculture into a diversified civilization. When the profits of manufacture become adequate to warrant living in cities and paying for that privilege a price for provisions sufficiently high to warrant others living on the farm, humanity has advanced materially. The demand for low prices, as a general thing, is a plea for retrogression, for a return to conditions from which a race, by endless endeavor, has extricated itself. The history of the wortd shows that low prices are a national disaster, a calamity. India and the East give damning evidence of this fact.

The true object of statesmanship is to maintain a proper balance between cost of living and earning power, and earning power should increase in greater proportion than the cost of living. So it has done in this country. The average workman is able to buy more in high-priced America than in low-priced England.

The effort to reduce the cost of potatoes and other produce by importation, with its resultant penalizing of our own farmers, means nothing but a disruption of the economic equation. So the whole scheme of Wilsonism is bascially a blow at wages, for low prices and high prices are incomparable. The whole purpose of the administration, therefore is contraction, and this contraction cannot affect one side of industry without affecting all sides of industry.

It may be that the rewards of our unparalleled progress have been inequitably distributed. To discard, however, the system itself in favor of a system which will be the more disastrous the more successful it is, constitutes an unspeakable form of national stupidity. It cannot last, of course, but it is imperative that intelligent Americans bring the hysteria to an end as quickly as possible before the full effects of the calamitous policy are felt.

Johnson Building Being Erected

Work on the new Johnson building on main street, which when completed is to be occupied by the Upchurch Drug Co., is being pushed forward rapidly. The excavation is about completed, and material for the construction is being placed on the ground. The structure will be a two-story edifice, and will be one of the handsomest buildings in Clanton.

On last Friday quite an exciting occurrence happened in connection with the work on the building. The excavation for the new building was being made close by the side of the wall of the brick building now occupied by the Potts Grocery Co. When the support was lessened under the wall by the removal of the earth adjacent to its foundation, a complete collapse occurred, and the entire wall tumbled into a heap in the excavation that had been made. A number of workmen, and a team of mules which were on the work at the time of the collapse, narrowly averted being crushed to death under the falling mass of brick and debris. Some persons who were in the Potts Grocery Store were also in emminent danger, as the whole building came very near a collapse. Considerable damage was done the stock of Mr. Potts, and the work on the new building was given a little backset.

WHY HE VOTED AGAINST FREE-TRADE.

Democratic Congressman Gives Good Reason for Opposing the Underwood Tariff Bill.

Admitting that the Underwood Tariff bill strikes a serious blow at the prosperity of the great textile district of Philadelphia, where thousands of men and women gain a livelihood Congressman Michael Donohue Democrat, representing the Fifth Congressional district, recently told members of the Kensington Reform Club that under present conditions few of the mills in his district had sufficient orders to keep their employes busy.

Mr. Donohue's stand on the Tariff had been condemned at a meeting of the club held at Kensington avenue and Clearfield street about a week ago. Action on the resolution was deferred until the Congressman could personally appear before the members. After hearing his high Tariff arguments they indorsed his views. Congressman Donohoe said, in part:

I voted against the Tariff bill for two reasons first, because I promised the people that I would do so and, second, because I believed that the changes proposed in some of the schedules would hurt the hundreds of industrial establishments in our district. In almost every speech that I made in the 1912 campaign I declared that I favored a Tariff that would cover at least the difference in cost of production here and in competing countries. Not only did I say so in my speeches throughout the district, but I published it in the way of paid advertisements, in the local newspapers.

A Letter From Mr. T. N. Carver

Mr. J. Sterling Moran,
Agent of Rural Organization Service, Thorsby, Alabama.

Dear Sir:—As I understand the situation in Chilton county, the great need of farmers is more team work. The trouble is not that they do not work. Some of them probably work too hard; at least with their muscles. I do not know of any class that works too hard with their heads.

The things which most need doing can only be by organized team work, by all members of the community working together for the common good. It will be your work to persuade the farmers of Chilton county to work together. Better practice on their individual is doubtless needed, but that is well looked after by Mr. Conway and other representatives of the Department of Agriculture. As the Agent of the Rural Organization Service of the Department of Agriculture, your function will be to promote organized efforts on the part of whole communities, to improve all economic and social conditions.

The following are some of the things which call for organized team work, because the individual farmer, however wise, energetic and progressive, is almost helpless, at least he can accomplish very little; whereas wonderful results can be obtained wherever the whole neighborhood, or even a large part of it, can be persuaded to work together for the common good.

1. Better business methods; a. The marketing of farm products; b. The purchase of farm supplies; c. The supply of credit faculties.

2. Better social conditions; a. Education; b. Communication; 1. Roads; 2. Telephones; c. Sanitation; d. recreation; e. Beautification of the Country side.

Of course you can not cover all this field. A few things well done are better than many things half done. But if the farmers of Chilton county will work together on this whole program for a period of years, they can make one of the finest counties in the United States. They can almost create a new earth.

Very sincerely,
T. N. Carver, Director.

Thorsby, Ala., April 6, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words in the interest of J. L. Gore, for Sheriff. I can recommend him to the voters of Chilton county as being competent for the position. I have known him personally from his boyhood to be sober, honest and upright; has always taken an active part in church work; has been ready at all times to work for the interest of the peoples cause and the party. With due respect to Mr. Harris, I only mention these facts as to Mr. Gore's standing in the community where he was raised. I hope the voters will turn out to the polls on April 21 and vote for their choice to fill the otfices. I think we have good clean men to select from. I hope all will be satisfied with nominees and pull together to elect the full ticket in November. I think the surrounding conditions will cause our people to get busy and do all they can for the peoples cause.

Respectfully,
J. H. Benson.

HOBSON CONGRATULATES OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD

I have sent the following telegram to Mr. Underwood:

"Accept my congratulations upon your nomination. As the Democratic nominee, you can count upon my loyal support in the general election.

(Signed) "R. P. HOBSON."

"Please say to the liquor interests of America for me and for Mr. Musgrove and for the legions of undaunted Alabamians standing with us that 'we have only begun to fight,' that the work we have done can never be undone, that we will meet them again on the battlefield of Alabama and on a hundred other battlefields, that we expect under God's Providence to be in the battle when the thirty-sixth State ratifies the Hobson resolution placing national prohibition in the Constitution of the United States.

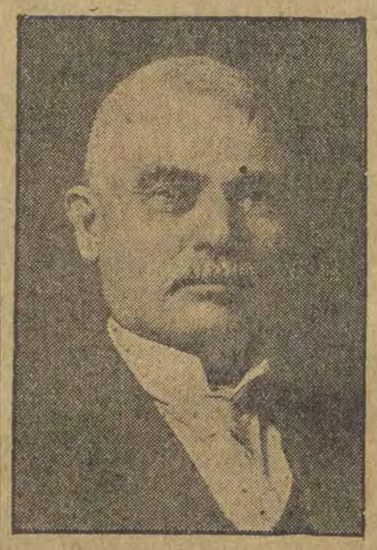
(Signed) "R. P. HOBSON."

O. W. UNDERWOOD

Elected to United States Senate by Decisive Majority

Birmingham.—Oscar W. Underwood was nominated United States Senator by the people of Alabama, over his opponent, R. P. Hobson, by approximately 30,000 majorty.

As was predicted by the Underwood supporters, this county, Jefferson, gave him an approximate majority of 5,000 votes.



In Central and South Alabama and North Alabama Congressman Underwood received a sweeping majority and polled a good vote in East and West Alabama.

Mr. Underwood swept Mobile,

R. P. HOBSON

Defeated for United States Senator by O. W. Underwood

FRANK S. WHITE

Chosen United States Senator for Short Term

Montgomery and Jefferson. His majority in the latter county is approximately 5,000. It may be 6,000. Hobson carried only a few minor beats—and these by small majorities.

Hobson carried his district, the Sixth. In the First Mr. Underwood swept Choctaw, thought to be certain for Hobson. In the Second, with the possible exception of Butler, Mr. Underwood made a clean sweep. Hobson led in Coffee. The struggle was close in Geneva and Henry. Lee, however, went overwhelming for Underwood. Bullock gave him a fine majority. Russell and Barbour were carried by Underwood.

In the Fourth, Mr. Underwood's victory was complete. The counties of the Fifth returned fine majorities. In three counties of the Seventh the vote was close. Hobson showed unexpected strength in rural sections of Etowah. It will take a tabulated count to determine the result. In the Eighth, Mr. Underwood made a clean sweep. Lauderdale county, always claimed by Underwood, went into the Underwood column as predicted. Blount, Perry, Bibb and Jefferson gave Mr. Underwood astounding majorities—these being the counties of the Ninth district, which district Mr. Underwood has represented in Congress for 20 years.

Hobson carried the Sixth district by a handsome majority. Walker county has always been conceded to Hobson by more than 500. Hobson's majority, however, is approximately 1,000. Hobson carried Fayette by a fine majority, and also in Marion, Pickens and Lamar the vote was close, however. Hobsen secured small majorities in both. Mr. Underwood carried Tuscaloosa, Sumter and Greene, and the vote in Hale was close. But for the large vote given Hobson by Walker county, the count in the Sixth district would have been close.

The day was ideal for its purpose. The day dawned clear. It was warm in the morning and hot at noon. Great throngs of people were on the streets in the larger centers. In smaller cities there were large numbers of people about the polls. There was voting and political dissertation everywhere. The feature, however, is that the crowd, everywhere, was good natured. No news of difficulties from any part of the state—this despite the fact that the election was hotly contested.

Everywhere the vote polled was large. It is estimated that at least 130,000 ballots were cast. The total may go as high as 135,000.

The statement of Mr. Underwood follows:

"I am thoroughly satisfied with the primary election. The splendid majority that the returns indicate will be given me in the state I attribute to the magnificent work that my friends have done for me in my absence. The result I feel is a personal vindication and a distinct approval of my remaining in Washington and attending to my official duties.

"But after all is said the final conclusion must be that it is more of a victory for fundamental democratic principles than for myself."

WHITE NOMINATED FOR SHORT TERM

Birmingham.—Capt. Frank S. White has been nominated for the short term in the Senate. He was opposed by Ray Rushton and Watt G. Brown. In South Alabama the Birmingham man showed unexpected strength. He swept Jefferson county and carried Mobile. Rushton received an overwhelming majority in Montgomery.

B. B. COMER

Mr. Comer ran First in the Race for Governor.

Reuben F. Kolb a good second, Henderson third and Seed fourth. Second primary will be necessary to settle the gubernatorial race.

Comer led his opponents in a majority of the counties of the state.

Kolb carried Mobile and Montgomery counties.

Heavy registration in every county of the state ran the vote up approximately 15,000 above the expectations of the campaign managers of the various candidates. Heavy registration in Jefferson, Montgomery, Mobile and Dallas, especially added 10,000 votes to the usual poll of these counties.

The southern tier of counties, including Mobile, Washington, Baldwin, Monroe, Conecuh and others polled a very heavy vote.

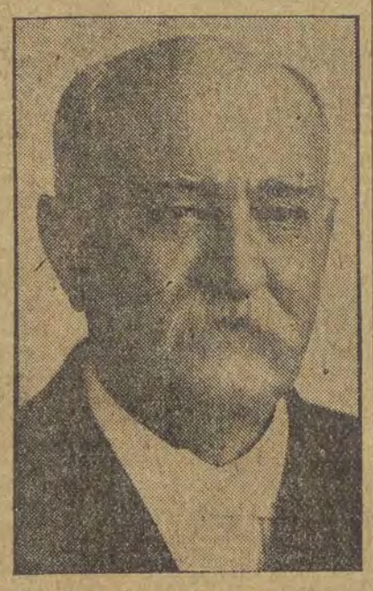
In the wiregrass the vote was heavy, especially in Houston, Barbour and Pike counties. Dothan reported the heaviest vote in her history, as did Troy and Eufaula.



Voting was heavy in Selma, Tuscaloosa and all of the western section of the state. North Alabama voted heavily, every county from the Tennessee line to middle Alabama voting more votes than were ever known before.

East Alabama followed in the footsteps of the other sections. Lanett, Opelika, Girard, Tuskegee and other places reported the vote heavy, the rural precincts in these counties polling up a large vote, larger than ever before.

Kilby Lieutenant Governor.

For lieutenant governor, Thomas E. Kilby of Anniston, swept the State, With the exception of Chilton, the home county of Thomas E. Curry, the Annistonian carried practically every county of the State by large majorities.

For other State offices the result is close and in many instances it will require an official count to determine the result

For attorney general, the nomination of William L. Martin is indicated. For commissioner of agriculture the race is clouded to such an extent that the leader can scarcely be predicted. For auditor, M. C. Allgood is leading. For treasurer, there is great doubt, although Brooks Smith and M. A. Graham appear to have an advantage.

B. H. Cooper and S. P. Gaillard swept the State in their efforts to secure seats on the railroad commission. Mr. Cooper, Birmingham's candidate, led the ticket. Frank N. Julian and Leon McCord, incumbents, were beaten.

Comer's Manager Makes Statement.

At Comer headquarters Col. A. M. Garber, campaign manager for Gover Comer, made the following statement as reported in the Age-Herald:

"Indications are that Governor Comer has a majority in Baldwin, Conecuh, Shelby, Etowah, Lee, Dallas and probably in Wilcox. There is a plurality indicated for Governor Comer in Talladega, Limestone and Morgan.

"Kolb will probably lead Governor Comer in Mobile county by 1,000. Seed will probably lead Comer in Bibb county.

"The foregoing information has been communicated to me directly and I cannot make any statement as to the returns that others may have received.

"If there is a run-off I am forced to the conviction that it will be between Governor Comer and Captain Kolb."

KIDNEYS CLOG UP FROM EATING TOO MUCH MEAT

Take Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers—Meat Forms Uric Acid.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Adv.

Ancient Stage to Be Used.

A more than usually interesting dramatic revival is announced for April 16, when the "Agamemnon" of Aeschylus will be performed in the ancient Greek theater of Syracuse.

Nearly 24 centuries have passed since Hiero I embellished his city with the theater which tradition attributes to the architect Democopor Myrilla.

Aeschylus must have taken refuge in the court of Hiero very soon after its completion, and it may be conjectured that the great trilogy, which began with the "Agamemnon," was often performed on its stage; it is known that the "Persae" was performed there and a work written for Hiero by Aeschylus, entitled the "Etneae," of which no trace remains.—New York Sun.

HAIR CAME OUT IN BUNCHES

Route No. 3, Box 20A, Broken Arrow, Okla.—"My trouble began with an itching of the scalp of my head. My scalp at first became covered with flakes of dandruff which caused me to scratch and this caused a breaking out here and there on the scalp. It became so irritated until I could not rest at night and my hair would come out in bunches and became short and rough.

"Everything I used would cause it to grow worse and it continued that way for about three or four years. While reading the paper I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. It proved so good that I decided to get some more. I used them as directed and in two weeks I saw a good effect. Now my hair is longer and looks better than I have ever known it to be. I give all the credit of my cure of scalp trouble to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Ella Sheffield, Nov. 30, 1912.

Works Wonders for Sick Women

STELLA-VITAE cured this woman, who had suffered for 25 years. Give it a chance to cure YOU!

WHAT STELLA-VITAE HAS DONE for one woman is well told by Mr. S. J. Hendrix, of Posey, Texas, who gratefully writes us:

"For twenty-five years I had from one to three Doctors treating my wife for female troubles, and tried various patent medicines and she only received temporary relief. We tried STELLA-VITAE and to our surprise it restored her to better health than she ever had. It did a wonderful work in her case."

STELLA-VITAE acts directly upon the female organs and functions. It tones and strenghtens the muscles and tissues, builds up and restores the whole system when run down and wasted by disease, soothes and adjusts the delicate nervous organization to that harmonious balance so necessary to perfect womanly health.

STELLA-VITAE regulates the functions peculiar to women, stops wasting and relieves dangerous suppression, banishes the terrors of those periods so dreaded by weak, nervous, run-down women.

STELLA-VITAE does not force nature, and is of remarkable benefit at all times and under all conditions. Its use during pregnancy benefits both mother and child.

We guarantee the first bottle of STELLA-VITAE to benefit you. If it don't you get your money back. If it does, your dealer is authorized to sell you six bottles for $5.

Try STELLA-VITAE on this "all to gain and nothing to lose" basis. Try it TODAY.

If you are sick there is no time like NOW for trying STELLA-VITAE.

SPECIAL ELECTION TO FILL VACANCY

SUCCESSOR TO JUDGE RICHARDSON MAY BE CHOSEN ON MAY 11TH.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS ITEMS

Doings of the Various Departments of the Commonwealth Given for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

A special election will probably be called for May 11 by Governor O'Neal to fill the vacancy in the Eighth Congressional District, caused by the death of Congressman William Richardson.

Judge Richardson was not a candidate for re-election. His term would not have expired until March 4, 1915, and as the term of his successor to be nominated in the primary next Monday will not begin until next March, a special election will have to be called by the Governor to provide for the filling of the vanancy. The candidates for Congress in the Eighth District are Judge E. B. Almon, W. W. Callahan, Judge J. H. Ballentine and Clarence Watts.

To Build Modern Road.

Tallapoosa county is preparing to construct a modern highway from East Tallassee to Dadeville, the county seat, by way of the famous Horse Shoe Bend battleground. Announcement to this effect was made by W. S. Keller, State highway engineer, after a talk with Probate Judge G. J. Sorrell of Tallapoosa county.

A small part of this road has already been built out of Dadeville, but steps will be taken to continue the highway on to East Tallassee before the summer begins. It is contemplated that practically the entire road will be constructed before the celebration is held on Horseshoe Bend battleground on July 4 in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the battle. One of the features of this celebration will be the unveiling of a monument on the famous battleground.

When the road is completed between East Tallassee and Dadeville a splendid highway will then be in operation from Montgomery all the way to Horseshoe Bend battleground. The road between Montgomery and Wetumpka is one of the best in the State, and the road from Wetumpka to East Tallassee, while not as good as the first, is said to allow comfortable travel in automobiles and other vehicles.

Mr. Keller will go to Dadeville to confer with Judge Sorrell in reference to the Dadeville-Tallassee road, and will advise with him as to the various details to be considered in the construction of the highway. Some of the money to be used in the building of the road will be appropriated by the State, though the county will furnish the greater part.

Oates Inspects Jails.

Dr. William H. Oates, State prison inspector, has submitted to the Governor reports on the county jails of Mobile, Baldwin, Conecuh, Clark and Escambia. The prison inspector reported that most of these jails were found to be in a sanitary condition, though made a few minor recommendations relative to one or two of the prisons.

Receipts From Fertilizer Tags.

Total receipts by the State Department of Agriculture in March were $79,552, compared with $66,663 in the same month of 1913. John C. Cheney, chief clerk of the department, said this was an indication that farmers were using more and better fertilizer this year than last. All but $684 of the collections came in from the sale of ertilizer tags.

Courts Will Resume.

After a recess since February 9, the supreme court and the court of appeals resumed their grind and continued on until June 30.

Dismissed Bill of N. C., & St. L.

Judge Thomas G. Jones signed an order dismissing the bill filed filed by the N. C., & St. L. railway against the Railroad Commission, to prevent the Commission enforcing its order of a 2 1-2 cents passenger rate, in accordance with an agreement reached by the interested parties, March 9.

Bills filed by the other roads against the Commission had already been dismissed by terms of the agreement, but they had temporary injunctions while the N. C. and St. L. did not.

Montgomery Assured of School.

Montgomery has secured the training school for the Alabama National Guard, according to the official statement from General Scully, and the grounds directly behind the Country Club will be used for the maneuvers. The school will begin May 4, lasting five days.

When it was learned several weeks ago that the old grounds at Pickett Springs would not be available this year for the soldiers to hold their drills and practices, it was feared that Montgomery would lose the school, and Birmingham felt sure of getting it. Through the efforts of the Business Men's League, suitable grounds were soon secured that offer better advantages than those at Pickett Springs.

Just behind the Country Club the Business Men's League found an ideal spot for the training maneuvers, and General Scully readily approved of them and announced that the school would be conducted at Montgomery. The officers will have access to the club rooms and advantages, by courtesy of the directors of the Country Club.

Abolish Convict Lease System.

The movement for a complete abolition of the convict lease and the fee system in Alabama was given an impetus by the appearance in Montgomery Philip Weltner, secretary of the prison association of Georgia. He called on the people of this State to "unshackle stricken humanity and put an end in Alabama to the murder of half dead men." He denounced the lease system and contract system of handling convicts, and gave a brief history of the convict system in Georgia, which has undergone vital reforms.

He said that the fee system is "fundamentally wrong because it opens the door to graft and exposes the honest official, who meant to do his duty, to slander.

"It brings down the whole system to disgrace, whether it is the solictor general or prosecuting attorney, the man who keeps an almshouse or the sheriff who feeds the prisoners in a jail," he said.

Mr. Weltner has returned to Atlanta. His presence in Alabama has intensified the wave which has been sweeping over this State for months in favor of the abolition of the convict lease systems and it is freely predicted that the Legislature next January will be called upon to act.

To Study Animal Life.

Prof. A. H. Howell, one of the attaches of the United States bureau of biological survey, is in Alabama and will spend one year in this State studying the habits of birds and wild animals in connection with the work of his department. Professor Howell called at the office of John H. Wallace, Jr., State game and fish commissioner, and received permission to kill whatever birds of game he needs for scientific purposes.

This work is quite important and will result in the obtaining of much information that has heretofore been lacking concerning the habits of wild life in this State. Professor Howell's researches will be made in all parts of the State. At the conclusion of his investigations he will submit a report of his findings to the government.

Marks Bound Over to Grand Jury.

Judge John A. Elmore, United States commissioner, bound over to the federal grand jury Harry Marks, one of the three alleged robbers of the Alabama Great Southern train at Bibbville, September 25. Marks' bond was fixed at $10,000, and he and his alleged partners will be transferred to Birmingham to stand trial.

The partners of Marks, John Williams and Frank Moore, were bound over to the grand jury last week, but decision in the latter case was held up pending the arrival of witnesses to prove that Marks was, in another State at the time the robbery occurred. Marks' ateorneys, however, submitted the case before witnesses arrived.

Money for Schools.

Warrants calling for the payment of $110,298 to Alabama educational institutions and the Old Soldiers' Home, at Mountain Creek, were sent out by the State Auditor. The Alabama Polytechnic Institute drew $26,020; nine agricultural schools, $10,125; county high schools, $37,500; University of Alabama, $17,750; Alabama Girls' Technical Institute, $13,395; Canebrake Experiment Station, $1,000; Soldiers' Home, $4,508.

Prisoners Escape From Mine.

News has been received by the State convict department of the escape of two negro prisoners from Banner mines on the night of March 30. The names of the negroes are Emmet Moore and Robert Berry, both of Jefferson county, and both serving long sentences. Moore was sent up in 1909 to serve 24 years for burglary and assault to murder and Berry was serving a life sentence for murder, having been sent up in 1903. A reward of $50 each has been offered for the recapture of the two convicts.

Test New Food for Stock.

Nearly two thousand plant specimens have been collected on the national forests in California for the purpose of determining their value as forage for stock. Data are collected as to their range, abundance, forage value, etc., and the information will be compiled in pamphlet form for the use of the field force. In this way knowledge is gained of the plants beneficial to stock and of those which are worthless or injurious, and practical use is made of this information in the administration of national forest stock ranges. In the course of this work a number of species previously unknown to botanists have been discovered.

FIGHT IS PLANNED TO SECURE BANKS

DECISION OF COMMITTEE CAN BE REVERSED ONLY BY THE RESERVE BOARD.

MAY INCREASE THE NUMBER

Federal Reserve Board Cannot Be Expected to Reverse Itself, However.

Where Banks Will Be Located.

Washington.—The cities selected for regional banks are:

Boston	New York
Philadelphia	Cleveland
Richmond	Atlanta
Chicago	St. Louis
Minneapolis	Kansas City
Dallas, Tex.	San Francisco.

Washington.—There was every indication that the announcement of the reserve districts and cities by the reserve bank organization committee had given the signal for a determined struggle upon the part of several cities which were disappointed to overturn the committee on the decision and bring about a redistricting of the country, or at least a change in the reserve cities named.

Under the law the decision of the organization committee is not subject to review except by the federal reserve board. This board probably will not be named by President Wilson for several weeks, but in the meantime it is believed that those disappointed with the committee's announcement will bend every effort toward paving the way for changes. It was pointed out that both Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams of the organization committee, are ex-officio members of the reserve board, and hardly could be counted upon to reverse themselves. The president has given no intimation as to whom the other five members will be.

The committee's plan was criticised in congress and there were reports of keen disappointment from several cities which were in the race for reserve banks and which failed to secure them. Three members of the senate banking and currency committee, two Republicans and a Democrat, found fault with the plan.

REBELS TO ATTACK TAMPICO

Admiral Fletcher Predicts Federals Will Abandon Gulf Port.

Washington.—Following closely on official advices from George C. Carothers, American consular agent at Torreon, of the flight of the federal troops from that city, came a prediction from Rear Admiral Fletcher that the important gulf port of Tampico probably would be abandoned by the federals without a fight.

Administration officials made no comment on the Torreon result and official sentiment is not likely to crystalize until more is known of the battle itself and its effects in Mexico City and elsewhere.

Mr. Carothers' report of the fall of Torreon lacked detail, particularly with reference to losses sustained on both sides and the movements of the retreating federals.

Torreon, Mexico.—Torreon, strewn with victims of a six-day battle, was occupied by Villa's rebels while the federals fled. The capture marks the climax of the first campaign of the revolution to oust Victoriano Huerta from Mexico City. It gives the Constitutionalists virtual control over the whole northern tier of Mexican states.

The fighting began and was almost continuous. At first Villa attempted assaults on the strong federal positions in daylight, but these proved too costly, so the days were spent in cannonading and the nights in assaults.

Positions were taken and lost time and time again. Several night attacks sent the federals scurrying from strong positions, but at daybreak the federals evacuated.

Gunmen to Be Given Reprieve.

Albany, N. Y.—Unless Governor Glynn changes his mind, a reprieve for the four New York gunmen, under sentence to die in Sing Sing during the week beginning April 13, will be granted. If granted, the stay of execution will be until after the second trial of Charles Becker, who, with the gunmen, was found guilty of the murder of Herman Rosenthal. District Attorney Whitman has said he intends to try Becker a second time as soon as possible, but it will be from three to six months hence.

Monroe Doctrine Not Obsolete.

Philadelphia.—The principle of the Monroe doctrine is just as alive now as it ever was and President Monroe's declaration is not an "obsolete shibboleth," according to statement at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Speakers with few exceptions were in agreement upon the general principle of the doctrine. Rear Admiral Chester urged a concert of action among American republics in a policy of "America for the Americans."

FREE TOLLS LOSE IN HOUSE

MAJORITY FOR REPEAL LARGER THAN WILSON SUPPORTERS EXPECTED.

220 Democrats Stood by the President and Only 52 Voted Against Measure.

Washington.—The national house of representatives, after one of the most spectacular legislative struggles in the history of the nation, voted to repeal the provision of the Panama canal act exempting American vessels from the payment of tolls. The vote on the repeal bill was 247 to 161—a majority of 86 votes in support of the personal plea of Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States.

This verdict on the issue which has absorbed congress for many weeks came at the close of a stirring day, made memorable in the annals of the house by a party division which found Speaker Champ Clark, Majority Leader Underwood and other Democratic chieftains lined up in open opposition to the president on an issue which the latter had declared vital to his conduct of the nation's foreign policy.

On the final vote 220 Democrats in the house stood by the president, giving him in "ungrudging measure" what he had asked "for the honor of the nation" in its foreign relations. Twenty-five Republicans and two Progressives also voted to sustain the president. Fifty-two Democrats followed Speaker Clark and Leader Underwood to defeat.

NEGRO WOMAN IS LYNCHED

Mob at Muskogee, Okla., Hanged Negress to Telephone Pole.

Muskogee, Okla.—Marie Scott, a negro woman who killed Lemuel Peace a young white man, by driving a knife into his heart, was taken out of the Wagoner county jail and hanged to a telephone pole. The mob, which was masked, overpowered the jailer, a one armed man, threw a rope over the woman's head and dragged her out of the jail.

The county attorney of Wagoner county has started an investigation.

A knock at the jail door aroused the sleeping jailer, alone in the office. A voice outside said an officer was there with prisoners. The jailer opened the door and faced twelve revolvers. He was bound quickly and his keys taken from him. He then was thrown in the corner.

$100 a Month Willed to a Dog.

Boston.—"Pete Crafts" will continue to enjoy luxuries uncommon among dogs. The probate court approved the will of his late master, John Chancellor Crafts, which provides a fund of $1,200 a year for the upkeep of Pete. Relatives who had been cut off without a cent contested the will, alleging "undue influence." At the hearing witnesses told how Pete had presided at the head of the table at "birthday parties" given in his honor and that his master considered the dog a greater friend than any man.

Clarke New Senator From Arkansas

Little Rock, Ark.—Figures received from the primary election of last week show that Senator James P. Clarke has won in the senatorial race over Judge William F. Kirby. The official vote of Poinsett county, as given by the chairman of the Poinsett county committee, gives Clarke a majority of 1,181 and in the state of 720. The total vote of the state, official except from Poinsett, which comes from the chairman of that county's central committee, is: Clarke, 68,445; Kirby 67,745.

Million a Night for Fun.

A million dollars a night. That's what a proprietor of a Broadway hotel in New York figures that the natives and visitors spend for revel and pleasure. It sounds fanciful, true. But here's how he spends the million: Dinners, $125,000; suppers and wine, $125,000; theaters, $175,000; taxicabs, $100,000; hotels, $175,000; cafes, flowers and other incidentals, $300,000. In a congressional election in New Jersey Monday, the Republicans won by a large majority.

If you want to convince yourself that the Democratic party has kept its promise to reduce the cost of living, eat bean soup three times a day.—Trenton (N. J.) State Gazette.

It is very probable that the tota vote polled in the primary in Chilton county on Monday will not exceed 850. There are a total of over a thousand voters who will cast ballots in the Progressive primary on the 21st. These numbers placed beside each other in November will show Chilton true to her long established precedent.

Money in cirulation is to a nation's commerce what blood is to the arteries, and when a country enacts a Free Trade law that takes our currency out of the country, it bleeds our veins of prosperity until business just naturally dies for want of the vital fluid. And that's what Democratic Free-Trade always does.—Moravian Falls (N. C.) Yellow Jacket.

In the seventh grade examinations held at several places in the county last Saturday, there were more than ninety applicants, and out of this number the county superintendent states that he is confident as many as seventy-five will be successful, and receive diplomas. The diplomas will be awarded at the county commencement at Thorsby on April 18th.

Recently we had occasion to talk with two certain friends of ours regarding matters of Alabama politics. The interviews were separate, and in both instances the other men had never voted anything but a Democratic ticket. The first one expressed great chagrin at the way our state has been humiliated in recent occurrences, and said he was ashamed of the way Democracy is carrying on things.

The other gentleman referred to the division between Hobson and Underwood as utterly unbecoming to any political party, and a reflection upon the Democracy of Alabama.

We believe these men, besides expressing their own convictions, were voicing the sentiments of hundreds of good men in the state, who have been disappointed in Democracy, and failed to find in it the principles of honest and sound government which appeal to high minded and pure citizen-hip.

For Sheriff, B. E. Jones.

For Commissioner First District, Charles B. Cox.

For Commissioner Second District, W. Y. Atchison.

Judge Deason in his race for Congress against Fred L. Blackmon, carried this and Dallrs County by good majorities, but lost to his opponent in the district taken as a whole.

Thomas A. Curry for Lieutenant Governor, received a good majority in this county, but was surpassed by Kilby in the state at large.

THE IMPOSSIBILITIES OF YESTERDAY ARE THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF TODAY

People once thought that small pox was incurable. They also thought the same thing about diphtheria. It was once thought that tomatoes were deadly poison and that flying machines were impossible.

I dont like the word impossible. It sounds like a fragile excuse of a man who has failed. Men live to learn and the impossibilities of yesterday are the accomplishments of today.

The old fogy, who says "It c-a-i-n-t be done," is jolted out of his reveries by some one doing it.

One after another, the enemies of mankind have been vanished, and one by one, the incurable diseases have been cured.

Now when we offer to furnish you the names of hundreds and thousands of the best citizens in the State of Georgia and adjoining States, who claim that they have been cured of the worst forms of indigestion, stomach trouble and constipation by the use of poindexter's tonic and poindexter's golden seal compound, some wise guy will tell you that it cannot be done.

We do not ask you to take our word. Leave off what we say, but, in justice to yourself, permit us to furnish you the names of those who suffered long from this dangerous malady, but are now hale, hearty and happy, and, who will tell you how they were cured by the use of Poindexter's Tonic and Poindexter's Golden Seal Compound.

Notice

At the expiration of three weeks from the date hereof application will be made to the Governor of Alabama for the pardon or parole of Thos. Mims, who was convicted in the circuit court of Chilton county, in May, 1912, for larceny.

Announcing the New Typewriter
OLIVER NO. 7

WE ANNOUNCE AN AMAZING MODEL—The OLIVER No. 7—a typewriter of superexcellence, with automatic devices and refinements that mark the zenith of typewriter progress. A marvel of beauty, speed and easy action. Typewriting efficiency raised to the nth power.

The OLIVER No. 7 embodies all previous Oliver innovations and new self-acting devices never before seen on any typewriter. A leap in advance which places The Oliver ten years ahead of its time. So smooth in action, so light to the touch, so easy to run, that experts are amazed. A model that means to the typist delightful ease of operation.

A model that means a higher standard of typewriting, longer and better service.

The No. 7 is now on exhibit and sale at all Oliver Branches nd Agencies throughout the United States.

The new model has more improvements, refinements and new uses than we can even enumerate here.

The "cushioned keyboard" with 'anchor keys" and the new automatic features mean less work for the hands, less strain on the eyes, less manuel and mental effort.

With all of these masterly mechanical improvements we have made the machine more beautiful and symmetrical. From every standpoint The OLIVER No. 7 attains superlative excellence.

Nothing you could wish for has been omitted. The new devices, refinements, improvements and conveniences found on the No. 7 represent an enormous outlay and vastly increase its value—the price has not been advanced one penny. We shall even continue in force our popular 17-Cents-a-Day purchase plan, the same as on previous Oliver models.

The OLIVER No. 7, equipped with the famous Printype, if desired, without extra charge.

You owe it to ypurself to see the new machine before you buy any typewriter at any price. Note its beauty, speed and easy action, its wonderful automatic devices. Try it on any work that is ever done on typewriters. Try it on many kinds of work that no other typewriter will do.

It is a significant fact that the typewriter that introduced such epoch-making innovations as visible writing, visible reading, Printype, etc., should be the first to introduce automatic methods of operation.

Farmers of Chilton County

By scientific farming and co-operation in providing means to turn your goods into a finished product ready for the consumer instead of giving some other fellow the "long end of the rope," you can grow Spanish Peanuts at a cost of 50cts per bushel, get 100 bushels or more per acre, and sell them at four dollars a bushel.

The cost of preparation is not so great that it will not leave a handsome profit.

There will be a meeting at Bates Hall (Thorsby Institute) At 2 o'clock p. m. Saturday April 11th, to see what can be done to establish a factory in Thorsby that will enable farmers to secure a larger income for the product of their toil.

Planning for the Stork's Arrival

Among those things which all women should know of, and many of them do, is a splendid external application sold in most drug stores under the name of "Mother's Friend." It is a penetrating liquid and many and many a mother tells how it so wonderfully aided them through the period of expectancy. Its chief purpose is to render the tendons, ligaments and muscles so pliant that nature's expansion may be accomplished without the intense strain so often characteristic of the period of expectancy.

"Mother's Friend" may therefore be considered as indirectly having a splendid influence upon the early disposition of the future generation.

Whatever induces to the ease and comfort of the mother should leave its impress upon the nervous system of the baby.

At any rate it is reasonable to believe that since "Mother's Friend" has been a companion to motherhood for more than half a century it must be a remedy that women have learned the great value of.

Ask at any drug store for "Mother's Friend," a penetrating, external liquid of great help and value. And write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 402 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book of useful and timely information.

WHY IT SUITS PARTICULAR PEOPLE

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is prompt and effective for coughs, colds, croup hoarseness, bronchial coughs and throat taoubles. That's why it suits particular people. For sale by all dealers everywhere.

The returns of the election as received in Clanton and displayed to the public on a large screen in front of Alred's Drug Store Monday night was a rare treat for a town of this size.

Oak Grove

In regard to the Sunday school convention held at this place on the fifth Sunday in March, we are glad that we can tell our people through the county paper o such a convention, as it was the best that we have ever had the pleasure of attending in the county. The best part of it was that we had delegates from nearly every S. S. in our district, and Supt. with us, and all speakers were present and made us some as good talks as we ever heard.

We had a large crowd and the best order and attention that we ever had in such a large multitude of people, and every one seemed to enjoy the convention very much. And last, but not least by any means was the dinner prepared by the good sisters of Oak Grove, and we want to thank them for which was plentiful and delicious, and enjoyed by all present.

You don't have to let your watch or other repair work stay in Higgins, the Jeweler's place a month before you can get it. All work neatly and quickly done.

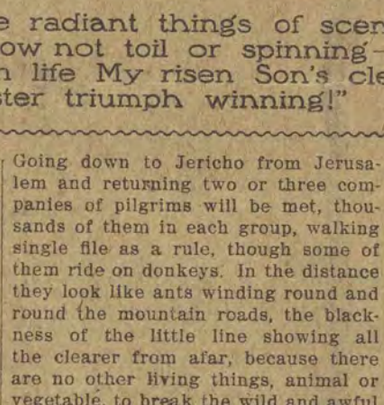
All Turn to Jerusalem

Sacred Scenes of Crucifixion and Resurrection Attract Pilgrims in Thousands at Easter Time



TYPICAL of the passing of winter gloom and of the coming of summer splendor, that was Easter from the beginning, the very embryo of nature study, the spontaneous expression of man's delight in the ever joyful and beautiful annual miracle of the springtime. "A thousand hills" in verdure clad, rare valleys spangled with wee wildlings, nurtured in nature's endless chain of gardens; vast forests putting on robes of spring and those trees which in their fruition offer feasts to humanity, first holding out their flowery offerings to their deities; flawless skies with cloudlets by way of making the blue dome more radiant—that was the world's pagan springtime up to that springtime of springtimes, that Sunday of Sundays, which we now celebrate as the chief festival of the resurrection of Christ and of the Christian era.

Easter! glorious Easter! Herald of nature's year, symbol of life eternal! Upon Easter all the Christian churches the wide world over hold commemorative services. Millions of voices are raised in praise; millions of heads are bowed in worship.

In the primitive church it was one of the special days for baptism. The Latin name of the Octave, or the following Sunday, Dominicus in albis, preserves the memory of the custom of the newly-baptized, wearing their white robes throughout the entire Week. Russian Christians, who now make pilgrimages to the Holy Land, however poor they may be, and however much they may need the room for food and extra clothing, carry with them one precious parcel which contains the white robe for the baptism in the Jordan, to which they go after celebrating Easter in Jerusalem. After this baptism the robe is never put on again until it serves as a shroud.

Going down to Jericho from Jerusalem and returning two or three companies of pilgrims will be met, thousands of them in each group, walking single file as a rule, though some of them ride on donkeys. In the distance they look like ants winding round and round the mountain roads, the blackness of the little line showing all the clearer from afar, because there are no other living things, animal or vegetable, to break the wild and awful mountainous monotony of the clayey and chalky limestone chasms and precipices.

However, compelling in interest other parts of Palestine may be at Easter, the thoughts of the Christian world, as well as the steps of pilgrims, turn Jerusalemward. And of all the places of overwhelming interest in Jerusalem those connected with the crucifixion and the resurrection are of the most vital and compelling interest. The various sects have shed blood following their arguments over sacred matters hereabouts, but, according to the guide-book, the Church of the Holy Sepulcher covers the traditional spot of both. Reached through narrow, crooked, none too clean streets, this church fills the visitor with mingled emotions. Squatting on the stone-paved space before the south entrance are sellers of beads, evil eyes and various souvenirs made of olive wood.

Once inside, one finds armed Moslem custodians, who are necessary to keep the peace between the jealous Christian pilgrims from various parts of the world, some of them half-starved fanatics, who have sacrificed everything except life itself to get there. And here one finds hanging any number of beautiful metal lamps. The Greeks are allowed a certain number, the Armenians so many, and so on.

Almost as soon as the guard is passed the large "Stone of Anointment" is reached. On this the body of Jesus is said to have lain when it was anointed by Nicodemus. The principal part of this building is the rotunda of the sepulcher. The chapel of the sepulcher is about six feet each way, and very low, 43 precious lamps hanging from the ceiling. It is here on the split marble slab, which serves as an altar, that the members of the Catholic church (Latin, Greek, Armenian chiefly), or their friends, have blessed rosaries and crucifixes. It is entered through the vestibule called the Angels' chapel. The vast and dim church is explored by the painstaking visitor with guide, lamp and opera glasses. It varies from the finished, marble-faced and much decorated parts to others that suggest dusty store rooms in neglected attics.

In 1894 the site known as the Garden Tomb was purchased for $10,000 by Church of England people, this body believing it to be the site of the entombment. It is a beautiful spot with quantities of fragrant rosemary wands forever swaying along with the rosy-fruited racemes of the pepper trees. It is very near to Gordon's Calvary, which is best seen from the entrance to Solomon's quarries; though just outside the Damascus gate, these quarries extend under the city to a distance of 700 feet. One authority says that from them enough marble was taken to build ten cities the size of Jerusalem. No wonder "not a sound was heard," since all the cutting was done before the stones were taken out.

"Why Weepest Thou."

Wherever grief walks lonely in its garden, an upward glance again reveals him, and there comes again the gentle question, like a soft touch on the heart's door to invite confession. Why should any one go uncomforted? To every one who grieves or suffers, the tender Lord stands as close today as he did to Mary on that first Easter morning. And to one who really takes the comfort that is offered, there is ever after, no one hour or day of comfort only, but a year-long Easter.

Glorious Easter Message.

How it changes the outlook on life, this Easter message! How differently we look upon the inhumanities of this life, the unfairness, the indignity, the sorrow of it all. It is for such a tiny part of our life! Just the schooling period! All the evidence shows there will be a balancing of accounts and a better state of things for those who wish for it, on the other side of the grave.

One's Ancestors.

How many male and female ancestors were required to bring you into the world? First, it was necessary that you should have a father and mother. That makes two human beings. Each of them must have had a father and mother. That makes four human beings. Again, each of them must have had a father and mother, making eight more human beings. So on we go back to the time of Jesus Christ, 56 generations. The calculation thus resulting shows that 139,235,017,489,534,976 births must have taken place to bring you into this world—you who read these lines! All this since the birth of Christ—not since the beginning of time.

HUSBAND SPENT EVERYTHING

In an Effort to Bring Wife's Troubles to End, and Finally Succeeds.

Myra, Ky.—Mrs. Sarah Branham, of this town, gives out the following statement for publication: "I am 37 years of age, and suffered untold agony with womanly troubles for 11 years. For 7 years, I was all run down, and was told that I could not live. My husband spent everything he had, but I got only temporary relief.

A merchant recommended Cardui, the woman's tonic, to my husband, and he got me 5 bottles at one time. I began taking it, and before the first bottle was gone, I began to feel better.

I took all of the 5 bottles, and I am today as sound and well as any woman, and fat and hearty."

Such testimony as the above, which is given unsolicited, speaks for itself. Can't you see, lady reader, that you are doing yourself, your family, your friends, an injustice by not, at least, trying Cardui, if you suffer from any of the many ailments so common to women?

Cardui is composed of pure, harmless, vegetable ingredients, which act in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly organs, helping build them back to permanent strength and health.

Cardui has helped thousands of other women. Why not you?

The 'bus conductors were on strike, and at the last moment their places were taken by all kinds of men anxious to make a little money.

These temporary officials did not know much about conducting a 'bus, and even less about conducting themselves with civility, in spite of the fact that a large number of them had had the advantage of a university training.

An old lady boarded a 'bus at Piccadilly Circus, and after they had gone a few yards, asked the conductor—one of the fallen stars:

THINGS ABOUT GUINEA FOWL

Birds Make Excellent Substitute for Game and Many Big Hotels Serve Them as Pheasants.

(By MRS. A. JOSEPH.)

The demand for guinea fowls grows stronger every year and is increasing as people become acquainted with the good qualities of their flesh. Those who have learned to appreciate the flavor of the flesh of a plump guinea are not slow to express surprise at the fact that the excellent qualities of this bird have not been more widely recognized.

It is true that the cook book fails to refer to them at all and yet there is not the least question but that they are superior eating to either the duck or the goose.

The young fowl are best broiled, while the older birds may be cooked by any recipe devised for the cooking of chickens, and in any case the result is far more palatable.

The flesh of the guinea is rather dark, but is finely grained, possessing a gamey flavor. For this reason the fowl makes an excellent substitute for game and many hotels in the larger cities serve it for pheasant. The eggs are also much relished on account of their rich flavor.

Every family in the country should keep a few guineas, if for no other purpose than for a "watch" for the poultry flock. In fact, in some places in this state they are called the watchdogs of the poultry yard.

The high, shrill notes which they possess will quickly put to flight any hawk or crow mischief bent; while after night no prowling animal or person can approach a house where guineas roost without arousing their discordant cries of alarm. Their senses of smell and hearing seem to be very keen.

The time required for hatching guinea eggs is twenty-eight days. The guinea is naturally a wild bird possessing a strong instinct to wander. For this reason it is better to raise the young birds under hens as they are more careful of their young than the guinea hens, and a great deal of trouble to get them to behave like domestic fowls will be avoided and if a few chicks can be placed with the brood when first taken off, so much the better; the guineas will then be inclined to stay along with the other birds and will not be nearly so wild as if kept alone.

OATS WILL PRESERVE EGGS

When Carefully Packed in Barrel and Placed in Some Cool Corner They Will Keep Sweet.

(By MRS. D. RYMER.)

Every year I pack a great many eggs and they keep from two to three months, and even longer in perfect condition. I have tried "water glass" and other things, but find that oats will keep eggs longer than anything else.

I pack them in half barrels and use plenty of oats. I first place a layer of oats about three inches on the bottom, and then a layer of eggs, never allowing one to touch the other, or the sides of the barrel. And then follow with another layer of oats until within about six inches from the top, when I fill up the barrel with oats. If the barrel containing the eggs is placed in a cool corner of the cellar or in the attic, or any other dry place, they will keep perfectly sweet, but if allowed to become damp they will spoil.

I have packed eggs in October in this way leaving them in the barn until nearly Christmas and then bringing them to the house. I have used these eggs as late as the following April and have sold them—always stating exactly what they were—and never had a complaint.

Buy a Good Incubator.

It may cost a few dollars more to buy a good incubator to start with, but the saving in eggs which are apt to be spoiled in a poor machine will more than make up the difference in the cost during the first season's run, not to mention the time and work wasted.

Eggs for Hatching.

Eggs from old hens should not be used for hatching purposes. Select eggs from young birds of good type, color, form and breed characteristics. Special attention must be given to selection if the breed is to be improved.

UNREASONABLE THING TO ASK

Thirsty Tourists Inclined to Be Finicky Should Visit Ireland During the Winter Months.

Two New York men were touring Ireland last summer by automobile. On a hot July afternoon they came to an inn. Stopping, they went into the bar. A red-cheeked peasant girl was the barmaid. The travelers ordered Irish and soda. The girl served them and went on with her interrupted work of wiping the bar. One of the men tasted his drink and found it tepid.

"I say, my girl," he said, "won't you please put some ice in these drinks?"

Her mouth went wide open and the mopping cloth was poised in mid-air. Amaze held her silent for a moment. Then she found tongue in a hurry.

"Ice, is it? And who the — ever heard of ice in July?"

Whereupon she fell to polishing again.

A DOCTOR'S GRATEFUL TESTIMONIAL.

Dr. C. H. Lee, Newcastle, Pa., writes: "About 18 months ago eczema broke out in my right ankle and spread to my knee. The itching was intense. In three or four months it went to the left ankle and leg. I got no relief until six months ago, when I tried EX-ZEMA-FO. The first bottle allayed the itching, with the second bottle, to my delight, improvement began and I am now about well. In Mr. F. Dunlap's case, his hands were in a terrible condition, but he made a very rapid cure. Gladly use my name, if it can be of any use to you." Caravaggio Picture Found.

An important find has been made in the art collection of Marchese della Stufa at France. It is a painting by Caravaggio, which had been lost sight of for many years. The painting was known to connoisseurs through a print in the Galleria degli Ufizzi.

Sig di Pietro, the secretary of this gallery, was determined to find the picture. It was known that in the year 1700 it was in possession of the Cerretani family, which is now extinct.

Sig di Pietro, while examining Marchese della Stufa's collection saw the painting and immediately identified it. The Ufizzi print is an exact reproduction of the picture, which is a typical Caravaggio. It depicts six youths, one of whom is playing a violin, one a lute and one a flute, while two are singing and one is listening.—New York Sun.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER GRAY HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. Wonderful Blood Remedy That Works in the Tissues

The Very Latest Theory About How and Why the Blood is Disordered.

S. S. S. Means Pure Blood Which Insures Long Life and Health.

The great experts in Chemistry and Physiology now declare what has all along been contended by the Swift Laboratory that the germs of blood disorders find lodgment in the interstices of the tissues.

And herein is where S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the nutritive elements of wheat, roast beef, and fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced, by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright, and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 201 Swift Bldg, Atlanta, Ga. Who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

Effect Passenger Rate Reduction

On Penny Scrip Books.

A misapprehension apparently existing as to the effect of the adaption of a local rate of passenger fare of two and a half cents per mile on the lines of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in the States of Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky upon the use of Penny Scrip Books, it should be understood that with April 1st in Alabama, and co-incident with the effective date of the new passenger rates in the other States, the Penny Scrip book, which contains twenty-five hundred one-cent coupons and is sold at $20.00, or a reduction of 20 per cent, will be accepted in payment for tickets at the new fares, thus producing a net rate to the holder of these books of two cents per mile wherever the local fare is made upon the basis of two and a half cents per mile.

In a similar manner the scrip book will secure a net rate of two cents per mile on interstate journeys when the interstate passenger fares have been adjusted to the basis of the new state fares which will be as soon as the interstate tariffs can be compiled.

These books are interchangeable between all railroads east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio and Potomac River and secure the same percentage of reduction, with but few exceptions, throughout the entire territory.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the Progressive voters of our county concerning my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Chilton county. It has been my desire and aim to see every voter and talk to him personally about my claim, but I find I cannot do this, therefore I take this method of reaching you and soliciting your support and influence. In making my announcement I do so with a full realization of the great responsibility that rest upon the office to which I aspire, and should I receive the nomination, I will do all in my power to be elected in November, promising now that if elected, will devote my entire time and personal attention to the duties of the office, exerting every effort to fill it with credit to myself and entire party. In the discharge of the official duties of the office I shall know no man only with "Equal rights to all and special favors to none." Also if successful I shall go into office under no pledge or promise to any man regarding deputyship, etc., but will use my very best judgment in securing men capable and worthy of the position. If you think best to nominate someone else, then your choice will be my choice, and I will do as before, help elect him in November.

Again soliciting your influence and support and urging every one to go to the election April the 21st and cast your vote in behalf of the one best suited to fill the various offices, I am,

Yours respectfully,

H. A. Harris.

Jemison, Ala., April 13, 1914.

To the voters of Chilton:

I wish to write a few words as to what I stand for.

First, is better rural schools, and to get them we will have to get more money. We want this without an extra tax on us as we are taxed too high at any rate; so let us see if we can get some of the tag tax money in our rural schools. I think that we are maintaining too many Normal schools. Suppose we cut out some of them and place that donation or appropriation in our rural schools. As I see the situation at this time, we will never accomplish very much in the high schools until we build the foundation, which is the rural schools, and when we have good rural schools then it will beyond a doubt build the high schools of our state.

Second, I think that our County commissioners should look after our Jurors and abolish the Jury committee, and that our Tax Assessor with the aid of our Commissioners can look after the taxes of our county.

Third, I favor the game law as it now stands, but let us abolish the office of our game warden and let our Justice of the Peace look after that on commission.

Fourth, we all claim that we believe in equal rights to all and special privilege to none. Do we get this? If you think we do, get the state supt. of education report on education and see what our boys and girls gets in the rural school and see the donations to some of our Colleges that are supported by the State. You will find a vast difference.

If I get the nomination I will do all I can to be elected in November, and if elected you will find me at all times ready to do anything I can for the good of our County. I hope to see all our voters out at the polls on the 21st. Yours very truly,

W. E. Thomas.

Clanton, Ala., April 13, 1914.

To the voters of Chilton County:

Before the primary election which is to be next Tuesday, it is my desire to submit to you a few words in regard to my candidacy for the nomination for Sheriff of this county.

Throughout my campaign I have taken the same stand I have always taken—that of loyalty to the party and the peoples interests. It was largely a desire for serving our cause that originally prompted me in asking for your vote, and no intention other than to maintain the strictest fidelity to the cause that we together espouse.

You are my witnesses that I have endeavored to wage a clean and honorable campaign. I have indulged in no mud slinging, and have cast no personal reflections upon my opponent.

In soliciting the support of the voters of the county I have made no promises whateyer. If nominated and elected I will pledge my honor to execute the law with unwavering courage. I shall go in with my hands untied, to give to all men the equality of rights to which they are entitled, and with no obligations to render to any man or set of men any special favors. If my opponent is nominated over me, I will support him in the general election, and strive to elect our whole ticket.

With these few brief statements I deliver myself into your hands and await your verdict, which I again pledge myself to abide by as above stated.

Let me urge all to come to the polls and cast your ballot on April 21, whether you feel like voting for me or not. We need to stand by our party. The Democrats have put up the bars, and excluded certain classes from voting with them. Our party is an open one in which all qualified white voters may participate. Let us maintain this standard of openness by coming out and voting with the party that is unhampered by the many mechanical complexities that characterize the latter day democracy.

With heartiest thanks and appreciation for any service any and all of you may render me, and with best wishes for the success of the entire ticket, I am,

Yours to serve,

John L. Gore.

Jemison, Ala. April, 13th 1914

I wish to say a word through the columns of your paper for my friend W. E. Thomas candidate for Representative in our coming Primary.

I think that he will represent the people of Chilton County in a creditable manner and that he will be a Representative of all the people. He has made a success of his business affairs and his business training will make him more capable as it is time for successful business men to get hold of our law making body in the State and men like Mr. Thomas will be needed in the Legislature.

I do not want to reflect on Mr. Foshee who is making the race against Mr. Thomas I simply think that Mr. Thomas with his age and experience will be a more fit man for the place at this time and think that we should support him for this reason.

Trusting that every one will go out on the 21st., of April and vote for the one of their choice and elect men who will manage our affairs in better shape than for the past four years, I am,

Yours very truly,

B. E. Collum.

Union Springs

Doubtless many hoped for a sunny Easter, but nature ruled otherwise.

Had a nice singing here Sunday. Large crowd; good dinner; and a good number of visitors. Leaders chiefly were Messrs. Lowery, Hodgens, Armstrong, Waldrup and Scott. Had a nice sermon by Rev. Mr. Abercrombie of Centerville.

It seems that a majority of the Democratic party in the 4th district regarded Mr. Blackmon as a good congressman notwithstanding the Clanton Press was against him.

A communion service was held just south of us Friday night the 10th. A number of Christians were present. That date was the anniversary of the institution of the Holy right; a very appropriate time to observe it; it being a memorial service. Christians all over the world in large and smaller bodies observed the service at the same time.

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR CUTTING WAGES

Steel Magnates in Recent Meeting in Pittsburg Consider Step

The meeting at Pittsburg last Tuesday of the heads of five large independent steel companies is gradually being recognized in industrial circles as of great importance. It appears that not only are plans actually under way looking toward the cutting of wages of common labor, but wage scales generally are to be pared. Views are expressed that this movement can only be stopped by early and definitely large betterment in bnsiness, such as is to be expected with a granting of the higher railroad freight rates, for a liquidation of wages is regaded as ultimately necessary under the present tariff. In other words, greatly higher prices for steel are not looked for, owing to the possibilities of heavy importation of foreign steel when there is much difference between prices here and abroad.

Among other developements of the week were the large increase in pig iron production in March over February announced by the Iron Age, and the relatively small amount of unfilled orders held by the United States Steel corporation. Most of the increase in pig iron went into steel manufactured and thus has left the hands of the steel companies, so it is felt that stocks in hands of jobbers and manufacturers have perhaps increased somewhat, which they could easily do, the supply of idle material being small.

Prices have settled to the level reached two weeks or so ago, and there are some signs of considerable new construction being considered owing to the present advantage in this regard.

Singing

There will be singing at Beth Salem church, the third Sunday evening in April, the 19th. Everybody is invited to be with us. The new book will be used.

SPRING FLOWERS.

Spring means little to the city dweller, save light suits, Easter hats, and the end of the coal pile, but to the fortunate mortal who lives in the country or to the one who remembers glorious country springs, it means the rejuvenation of the whole scheme of life.

The dear notes of the first migratory birds seem like whispers of heavenly voices, and the awakening green things lend us new strength to win life's battles. To me, however, the spring flowers bear the sweetest message from the promised land, and he who has not learned to appreciate it is indeed unfortunate.

On the shady side of ravine and hillside, come the daintily tinted and perfumed hepaticas. Only in the wild woods, away from the haunts of man, do they dwell, and one must search carefully beside the dwindling snowbank under wet leaves to uncover their lovely beauty. White, pink, blue, lavender and rose tints appear side by side, and the green brown leaves push away their winter covering of fallen oak leaves, and form a little tent for the tender blossoms to hide in. Only after the violets come do the hepaticas stand forth, where all may see their chaste beauty.

The sunny slope brings forth the trilliums—white and red, and the curious yellow blossoms that the children call yellow trilliums. To most city dwellers these and the violets are the first spring flowers because they are more abundant, and easier to find than the earlier blossoms.

The blue and yellow violets spring up about the same time as the trilliums, and no flower is dearer to the heart of the childhood.

The dog-tooth violets grow in the deep woods and in certain carefully-guarded secret spots bloom the wonderful spicy shooting stars.

Late in the spring, long after the May apples have dropped their waxy petals, the very fortunate seeker may come across a yellow or pink moccasin, near where the shooting stars grow.

THAT ABANDONED FARM.

I know four men and one woman who actually have acquired abandoned farm lands in the East, with the idea that they are going to rejuvenate those farms and grow healthy and wealthy in the process. Also, I am acquainted with about nineteen more people who have the same idea, but have not yet backed it up with their money. How many times have you thought you would like to do it yourself?

There is a fatal fascination in farming for most city people who have had an opportunity to become acquainted with the pleasant side of this oldest of the arts.

What then are the possibilities of buying a worn out farm in a good neighborhood, near a good city, for about $25 an acre, and by careful, scientific farming make a living, and at the same time increase the productivity of the soil to a point where it is worth $100 an acre?

The success of such a venture depends, primarily, upon two general factors—the degree of the land's exhaustion, and the ability and patience of the man who undertakes the job. Nitrogen can be returned to the land easier and cheaper than either of the other two important plant foods, hence one need not worry over its lack in the worn soil. If potash and phosphorus be very deficient, it is a much more serious question, because they must be purchased, and in many cases the cost of the fertilizer will equal the value of the crop.

The man who undertakes such a task must be prepared to wait long for results, and work hard while he waits. It cannot be done well by hired help entirely, and final success is a matter of years. Worn soil, which still possesses the ability to come back in a mighty good investment at the regular price, and the quickest way to bring most worn soils back to a profitable producing point is to feed them the necessary fertilizers to make them produce crops while you are waiting, and in addition, put on all of the barnyard manure, and turn under all of the green clover crops that you possibly can. Many a man has started a dairy on such a farm, buying most of his feed, and brought the land back to fertility with the manure from the dairy herd.

THE CITY MAN ON THE FARM.

More and more the interest of the city dweller is directed toward the land. Economic pressure is forcing the wage earner and the salaried man to consider the possibilities of getting more actual value from his work in the country and he is beginning to realize that thirty-five dollars a month with living expenses at twenty dollars a month is a better proposition than one hundred dollars a month with living expenses at ninety dollars.

Any man who takes reasonable care of himself and is saving in disposition can earn all he needs of the necessities of life for himself and his family on the farm. He may have to put in longer hours and his family may have to do more manual work than they now do, but they will all live longer and more happily than they will in the city. I can state definitely from personal acquaintance with hundreds of such cases that the average factory hand will save more money, lead a more healthful life, live better, and neither he nor his family will work any harder in the country than they now do in the city.

They will be farther away from the corner saloon and the nickel show, but the last two institutions will be the only losers by this separation and the whole family will be the better for it.

No family should move to the country unless the man is ready to work as long as there is work to do and the woman is willing to do the washing whenever necessary. Neither would I advise them to make such a move unless they love the country and know something of actual farm work, for discontent, loneliness and ignorance of how to do the work have been the prime cause of the failures of city farmers.

If you and your wife wish to get ahead in the world and see no opening in the city, one good way to get a start in the right direction is to get a job as farm hand under some good farmer where you will have a tenant house for your family. Work hard, keep your eyes open and learn all you can about farming. When you have accumulated enough money to keep your family a season, rent some good farm on shares, put in your crops, work hard and trust in the Lord.

Remember that farming is one of the most complicated of businesses, involving buying, selling and handling help, as well as conquering nature, but your living is sure. Almost every farmer who did not inherit his farm built it up year by year by just this kind of process, and you can do the same in the same way.

PARASITES AND POISON.

Lice and hens are almost inseparable companions. If you want a profitable combination of hens and eggs you must get rid of lice. I have been in some thousands of hen houses in the course of my study of this industry, and to the best of my belief I have never seen a farm flock of hens that was not more or less lousy. This is the reason that the average hen in the United States does not lay enough eggs to pay for her keep, if any one thing may be assigned as the reason.

There is no excuse why the city and suburban poultry keeper should have lice on his fowls, and he must get rid of them if he is to be thoroughly successful. Chicken lice are divided into two groups, head lice and body lice. The former are relatively unimportant, as they do not interfere with grown fowls to any great extent. They are a source of great danger to baby chicks, however, and they infest almost all chicks that come into contact with mature fowls, or the places that they frequent.

Head lice attach themselves to the feathers and skin of the head, under the wings, and around the vent of the baby chick. They can only be overcome by first keeping the chicks away from sources of infection, and second, greasing them thoroughly with lard when they are first placed with the hen, and keeping careful watch for later infection.

Body lice are the great plague of the domestic fowl, and they are even more common than fleas on dogs. These vermin run about on the skin of the chickens, eating the outer layer of the skin, and keeping them constantly irritated. In aggravated cases they will even cause the blood to break through the skin. They infect chickens and turkeys more than water fowl, and they never leave the body of the host voluntarily.

The price of freedom from lice is eternal vigilance. Be sure that any chickens you introduce to your hen house are free from lice. Powder them well with insect powder before turning them loose. Have a dry dust bath in a sunny spot and if the hens do not use it on fair days change the spot, for the only way a chicken has to cleanse itself and smother out the lice is by dusting.

Have the interior of the house and the nests whitewashed thoroughly at least twice a year, putting some carbolic acid in the wash. Once every two weeks in winter, and twice a week in hot weather, paint the roosts with a good strong solution of lice paint about two hours before the hens go to roost. Be sure to get it into all of the cracks and crevices.

Change the nesting straw at least once a month and use only clean straw. When you change it paint or spray the interior of the nests with the lice paint.

Red or spider mites are not lice, but they do just as much, if not more harm. They feed on the fowls' blood at night, sucking it like a mosquito, and in a badly infested house they have actually been known to bleed the hens to the point of exhaustion and subsequent death. Fortunately they are easily controlled and by the same methods that are used to kill lice. Be sure that the roosts and nests are kept clean and disinfected with lice paint. Do it as thoroughly as one would for bedbugs in the home and you will soon get rid of the mites.

These miserable little pests live on the perches and walls of the hen house, and about the nests. They avoid the light during the day time and sometimes are present in large numbers without being detected. Take no chances, but keep the roosts saturated with lice paint, and if possible have the roosts supported away from the walls so that they cannot hide between the end of the roost and the walls.

LAWLER HEARING POSTPONED AGAIN

IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT THE CASE WILL BE TRIED AT AN EARLY DATE.

DOINGS AT STATE CAPITAL

Proceedings of Public Events—News of An Important Nature Given.

—Montgomery.

Trial of Judge J. T. Lawler, probate judge of Madison county, on the charge of neglect of duty and incompetency, which was to have been heard April 10, by the supreme court, has been postponed at the request of attorneys.

Attorney General Robert C. Brickell, leading counsel for the state in the impeachment proceedings against Judge Lawler, was unable to be present at the time set for the trial, owing to his absence at Columbiana, and asked that the case be postponed. The attorney general went to Columbiana to represent the state in the prosecution of James G. Oakley.

It was announced that the case against Judge Lawler would be called at an early date.

After Federal Jobs.

Federal appointments in Alabama are expected to be made in the near future. The senatorial campaign checked the work. Inasmuch as the campaign is now history, activity on the part of applicants will be resumed.

Dr. Inzer B. Wyatt of Huntsville is an applicant for the marshalship of the Northern district and Thomas L. Long of Jasper, is one of his opponents. Both are confident, it was stated, that they will be successful in landing the berth.

The death of Captain Crook leaves a vacancy in the postoffice at Besemer. This vacancy, it is expected, will be filled in the near future. There are several postoffices to be filled in the Sixth district. In Tuscaloosa there is a vacancy. As is remembered, Sam Clabaugh was named but his nomination was held up. The struggle, it is believed, will be resumed.

Oakley Given Acquittal.

A special from Columbiana says: "Not Guilty" was the verdict of the jury in the Shelby county circuit court here after deliberating four hours on the evidence in the trial of James G. Oakley, charged with the embezzlement of state funds while president of the convict board.

Immediately following the verdict there was a demonstration outside of the court house, the great crowd evidently being pleased at the verdict.

The Columbiana trial is the second that James G. Oakley has faced on similar charges, he having already been acquitted in the criminal court of Montgomery county. There are still several indictments against him in Montgomery, but it is not known whether or not the state will press them since his acquittal in two cases.

R. R. Commission Holds Session.

At the April session of the railroad commission among the cases considered and taken under advisement were the petition of J. P. Carnes and others for an order requiring the Southern Railway company to construct a combination freight and passenger depot at Fruithurst; petition of F. J. Ingram and others for a better train service on the Pyriton branch of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic railroad; petition of S. E. Elliott and others for a passenger and freight depot at Harpersville, on the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic railroad; petition of A. E. Stanton and others for an order requiring the Louisville & Nashville railroad to make Canco, Ala., a flag station, and the petition of the Hays Cooperage company for the establishment of "reasonable" rates for hauling wood on the Alabama Great Southern, Southern and Louisville & Nashville railroads.

White and Harris Eligible

Chairman Tyler Goodwyn of the state democratic executive committee certified to the secretary of state the names of Capt. Frank S. White of Birmingham and C. C. Harris of Decatur as nominees to run in the special elections May 11, to fill the unexpired terms of the late Senator J. F. Johnston, and the late Congressman William Richardson. Captain White was nominated for the short senatorial term in the recent primary and Mr. Harris was nominated at Decatur by the congressional committee.

Postpone Pig Iron Rate Case.

At the request of the Louisville & Nashville and Southern railroads the Alabama railroad commission has postponed the hearing of the Mobile pig iron case until the May session. In this case the railroads are asking for a reconsideration of the commission's order for the establishment of a rate of $1.75 a ton on pig iron from the Jefferson county district to Mobile, in lieu of the rate of $2.75 charged heretofore. The railroads claim the reduced rate does not allow them a fair charge for the rate.

Decrease in Alabama Debt.

Preliminary figures from the forthcoming bulletin pertaining to national and state indebtedness and funds and investments have been given out by Director W. J. Harris of the bureau of the census, department of commerce at Washington. The bulletin carries information for the state of Alabama, as well as for other states and the United States. The data were compiled under the supervision of John Lee Coulter, expert special agent in charge of the inquiry on weath, debt and taxation.

The bulletin, which will soon be issued will contain statistics for each year from 1890 to 1913, inclusive, and will also contain details for the year most nearly corresponding to 1880, thus making it possible to show the general movement during a period of over 30 years. The bulletin will show the total debt of the states as well as many details, such as the various classes of outstanding bonds, and special debt obligations to public trust funds. It will also show the floating debt and its component parts. Under "Funds and Investments" will be shown separately all the different funds, and in each case cash and securities will be shown. The population of the states for each year under consideration will be used, and the per capita debt (less sinking fund assets) will be given.

An inspection of the tables for Alabama in the bulletin soon to be issued shows that both bonds and special debt obligations to public trust funds remained nearly constant throughout the period covered, though slight fluctuations in the floating debt are to be noted. In the case of funds and investments the securities remained nearly constant throughout the period, a slight increase being noted, however. The cash item naturally fluctuated more o rless from year to year. No sinking fund assets, as such, are found in Alabama, thus leaving the debt less sinking fund assets the same as the total debt.

In view of the fact that the debt remained almost constant during this period of more than 30 years, while the population of the state increased greatly, the per capital debt of the state gradually decreased.

In 1880 the total debt of Alabama at the close of the fiscal year, September 30, was $12,371,000; in 1909 it was $12,585,000; and in 1912 it was $13,132,000. There has been practically no change since 1909 except an increase in floating debt from $31,000 to $488,000 on September 30, 1912. The population of the state increased from 1,263,000 in 1880 to 2,145,000 in 1910, thus bringing about a very great decrease in the per capital debt. In 1880 the per capita debt amounted to $9.80; 10 years later it amounted to $8.22; in 1899 it had gone down to $7.02; and in 1909, to $5.96. Since that time it has remained nearly constant, the slight increase in floating debt being nearly equal to the increase of population, leaving the per capita debt $5.95.

Embalmers Hold Meeting.

Members of the Alabama Funeral and Embalmers' Association held their annual meeting in Montgomery. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Duncan May, president of the Business Men's league, and W. A. Gunter, Jr., president of the city commission, and talks on the work of the organization were made by several officers and members. The meeting closed with a banquet.

Selma Company Mustered Out.

At the request of officers of the organization, Company C, Second infantry, Alabama National Guards, at Selma, has been mustered out of service. Capt. Clarence L. Boggs is commander of the company. The equipment of the company will be sent to headquarters of the National Guard at Montgomery.

Physicians Convene April 21 to 24.

Between four hundred and six hundred Alabama physicians will be in Montgomery April 21 to 24 for the annual meeting of the State Medical Association. Announcement of the convention was made by the Montgomery County Medical Society.

Murdered and Thrown Into River.

Arthur Lee, a negro, in jail here for the murder of J. M. Warner, a white farmer of this county, confessed that Warner's slayer was Robert Emmet Lee's companion on the night of the tragedy.

Warner was murdered and his body was thrown into the Alabama river. The two negroes were immediately arrested and lodged in the Montgomery county jail, in separate cells.

Warner's body has not yet been recovered. The river has been dragged at various places but without avail.

NEIGHBOR ASKED FOR INFORMATION

Which Was Promptly Disclosed and She Lost no Time in Profiting Thereby.

Miami, Okla.—"One of my neighbors," says Mrs. Hannah M. Turley, of this town, "came to my house last week, and said: 'Mrs. Turley, what did you take to help you so quickly?' I told her it was just Cardui, the woman's tonic, and she said: 'I wish I looked as well as you do.' I told her if she would only get $5.00 worth of Cardui, and take it, she would. So she sent her husband to town to get the Cardui, and commenced taking it. She looked so pale and sick all the time, but is beginning to look better already.

As to how it helped me—I suffered for about 5 years, with womanly troubles, and became so weak and nervous, and would suffer such pain every month, that I thought, at times, I would die. Was in such condition that I couldn't do my work half of the time, and would have awful smothering spells.

My husband bought me a full treatment of Cardui (6 bottles) and I can truthfully say that after I took the last bottle I was well. Am enjoying the best of health now, and am so thankful to Cardui."

Take Cardui for your trouble. You will never regret it. Begin today. Ask your nearest druggist.

SCOURGE IS STILL DEADLY

Claims of a "Cure" for Consumption Have Not Been Verified by Scientific Authorities.

In spite of the statements of a number of individuals who have recently claimed that they have found a "cure" for consumption, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, the highest authority on this disease in America, declares that there is no information at hand to justify the belief that any specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered which deserves the confidence of the medical profession and the people. Backing up these statements, the United States public health service declares that outside of the three essentials in the treatment of consumption, namely, rest, fresh air, and good food, "There is no drug known, however rare or expensive it may be, that has any curative action in this disease, and all remedies advertised as such are to be avoided. Patent cough medicines are harmful; redium, X-rays or electricity in any of its form have no special value in tuberculosis of the lungs. No serum has yet been found that will cure it, and there is no plaster or poultices which has any effect on the disease itself.

Hygienic Salts for the Bath.

A physician who believes in baths as a tonic advises the use of Epsom or Carlsbad salts—preferably the former—for a general invigoration. They should be used not more than twice a week.

Take one ounce of the salts to a pint of warm water for a sponge bath. For a large tub bath use a pint of salts to a tub of warm water.

Purchase the salts at a wholesale drug house. The usual price in quantities is four cents a pound. This salt water makes an excellent tonic and carries off many impurities through the pores of the skin.

UPWARD START
After Changing from Coffee to Postum.

Many a talented person is kept back because of the interference of coffee with the nourishment of the body.

This is especially so with those whose nerves are very sensitive, as is often the case with talented persons. There is a simple, easy way to get rid of coffee troubles and a Tenn. lady's experience along these lines is worth considering. She says:

"Almost from the beginning of the use of coffee it hurt my stomach. By the time I was fifteen I was almost a nervous wreck, nerves all unstrung, no strength to endure the most trivial thing, either work or fun.

"There was scarcely anything I could eat that would agree with me. The little I did eat seemed to give me more trouble than it was worth. I was literally starving; was so weak I could not sit up long at a time.

"It was then a friend brought me a hot cup of Postum. I drank part of it and after an hour I felt as though I had had something to eat — felt strengthened. That was about five years ago, and after continuing Postum in place of coffee and gradually getting stronger, today I can eat and digest anything I want, walk as much as I want. My nerves are steady.

"I believe the first thing that did me any good and gave me an upward start, was Postum, and I use it altogether now instead of coffee."

Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

CHAPTER I.

March Comes In Like the Lion.

The train, which had roared through a withering gale of sleet all the way up from New York, came to a standstill, with many an ear-splitting sigh, alongside the little station, and a reluctant porter opened his vestibule door to descend to the snow-swept platform: a solitary passenger had reached the journey's end. The swirl of snow and sleet screaming out of the blackness at the end of the station building enveloped the porter in an instant, and cut his ears and neck with stinging force as he turned his back against the gale. A pair of lonely, half-obscured platform lights gleamed fatuously at the top of their icy posts at each end of the station; two or three frost-incrusted windows glowed dully in the side of the building, while one shone brightly where the operator sat waiting for the passing of No. 33.

An order had been issued for the stopping of the fast express at B——, a noteworthy concession in these days of premeditated haste. Not in the previous career of flying 33 had it even so much as slowed down for the insignificant little station, through which it swooped at midnight the whole year round. Just before pulling out of New York on this eventful night the conductor received a command to stop 33 at B—— and let down a single passenger, a circumstance which meant trouble for every dispatcher along the line.

The woman who got down at B—— in the wake of the shivering but deferential porter, and who passed by the conductors without lifting her face, was without hand luggage of any description. She was heavily veiled, and warmly clad in furs. At eleven o'clock that night she had entered the compartment in New York. Throughout the thirty miles or more she had sat alone and inert beside the snow-clogged window, peering through veil and frost into the night that whizzed past the pane, seeing nothing yet apparently intent on all that stretched beyond. As still, as immobile as death itself she had held herself from the moment of departure to the instant that brought the porter with the word that they were whistling for B——. Without a word she arose and followed him to the vestibule, where she watched him as he unfastened the outer door and lifted the trap. A single word escaped her lips and he held out his hand to receive the crumpled bill she clutched in her gloved fingers. He did not look at it. He knew that it would amply reward him for the brief exposure he endured on the lonely, wind-swept platform of a station, the name of which he did not know.

She took several uncertain steps in the direction of the station windows and stopped, as if bewildered. Already the engine was pounding the air with quick, vicious snorts in the effort to get under way; the vestibule trap and door closed with a bang; the wheels were creaking. A bitter wind smote her in the face; the wet, hurtling sleet crashed against the thin veil, blinding her.

The door of the waiting room across the platform opened and a man rushed toward her.

She advanced quickly.

"Yes."

"What a night!" he said, as much to himself as to her. "I'm sorry you would insist on coming tonight. Tomorrow morning would have satisfied the—"

"Is this Mr. Drake?"

They were being blown through the door into the waiting room as she put the question. Her voice was muffled. The man in the great fur coat put his weight against the door to close it.

"Yes, Mrs. Wrandall. I have done all that could be done under the circumstances. I am sorry to tell you that we still have two miles to go by motor before we reach the inn. My car is open—I don't possess a limousine—but if you will lie down in the tonneau you will find some protection from—"

She broke in sharply, impatiently. "Pray do not consider me, Mr. Drake. I am not afraid of the blizzard."

"Then we'd better be off," said he, a note of anxiety in his voice—a certain touch of nervousness. "I drive my own car. The road is good, but I shall drive cautiously. Ten minutes, perhaps. I—I am sorry you thought best to brave this wretched—"

"I am not sorry for myself, Mr. Drake, but for you. You have been most kind. I did not expect you to meet me."

"I took the liberty of telephoning to you. It was well that I did it early in the evening. The wires are down now, I fear." He hesitated for a moment, staring at her as if trying to penetrate the thick, wet veil. "I may have brought you on a fool's errand. You see, I—I have seen Mr. Wrandall but once, in town somewhere, and I may be wrong. Still, the coroner—and the sheriff—seemed to think you should be notified—I might say questioned. That is why I called you up. I trust, madam, that I am mistaken."

"Yes," she said shrilly, betraying the intensity of her emotion. It was as if she lacked the power to utter more than a single word, which signified neither acquiescence nor approval.

He was ill at ease, distressed. "I have engaged a room for you at the inn, Mrs. Wrandall. You did not bring a maid, I see. My wife will come over from our place to stay with you if you—"

She shook her head. "Thank you, Mr. Drake. It will not be necessary. I came alone by choice. I shall return to New York tonight."

"But you—why, you can't do that," he cried, holding back as they started toward the door. "No trains stop here after ten o'clock. The locals begin running at seven in the morning. Besides—"

She interrupted him. "May we not start now, Mr. Drake? I am—well, you must see that I am suffering. I must see, I must know. The suspense—" She did not complete the sentence, but hurried past him to the door, throwing it open and bending her body to the gust that burst in upon them.

He sprang after her, grasping her arm to lead her across the icy platform to the automobile that stood in the lee of the building.

Disdaining his command to enter the tonneau, she stood beside the car and waited until he cranked it and took his place at the wheel. Then she took her seat beside him and permitted him to tuck the great buffalo robe about her. No word was spoken. The man was a stranger to her. She forgot his presence in the car.

Into the thick of the storm the motor chugged. Grim and silent, the man at the wheel, ungoggled and tense, sent the whirring thing swiftly over the trackless village street and out upon the open country road. The woman closed her eyes and waited.

You would know the month was March. He said: "It comes in like a lion," but apparently the storm swallowed the words for she made no response to them.

They crossed the valley and crept up the tree-covered hill, where the force of the gale was broken. If she heard him say: "Fierce, wasn't it?" she gave no sign, but sat hunched forward, peering ahead through the snow at the blurred lights that seemed so far away and yet were close at hand.

"Is that the inn?" she asked as he swerved from the road a few moments later.

"Yes, Mrs. Wrandall. We're here."

"Is—is he in there?"

"Where you see that lighted window upstairs." He tooted the horn vigorously as he drew up to the long, low porch. Two men dashed out from the doorway and clumsily assisted her from the car.

"Go right in, Mrs. Wrandall," said Drake. "I will join you in a jiffy."

She walked between the two men into the feebly lighted office of the inn. The keeper of the place, a dreary looking person with dread in his eyes, hurried forward. She stopped, stock still. Some one was brushing the stubborn, thickly caked snow from her long chinchilla coat.

"You must let me get you something hot to drink, madam," the landlord was saying dolorously.

She struggled with her veil, finally tearing it away from her face. Then she took in the rather bare, cheerless room with a slow, puzzled sweep of her eyes.

"No, thank you," she replied.

"It won't be any trouble, madam," urged the other. "It's right here. The sheriff says it's all right to serve it, although it is after hours. I run a respectable, law-abiding house. I wouldn't think of offering it to anyone if it was in violation—"

A Man Rushed Toward Her.

"Never mind, Burton," interposed a big man, approaching. "Let the lady choose for herself. If she wants it, she'll say so. I am the sheriff, madam. This gentleman is the coroner, Dr. Sheef. We waited up for you after Mr. Drake said you'd got the fast train to stop for you. Tomorrow morning would have done quite as well. I'm sorry you came tonight in all this blizzard."

He was staring as if fascinated at the white, colorless face of the woman who with nervous fingers unfastened the heavy coat that enveloped her slender figure. She was young and strikingly beautiful, despite the intense pallor that overspread her face. Her dark, questioning, dreading eyes looked up into his with an expression he was never to forget. It combined dread, horror, doubt and a smoldering anger that seemed to overcast all other emotions that lay revealed to him.

"This is a—what is commonly called a 'road house'?" she asked dully, her eyes narrowing suddenly as if in pain.

"It is an inn during the winter, Mrs. Wrandall, and a road house in the summer, if that makes it plain to you. I will say, however, that Burton has always kept well within the law. This is the first — er — real bit of trouble he's had, and I won't say it's his fault. Keep quiet, Burton. No one is accusing you of anything wrong. Don't whine about it."

"But my place is ruined," groaned the doleful one. "It's got a black eye now. Not that I blame you, madam, but you can see how—"

He quailed before the steady look in her eyes, and turned away mumbling.

"There is a fire in the reception room, madam," said the coroner; "and the proprietor's wife to look out for you if you should require anything. Will you go in there and compose yourself before going upstairs? Or, if you would prefer waiting until morning, I shall not insist on the—er—ordeal tonight."

"I prefer going up there tonight," said she steadily.

The men looked at each other, and the sheriff spoke. "Mr. Drake is quite confident the—the man is your husband. It's an ugly affair, Mrs. Wrandall. We had no means of identifying him until Drake came in this evening, out of curiosity you might say. For your sake, I hope he is mistaken."

"Would you mind telling me something about it before I go upstairs? I am quite calm. I am prepared for anything. You need not hesitate."

"As you wish, madam. You will go into the reception room, if you please. Burton, is Mrs. Wrandall's room quite ready for her?"

"I shall not stay here tonight," interposed Mrs. Wrandall. "You need not keep the room for me."

"But, my dear Mrs. Wrandall—"

"I shall wait in the railway station until morning if necessary. But not here."

The coroner led the way to the cosy little room off the office. She followed with the sheriff. The men looked worn and haggard in the bright light that met them, as if they had not known sleep or rest for many hours.

"The assistant district attorney was here until eleven, but went home to get a little rest. It's been a hard case for all of us—a nasty one," explained the sheriff, as he placed a chair in front of the fire for her. She sank into it limply.

"Go on, please," she murmured, and shook her head at the nervous little woman who bustled up and inquired if she could do anything to make her more comfortable.

The sheriff cleared his throat. "Well, it happened last night. All day long we've been trying to find out who he is, and ever since eight o'clock this morning we've been searching for the woman who came here with him. She has disappeared as completely as if swallowed by the earth. Not a sign of a clew—not a shred. There's nothing to show when she left the inn or by what means. All we know is that the door to that room up there was standing half open when Burton passed by it at seven o'clock this morning—that is to say, yesterday morning, for this is now Wednesday. It is quite clear, from this, that she neglected to close the door tightly when she came out, probably through haste or fear, and the draft in the hall blew it wider open during the night. Burton says the inn was closed for the night at half-past ten. He went to bed. She must have slipped out after everyone was sound asleep. There were no other guests on that floor. Burton and his wife sleep on this floor, and the servants are at the top of the house and in a wing. No one heard a sound. We have not the remotest idea when the thing happened, or when she left the place. Dr. Sheef says the man had been dead six or eight hours when he first saw him, and that was very soon after Burton's discovery. Burton, on finding the door open, naturally suspected that his guests had skipped out during the night to avoid paying the bill, and lost no time in entering the room.

"He found the man lying on the bed, sprawled out, face upward and as dead as a mack—I should say, quite dead. He was partly dressed. His coat and vest hung over the back of a chair. A small service carving knife, belonging to the inn, had been driven squarely into his heart and was found sticking there. Burton says that the man, on their arrival at the inn, about nine o'clock at night, ordered supper sent up to the room. The tray of dishes, with most of the food untouched, and an empty champagne bottle, was found on the service table near the bed. One of the chairs was overturned. The servant who took the meal to the room says that the woman was sitting at the window with her wraps on, motor veil and all, just as she was when she came into the place. The man gave all the directions, the woman apparently paying no attention to what was going on. The waitress left the room without seeing her face. She had instructions not to come for the tray until morning.

"That was the last time the man was seen alive. No one has seen the woman since the door closed after the servant, who distinctly remembers hearing the key turn in the lock as she went down the hall. It seems pretty clear that the man ate and drank but not the woman. Her food remained untouched on the plate and her glass was full. 'Gad, it must have been a merry feast! I beg your pardon, Mrs. Wrandall!"

"Go on, please," said she levelly.

"That's all there is to say so far as the actual crime is concerned. There were signs of a struggle—but it isn't necessary to go into that. Now, as to their arrival at the inn. The blizzard had not set in. Last night was dark, of course, as there is no moon, but it was clear and rather warm for the time of year. The couple came here about nine o'clock in a high power runabout machine, which the man drove. They had no hand baggage and apparently had run out from New York. Burton says he was on the point of refusing them accommodations when the man handed him a hundred-dollar bill. It was more than Burton's cupidity could withstand. They did not register. The state license numbers had been removed from the automobile, which was of foreign make. Of course it was only a question of time until we could have found out who the car belonged to. It is perfectly obvious why he removed the numbers."

She Sank Into It Limply.

At this juncture Drake entered the room. Mrs. Wrandall did not at first recognize him.

"It has stopped snowing," announced the newcomer.

"Oh, it is Mr. Drake," she murmured. "We have a little French car, painted red," she announced to the sheriff without giving Drake another thought.

"And this one is red, madam," said the sheriff, with a glance at the coroner. Drake nodded his head. Mrs. Wrandall's body stiffened perceptibly, as if deflecting a blow. "It is still standing in the garage, where he left it on his arrival.

"Did no one see the face of—of the woman?" asked Mrs. Wrandall, rather querulously. "It seems odd that no one should have seen her face," she went on without waiting for an answer.

"It's not strange, madam, when you consider all the circumstances. She was very careful not to remove her veil or her coat until the door was locked. That proves that she was not the sort of woman we usually find gallavanting around with men regardless of—ahem, I beg your pardon. This must be very distressing to you."

"I am not sure, Mr. Sheriff, that it is my husband who lies up there. Please remember that," she said steadily. "It is easier to hear the details now, before I know, than it will be afterward if it should turn out to be as Mr. Drake declares."

"I see," said the sheriff, marveling.

"Besides, Mr. Drake is not positive," put in the coroner hopefully.

"I am reasonably certain," said Drake.

"Then all the more reason why I should have the story first," said she, with a shiver that no one failed to observe.

The sheriff resumed his conclusions. "Women of the kind I referred to a moment ago don't care whether they're seen or not. In fact, they're rather brazen about it. But this one was different. She was as far from that as it was possible for her to be. We haven't been able to find anyone who saw her face or who can give the least idea as to what she looks like, excepting a general description of her figure, her carriage and the outdoor garments she wore. We have reason to believe she was young. She was modestly dressed. Her coat was one of those heavy ulster affairs, such as a woman uses in motoring or on a sea voyage. There was a small sable stole about her neck. The skirt was short, and she wore high black shoes of the thick walking type. Judging from Burton's description she must have been about your size and figure, Mrs. Wrandall. Isn't that so, Mrs. Burton?"

The innkeeper's wife spoke. "Yes, Mr. Harben, I'd say so myself. About five feet six, I'd judge; rather slim and graceful like, in spite of the big coat."

Mrs. Wrandall was watching the woman's face. "I am five feet six," she said, as if answering a question.

The sheriff cleared his throat somewhat needlessly.

"Burton says she acted as if she were a lady," he went on. "Not the kind that usually comes out here on such expeditions, he admits. She did not speak to anyone, except once in very low tones to the man she was with, and then she was standing by the fireplace out in the main office, quite a distance from the desk. She went upstairs alone, and he gave some orders to Burton before following her. That was the last time Burton saw her. The waitress went up with a specially prepared supper about half an hour later."

"It seems quite clear, Mrs. Wrandall, that she robbed the man after stabbing him," said the coroner.

Mrs. Wrandall started. "Then she was not a lady, after all," she said quickly. There was a note of relief in her voice. It was as if she had put aside a half-formed conclusion.

"His pockets were empty. Not a penny had been left. Watch, cuff links, scarf pin, cigarette case, purse and bill folder—all gone. Burton had seen most of these articles in the office."

"Isn't it—but no! Why should I be the one to offer a suggestion that might be construed as a defense for this woman?"

"You were about to suggest, madam, that some one else might have taken the valuables—is that it?" cried the sheriff.

"Had you thought of it, Mr. Sheriff?"

"I had not. It isn't reasonable. No one about this place is suspected. We have thought of this, however: the murderess may have taken all of these things away with her in order to prevent immediate identification of her victim. She may have been clever enough for that. It would give her a start."

"Not an unreasonable conclusion, when you stop to consider, Mr. Sheriff, that the man took the initiative in that very particular," said Mrs. Wrandall in such a self-contained way that the three men looked at her in wonder. Then she came abruptly to her feet. "It is very late, gentlemen. I am ready to go upstairs, Mr. Sheriff."

"I must warn you, madam, that Mr. Drake is reasonably certain that it is your husband," said the coroner uncomfortably. "You may not be prepared for the shock that—"

"I shall not faint, Dr. Sheef. If it is my husband I shall ask you to leave me alone in the room with him for a little while." The final word trailed out into a long, tremulous wail, showing how near she was to the breaking point in her wonderful effort at self-control. The men looked away hastily. They heard her draw two or three deep, quavering breaths; they could almost feel the tension that she was exercising over herself.

The doctor turned after a moment and spoke very gently, but with professional firmness. "You must not think of venturing out in this wretched night, madam. It would be the worst kind of folly. Surely you will be guided by me—by your own common sense. Mrs. Burton will be with you—"

"Thank you, Dr. Sheef," she interposed calmly. "If what we all fear should turn out to be the truth, I could not stay here. I could not breathe. I could not live. If, on the other hand, Mr. Drake is mistaken, I shall stay. But if it is my husband, I cannot remain under the same roof with him, even though he be dead. I do not expect you to understand my feelings. It would be asking too much of men—too much."

"I think I understand," murmured Drake.

"Come," said the sheriff, arousing himself with an effort.

She moved swiftly after him. Drake and the coroner, following close behind with Mrs. Burton, could not take their eyes from the slender, graceful figure. She was a revelation to them. Feeling as they did that she was about to be confronted by the most appalling crisis imaginable, they could not but marvel at her composure. Drake's mind dwelt on the stories of the guillotine and the heroines who went up to it in those bloody days without so much as a quiver of dread. Somehow, to him, this woman was a heroine.

They passed into the hall and mounted the stairs. At the far end of the corridor a man was seated in front of a closed door. He arose as the party approached. The sheriff signed for him to open the door he guarded. As he did so, a chilly blast of air blew upon the faces of those in the hall. The curtains in the window of the room were flapping and whipping in the wind. Mrs. Wrandall caught her breath. For the briefest instant it seemed as though she was on the point of faltering. She dropped farther behind the sheriff, her limbs suddenly stiff, her hand going out to the wall as if for support. The next moment she was moving forward resolutely into the icy, dimly lighted room.

A single electric light gleamed in the corner beside the bureau. Near the window stood the bed. She went swiftly toward it, her eyes fastened upon the ridge that ran through the center of it: a still, white ridge that seemed without beginning or end.

With nervous fingers the attendant lifted the sheet at the head of the bed and turned it back. As he let it fall across the chest of the dead man he drew back and turned his face away.

She bent forward and then straightened her figure to its full height, without for an instant removing her gaze from the face of the man who lay before her: a dark-haired man gray in death, who must have been beautiful to look upon in the flush of life.

For a long time she stood there looking, as motionless as the object on which she gazed. Behind her were the tense, keen-eyed men, not one of whom seemed to breathe during the grim minutes that passed. The wind howled about the corners of the inn, but no one heard it. They heard the beating of their hearts, even the ticking of their watches, but not the wail of the wind.

At last her hands, claw-like in their tenseness, went slowly to her temples. Her head dropped slightly forward, and a great shudder ran through her body. The coroner started forward, expecting her to collapse.

"Please go away," she was saying in an absolutely emotionless voice. "Let me stay here alone for a little while."

That was all. The men relaxed. They looked at each other with a single question in their eyes. Was it quite safe to leave her alone with her dead? They hesitated.

She turned on them suddenly, spreading her arms in a wide gesture of self-absolution. Her somber eyes swept the group.

"I can do no harm. This man is mine. I want to look at him for the last time—alone. Will you go?"

"Do you mean, madam, that you intend to—" began the coroner in alarm.

She clasped her hands. "I mean that I shall take my last look at him now—and here. Then you may do what you like with him. He is your dead—not mine. I do not want him. Can you understand? I do not want this dead thing. But there is something I should say to him, something that I must say. Something that no one must hear but the good God who knows how much he has hurt me. I want to say it close to those gray, horrid ears. Who knows? He may hear me!"

Wondering, the others backed from the room. She watched them until they closed the door.

* * * * * * * *

* * * * * * * *

Ten minutes passed. The group in the hall conversed in whispers.

"Poor thing," said the innkeeper's wife.

"Well," said Drake, taking a deep breath, "she won't have to worry any more about his not coming home nights. I say, this business will create a fearful sensation, sheriff. The Four Hundred will have a conniption fit."

"We've got to land that girl, whoever she is," grated the official. "Now that we know who he is, it shouldn't be hard to pick out the women he's been trailing with lately. Then we can sift 'em down until the right one is left. It ought to be easy."

THE UNION-BANNER

Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama.
UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala. as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

Who knocked the "black" out of Blackmon? It looks to us like another prediction that failed.

The Press says that the Bull Moose will have his little "piemary" on April 21. We would like for Mr. Press to tell us where all the pie went in the primary of April 6th. There was pie in the game all right, but little of it was bestowed upon Chilton's loyal few.

According to the last count, the Democrats of the county claim a total poll of 940 votes in the primary of April 6th. When the 1,200 Bull Moose in Chilton county march to the polls on April 21 and cast their ballots, you will hear the little 940 whisper among themselves, "Where did all those fellows come from?"

The Board of Registrars of Chilton county will be in session at the court house Friday and Saturday, April 17 and 18. Those who have not yet done so should come on one of those days and prepare yourself for casting an effective ballot in any election that at any time might come up.

In last week's issue of the Clanton Press appeared the following editorial. "Now that the election is over, lets all get to work and pull together and elect out ticket by a large majority." We wonder if the Press means they are going to support Fred Blackmon for congress. Judging from what the Press said about Mr. Blackmon in the issue of March 26th and other issues it seems very strange if they can support him

OUR THIRD YEAR.

This issue of The Union-Banner begins our third year since the consolidation of the two oldest papers in Chilton County. The Union was begun in the year 1901 and was operated for eleven years under the management of Mr. Wallce C. Edler. Mr. Edler sold out to The Union Publishing Company, a corperation formed under the management of Mr. B. M. Crutcher. The company took over The Banner, which had been under the management of Mr. Frank Crichton since the year of its foundation in 1892.

Mr. Crutcher soon disconnected himself from the company, and the management of the new paper fell upon Mr. Crichton the former owner and promoter of The Banner. But he did not remain with the paper long in his last connection. Death overtook him on May 19th, 1913, as he was still working in the harness which he had so diligently labored for more than twenty years.

Thereupon the management of the paper fell to Mr. F. B. Ticknor, an old and experienced newspaper man, who guided the publication for about a year. After his retirement to take up a new field of endevor, the present editor succeeded to the place and hasbeen at the helm for about a year.

It is needless for us to make a review of the things we have tried to accomplish during this time. The satisfaction we have given our readers and supporters is the measure we place upon the value of our accomplishment. We have labored through troubles and impediments to please you the best we could.

In future we shall continue more zealously than ever to merit the support of the intelligent citizenship of the county. We have political conviction, it is true, but we offer no apology for that. We are honest in our ideas, and shall be true to ourselves and our constituents in promulgating these ideas when it is paoperly necessary. But beyond the service we render in that way, we shall endeavor to give to the whole people, whether of our own political creed or not, a newspaper that deals with the news of the county in a clean and impartial manner. Thus we hope to merit your support and good will in things that concern our common good and the weltare of our county at large.

Constipation, if Neglected, Causes Serious Illness

Constipation, if neglected, leads to almost innumerable complications affecting the general health.

Many cases of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other severe diseases are traceable to prolonged clogging of the bowels. Regard the effects of constipation, C. E. Ayers, 6 Sabin St., Montpelier, Vt., says: "I was afflicted with constipation and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been found in that condition many times. Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and after using them found I had never tried anything that acted in such a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers from habitual constipation and while possibly realizing something of the danger of this condition, yet neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious illness often results. The advice of all physicians is, "keep your bowels clean," and it's good advice.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory, your money is returned. 7

YOUR MONEY BACN IF YOU WANT IT

Leading druggists will refund purchase price of Dodson's Liver Tone if you're dissatisfied;

Alred Drug Co may not be willing to guarantee the safety and reliability of calomel for constipation and sluggish liver, but these stores will and do stand back of Dodson's Liver Tone with an uncoditional guarantee to refund the full purchase price (50c.) instantly without question if you are not satisfied in every way with Liver Tone and its results.

If you take calomel, perhaps you will seem to get temporary relief, but it often happens that the after-effects are at least unpleasant and sometimes dangerous. Calomel in large doses is a poison actually peadly to some—perhaps to you— and hence its use means taking chances.

With Dodson's Liver Tone you are always safe. Its reliability is so certain that it can be sold with the money back guarantee. It is a vegetable liquid, pleasant to take, and it cannot harm. It clears up the dull and aching head and cleans out the clogged system in what many have found to be a wonderful way. Dodson's Liver Tone will do for you what it has done for thousands and you run no risk in trying it Ask Alred Drug Co. about Dodson's and the guarantee.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

PROHIBITIONISTS HAVE MAJORITY IN SENATE AND HOUSE

North Alabama Contributed the Biggest End of the Dry Vote.

LOCAL OPTIONISTS DID BEST IN SOUTH ALABAMA

Twenty-One Out of Thirty-Five Members in Upper House are Prohibitionists.

Montgomery.—Prohibitionists have captured both branches of the State legislature. Returns indicate a safe majority in the Senate and the House over the local optionists. North Alabama contributed the biggest end for the prohibitionists, while the local optionists got their best results from South Alabama.

Several counties have not reported on their nominees, while there are to be run-offs in several other counties. There is a chance for the local optionists to make a gain, but there is no chance for them to overcome the big prohibition lead. Local optionists made special efforts to get a majority in the Senate but incomplete returns show the prohibitionists to have 21 out of 35 of the members.

The appellate court race and the State treasurer race and the minor State offices attracting most attention at this time. With 52 counties making reports Perry Thomas has 50,263, while J. B. Brown has 50,081 votes out of 48 counties reporting. M. A. Graham has been eliminated in the race for State treasurer, but returns are not sufficiently full to determine which two of the other three candidates will get into the run-off.

With 50 counties having reported, W. L. Lancaster is leading with 31,727 votes. Brooks Smith is second with 30,235, while R. L. Bradley is third with 28,553. Lancaster is almost certain to be in the run-off, but it is impossible to forecast whether Smith or Bradley will be the second man.

Politicians are agreed that Bibb Graves has defeated Tyler Goodwyn for chairman of the State democratic executive committee. Returns from 45 counties show Goodwyn has 41,441 votes, with Graves having 46,488 votes out of 47 counties.

It is certain that Judge J. J. Mayfield and Judge William H. Thomas are the leaders in the race for the supreme court. DeGraffenreid will be third man, Simpson fourth and Boyd fifth. Allgood's majority over Wilkinson for State auditor is nearly double. He will total about 75,000 votes, while Wilkinson may reach to 40,000.

CONGRESSMEN WAIT ON THEIR MAJORITIES.

Barring those in the Eighth and Ninth districts, the congressional races for Alabama are settled—it is a mere question of majorities now. Judge E. B. Almon and W. W. Callahan must go into a run-off in the Eighth, while George Huddleston and Judge Nathan Miller will fight out the contest in the Ninth. Almon and Huddleston led their opponents by a good vote in the primary.

The following are the winners who are waiting for their majorities to be counted:

Oscar L. Gray, First district; Hugh Dent, Second district; Henry D. Clayton, Third district; Fred L. Blackmon, Fourth district; William B. Oliver, Sixth district; John L. Burnett, Seventh district; J. Thomas Heflin had no opposition in the Fifth district and Congressman John W. Abercrombie was unopposed as representative from the state-at-large.

The following counties have not turned in their votes on the congressional races: Clarke, First; Covington, Second; Bullock and Barbour, Third; Cleburne, Fourth; Marion and Sumter, Sixth; Cherokee, Seventh; Bibb, Ninth.

Majorities and pluralities in these counties, however, have been pretty well established.

E. DE GRAFFENREID DECLINES RUN-OFF.

Montgomery.—Edward DeGraffenreid of Greensboro, member of the Alabama supreme court since 1912, by appointment of Governor O'Neal, will not oppose James J. Mayfield, associate justice, in the democratic runoff May 11. He announced that he would allow Justice Mayfield to receive the nomination without a contest.

COMMITTEE MEETS APRIL 21.

Montgomery.—Secretary John P. Abbott of the democratic state executive committee made public the following call:

"The state executive committee of the democratic and conservative party of Alabama is hereby called to meet in the City of Montgomery on Tuesday, the 21st day of April, 1914, for the purpose of canvassing the returns of the primary election held April 6, 1914, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before them.

URGES EDUCATIONAL BILL

Urges Action to Decrease Illiteracy in United States.

Washington — Representative Abercrombie introduced a bill to require the commissioner of education to devise methods and promote plans for the elimination of adult illiteracy in the United States. In connection with this measure, to which Representative Abercrombie has given much thought, he said: "There are in the United States more than 5,000,000 persons over 10 years of age who are unable to read or write, a little over 3,000,000 of these are white people."

"The present number of illiterates exceeds our total population in 1800 and rangers from 17,000 in Iowa to 290 per 1,000 in Louisiana. In the South the highest percentage is in the rural districts, while in the North it is in the cities. No section is exempted. As an example of what is possible in the elimination of illiteracy I call attention to France. At one time her illiterates numbered 45 in 100, and within a brief period it was reduced to 5 in 100. What France can do this country can do."

Mr. Abercrombie's bill carries an appropriation of $15,000 per annum, with which to inaugurate the proposed service.

May Erect Municipal Plant.

Gadsden. — The erection of a municipal electric plant to furnish light and power to the citizens is recommended to the council in a report made by the joint committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and the council, which has been conducting an investigation of light and power rates. Reports of an exhaustive nature along this line were received from 57 cities, and it was found that the cost of production was from 2 to 3 cents, while current was supplied to consumers at 8 and 10 cents per kilowatt hour.

Distiller Goes to Pen.

Huntsville. — Jack Hill entered a plea of guilty before Judge Grubb in the United States court Wednesday of the charge of illicit distilling and was sentenced to serve a term of eighteen months in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

TO VOTE ON COMMISSION FORM

Election to Determine Change in City Government April 27.

Eufaula. — With the general primaries over, the coming election on the commission form of government, which will be held here on April 27, has resumed interest in the minds of the voters of the city. It is hoped that at least six commissioners will enter the race for the three offices, as this choice will go far in encouraging the voters of the city to make the change,

HAYNES

Exposition Chief Buys Haynes Car

Chas. C. Moore, President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, has purchased a Haynes four-cylinder car equipped with the Vulcan Electric Gear Shift.

Worthy of note is the fact that this car is the twenty-seventh owned by Mr. Moore. It is in constant use—much more so than were any of its twenty-six predecessors, and, due largely to its simplicity of control, Mr. Moore frankly admits that only now is he deriving the real pleasures of motoring. No doubt about it—the hand shift method suffers by comparison.

Before you buy, look over other cars at the price you want to pay, compare the specifications, part for part with those of the Haynes. Here are a few facts regarding the

HAYNES

America's First Car

The Haynes motor has a bore of 4¼ in. and a stroke of 5½ in.; cylinders cast in pairs; L-head design; valves enclosed; with a dynamometer rating of 65 and 48 horsepower on the "six" and "four," respectively. Ignition is provided by the American Simms Dual High Tension Magneto; carburetion, by the Stromberg device; electric lighting and starting, by the Leece-Neville separate unit system; and cooling by centrifugal pump, pressed steel fan and cellular radiator.

Other Haynes specifications are the splash and gravity lubrication system; contracting band clutch; Timken and McCue full floating rear axles; twenty-one gallon gas tank on rear of chassis; motor-driven tire pump; extra demountable rim; and Collins curtains. Shock absorbers on the "six."

The Haynes "Four" - - - $1785 and $1985
The Haynes "Six" 130 inch wheelbase - - 2500 and 2700
The Haynes "Six" 136 inch wheelbase - - - 2585 and 2785

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR EARLY CROP

Reports From Industrial Centers Present Very Mixed Aspects.

New York.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says:

Excellent early crop prospects, which buoy sentiment, sharply contrast with disappointing trade distribution, irregularity in industry and cautious buying for future account. Easter requirements have made for a turn over in wearing apparel. Hardware, implements and seed are also active.

While crop prospects, as well as indications of heavy planting, are such as to superinduce optimism, buying continues on the basis of immediate wants. At most centers mail order houses are reported doing a thriving business.

Reports from industrial centers present mixed aspects, resumptions in this or that place being offset by slower operations at other points. The steel trade takes hope from crop prospects, but the volume of business is not up to expectations.

TRADE WITH LATIN AMERICA

Southern Railway Names Expert to Aid Southern Merchants in New Fields.

Washington, D. C., April 6.—To aid Southern merchants and manufacturers to extend their trade with Central and South American countries and the West India Islands, particularly the new fields to be opened by the Panama canal, through South Atlantic and Gulf ports, President Fairfax Harrison announces that the Southern railway, the C., N. O. & T. P., the Alabama Great Southern and Mobile & Ohio have appointed as South American Agent, Mr. Charles Lyon Chandler, who has been South American commercial expert in the consular bureau of the State Department. His office will be at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. Chandler has had years of experience in Latin American countries and is thoroughly acquainted with their markets and the needs of their peoples. He will advise Southern merchants and manufacturers as to where their wares can be sold, will aid them in the preparation of letters and circulars, and advise as to the methods of packing required for different markets. Mr. Chandler will keep in touch with commercial bodies in Central and South American countries and their diplomatic representatives at Washington and will be able to give Southern business men the earliest possible information in regard to government and other large contracts to be let. He will also immediately begin a campaign in Latin American markets, calling attention to goods that can be supplied from the South and the advantages of shipment through Southern ports.

Mr. Chandler is admirably equipped for this work. A Harvard graduate, he studied international law at the University of Buenos Ayres, Argentina, and was for many years in the consular and diplomatic service of the United States, the greater part of this time having been spent in Latin America. His services will be at the disposal of Southern merchants and manufacturers without any charge to them.

PLEADS GUILTY TO MURDER.

Confesses to Crime Because of Love for Stepdaughter.

Galesburg, Ill. — Robert Higgins pleaded guilty to the murder of his wife, whom it was charged he shot to death because of his love for Julia Flake, his stepdaughter. Miss Flake was not arraigned for collusion in the crime, although she had written letters to an uncle and his son requesting them to kill her mother. Owing to her youth and the influence exerted by Higgins it was decided that she was not criminally at fault.

Chicago Botanist Cuts Crop of Two-Pound Lemons.

Chicago. — Twenty-four lemons averaging 12 inches in diameter and two pounds in weight were cut from a tree grown in a 16-inch pot in one of the green-houses of the botanical department of the University of Chicago. The fruit was raised by W. J. O'Carroll, head botanist, from a tropical hybrid imported from South America.

Asphyxiated From Bucket Fire.

New York. — Three small boys crawled into a deserted moving van in a vacant lot in Harlem, stopped up the big cracks to keep out the chill, and then squatted around a fire they kindled in a bucket. Patrick Kenny, father of one of the little fellows, missing him, searched for the boys. He found his son, Frank, unconscious. John Scanlon, a 15-year-old companion, was dead, and the third boy was apparently dying. Gas from the bucket fire had asphyxiated them.

TWO WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chicago, Ill.—"I must thank you with all my heart for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to go to my doctor for pills and remedies and they did not help me. I had headaches and could not eat, and the doctor claimed I had female trouble and must have an operation. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it and feel fine. A lady said one day, 'Oh, I feel so tired all the time and have headache.' I said, 'Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,' and she did and feels fine now."—Mrs. M. R. KARSCHNICK, 1438 N. Paulina Street, Chicago, Illinois.

The Other Case.

Dayton, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of pains in my side that I had for years and which doctors' medicines failed to relieve. It has certainly saved me from an operation. I will be glad to assist you by a personal letter to any woman in the same condition."—Mrs. J. W. SHERER, 126 Cass St., Dayton, Ohio.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't Look Old! Try Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Gray, Faded, Lifeless Hair.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

214 Brevard St., Tampa, Fla.—"Some three years ago I commenced to suffer from a rash on my face and back. Before the pimples came on my face there were a lot of blackheads. It looked as if the blackheads turned into pimples because after a little while all of them were gone and my face was covered with pimples. They were small at first but gradually grew and right at the end of each pimple it was all white. I carelessly picked them with my finger nails, which made them spread, and I soon discovered them on my back. My back was covered with pimples and my face the same way. At night I could hardly sleep on account of the burning and itching sensation they caused. I did not like to go out because the pimples caused disfigurement.

"Seeing the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in one of the magazines I sent for a sample. I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I am glad to be able to say that I am entirely cured of pimples." (Signed) Jno. O. Darlington, Jan. 25, 1913.

Modern Morals.

Senator Joseph E. Russell was talking in Washington about his bill for the abolition of divorce.

"The bill's object?" he said. "It's object is, of course, to reduce immorality, loose thinking, loose speaking."

Senator Ransdell smiled and added: "Don't take it too seriously—but here is an episode that throws a light on modern morals.

A business man came home unexpectedly one morning and found his little son busy at his wife's dressing table.

"'What on earth are you doing there, my lad?" he asked.

"'I'm mixing powdered quinine with mother's face powder,' the youngster answered. 'She's going motoring with Mr. Smith. Won't she taste bitter?'"

HOW TO CLEAR AWAY THOSE UGLY PIMPLES

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and it costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics, or complicated "beauty treatments." See how simply it is done:

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, leaving the complexion clear and velvety. Sold by all druggists, Resinol Ointment, 50 cents and $1, Resinol Soap, 25 cents.—Adv.

Found a Tintoretto.

A municipal councillor, Adrien Mithouard, is responsible for the discovery of a masterpiece among the piles of old canvases put aside as almost valueless in the municipal storerooms at Auteuil, Paris. His curiosity was aroused by the aspect of one of the canvases, which was so black that practically nothing was visible, and ordering the picture scrubbed, an "Adoration of the Magi" by Tintoretto was disclosed.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS IF BACK HURTS

Says Too Much Meat Forms Uric Acid Which Clogs the Kidneys and Irritates the Bladder.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

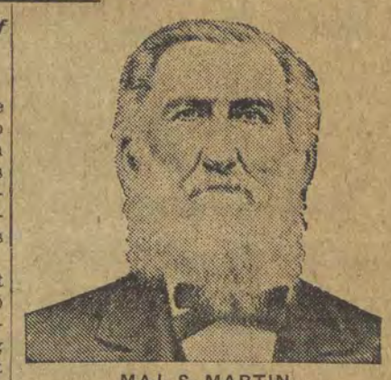
Good Cheer Aids Digestion of Food



Dyspeptics Can Make the Rest of the Family Happy by Using a Laxative-Tonic.

The temper of the family and the good cheer around the table depend so much on the good digestion of each individual present that the experiences of some former dyspeptics who overcame their trouble should be of interest to those now suffering in this way.

The best advice one can give—but it is advice that is seldom heeded—is to eat slowly and masticate each mouthful carefully. However, if slow eating and careful mastication fail the next aid is one close to nature, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This remedy is an excellent digestant, and in addition to helping in the digestion of the food, acts gently on the liver and bowels, ridding them of the accumulation of waste that should long ago have been passed off. It is safe, reliable, pleasant-tasting, and results are guaranteed.

Maj. S. Martin, of Joplin, Mo., now 77, thinks Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has helped him to a longer and happier life. He has not felt so good in years as he has since taking this excellent medicine, and in spite of his 77 years he says he feels like a boy.

It is the ideal remedy for indigestion, no matter how severe; constipation, no matter how chronic, biliousness, headaches, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances.

MAJ. S. MARTIN

You can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar, the latter size being bought by heads of families already familiar with its merits. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

When you use Syrup Pepsin you will see the fallacy of chewing mints and tablets or of taking cathartics, salts, pills and similar drastic medicines. Unlike these, Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect, and by automatically training the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work, soon restores these organs to normal.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

FEAR

Psychologists have demonstrated to their own satisfaction that fear is the first emotion to which human beings are subject. This discovery but confirms the deduction that "self-preservation is the first law of nature."

We are going to talk of a fear other than physical fear. We refer to that fear which retards progress and despoils business.

Money, the most necessary thing in business, is the most easily frightened. During unsettled times it has a disposition to remain securely locked in its strong box and not come forward to encourage development and supply the sinews of commercial warfare.

Men who possess money possess responsibility. Having something to lose, they early learn to move cautiously. They not only hold back when conditions are unsettled, but they frequently refrain from putting out their money through fear of what may happen.

Mutual trust and confidence are necessary to constructive development. Let competition be as keen as possible, that is no deterrent to business when co-operation for the general public good and absolute honesty prevail.

The L. & N. is always in the market for capital with which to carry on its constructive work. As long as it can show a fair return on its investment—meet fixed charges and pay a reasonable dividend—its financial agents have no great difficulty in placing its securities.

But when it is made the storm center of political acrimony, and threats against its property are made by men in high places, the L. & N. experiences difficulty in interesting capital.

The men of money become afraid, and take measures to protect their own.

We call attention to these things because we believe the people want to continue to enjoy the excellent freight and passenger service to which they have become accustomed.

We believe that when the people have a correct understanding of the work in which we are engaged and the difficulties we encounter, they will not only more readily co-operate with us, but be more tolerant of our short-comings.

In the meantime we solicit your freight and passenger business, and promise prompt service, courteous treatment and safe transportation in return.

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY

Jemison, Ala., April 13, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words. It is being circulated that Mr. Rogers put me out for Sheriff. I just want to say to the people that I came out of my own accord, and have still got a clear conscience. I have not much faith in the man whom his friends have to put out for an office. I had much rather just come out and let my friends act afterwards.

I want to say further that I notice another near sighted man who cannot see but two in the race. But that don't discourage me one bit. It always has been the case that some people would strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. So you see that a man in a strain, and so near sighted that he cannot see but two men out of three is liable to fudge over the whole bunch, and not amount to anything after all.

I am proud that the campaign has been a smooth one so far. What little slang there has been thrown has been cast at me. If people will ask me I will give them references. I will give them the names of any man I have delt with for the last twenty five years, or ever since I became a man. I will admit that I owe a little money, but not one dollar which I do not intend to pay. And again, I am a poor man, but you all know who the promis is to. So the thing comes to a close next Tuesday. Then we will get to see how far apart Mr. Gore and Mr. Harris are. My best wishes are with Mr. Gore and Mr. Harris, and all the good people of the county. I am so glad I can [illegible] even if I am deprived of the pleasure of seeing them.

I just put this in to show that a man must have some resentment. I hope that all may see it. The time is short, and I leave my case with the people.

Respectfully,
D. N. Robinson.

Clanton, Ala., April 14, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—I want to say a few words to our boys, as our primary comes off on the 21st, inst. Although it will be a very busy time on our farms, but we should devote that much time to the welfare of our county; for the ticket that is nominated in said primary will be elected in the coming November election.

Some are wondering and asking the questio why I was not a candidate for sheriff this time. I will say that no county executive committee or state chairman forbid me running, and that it was my own decision.

I expect to vote and work for our ticket that will be nominated next Tuesday. I will not say any more until after the primary.

Yours truly,
Lee Vickers.

PROGRESSIVE PRIMARY PASSES OFF QUIETLY.

Farmers Busy Planting, and Polling Little Slow. Total Vote Will Not Exceed 950.

Without the least excitement to draw the voters to the polls, and amid the first opportunity the farmers have had this season to begin planting cotton, the Progressive primary in Chilton took place Tuesday, but despite these things that seemed to urge the farmers to stay at home and work, a substantial number came out and cast their ballots. The total vote will be safely 950 in the entire county.

In the race for Sheriff, according to incomplete returns, H. A. Harris ran far in the lead of Mr. Gore. According to the figures obtained early Wednesday morning, Mr. Harris had received 517 votes and Mr. Gore 263, with eight more boxes to be heard from. D. N. Robinson ran third in the race for Sheriff.

The favors seem to be heavily on the side of W. E. Thomas in the race for Representative against Howard L. Foshee.

S. E. Waldrup having no opponent for Commissioner from the first district, will of course be nominated for that place.

Next week we will be able to give a complete tabulated vote for the entire county.

RURAL SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

Occasion of great Celebration at Thorsby Saturday.

The first Rural School Commencement in the history of education in Chilton county was held at Thorsby Institute last Saturday, and to say the least of it, the affair was one of the completest success. The whole effort of our leaders of education was put into the work, and was met by the hearty co-operation of a large number of citizens and teachers from different parts of the county.

The exercises were opened by songs and prayer by Rev. H. G. Williams. After the invocation the Institute Girls Chorus class rendered a selection, after which the real work of the day was opened by an address of Prof. W. T. Bean, County Superintendent of Education, on the Educational Outlook of Chilton County. The speaker took up the conditions of our schools in past years, and with his superior knowledge and acquaintance with the state of our schools of to-day, made a strong and impressive comparison, showing in detail the marked improvement that has been made. But with it all, he did not fail to impress upon his hearers the need of still more improvement. His predictions for the future were interesting, touching upon several things which he has outlined for the work that will when carried out, give us much greater advantages in the way of rural schools. Mr. Bean presented a group of statistics which he has gathered from his work since engaged as Superintendent of schools. They are broad in their scope, and showed conclusively that there are some conditions that are calling for the aid of every person who can possibly do anything to give us relief from them. But they are being overcome, as is evidenced by the interest shown in the meeting of which we write.

At the conclusion of Prof. Bean's address a beautiful piano solo was rendered by Miss Pauline Stanley.

Miss Helen Harlan, the Red Cross Visiting Nurse recently employed to do lecture and instructive work in the schools of the County came next with a lecture on Health Ideals. In this she made a brief outline of the work she intends to do in the schools next year, and addressed the pupils of the graduating class very impressively upon the meaning and importance of possessing ideals.

Miss Clara Soberg rendered a lovely vocal solo.

With a few impressive remarks Prof. Bean introduced Mr. Wm. F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education, who was to make the principal address of the day. His speech was resourceful and interesting, covering the most important subjects connected with the educational progress of our state. Such things as the co-operation of teachers and superintendents, and teachers and patrons for the furtherance of the cause of education were outlined and discussed in a masterful manner. Interesting statistics were given by the speaker showing the percentage of illiteracy among the people of the county. Among the facts presented was one gathered from reports to the State department of education, showing that in Chilton County last year there were in round numbers, one thousand white boys and girls of school age who did not attend school a single day. Mr. Feagin, made a strong appeal to the citizens and teachers to make an endeavor to meet these unpleasant educations and work to eliminate them. He urged the boys and girls to stay in the country and build up their communities, and sought to have the parents aid them in staying in the county by giving them the best educational opportunities possible. Figures were presented showing the advantage in consolidating some of the rural schools into larger ones.

The State Superintendent turned to the Seventh grade class which were to receive diplomas and made them an impressive speech in commendation of their work. He urged them to persevere in their efforts, and continue in the road to success, the course of which they had so well begun. With his final charge the diplomas were delivered from his hand to seventy six graduating students and received by them with smiles of satisfaction.

The awarding of the diplomas was followed by a chorus by Institute girls quartette, and the meeting adjourned for dinner.

The afternoon was featured by the athletic meet. There were more games and amusements going on than a person could possibly see at one time. The tug of war, foot races, jumping, basket ball, base ball, were made lively by the commendable efforts of the boys and girls, and the assistance of the older ones. Probably the best feature though was the three legged race, in which Mr. Conway and Mr. Childress were the stars.

Those who have had the matter in charge, and who so well prepared the program and attended its execution certainly deserves great credit for the success of the occasion. Those being the first seventh grade commencement for the county, it may be said that it measured far beyond the expectations of the general public in points of interest and usefulness.

Death of Mrs. Irona Foshee

The icy hand of death has plucked another of earth's fairest flowers. The receding tide of life hath kissed the day's last beam and borne from earth's shores to the great beyond another immortal being. Once again we have paused before the open grave and poured from our hearts torrents of sympathetic tears; once again we have stood in the presence of the dead and looking into the great eye and soul of God commited to His loving care another human soul.

Mrs. Foshee was borned in Chilton County, Ala., December 22, 1872. She was the daughter of Mr. Madison and Mrs. Jane Popwell. After merging from childhood to young womanhood, she was united in happy wedlock to Chas. D. Foshee. This union in holy rite of matrimony was blessed by five children. They are as follows: J. Clinton, Mitchell, Clyde Hobson, Hush Madison, and the little infant Charles Cecil just eight weeks old.

Mrs. Foshee was sick about eight weeks. She was then carried to Hill's Infirmary for treatment. An operation was necessary but having been sick for sometime it was impossible for her to recover from the neces sary operation. Her condition gradually grew weaker until noon, Sunday April 5, when the final struggle between Life and Death began. Just as the sun began to sink in the eventide of the day, her life began to sink, and finally set in the darkness of death. But as the sun on the morrow has arising in all the splendor and glory of that great orb so will the life that was so beautiful, useful, and good, have a rising from the shadows of death in the brightness and glory of God.

She was pure, refined gentle, patient, unassuming, kind, gentle and patient. She was all that a woman could be. One of the most noble women I ever saw. Words are inadequate to print the picture of her noble life, "She hath done what she could; but yesterday she lived and moved and loved; today she slumbers 'neath the sod, awaiting the dawning of the resurrection morn."

The evening game was one of the most thrilling games Thorsby ever witnessed. Clanton held the home team one to nothing up until the ninth ending, when Thorsby made two runs, making the final score 2 to 1 in favor of Thorsby.

A Great Day

The Ministers Conference of the Unity and Chilton Associations met with Samaria Baptist Church last Thursday, April 16.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. F. W. C. Bice, after which Rev. R. R. Brasher gave some good ideas on the object of our meetings.

Another very interesting question, "Temperance," was well discussed by Rev. M. J. Parrish. An excellent sermon on "Citizenship of the Saints" was preached by Rev. J. H. Wallace. A clear gospel note on prohibition was sounded, which met the hearty approval, not only of the Ministers present, but of the entire audience.

During the noon hour Mrs. J. H. Wallace gave a short talk on Woman's Work; afterwards organized a W. M. U. All the ladies present joined and seemed to be interested in the great work.

The important question "Missions," was well discussed by Rev. W. W. Carlton, W. H. Connell. Let us pray to God that he may open to the eyes of the people of Chilton County, so that we may see our duty on this question.

Bro. Brasher said the following on a few of the objects of our conference, namely:

1st. To broaden our vision and enlarge the work.

2d. To cultivate the fraternal spirit.

3d. To overcome strife, enemy and etc.

4th. To correct our errors on our doctrine if any exist.

The conference desire that all Ministers present at our meetings for we find they are very helpful. May God help us to get interested in the Lords business.

If any Minister has any question he wishes to be discussed, please send it in to the Secretary, H. G. Williams, Thorsby, Ala. Also if he will suggest some one to speak on the question, it will be highly appreciated.

We are to have another meeting on Thursday before the 3rd Sunday in May. Brother preachers, we need not try to lead the good people of the country unless we first get our own hearts centered on the Lord and His course. H. G. Williams, Sec.

BULL MOOSE TO GRAZE IN SOUTH NEXT FALL.

Progressive Leader Says, Because of Tolls, Tariff and Regional Bank Disappointment.

Progressive Leader Murdock predicted on the floor recently that his party would get a foothold in the "Solid South" this Fall for the first time. He prophesied Louisiana would send a Bull Moose Congressman to the next session. His predictions were based on what he called an attack on the prosperity of New Orleans and Louisiana.

"You have broken the back of the sugar industry, of which New Orleans is the center in the South," he shouted at the Democrats. "You have taken away from the great Southern seaport of New Orleans a reserve bank, and you have destroyed the advantage of that seaport by your action on the tolls repeal bill."

He likewise accused the Republicans of combining with the Democrats in an assault on the New Orleans mint appropriation a few days ago, and incidentally assailed the division of Louisiana so that one half of its people go to Dallas in the reserve bank division and the other half to Atlanta.

Representative Payne, Republican, edged in with a comment that Murdock hoped, by "voting for a half dozen employes in the New Orleans mint, to carry that State for the "bumblebee party."

PRESIDENT WILSON TAKES MEXICAN CRISIS BEFORE NATIONAL CONGRESS

HOUSE UPHOLDS PRESIDENT WILSON IN HIS POLICY TOWARD THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT—THE VOTE WAS 337 TO 37.

DESIRE TO AID MEXICANS IS PRESIDENT'S MOTIVE

Object to Restore to the People of the Distracted Republic Opportunity to Set Up Again Their Own Laws and Their Own Government

Washington. — Asking approval to use the armed forces of the United States in such ways and to such an extent that may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States President Wilson personally appealed to a joint session of Congress for permission to compel proper recognition of the supremacy of the Stars and Stripes.

"I earnestly hope that war is not in question," said the President. "We do not desire to control Mexico. Our feelings for the people of that country are deep and genuine friendship. The people of Mexico are entitled to settle their own domestic affairs in their own way. We sincerely desire to respect their right. Mexico is torn by civil strife. Only a part of the country is under General Huerta's control.

"If armed conflict should unhappily come as an attitude of his personal resentment toward this government, we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him, and give him support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distracted republic the opportunity to set up their own laws."

The President said there was no thought of aggression or aggrandizement on the part of the United States. He asked merely for approval of his own prerogative as commander in chief of the army and navy to order the two branches of the military service into action for the purpose of compelling President Huerta to salute the American flag.

WILSON GIVEN POWER TO USE ARMED FORCE BY HOUSE

Washington.—After a spirited debate of more than two hours the House passed the administration resolution, approving President Wilson's purpose to use the armed forces of the nation to obtain from General Huerta the fullest recognition of the honor and dignity of the United States.

The vote was 337 to 37.

VERA CRUZ BLOCKADED NO ARMS TO COME IN

Vera Cruz, Mexico—A blockade of this port was established by American ships. Admiral Fletcher has been notified that cargoes of war munitions expected from Europe must not be allowed to reach the Mexican government. No official notice of the blockade has been given, but it is understood that when the ships carrying the war munitions arrive their captains will be notified that it is advisable to make no effort to land the supplies.

TROOPS ORDERED TO CONCENTRATE

Washington. — Two brigades of artillery were ordered to concentrate along the Texas border. The artillery will be the first troops ordered across the border and the concentration of two brigades form the vanguard of the first troops rushed into Mexico.

General staff officers are busy rushing messages through to Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, commanding the Department of Texas.

AEROPLANES SHIPPED FROM PENSACOLA

Mobile, Ala.—The battleship Mississippi with a fleet of government aeroplanes on board sailed from Pensacola. Seven hundred marines accompanied the battleship and aeroplanes.

FORCES DRASTIC MEASURES

Efforts of American Government To Settle Differences Amicably Fail.

Washington. — General Victoriano Huerta, provisional president of Mexico, flatly refused to accede to the unconditional demands of the United States that he salute the American flag.

Negotiations with Huerta over the demand for a salute in reparation for the arrest of American bluejackets at Tampico on April 10, came to a close April 19 at 6 o'clock, the last hour given by President Wilson for a favorable response from the Mexican dictator. The final word of Huerta to Charge O'Shaugnessy was a refusal to comply unless the United States would guarantee in writing that his salute be returned.

Does not Necessarily Mean War.

The crisis thus reached does not mean that there will be a formal declaration of war, because the United States could not declare war against a government which it does not recognize. President Wilson will send armed forces into Mexico to seize first the ports of Tampico and Vera Cruz and the railroad trestle leading from Vera Cruz toward Mexico City.

The breach that finally has come with Mexico will make it impossible, it was declared on high authority, for the United States to further protect foreigners in that republic, and foreign governments have been notified of the situation in this regard.

COMMANDERS IN MEXICAN WATERS

1, Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, commanding the Atlantic fleet; 2, Rear Admiral T. B. Howard, commanding the Pacific fleet; 3, Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commanding the fourth division, at Tampico; 4, Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, commanding the first division, at Vera Cruz.

AMERICAN TROOPS ARRIVE AT THE BORDER

In case it should be necessary to establish a blockade along the Mexican border, the troops in that part of the country were hurried to the line. A regiment is here seen detraining near Laredo, Tex.

IF WAR IS DECLARED SEVERAL ALABAMIANS WILL SEE SERVICE.

Should war be declared several of Alabama's native sons will see service. Alabamians who will figure in the naval demonstration against Mexico are Co[illegible]der Raymond Stone, assigned [illegible]ttleship New Jersey, and app[illegible]napolis from Mobile, a[illegible] Richardson Harrison[illegible]er of the general[illegible] Tus[illegible]an who was appointed to the academy from the Sixth district; David French Boyd was appointed from Alabama, but his residence is in Louisiana, where he was born. He is also a lieutenant commander and is connected with the bureau of steam engineers. With Commander Stone on the Michigan is Lieutenant Commander Hilery Herbert Royall, who received his appointment from the Sixth district; Lieutenant William P. Gaddes, appointed from Wetumpka, Ala., is with the Pacific fleet and assigned to a collier. The navy department declares that he will probably be ordered into Mexican waters. Junior Officer Harold Jones of Alabama is connected with the Mare Island navy yard.

UNCLE SAM'S FORCE SENT TO AWE MEXICO

Washington.—Never before in the history of the nation has the strength of the navy been shown as it is in Mexican waters today. A greater percentage of fighting machines were assembled about Cuba in the war with Spain, but the navy of 1898 had not the fighting strength of the navy of today, either in number of vessels, in tonnage or in gun caliber.

The war strength which the United States now has or will have in Mexican waters within a few days with which to compel compliance with the demands of this government may be summarized as follows:

On East Coast.

Battleships	15	Transport	1
Cruisers	4	Mine depot ship	1
Gunboats	2	Fuel ship	1
Destroyers	15	Hospital ship	1
Tender	1	Marine transport	1

On West Coast.

Armored cruisers	3	Tender	1
Cruisers	2	Supply ship	1
Destroyers	5	Fuel ship	1
Gunboat	1

Men Available for Landing Purposes.

On East Coast.

Sailors ..... 5,000 Marines 2,500

On West Coast.

Sailors ..... 750 Marines 500

Addition marines have received orders to prepare for departure to Mexico. The number available are: On the east coast, 3,000; on the west coast, 1,000.

This strength, if used for landing purposes, can be reinforced by troops, 15,000 of whom are along the border.

Artificial Breeding of Foxes.

There is little doubt that the various species and varieties of foxes can be improved by the application of methods of animal breeding used by up-to-date breeders of live stock. The commissioner of fisheries, in his annual report to the secretary of commerce and labor for the fiscal year 1912, in speaking of the special efforts made to improve the stock of foxes on the Pribylov islands and the methods of handling the herds, says:

"The results of experiments in feeding and selective breeding that are now in progress give reason to believe that the output can be greatly increased and the quality of the fur enhanced."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT ISSUED

Following is the official statement issued as representing the views of President Wilson and the administration on Mexico:

"In discussions in official circles in Washington of the present Mexican situation the following points have been very much dwelt upon:

"It has been pointed out that, in considering the present somewhat delicate situation in Mexico, the unpleasant incident at Tampico must not be thought of alone. For some time past the de facto government of Mexico has seemed to think mere apologies sufficient when the rights of American citizens or the dignity of the government of the United States were involved and has apparently made no attempt at either reparation or the effective correction of the serious derelictions of its civil and military officers."

Orderly Placed in Jail.

"Immediately after the incident at Tampico an orderly from one of the ships of the United States in the harbor of Vera Cruz, who had been sent ashore to the post office for the ship's mail, and who was in uniform and who had the official mail bag on his back, was arrested and put into jail by the local authorities. He was subsequently released and a nominal punishment was inflicted upon the officer who arrested him, but it was significant that an orderly from the fleet of the United States was picked out from the many persons constantly going shore on various errands, from the various ships in the harbor, representing several nations.

Official Dispatch Withheld.

"Most serious of all, the officials in charge of the telegraph office at Mexico City presumed to withhold an official dispatch of the government of the United States to its embassy at Mexico City, until it should have been sent to the censor and his permission received to deliver it, and gave the dispatch into the hands of the charge d'affaires of the United States only upon his personal and emphatic demand, he having in the meantime learned through other channels that a dispatch had been sent him which he had not received.

United States Singled Out.

"It cannot but strike anyone who has watched the course of events in Mexico as significant that untoward incidents such as these have not occurred in any case where representatives of other governments were concerned, but only in dealings with representatives of the United States, and that there has been no occasion for other governments to call attention to such matters or to ask for apologies.

"These repeated offenses against the rights and dignity of the United States, offenses not duplicated with regard to the representatives of other governments, have necessarily made the impression that the government of the United States was singled out for manifestations of ill will and contempt."

THE INSULT FOR WHICH REPARATION IS DEMANDED

Thursday morning, April 9, a boat's crew of United States marines, in command of Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp, left the gunboat Dolphin for Tampico to get a fresh supply of gasoline.

The United States flag was flying from the stern of the whaleboat when it approached the landing in Tampico.

For no assigned cause Assistant Paymaster Copp and his men were placed under arrest as they stepped ashore.

Surrounded by a detail of Mexican Federal troops they were marched up and down the principal streets of the city, and finally taken to the police station, where they were locked up.

One report of the affair says the United States flag was snatched from the stern of the whaleboat when the arrests were made and carried and subjected to the jeers and hisses of the anti-American populace.

There is no denial of the fact that the prisoners were made the subjects of an anti-American demonstration, though at the time of their arrest they had just stepped from a boat flying the United States flag, were wearing the uniform of the United States and were conducting themselves in an orderly manner.

After the Americans had been detained several hours, word of their arrest was carried to Rear Admiral Mayo, who demanded their immediate release.

The demand was complied with, but the only reparation made was a brief expression of regret for the alleged mistake.

The Difference.

"In these days, when a man thinks he has won his ladylove, it is a case of hit or miss."

"In the primitive times when a man knocked down the girl he fancied, it was a case of hit and miss."

Rattled by Court Proceedings.

An elderly man of the farming type was called as a witness in the Belfast summons court, and the clerk, proceeding to administer the oath, told him to repeat "I swear by Almighty God that the evidence," etc.

The old fellow was a little excited, however, by being in court, and instead of following the words of the clerk, began amid loud laughter to repeat the words of the well-known hymn, "O God, our help in ages past."

SYNOPSIS.

Challis Wrandall is found murdered in Burton's inn near New York. Mrs. Wrandall is summoned from the city to identify the body. Wrandall, it appears, had led a gay life and neglected his wife.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

"I'm not so sure of it," said the coroner, shaking his head. "I have a feeling that she isn't one of the ordinary type. It wouldn't surprise me if she belongs to—well, you might say the upper ten. Somebody's wife, don't you see. That will make it rather difficult, especially as her tracks have been pretty well covered."

"It beats me, how she got away without leaving a single sign behind her," acknowledged the sheriff. "She's a wonder, that's all I've got to say."

At that instant the door opened and Mrs. Wrandall appeared. She stopped short, confronting the huddled group, dry-eyed but as pallid as a ghost. Her eyes were wide, apparently unseeing; her colorless lips were parted in the drawn rigidity that suggested but one thing to the professional man who looks: the "risis sardonicus" of the strychnae victim. With a low cry, the doctor started forward, fully convinced that she had swallowed the deadly drug.

"For God's sake, madam," he began, But as he spoke her expression changed; she seemed to be aware of their presence for the first time. Her eyes narrowed in a curious manner, and the rigid lips seemed to surge with blood, presenting the effect of a queer, swift-fading smile that lingered long after her face was set and serious.

"I neglected to raise the window, Dr. Sheef," she said in a low voice. "It was very cold in there." She shivered slightly. "Will you be so kind as to tell me what I am to do now? What formalities remain for me—"

The coroner was at her side. "Time enough for that, Mrs. Wrandall. The first thing you are to do is to take something warm to drink, and pull yourself together a bit—"

She drew herself up coldly. "I am quite myself, Dr. Sheef. Pray do not alarm yourself on my account. I shall be obliged to you, however, if you will tell me what I am to do as speedily as possible, and let me do it so that I may leave this—this unhappy place without delay. No! I mean it, sir. I am going tonight—unless, of course," she said, with a quick look at the sheriff, "the law stands in the way."

"You are at liberty to come and go as you please, Mrs. Wrandall," said the sheriff, "but it is most foolhardy to think of—"

"Thank you, Mr. Sheriff," she said, "for letting me go. I thought perhaps there might be legal restraint." She sent a swift glance over her shoulder, and then spoke in a high, shrill voice, indicative of extreme dread and uneasiness:

"Close the door to that room!"

The door was standing wide open, just as she had left it. Startled, the coroner's deputy sprang forward to close it. Involuntarily, all of her listeners looked in the direction of the room, as if expecting to see the form of the murdered man advancing upon them. The feeling, swiftly gone, was most uncanny.

"Close it from the inside," commanded the coroner, with unmistakable emphasis. The man hesitated, and then did as he was ordered, but not without a curious look at the wife of the dead man, whose back was toward him.

"He will not find anything disturbed, doctor," said she, divining his thought. "I had the feeling that something was creeping toward us out of that room."

"You have every reason to be nervous, madam. The situation has been most extraordinary—most trying," said the coroner. "I beg of you to come downstairs, where we may attend to a few necessary details without delay. It has been a most fatiguing matter for all of us. Hours without sleep, and such wretched weather."

They descended to the warm little reception room. She sent at once for the inn keeper, who came in and glowered at her as if she were wholly responsible for the blight that had been put upon his place.

"Will you be good enough to send some one to the station with me in your depot wagon?" she demanded without hesitation.

He stared. "We don't run a 'bus in the winter time," he said, gruffly.

She opened the little chatelaine bag that hung from her wrist and abstracted a card which she submitted to the coroner.

"You will find, Doctor Sheef, that the car my husband came up here in belongs to me. This is the card issued by the state. It is in my name. The factory number is there. You may compare it with the one on the car. My husband took the car without obtaining my consent."

"Joy riding," said Burton, with an ugly laugh. Then he quailed before the look she gave him.

"If no other means is offered, Doctor Sheef, I shall ask you to let me take the car. I am perfectly capable of driving. I have driven it in the country for two seasons. All I ask is that some one be directed to go with me to the station. No! Better than that, if there is some one here who is willing to accompany me to the city, he shall be handsomely paid for going. It is but little more than 30 miles. I refuse to spend the night in this house. That is final."

They drew apart to confer, leaving her sitting before the fire, a stark figure that seemed to detach itself entirely from its surroundings and their companionship. At last the coroner came to her side and touched her arm.

"I don't know what the district attorney and the police will say to it, Mrs. Wrandall, but I shall take it upon myself to deliver the car to you. The sheriff has gone out to compare the numbers. If he finds that the car is yours, he will see to it, with Mr. Drake, that it is made ready for you. I take it that we will have no difficulty in—" He hesitated, at a loss for words.

"In finding it again in case you need it for evidence?" she supplied. He nodded. "I shall make it a point, Doctor Sheef, to present the car to the state after it has served my purpose tonight. I shall not ride in it again."

"The sheriff has a man who will ride with you to the station or the city, whichever you may elect. Now, may I trouble you to make answer to certain questions I shall write out for you at once? The man is Challis Wrandall, your husband? You are positive?"

"I am positive. He is—or was—Challis Wrandall."

Half an hour later she was ready for the trip to New York city. The clock in the office marked the hour as one. A toddled individual in a great buffalo coat waited for her outside, hiccoughing and bandying jest with the half-frozen men who had spent the night with him in the forlorn hope of finding the girl.

Mrs. Wrandall gave final instructions to the coroner and his deputy, who happened to be the undertaker's assistant. She had answered all the questions that had been put to her, and had signed the document with a firm, untrembling hand. Her veil had been lowered since the beginning of the examination. They did not see her face; they only heard the calm, low voice, sweet with fatigue and dread.

"I shall notify my brother-in-law as soon as I reach the city," she said. "He will attend to everything. Mr. Leslie Wrandall, I mean. My husband's only brother. He will be here in the morning, Doctor Sheef. My own apartment is not open. I have been staying in a hotel since my return from Europe two days ago. But I shall attend to the opening of the place tomorrow. You will find me there."

The coroner hesitated a moment before putting the question that had come to his mind as she spoke.

"Two days ago, madam? May I inquire where your husband has been living during your absence abroad? When did you last see him alive?"

She did not reply for many seconds, and then it was with a perceptible effort.

"I have not seen him since my re-

"This Man Will Go With You, Madam," Said the Sheriff.

turn until—tonight," she replied, a hoarse note creeping into her voice. "He did not meet me on my return. His brother Leslie came to the dock. He—he said that Challis, who came back from Europe two weeks ahead of me, had been called to St. Louis on very important business. My husband had been living at his club, I understand. That is all I can tell you, sir."

"I see," said the coroner, gently.

He opened the door for her and she passed out. A number of men were grouped about the throbbing motor car. They fell away as she approached, silently fading into the shadows like so many vast, unwholesome ghosts. The sheriff and Drake came forward.

"This man will go with you, madam," said the sheriff, pointing to an unsteady figure beside the machine. "He is the only one who will undertake it. They're all played out, you see. He has been drinking, but only on account of the hardships he has undergone tonight. You will be quite safe with Morley."

No snow was falling, but a bleak wind blew meanly. The air was free from particles of sleet; wetly the fall of the night clung to the earth where it had fallen.

"If he will guide me to the Post-road, that is all I ask," said she hurriedly. Involuntarily she glanced upward. The curtains in an upstairs window were blowing inward and a dim light shone out upon the roof of the porch. She shuddered and then climbed up to the seat and took her place at the wheel.

A few moments later the three men standing in the middle of the road watched the car as it rushed away.

"By George, she's a wonder!" said the sheriff.

CHAPTER II.

The Passing of a Night.

The sheriff was right. Sara Wrandall was an extraordinary woman, if I may be permitted to modify his rather crude estimate of her. It is difficult to understand, much less describe a nature like hers. Fine-minded, gently bred women who can go through an ordeal such as she experienced without breaking under the strain are rare indeed. They must be wonderful. It is hard to imagine a more heart-breaking crisis in life than the one which confronted her on this dreadful night, and yet she faced it with a fortitude that seems almost unholy.

She had loved her handsome, wayward husband. He had hurt her deeply more times than she chose to remember during the six years of their married life, but she had loved him in spite of the wounds up to the instant when she stood beside his dead body in the cold little room at Burton's inn. She went there loving him as he had lived, yet prepared, almost foresworn, to loathe him as he had died, and she left him lying there alone in that dreary room without a spark of the old affection in her soul. Her love for him died in giving birth to the hatred that now possessed her. While he lived it was not in her power to control the unreasoning, resistless thing that stands for love in woman; he was her lover, the master of her impulses. Dead, he was an unwholesome, unlovely clod, a pallid thing to be scorned, a hulk of worthless clay. His blood was cold. He could no longer warm her with it; it could no longer kill the chill that his misdeeds cast about her tender sensitiveness; his lips and eyes never more could smile and conquer. He was a dead thing. Her love was a dead thing. They lay separate and apart. The tie was broken. With love died the final spark of respect she had left for him in her tired, loyal, betrayed heart. He was at last a thing to be despised, even by her. She despised him.

She sent the car down the slope and across the moonless valley with small regard for her own or her companion's safety. It swerved from side to side, skidded and leaped with terrifying suddenness, but held its way as straight as the bird that flies, driven by a steady hand and a mind that had no thought for peril. A sober man at her side would have been afraid; this man swayed mildly to and fro and chuckled with drunken glee.

Her bitter thoughts were not of the dead man back there, but of the live years that she was to bury with him; years that would never pass beyond her ken, that would never die. He had loved her in his wild, ruthless way. He had left her times without number in the years gone by, but he had always come back, gaily unchastened, to remold the love that waited with dog-like fidelity for the touch of his cunning hand. But he had taken his last flight. He would not come back again. It was all over. Once too often he had tried his reckless wings. She would not have to forgive him again. Uppermost in her mind was the curiously restful thought that his troubles were over, and with them her own. A hand less forgiving than hers had struck him dead.

Somehow, she envied the woman to whom that hand belonged. It had been her divine right to kill, and yet another took it from her.

Back there at the inn she had said to the astonished sheriff:

"Poor thing, if she can escape punishment for this, let it be so. I shall not help the law to kill her simply because she took it in her own hands to pay that man what she owed him. I shall not be the one to say that he did not deserve death at her hands, whoever she may be. No, I shall offer no reward. If you catch her, I shall be sorry for her, Mr. Sheriff. Believe me, I bear her no grudge."

"But she robbed him," the sheriff had cried.

"From my point of view, Mr. Sheriff, that hasn't anything to do with the case," was her significant reply.

"Of course, I am not defending him."

"Nor am I defending her," she had retorted. "It would appear that she is able to defend herself."

Now, on the cold, trackless road, she was saying to herself that she did have a grudge against the woman who had destroyed the life that belonged to her, who had killed the thing that was hers to kill. She could not mourn for him. She could only wonder what the poor, hunted, terrified creature would do when taken and made to pay for the thing she had done.

Once, in the course of her bitter reflections, she spoke aloud in a shrill, tense voice, forgetful of the presence of the man beside her:

"Thank God they will see him now as I have seen him all these years. They will know him as they have never known him. Thank God for that!"

The man looked at her stupidly and muttered something under his breath. She heard him, and recalling her wits, asked which turn she was to take for the station. The fellow lopped back in the seat, too drunk to reply.

For a moment she was dismayed, frightened. Then she resolutely reached out and shook him by the shoulder. She had brought the car to a full stop.

"Arouse yourself, man!" she cried. "Do you want to freeze to death? Where is the station?"

He straightened up with an effort, and, after vainly seeking light in the darkness, fell back again with a grunt, but managed to wave his hand toward the left. She took the chance. In five minutes she brought the car to a standstill beside the station. Through the window she saw a man with his feet cocked high, reading. He leaped to his feet in amazement as she entered the waiting-room.

"Are you the agent?" she demanded.

"No, ma'am. I'm simply staying here for the sheriff. We're looking for a woman—say!" He stopped short and stared at the veiled face with wide, excited eyes. "Gee whiz! Maybe you—"

"No, I am not the woman you want. Do you know anything about the trains?"

"I guess I'll telephone to the sheriff before I—"

"If you will step outside you will find one of the sheriff's deputies in my automobile, helplessly intoxicated. I am Mrs. Wrandall."

"Oh," he gasped. "I heard 'em say you were coming up tonight. Well, say! What do you think of—"

"In there a train in before morning?"

"No, ma'am. Seven-forty is the first."

She waited a moment. "Then I shall have to ask you to come out and get your fellow-deputy. He is useless to me. I mean to go on in the machine. The sheriff understands."

The fellow hesitated.

"I cannot take him with me, and he will freeze to death if I leave him in the road. Will you come?"

The man stared at her.

"Say, is it your husband?" he asked agape.

She nodded her head.

"Well, I'll go out and have a look at the fellow you've got with you," he said, still doubtful.

She stood in the door while he crossed over to the car and peered at the face of the sleeper.

"Steve Morley," he said. "Fuller'n a goat."

"Please remove him from the car," she directed.

Later on, as he stood looking down at the inert figure in the big rocking chair, and panting from his labors, he heard her say patiently:

"And now will you be so good as to direct me to the Post-road."

He scratched his head. "This is mighty queer, the whole business," he declared, assailed by doubts. "Suppose you are not Mrs. Wrandall, but—the other one. What then?"

As if in answer to his question, the man Morley opened his blear-eyes and tried to get to his feet.

"What—what are we doin' here, Mis' Wran'all? Wha's up?"

"Stay where you are, Steve," said the other. "It's all right." Then he went forth and pointed the way to her. "It's a long ways to Columbus Circle," he said. "I don't envy you the trip. Keep straight ahead after you hit the Post-road." He stood there listening until the whir of the motor was lost in the distance. "She'll never make it," he said to himself. "It's more than a strong man could do on roads like these. She must be crazy."

Coming to the Post-road, she increased the speed of the car, with the sharp wind behind her, her eyes intent on the white stretch that leaped up in front of the lamps like a blank wall beyond which there was nothing but dense oblivion. But for the fact that she knew that this road ran straight and unobstructed into the outskirts of New York, she might have lost courage and decision. The natural confidence of an experienced driver was hers. She had the daring of one who has never met with an accident, and who trusts to the instincts rather than to an actual understanding of conditions. With her, it was not a question of her own capacity and strength, but a belief in the fidelity of the engine that carried her forward. It had not occurred to her that the task of guiding that heavy, swerving thing through the unbroken road was something beyond her powers of endurance. She often had driven it a hundred miles and more without resting, or without losing zest in the enterprise; then why should she fear the small matter of 30 miles, even under the most trying of conditions?

Sharply there came to her mind the question: was she the only one abroad in this black little world? What of the other woman? The one who was being hunted? Where was she? And what of the ghost at her heels?

The car bounded over a railroad crossing. She recalled the directions given by the man at the station and hastily applied the brake. There was another and more dangerous crossing a hundred yards ahead. She had been warned particularly to take it carefully, as there was a sharp curve in the road beyond.

Suddenly she jammed down the emergency brake, a startled exclamation falling from her lips. Not 20 feet ahead, in the middle of the road and directly in line with the light of the lamps, stood a black, motionless figure—the figure of a woman whose head was lowered and whose arms hung limply at her sides.

The woman in the car bent forward over the wheel, staring hard. Many seconds passed. At last the forlorn object in the roadway lifted her face and looked vacantly into the glare of the lamps. Her eyes were wide-open, her face a ghastly white.

"God in heaven!" struggled from the stiffening lips of Sara Wrandall. Her fingers tightened on the wheel.

She knew. This was the woman!

The long brown ulster; the limp, fluttering veil? "A woman about your size and figure," the sheriff had said.

The figure swayed and then moved a few steps forward. Blinded by the lights, she bent her head and shielded her eyes with her hand the better to glimpse the occupant of the car.

"Are you looking for me?" she cried out shrilly, at the same time spreading her arms as if in surrender. It was almost a wail.

Mrs. Wrandall caught her breath. Her heart began to beat once more.

"Who are you? What do you want?" she cried out, without knowing what she said.

The girl started. She had not expected to hear the voice of a woman. She staggered to the side of the road, out of the line of light.

"I—I beg your pardon," she cried—It was like a wail of disappointment—"I am sorry to have stopped you."

"Come here," commanded the other, still staring.

The unsteady figure advanced. Halting beside the car, she leaned across the spare tires and gazed into the eyes of the driver. Their faces were not more than a foot apart, their eyes were narrowed in tense scrutiny.

"What do you want?" repeated Mrs. Wrandall, her voice hoarse and tremulous.

"I am looking for an inn. It must be near by. I do—"

"An inn?" with a start.

"I do not recall the name. It is not far from a village, in the hills."

"Do you mean Burton's?"

"Yes. That's it. Can you direct me?" The voice of the girl was faint; she seemed about to fall.

"It is six or eight miles from here," said Mrs. Wrandall, still looking in wonder at the miserable night-farer.

The girl's head sank; a moan of despair came through her lips, ending in a sob.

She Knew—This Was the Woman.

"So far as that?" she murmured. Then she drew herself up with a fine show of resolution. "But I must not stop here. Thank you."

"Wait!" cried the other. The girl turned to her once more. "Is—is it a matter of life or death?"

There was a long silence. "Yes. I must find my way there. It is—death."

Sara Wrandall laid her heavily gloved hand on the slim fingers that touched the tire.

"Listen to me," she said, a shrill note of resolve ringing in her voice. "I am going to New York. Won't you let me take you with me?"

The girl drew back, wonder and apprehension struggling for the mastery of her eyes.

"But I am bound the other way. To the inn. I must go on."

"Come with me," said Sara Wrandall firmly. "You must not go back there. I know what has happened there. Come! I will take care of you. You must not go to the inn."

"You know?" faltered the girl.

"Yes. You poor thing!" There was infinite pity in her voice.

The girl laid her head on her arms.

Mrs. Wrandall sat above her, looking down, held mute by warring emotions. The impossible had come to pass. The girl for whom the whole world would be searching in a day or two, had stepped out of the unknown and, by the most whimsical jest of fate, into the custody of the one person most interested of all in that selfsame world. It was unbelievable. She wondered if it were not a dream, or the hallucination of an overwrought mind. Spurred by the sudden doubt as to the reality of the object before her, she stretched out her hand and touched the girl's shoulder.

Instantly she looked up. Her fingers sought the friendly hand and clasped it tightly.

"Oh, if you will only take me to the city with you! If you only give me the chance," she cried hoarsely. "I don't know what impulse was driving me back there. I only know I could not help myself. You really mean it? You will take me with you?"

"Yes. Don't be afraid. Come! Get in," said the woman in the car rapidly. "You—you are real?"

The girl did not hear the strange question. She was hurrying around to the opposite side of the car. As she crossed before the lamps, Mrs. Wrandall noticed with dulled interest that her garments were covered with mud; her small, comely hat was in sad disorder; loose wisps of hair fluttered with the unsightly veil. Her hands, she recalled, were clad in thin suede gloves. She would be half-frozen. She had been out in all this terrible weather—perhaps since the hour of her flight from the inn.

The odd feeling of pity grew stronger within her. She made no effort to analyze it, nor to account for it. Why should she pity the slayer of her husband? It was a question unasked, unconsidered. Afterwards she was to recall this hour and its strange impulses, and to realize that it was not pity, but mercy that moved her to do the extraordinary thing that followed.

Trembling all over, her teeth chattering, her breath coming in short little moans, the girl struggled up beside her and fell back in the seat. Without a word, Sara Wrandall drew the great buffalo robe over her and tucked it in about her feet and legs far up about her body, which had slumped down in the seat.

"You are very, very good," chattered the girl, almost inaudibly. "I shall never forget—" She did not complete the sentence, but sat upright and fixed her gaze on her companion's face. "You—you are not doing this just to turn me over to—to the police? They must be searching for me. You are not going to give me up to them, are you? There will be a reward I—"

"There is no reward," said Sara Wrandall sharply. "I do not mean to give you up. I am simply giving you a chance to get away. I have always felt sorry for the fox when the time for the kill drew near. That's the way I feel."

"Oh, thank you! Thank you! But what am I saying? Why should I permit you to do this for me? I meant to go back there and have it over with. I know I can't escape. It will have to come, it is bound to come. Why put it off? Let them take me, let them do what they will with me. I—"

"Hush! We'll see. First of all, understand me: I shall not turn you over to the police. I will give you the chance. I will help you. I can do no more than that."

"But why should you help me? I—I—oh, I can't let you do it! You do not understand. I—have—committed—a—terrible—" she broke off with a groan.

"I understand," said the other, something like grimness in her level tones. "I have been tempted more than once myself." The enigmatic remark made no impression on the listener.

"I wonder how long ago it was that it all happened," muttered the girl, as if to herself. "It seems ages—oh, such ages."

"Where have you been hiding since last night?" asked Mrs. Wrandall, throwing in the clutch. The car started forward with a jerk, kicking up the snow behind it.

"Was it only last night? Oh, I've been—" The thought of her sufferings from exposure and dread was too much for the wretched creature. She broke out in a soft wail.

"You've been out in all this weather?" demanded the other.

"I lost my way. In the hills back there. I don't know where I was."

"Had you no place of shelter?"

"Where could I seek shelter? I spent the day in the cellar of a farmer's house. He didn't know I was there. I have had no food."

"Why did you kill that man?"

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala. as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

Wilson says "There are blessed intervals when I forget by one means or another that I am president of the U nited States." Yes but the 3,000 000 starving men and women who are hunting findless jobs and wonder where the next meal will come from, cant forget it. —Yellow Jacket.

Did you know that there were last year in Chillton County, one thousand white boys and girls of school age who did not attend school a single day? It is rather surprising to learn such disgusting facts, but they are true nevertheless. The figures were presented by our State Superintendent of Education at Thorsby last Saturday, and are taken from official statistics from the department of education at Montgomery. This with other conditions of our educational system, is appalling. There is no solution but to get busy and find one. We need to study and reflect upon ourselves, and eleminate these things. We must do it. No one else can do it for us. Will we?

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE SEVENTH GRADE DIPLOMA.

The outcome of the first seventh Grade examination for Chilton county, which was reached in the rural school commencement at Thorsby last Saturday is of such import as to command the attention of all our citizens. It marks the completion of a very important chapter in the narrative of our educational development. Hereafter it will be an annual occasion looked to by our boys and girls with great interest.

The fact that it places within the vision of the student of the rural school some definite attainment, alone makes it worth while. For the one thing that causes the average boy or girl of the country school to despair and lose interest is that he or she is unable to see anything to be accomplished by the effort that is demanded. Not only is the seventh grade diploma a definite accomplishment, but it is also a worthy one, which will cast honors upon the head of him or her who reaches it.

The pupil who attains this diploma should feel justly proud of it. It is the mark of approval placed upon the youthful day he or she has spent in school, backed up by the indorsement of the county educational authorites. Held up to the world it baffled all questions as to the integrity of its holder and is a fit foundation upon which to build future honors.

To the boys who received these diplomas we say be bold and stand truly by the fort you have already won. Use every opportunity to advance against the enemies of enlightenment. And girls, let not your brothers surpass you. Pull even with them though they should attain heights that seem impregnable. By so doing you will some day be proud of what you have done. And a just pride will it be.

Bill of Rights.

The bill of rights is a declaration of fundamental principles deemed basic to the Constitution itself and borrowed from the English bill of rights of 1689. When the Constitution of the United States was framed and submitted to the people it did not have a bill of rights and it was so harshly criticized on this account that its friends promised to incorporate or add such a declaration, and the first ten amendments to the Constitution, made after the main instrument was adopted, were in fulfillment of this promise. All the State Constitutions now have bills of rights, practically identical with one another.

MOTHER COMES TO DAUGHTER'S RESCUE

When, Daughter Thought, Every Avenue of Escape Closed, Mother Came to Rescue.

Louisville, Ala.—In referring to her recent troubles, Mrs. Bessie E. Bruce, of this town, says: "After childbirth, I suffered greatly with wasting, and various womanly troubles, and was in bed for six weeks. Half the time, I could not move, only when I was turned over by some one. Oh! how I suffered, no one knows.

I was told that I would have to go through an operation, but at the time of the operation, I was too weak to undergo it, and I decided there was no chance for me.

As a last resort, my mother advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and my husband bought me a bottle. I could tell from the first that it was doing me good, and by the time I had taken the first bottle, I could stand on my feet. I got another bottle, and before I had taken it up, I was just about well. The pains all stopped, and in a short while I was able to do my work.

I know that Cardui saved my life, and I would not be without it in the house. I almost waited too long, and I advise all suffering women not to wait, but to begin taking Cardui at once."

Your druggist sells Cardui. Get a bottle today.

CONGRATULATION A LA MODE

Mollie's Comment on Friend's Engagement Probably Led to a Lessening of Intimacy.

Mollie met Muriel at the matinee one afternoon. They embraced enthusiastically.

"Oh, dearie," cried Mollie, "I'm so glad to see you! I have scarcely been able to wait until I could see you to congratulate you on your engagement to Harold! Why didn't you give me a hint as to what you expected?"

"Why," replied Muriel, "I—"

"Now, don't you dare to tell me," went on Mollie, "that you concealed it from me intentionally!"

"Why, I didn't, certainly," said Muriel. "I really didn't expect it myself quite so soon, dear."

"He is such a charming fellow," continued Mollie. "Weren't you just surprised to death when he proposed to you, dearie?"

"Why, I can't say I was," replied Muriel. "Why should I have been?"

"Well," replied the dear friend, "everybody else was."

Wasted Sweetness.

"Lady," said the Chicago heeler "here's a box of candy to take home to de kids."

"Sir," said the lady voter, "candy is deficient in proteids, contains an excess of albuminoids and its use by the adolescent is provocative of many infirmities which we, as new members of the electorate, are trying to eradicate. Furthermore, your tender of this package is in violation of section 3, 11, 44 of the criminal code, which deals with attempted bribery, and which carries a heavy penalty."

To which the heeler could only reply:

"Well, wot T'ell wot T'ell?"

Fair Words or Nothing.

"George," said the wife to her generally unappreciative husband, "how do you like my new hat?"

"Well, my dear," said George with great candor, "to tell you the truth—"

"Stop right there, George! If you're going to talk that way about it I don't want to know."

NEWS LETTER FROM CAPITAL

Happenings in and About Alabama's State House Interestingly Told.

—Montgomery.

John McDuffie of Monroeville spent a two-cent postage stamp to be renominated to the office of solicitor of the First judicial circuit. Mr. McDuffie paid an assessment fee of $100, required of all candidates for the office of solicitor, and the postage stamp amounted to the whole of his other expenses.

In addition to Mr. McDuffie, a number of other candidates have filed expense accounts in the office of the secretary of state, the list being as follows:

Frank N. Julian, candidate for railroad commissioner, $1,735.60; George Huddleston of Birmingham, candidate for Congress from the Ninth district, $3484.24; John A. Embry of St. Clair county, candidate for solicitor from the Sixteenth circuit, $281.16; T. B. Rainey of Gadsden, candidate for Congress from the Eighth district, $1574.93; W. T. Hall of Dothan, candidate for the state senate from the Thirty-fifth district, $103.64, and John R. McCain of Lineville, candidate for the state senate from the Thirty-fourth district, $143.50.

Fixes Mortgage Tax.

The state board of compromise fixed a mortgage tax of $54,000 on a heavy mortgage filed by the Atlantic Coast Line Railway company. The mortgage on which the railway corporation paid the tax was a substitute for a $200,000,000 mortgage, on which the carrier had previously paid $13,500.

The railway corporation was represented before the state board by Judge John R. Tyson and Judge Archie Arrington, attorneys for the company. The board was represented by the governor, Attorney General Robert C. Brickell, Secretary of State Cyrus Brown and Auditor Brooks Smith.

Efforts to Recover Money Began.

Efforts of the State of Alabama to recover money from the banks of Montgomery which was paid to Theo Lacy, convicted of the embezzlement of $50,000 of State funds was begun in the city court here when the suit of the State against the Montgomery Savings bank was called. This suit is for $100,000. The suit against the Montgomery Savings bank will be a test case. This was the bank from which Lacy first obtained funds prior to his flight from the city.

In addition to the suit against the Montgomery Savings bank, the State has also filed suits against other banks of the city which paid over funds to Lacy.

26,966 Marriages in State

Statistics compiled by the State board of health show that there were 26,966 marriages in Alabama last year, of which number 13,967 were negroes. The compilation of the health department further shows that the number of marriages represented approximately 24 out of every 1000 persons.

The report also shows that there were 1641 divorces in the State during the year, though the figures from 11 counties are lacking in this compilation.

Nunnelee Retires From Race.

James H. Nunnelee retired from the race for secretary of state. Mr. Nunnelee ran second in the recent primary, though lacked about 12,000 votes of equaling the record made by Judge John Purifoy, who nearly received a majority.

The retirement of Mr. Nunnelee from the race means the nomination of Judge Purifoy, who will not be compelled to make a race in the second primary.

Call for Statements.

Call for a statement of the condition of all State banks at the close of business April 14 was issued by Alex E. Walker, state superintendent of banks. Reports must be mailed within five days. Mr. Walker has received the application of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Kinston, Coffee county, for permission to begin business. The bank will have a capital stock of $15,000 and citizens of Montgomery, Enterprise, Opp and Kinston will be interested.

Bar Association Meets in July.

The State Bar association will hold its annual meeting this year in Montgomery. This decision was reached at a meeting of the executive committee of the association. The time for holding the annual session of the association has not yet been decided, but it is understood that it will be sometime in July.

None of the details of the meeting have yet been arranged. Though all plans will be perfected, including the program, within the next few weeks.

Lacy Files Appeal.

Attorneys for Theo. Lacy, former chief clerk of the State convict bureau, have filed a certificate of appeal in the State court of appeals from the verdict of a Montgomery county jury, which declared that Lacy must serve a sentence of 10 years in the penitentiary on a charge of embezzling $50,000 State funds.

No transcript was filed with the certificate, but if this transcript is filed before May 11 Lacy's case will be considered at this term of the court of appeals. Unless this transcript is filed it is probable that no action will be taken in the Lacy case until late next fall or early next spring.

Hear Cases From Sixth Division.

Cases from the Sixth Judicial Division are being heard by the Supreme Court this week. This is the largest division in the State from point of the number of cases submitted, and the call of the division usually continues two weeks. Jefferson county supplies more than three-fourths of the cases sent to the Supreme Court from the Sixth Division, and it is understood that the docket this year contains no exception to the general rule. Owing to the vast number of cases appealed to the Supreme Court from Jefferson County, the Sixth Division is recognized as by large the heaviest of all the divisions. Other counties in the Sixth Division are: Blount, Cullman, Fayette, Lamar, Marion, Pickens, Tuscaloosa, Walker and Winston.

Lookout Mountain Road Completed.

Announcement of thec ompletion of a modern State aid highway up Lookout mountain at Gadsden has been received at the office of W. S. Keller, State highway engineer. This road is about three miles in length and extends from Gadsden to Noccalulu Falls on top of Lookout mountain. It is said to be one of the finest highways of its kind in the south. Citizens of Gadsden supplemented the money spent by the county and State and as a result the driveway is one of the prettiest in the entire south.

Work on State aid roads throughout the different counties taking State aid money will be rushed during the good weather this summer. Plans for beginning work on the Montgomery-Birmingham highway are being completed and some active steps will be taken on this project soon, according to Mr. Keller.

Examinations for Teachers.

Examination of applicants for teachers' certificates began this week, and will be held in every county in Alabama. The number of applicants this spring will be unusually large, according to the announcement of the educational department. The examination questions were sent out several days ago in sealed packages to the various county superintendents of education.

Delegates to Health Convention.

Governor O'Neal appointed Dr. W. H. Sanders, State health officer, and W. F. Feagin, State superintendent of education, as delegates from Alabama to the Southern Health Officers Conference for the Improvement of Health Conditions Among Negroes, which will meet in New Orleans April 24. The delegates were appointed by Governor O'Neal at the request of Gov. L. E. Hall of Louisiana.

Castleberry Gets Conecuh School.

William F. Feagin, State superintendent of education, returned from Castleberry, where he conferred with the board of education relative to the construction of the Conecuh county high school at that place. The school will open for its first session next fall, the town of Castleberry having met all requirements for the location of a county high schol at that place.

Betts Gets Parole.

Sully Betts, convicted in the Madison county circuit court in December and given 10 years in the State penitentiary for second degree murder, was granted a parole by Governor O'Neal. Clemency was recommended by the trial judge and the State board of pardons.

Two Sentences Affirmed.

The supreme court affirmed the life sentence imposed upon Clarence Monts, who was convicted in the Perry circuit court for the murder of Bud Donaldson. George Vinniman who killed York Lewis in Shelby county, must serve a life sentence also.

Paroles Granted by Governor.

The governor of Alabama granted a parole to Hiram L. Tibbetts of Dallas county, who was convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. The parole was granted on condition that Tibbetts leave the state within six months. His parole was recommended by the state pardon board. The governor also granted a parole to L. A. Satterfield of Jefferson county, who was serving a term for embezzlement. Parole was conditioned on Satterfield's future good conduct.

Votes for Hobson for Governor.

Richmond P. Hobson, defeated candidate for United States Senate, received about 50 votes for governor in the recent democratic primary, according to official returns received by R. Tyler Goodwyn, chairman of the State democratic executive committee. Nearly all of the votes "for governor" cast for Captain Hobson were cast in Hale county his home.

Several votes were cast for Captain Hobson for the "short term" in the United States Senate, although he was not a candidate for that office.

RAILROAD RATE SETTLEMENT BUT A BUGABOO

TWO AGREEMENTS MADE

ALABAMA DEMOCRACY'S SLOGAN.

Henderson and Harmony.
Peace and Prosperity.
VS.
Comer and Chaos.
Discord and Dissention.

Here is the whole story of the railroad rate settlement in a nutshell. Read it and then make up your mind to forever put an end to agitation in Alabama by putting an end to Braxton Bragg Comer's ambitions on May 11:

The Comer Agreement.

"It is further understood and agreed that in the making of this settlement and the dismissal of the pending litigation, according to the terms of the verbal agreement between the parties hereto made contemporaneously with this instrument, there is to be no liability upon the said ——— railroad company growing or arising out of the bond or bonds which said company was required to give on securing the injunction heretofore issued in the pending litigation. . . .

The Henderson Agreement.

"It is further understood and agreed that in the making of this settlement and providing for the dismissal of the pending litigation as aforesaid, there is to be no liability upon the railroad companies, or either of them, growing or arising out of the bonds they were required to give on securing temporary restraining orders. . . ."

Henderson Coupons Redeemable.

"Mr. Comer, during his administration, settled litigation with railroads representing three-fifths of the mileage of the State. The litigation had been in effect for 14 months. Nothing was said in regard to coupon redemption. We settled with railroads representing two-fifths of the mileage of the State after litigation had been in effect for 24 months. The coupons issued on the rates made by the commission are redeemable at face value."—Chas. Henderson, President of Alabama R. R. Commission.

Mr. Comer, in His Agreements, Relieved the Railroads of Fines.

The railroads with which Mr. Comer settled, wilfully violated the law in overchargnig passengers and overcharging shippers before establishing the 2 1-2-cent passenger rate, millions of dollars, and, in addition to this, under the law, had incurred penalties in the way of fines that were due the State of Alabama, more than $20,000,000. Mr. Comer, in his agreement, relieved these roads from paying this more than $20,000,000 fine, that was due the State.

Special Rates for Mr. Comer.

Mr. Comer had one of his Special Sessions of the Legislature to pass an act authorizing the railroads to give him a special coal rate for his cotton mills at Sylacauga of 50 cents per ton, while the public pays 70 cents.

Mr. Comer now enjoys that discrimination.

Cotton mills at Selma, Enterprise, Uniontown, Montgomery, Mobile, Piedmont, Jacksonville, Huntsville, Florence and other points in the State of Alabama, which compete with Mr. Comer have no such special privilege.

Motorists Who Drove Haynes Cars in the Early Days Still Drive the Haynes

Twenty-one years ago, Elwood Haynes built the "horseless carriage"—the little machine that gave birth to the American automobile industry. Ever since then, Haynes cars have been built, year in, year out, without interruption.

And during these twenty-one years, Haynes owners have been demonstrating in "road races," "reliability runs," in "hill climbs" of every description, under all conditions, in this country and abroad with themselves the only "competitors," that the is a good car, and that given ordinary care and attention, the Haynes remains a good car, a mighty good car—indefinitely.

That's why these owners, after years of service, again purchase a Haynes. That's why such a large percentage of the Haynes annual production is sold every season to owners of old Haynes cars. That's why you should investigate the Haynes before you buy any car.

Elwood Haynes was ahead of the times when he built the first Haynes, back in '93. He is ahead of the times now in adopting the greatest automobile refinement in recent years—the Vulcan Electric Gear Shift. This device eliminates the hand-shift lever entirely, and so simplifies the control of the Haynes that anyone may readily drive it. With it, the Haynes is electrically controlled throughout, inasmuch as gear-shifting, starting, lighting and ignition are accomplished by electricity.

The Haynes "Four" 48 dynamometer horsepower, 118 inch wheelbase....$1785 and $1985
The Haynes "Six" 65 dynamometer horsepower, 130 inch wheelbase.....$2500 and $2700

SUPPORTERS AND FRIENDS OF SEED, KOLB AND HENDERSON

Make Ringing Declaration Against the Continuation of Political Agitation in Alabama

THE ELECTION OF MR. HENDERSON MEANS PEACE

PROSPERITY AND PROGRESS

On Saturday, April 11th, in Montgomery, with less than forty-eight hours, notice, there assembled about four hundred friends and supporters, hailing from every part of Alabama, of Seed, Kolb and Henderson, candidates for Governor in the April primary, and amid the greatest enthusiasm the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

The verdict of the people as expressed in the primary last Monday was a clear and unmistakable repudiation of Comer and Comerism.

The campaign he conducted was pitched on a lower plane than ever before known in our political history.

He offered to the people no program of constructive or progressive legislation, but in his efforts to gain power, appealed to prejudice and passion.

Claiming to be the implacable foe of the selfish special interest, no man who ever sought the office of Governor was more completely their servile and pliant tool. His campaign was supported by favor-seeking corporations and by those who hope through his election to secure exemption from taxation and special privileges,

And, although an overwhelming majority of the Democrats of Alabama decline to support his candidacy, he still persists in his efforts to mislead the people and again seeks their support.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by representatives who supported Walter D. Seed, Reuben F. Kolb and Charles Henderson in the recent primary in conference assembled:

First. That we are unalterably opposed to the candidacy of B. B. Comer. His nomination and election would mean another four years of waste and extravagance, of business and political unrest. It would check investments, stop the wheels of industrial progress and put the State under the control of a political ring whom the people scourged from power four years ago.

Second. We oppose B. B. Comer because during the whole course of his former administration he never wrote a single statute progressive in its character or inspired by a desire to secure greater social justice or equality of opportunity to the toiling masses of our people. It was through the efforts of B. B. Comer that Alabama today ocupies the unenviable and humiliating position of being one of the three States in this Union that permits the life, health and intelligence of little children to be coined into gold to swell the dividends of the cotton mill owners of the State.

Third. We oppose B. B. Comer because he has constantly opposed the demands for social justice for the toilers in our mines, our mills and our factories for better hygienic and sanitary protection and safeguards, and for reasonable hours of labor.

Fourth. We oppose him because he has been the unrelenting foe of labor and as Governor, without warrant of law, by an act as arbitrary and despotic as ever disgraced the annals of a free people, drove the striking miners in the Birmingham district from their homes, and denied to a large class of our people their legal and constitutional rights.

Fifth. We oppose him because he secured the passage of laws which allowed the revenues of the Convict Department to be placed in the hands of an official without bond, and to be withheld for three months at a time from the State treasury, and because by his own legislation the Lacy defalcation was made possible.

Sixth. We oppose him because this legislation was not in the interest of the people, but appears to have been for selfish personal purposes.

Seventh. We oppose him because claiming to favor the rule of the people he sought by all the means in his power to overthrow the time-honored Democratic principles of majority rule to gratify his own selfish ambitions.

Eighth. We oppose him because of the record of his administration shows that he sought to exempt from taxation certain industries for his own personal benefit and to vest in our common carriers the right to discriminate in their rates in his own favor and in favor of certain favored industries.

Ninth. We oppose him because he filled our statute books with laws inspired by a spirit of hostility and which were subsequently nullified by the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Tenth. We oppose him because if elected, he would not be the Governor of the people, but the chief of a political faction, and would use the powers of his great office, not to promote the interests of the people of Alabama, but to build up a political machine and to advance his own selfish ambition.

CHARLES HENDERSON
For Governor.

Eleventh. We oppose him because he is unfit by temperament to fill this great office; and because he would be willing to plunge the State into another four years of turmoil and bitter agitation and check our growing prosperity in order to punish his political enemies and advance the personal fortunes of his political adherents.

Twelfth. We oppose him because he has denounced every former friend whose aspirations crossed the pathway of his ambition, and because he has sought by abuse, slander and misrepresentation to conceal his own vulnerable record and to ride into power on a campaign of false pretense, hypocrisy and slander.

Thirteenth. We oppose him because he has unwisely dissipated the millions of dollars left in our State treasury by former Governor Jelks; because he has increased our taxes, created useless and unnecessary offices, and because his former administration was characterized by a deplorable lack of business capacity and efficiency.

Fourteenth. We oppose him because he seeks office not to promote needed reforms, to improve the efficiency of government, but to punish his political enemies, and to build up a Comer machine and to exploit the office of Governor for his own personal use and to gratify an ambition which is not justified by his record or his ability.

We therefore, present to the people of Alabama as our choice a man who is self-poised, whose business ability has been demonstrated, who fully understands the needs of our people, who is wisely progressive, who is not under the domination of special interests, whose vote in his own county attests the confidence of the people who know him best, and who would give Alabama a wise, efficient and economical administration.

The State has had enough of agitation, bitterness and strife. Our people desire to devote their attentions to building up the great resources of the State, reducing the expense of State government, reforming our judiciary, increasing the power of the Courts and preventing reversals in criminal cases on technical errors; making punishments of the guilty more swift and certain and in making human life and liberty as safe and secure in Alabama as in the most advanced State of the Union.

With the election of Charles Henderson the State will enter into a new era of progress and advancement. He has never yet sought to coin into political capital the crime of those who looted the State treasury. Nor has he ever negotiated with criminals, nor will he make the pardoning power a political asset.

The people of Alabama are fortunate in having the opportunity to vote for a man who represents so thoroughly such lofty ideals and whose election will guarantee political peace, progress and prosperity for the affairs of the State.

And we pledge him our loyal support.

TORTURING TWINGES

Much so-called rheumatism is caused by weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid forms into crystals like bits of broken glass in the muscles, joints and on the nerve casings. Torturing pains dart through the affected part whenever it is moved. By curing the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills have eased thousands of rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel, neuralgia and urinary disorders.

A NORTH CAROLINA CASE

J. F. Williams, Garden St., Marion, N. C., says: "I was all run down from kidney trouble and doctors held out no hope for me. I had rheumatic pains, didn't sleep well and was nervous. The kidney secretions were in bad shape, too. At last I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon cured me. I haven't had the slightest sign of kidney trouble since."

WHAT ANGERED MRS. WILBUR

Mabel's Comment Taken Entirely Too Seriously and Friendship Was Rudely Jarred.

"That Mrs. Wilbur is so angry she won't speak to me," confided Mabel to Ethel.

"Really!" exclaimed Ethel. "And what is she angry about?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," said Mabel. "We met a cople of days ago, and we were talking as friendly as possible, when suddenly she flared up and she hasn't noticed me since."

"What were you talking about?" inquired Ethel.

"Why, nothing in particular," explained Mabel. "Just the ordinary small talk. I remember she said, 'I always kiss my husband three or four times every day.'"

"And what did you say?" asked Ethel, in an effort to get at the root of the trouble.

"Why I said," replied the other, "I knew at least a dozen girls who do the same,' and then she nearly had a fit."

SKIN TROUBLE ITCHED BADLY

Glenns P. O., Va.—"My baby's trouble began with an itching and then a little bump would come and she could not rest day or night. The trouble affected her whole body. The bumps festered and came to a head and the corruption looked like thick matter, kind of a yellow color. The sores itched so badly until it seemed to me she would scratch herself to pieces and then a sore would form and her clothes would stick to her body and pull off the little scab. In some places she would scratch and irritate the sores until they seemed to be large. She was affected about a year.

"I wrote for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed her body in warm water and Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment, and they afforded relief after twice using. I bought some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and inside of two weeks she was cured." (Signed) Mrs. J. R. Greggs, Nov. 21, 1912.

COULDN'T STAND FOR DEFEAT

According to London Newspaper, Colored Opponent of Irishman Had Little Chance.

A brawny son of Erin was acting as time keeper in a rough-and-ready fight between his mate and a negro in South America. In the course of the fight a well-planted blow sent the Irishman earthwards.

"One!" cried the time keeper, in a tense voice, watch in hand.

"Two!" he murmured hoarsely. "Pat, ye fool, git up! There's only eight seconds left!"

The inert mass never moved.

"Three!" shouted the time keeper desperately. "Think of yer old mother, Pat! What's it she'd be saying to ye, 'Bate the nigger!'"

Slowly he called up to eight, bucking up his mate with patriotic ejaculations between each long second. When eight had been called Pat slowly staggered to his feet, and by a mighty lunge succeeded in knocking down his black opponent.

Desperately fearing lest he should revive in time, the time keeper set off at top speed:

"One, two, three, four, five, and five's ten! Ye're out, ye black villain!"—London Tid-Bits.

Won Distinction in Three Wars.

Gen. John B. S. Todd, a soldier of three wars and governor of Dakota territory, was born 100 years ago in Lexington, Ky. In his youth he removed with his parents to Illinois. He graduated from West Point in 1837 and for five years thereafter was actively engaged in the Florida war. During the war with Mexico he distinguished himself in the siege of Vera Cruz and at the battle of Cerro Gordo. Subsequently he took part in the Sioux expedition in the Northwest. For a short period in the early part of the Civil war he commanded a division of the Army of the Tennessee. After quitting the army he served as a Dakota delegate in congress and was governor of the territory from 1869 to 1871. General Todd died at Yankton in 1872.

Succinct.

Representative Simeon D. Fess of Ohio believes in looking for the brightest side of life; he is "strong" for optimism. His distinction between an optimist and a passimist is apparent in the following definition which he sometimes gives:

"A pessimist," says Representative Fess, "asks 'Is there any milk in that pitcher?' But an optimist says, 'Pass the cream.'"

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes:

CLOQUET, MINN.—"I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has made me well and I can recommend the same to all that are troubled with these complaints."—Mrs. JENNIE AKERMAN, c/o Rev. K. AKERMAN, Cloquet, Minnesota.

From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. MURDOCH, 25 Gordon St., South Quincy, Mass.

Coun[illegible]ith Officer's Report

To the Honorable Probate Judge and Commissioners, Chilton, County, Ala:

Gentlemen:—I beg to submit my report for the month of Mar. as required by law. I inspected the county jail and poorhouse and found both to be in good condition.

All doctors who are in active practice have reported births and deaths. All midwives have reported.

The vital statistics are as follows: Births, White 43, colored 6 Total 49; Deaths White 19, Colored 1; Total 21.

The following cases of infectious diseases were reported, and have been promptly looked after: Small pox, 4; Cerebro Spinal Menengitis, 1; Measles, 2.

Respectfully,
V. J. Gragg M. D.
County Health Officer.

Good Oats at Mountain Creek

On the 6th day of April I put 200 lbs. Nitre Soda and 200 lbs. 10-4 English Acid on 1 1-4 acres of Oats. Some of the oats looked pretty bad when I done this. Well, in three days they began to change their color, so last week I went to Birmingham on Thursday and come back on the 12th, and I went out to look at my oats. I tell you I never seen anything change like they did; their color had changed over the entire patch and I believe they had growed from 4 to 6 inches. Now some of the farmers say it takes from 9 to 11 days to tell the affect of Soda, but this only took 6 days and you could tell it in some places in 3 days.

On Saturday the 21st inst. I was at Clanton to hear Hon. Fred L. Blackmon speak. I had a good Waltham watch that needed some adjusting or repairing, and was directed to Mr. J. V. Higgins a jeweler there. To my surprise I found him to be a son of my old time friend, Benj. F. Higgins, who had done much work for me and my brothers and friends many years ago. Also his uncle Flem Higgins and His grandfather Joseph Higgins did much work for my father and myself. In fact the whole Higgins family were the best and most efficient mechanics I ever knew anywhere. Up on any and all kinds of work and their business, and the charges were always reasonable. I was glad to give him my watch that had been injured by incompetent jewelers. I unhesitatingly recommend Mr. Higgins to those in need of good work.

Respectfully,

DEATH OF HON. TIPTON MULLINS

Long Time Prominent Attorney Passed Away Thursday.

After a long illness of several months, death came to him last Thursday to relieve him of his unpleasant ailment. And so passed away Hon. Tipton Mullins, who, for many years has been one of Clanton's leading and most honored citizens.

Mr. Mullins was reared in this county, and early in life he came to Clanton to make his home. He brought with him, as he carried with him everywhere, that remarkable personal quality that lent its rays toward everything that called for the attention of the intelligent and progressive citizenship. In this way he soon became a citizen highly esteemed and honored by his fellow men, and so remained till his death.

As a lawyer Mr. Mullins ranked especially high, not only in Chilton, but also adjoining counties, and was well known over the entire state.

Funeral services were held at the Clanton Baptist Church on Friday, conducted by Rev. Fancher, after which interment was made at Clanton cemetery. A large number of friends and relatives of the family attended the services to pay their last respects to him on earth.

STREWING FLOWERS ON SOLDIERS' GRAVES

On Sunday, the veterans of the Alabama Soldiers Home, assisted by a large number of good people, decorated the graves of their deceased comrades. A number of ladies including Mrs. Carrie McMasters, Miss Virginia Brown, Miss Mary Henderson, Mrs. Charles White, Mrs. Hubbart, Mrs. Addie Howe, assisted by Captain J. M. Simpson, S. J. Andress, Adjutant Crowley and Mr. George Thompson worked hard all day Saturday arranging the wreaths, with which the pretty Misses and Sunday School children decorated the graves of the dead heroes of 1861-65, now buried in the Home cenetery. It was a pretty picture furnished, after fifty years, to see the kind, gentle women and misses, and little children strewing flowers on the graves of the men, who, when boys, carried guns in the defense of our Southland. It was an evidence that those who are today on the border demanding an apology to our flag, should they fall, flowers fifty years hence will be strewn on their graves.

DEATH OF A GOOD CHRISTIAN SOLDIER

Veteran J. D. Simmons, aged seventy-five years, died at the Soldiers Home on Thursday morning and was buried in the Home cemetery on Friday. A large number of old veterans attended the funeral. Mr. Simmons was a quiet, even minded man of excellent character, and lived a christian life. He was highly esteemed by his old comrades and will be sadly missed by them.

In Memory

On last Tuesday the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Williams and bore away the spirit of their sweet little daughter, Jeanette. And while she rests in the arms of Jesus, our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the bereaved parents. Yet we can only guess what this sorrow is, but oh how happy she must be now that she has seen Jesus and shines in the light of God.

Weep not dear parents, the little one is taken home, away from her suffering and sorrow, and is not this the very best and kindest thing that the tender savior could do for her? For she is with Him now and forever, waiting for you to come home; so weep not dear parents, for she is at rest. We know that we cannot comfort you, only Jesus can do that. And oh how much He must be touched, when such a sorrow comes to His children on earth. And he knows by actual experience what human love is. We khow her suffering is over, for while the gentle zephyrs played among the leaves of the fresh budded trees. Her little spirit was wafted on the pinions of angels to the helms of eternal bliss, to the God who gave it.

One who loved her,

Thorsby, Ala., Apr. 27, 1914.

Mr. Editor: – Please allow me, through the columns of your paper, to express my sincere thanks to the voters of Chilton County for the support they gave me in my race for representative. I was defeated but by a good man, and I am now ready to strive harder to help elect him in Nov. than I did to defeat him in the recent primary. I feel that the voters made a good choice, since Mr. Thomas being an older man than I, can probably do the county more good than I could have done. Again thanking my friends for their support, I am,

Very respectfully,
Howard L. Foshee.

G. W. Parrish Died Monday

After an illness of two weeks with measles, Mr. G. W. Parrish died at his home near Clanton late Monday afternoon.

He was a man of about 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and several children. His family is all in a bad condition with measles yet. Funeral services were held at Concord church Tuesday, conducted by the members of Waxahatchie Tribe No. 9, I. O. R. M., of which he was a member.

In Memory

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bean April 18th., 1914, and took away their darling little boy, Lewis. He was sick six weeks. He was sixteen months old, making his stay on earth, one year and four months; his stay being short with us.

O! wont we miss him. Little Lewis was a sweet little boy, but he has gone to rest, leaving a mother, father and one brother, three sisters besides a host of relatives to mourn for him, but our loss is heaven's gain. I say to the heart broken mother and father weep not for sweet little Lewis for he is at rest; he can't come back but you can go to him. Our darling is at rest, safe in the arms of Jesus where his sweet voice will sing and praise God forever more. He will never more know what sickness, pain nor death is; his suffering is over. He is at rest with Jesus awaiting the second coming of Christ, when we shall all be gathered and meet our loved ones never to part.

Jemison is an Applicant for County High School

On account of the position taken by practically all of our citizens in regard to the commissioners paying $4,000 to the school when located, we cannot sincerely ask for that money to be given to us, and will build such a building or buildings as may be required by the state without using the county's money. We ask the co-operation and aid of every citizen in the county in helping us to get the school located at Jemison and promise to keep faith with you by having the school opened on such a date as may be chosen for the schollastic year of 1914-15.

We have an ideal location for the school being about 750 feet above sea-level---highest altitude of any town in the county---and we have never had a case of Typhoid fever to originate in this town.

Thanking you for any consideration which you may show us and assuring you that it will be duly appreciated by us, we are,

SUBSOILING WITH DYNAMITE.

Demonstration at Thorsby Saturday, May 2nd, At 2 P. M.

Through the courtesy of the Dupont Powder Company, of Wilmington, Del., Mr. J. Sterling Moran, of the Rural Organization Service, Federal Department of Agriculture, was able to secure enough Red Cross Extra 20 per cent Dynamite to subsoil an acre of ground.

The work will be done in the village of Thorsby on the land belonging to Benjamin Franklin, an is an experiment to determine the increase in crop yields when land is subsoiled. The adjoining acre of exactly the same kind of soil will be fertilized and cultivated in the same way and results noted. It is confidently believed by those having this experiment in charge that by subsoiling and deep plowing (10-14) that the water content of the soil can be so increased that it will hold from three to five times as much water as is the case at present, before the soil becomes saturated and begins to overflow and carry the top soil off.

Several thousand experiments in different parts of the country have shown that tight subsoil blasted when dry showed from 25 to 300 per cent increase in crops. The average increase was better than 50 per ceut.

One man near Brewton, Ala., got 3-4 bale cotton per acre before subsoiling and 1 1-2 bales after. Another man at Talladega, Ala., increased the value of his cotton crop the first year by $45.20 per acre. In other words, subsoiled land yielded $98.72 worth of seed cotton per acre, while land adjoining on the same farm not subsoiled returned only $53.52.

A man near Marbury, Ala., got 25 bushels of corn before subsoiling with dynamite, and over 100 bushels since. Another man raised his yield from 40 to 106 bushels per acre by subsoiling.

All this is merely a small part of what could be said of the use of dynamite on the farm for ditching, subsoiling for new orchards, renovating old orchards, cleaning land of stumps and stones, draining swamps by ditching, and many other uses.

This experiment will be promptly at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 2nd, if we have no heavy rains that will make the soil very wet. Come and tell your friends to come hear the talks and see the demonstration.

Clanton, Ala., April 27, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—I want to express my appreciation to those who supported me in the primary of April 21, 1914. I have no ill feeling whatever for those who supported Mr. Harris; I am satisfied with the results. Mr. Harris defeated me fair and honest. I don't like to go down in defeat, but I believe in the majority ruling. I will do all in my power to elect the whole ticket in the November election. It will take more than a defeat to make a democrat of me. We have nominated a set of good men for the different offices; so boys get busy and ralley to the people's cause and roll up the largest majority in November we ever have before. Anything I can do I am at your service.

Yours respectfully,
John L. Gore.

TO ELECT DISTRICT SCHOOL FAGULTIES

GOVERNOR WILL CALL MEETING OF AGRICULTURAL BOARD AT AN EARLY DATE.

NEWS LETTER FROM CAPITAL

Happenings in and About Alabama's State House Interestingly Told.

—Montgomery.

Faculties of the various agricultural schools of the State will be elected at a meeting of the board of agriculture, which will be called by the governor within the next two weeks, according to an announcement by Superintendent of Education William F. Fagin. It is expected that the meeting of the board will be held early in May.

During the same month, according to Superintendent Feagin the normal school board will meet and elect the faculties of the normal schols of the State. The presidents of these institutions were elected at a recent meeting of the board, though none of the instructors were selected at that time.

Superintendent Feagin has already begun plans for the summer institutes for the various counties in the State. These institutes will be held the latter part of the summer, and all the teachers of the State will be required to attend. The institute instructors will be elected in May, and on the first of June they will meet in Montgomery for a general conference with Superintendent Feagin relative to the summer work.

Clanton After County High School.

A delegation of leading citizens of Clanton called on the governor and Superintendent of Education William F. Feagin and invited them to make a visit to their town for the purpose of inspecting the site offered for the Chilton county high school.

The delegation represented to the governor and the other members of the high school commission the various facilities and advantages offered by Clanton over any other place in the county, and urged them to make an inspection of the proposed site at the earliest possible moment.

The town of Jemison is also an applicant for the school, and it is probable that when the high school commission goes to Clanton it will also make a visit to the other place. Chilton county is one of the few counties of the State that has no county high school, and plans are on foot to start such an institution by the beginning of next session.

Wilcox Man Has Unique Job.

In the eyes of the Alabama governor P. C. Jenkins of Wilcox county has only one job, that is to see that Haywood Hall never takes another drink of whiskey.

Hall was convicted of manslaughter and was serving a five year prison term when Governor O'Neal granted a parole. He committed the crime because whiskey befuddled his brain, and his promise to the governor was that he would never taste the beverage again.

Mr. Jenkins must keep one eye on Hall at all times, and if he reports that the parole has been violated, Hall will be returned to the penitentiary to complete his sentence.

Sanders Re-Elected.

Dr. William H. Sanders was re-elected state health officer by the Alabama Medical association at its closing session. B. B. Sims of Talladega was elected president; Dr. F. A. Webb of Calvert, senior vice president; Dr. J. U. Ray of Woodstock, junior vice president; Dr. J. N. Baker, Montgomery, secretary, and Dr. H. G. Perry, Montgomery, treasurer.

Nesbit Reappointed Mine Inspector.

C. H. Nesbit, of Birmingham, was re-appointed chief mine inspector of Alabama. J. F. Webb of Walker county, was named associate mine inspector. Governor O'Neal made the appointments. The appointees will serve three years.

Tuskegee Company Mustered Out.

Owing to inefficiency on inspection, Company K, Second infantry, Alabama National Guard, at Tuskegee, has been mustered out of service. This company was recently inspected by Capt. William P. Screws, U. S. A., and Maj. T. C. Locke, A. N. G. The mustering out of service of the Tuskegee company leaves several vacancies in the Second regiment, and Col. C. R. Bricken is using active efforts to fill the several vacancies. He announced while in Montgomery that he has a number of applications.

Want Alabama Educator.

Alabama has been asked to furnish applications for the position of assistant superintendent of the school system of New York city, at a salary of $6500. The request for names was received by Superintendent of Education Feagin from M. Samuel Stern, chairman of the committee on nomination of the New York city school board. Mr. Stern specified that all applicants for the position must be a full graduate of some college or university in the Class A group, with five years' experience as a teacher.

Sanitary Tick Law Gets Blow.

The cattle tick eradication law, as amended by the State legislature on August 20, 1909, is not applicable to the county of Jackson, according to a decision handed down by the supreme court in the case of Robert L. Ferguson vs. the board of commissioners of that county.

The case grew out of the arrest of Ferguson by the board of commissioners for violation of the regulations of the cattle tick law. The defendant first appealed to the circuit court of Jackson county, contending that the act of Augst 26, 1909, which amended the original law, was violative of the constitution in that it did not contain the subject of the bill in its title. The lower court decided against him.

In an opinion by Associate Justice Gardner the supreme court held this was true, and thereby reversed the circuit court.

The effect of the court's decision is to leave operative the amendment of August 20, 1909, which provides that none of the provisions of March 12, 1907, as to cattle tick eradication shall be effective in any county not having a major portion of its area under stock law. Since Jackson county did not have the major portion of its area under stock law, it is by the decision of the court left without the provision of the cattle tick eradication law.

Bar Association Meets July 10-11.

The Alabama Bar association will meet in annual session in Montgomery July 10 and 11, according to an announcement made by the executive committee of the association. The committee announced several days ago that the meeting this year would be held in Montgomery, but at that time had not determined upon the date. The final arrangements were made at a meeting of the executive committee. The committee is composed as follows: Ray Rushton, chairman; Judge Ormond Somerville, Alexander Troy, J. Manly Foster, and William L. Martin, all of Montgomery.

It is understood that the executive committee of the association hopes to have the annual address this year delivered by a distinguished lawyer and author from another state. The committee will extend a formal invitation in the next few days.

The program for this year's meeting will be announced later, according to Mr. Troy, secretary of the association.

Smith Out of Treasurer's Race.

Brooks Smith has withdrawn from the race for State treasurer. The retirement of Mr. Smith from the race means the nomination of Judge W. L. Lancaster of Wetumpka, who ran first in the recent primary. Judge Lancaster obtained a plurality over Mr. Smith by about 200 0votes.

In retiring from the race for treasurer, Mr. Smith expressed his deep gratitude to his many friends throughout the State for their loyal support. His statement follows:

"After full consideration of the matter and after consultation with a number of my friends, I have decided, in view of the immense difficulty of making the campaign under existing conditions personal to myself, not to continue in the race tor nomination as Stafe treasurer, and I have so informed the chairman of the State democratic executive committee.

"I shall ever be grateful for the loyalty and interest in my affairs displayed by my many friends in all parts of the State."

Finest Jail in State.

Pickens County now has one of the finest jails in the State, according to Dr. W. H. Oates, State prison inspector, who has received notice of the completion of the Pickens jail at Carrollton. The new prison is a model one and was constructed along modern lines suggested by Dr. Oates. The Pickens county board of revenue has inspected the jail and has accepted it from the contractors.

Bertillon Expert Paroled.

A. J. Mathes, Baldwin county convict, who had aided in the establishment of the Bertillon system of identification at the State penitentiary, has been paroled by Governor O'Neal because of ill health. Mathes had completed four years of a ten-year sentence for second-degree murder and his parole was recommended by the State board of pardons.

Candidates for Speaker.

Henry P. Merritt of Tuskegee, who was recently nominated for another term in the State legislature, was among the visitors at the capitol. Mr. Merritt will be a candidate for speaker of the house in the next legislature and he expresses hmiself as highly satisfied with his chances. Mr. Merritt will be opposed by A. H. Carmichael of Colbert county, who served as speaker of the house during the previous administration. Already friends of the two candidates have begun to canvass in their behalf.

Committeemen Go Into Run-Off.

By an aye and nay vote the State Democratic Executive Committee ordered candidates for members of the State committee who did not receive majorities in the first primary to enter the run-off May 11 with the second highest candidates. The decision was made after much discussion and after an effort had been made to substitute a minority report for the majority report on the State committeemen. The run-off will occur in the Second, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth districts.

ARBITRATORS STRIVE TO END MEXICAN WAR

TENSENESS OF SITUATION IS RELIEVED—OFFER OF MEDIATION ACCEPTED.

PRESIDENT VERY OPTIMISTIC

Huerta Must Be Eliminated If Amicable Settlement Is to Be Reached.

Washington.—Formal acceptance by the Huerta government of the offer of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to use their good offices to bring about an amicable settlement of the difficulty between the United States and Mexico, was cabled to Spanish Ambassador Riano here by Portillo y Rojas, foreign minister in the Huerta cabinet.

It was said that Senator Rojas replied briefly, accepting the offer and thanking the South American plenipotentiaries and the Spanish Ambassador for their good offices, with a reference to "the real spirit of solidarity between peoples of a same race."

No conditions are imposed in an offer of good offices, consequently the reply from Mexico City was not expected to deal with conditions. That stage will be reached when the peacemakers formulate their plans and make known how they propose to use the good offices which have been accepted. It was suggested that they probably would ask the Washington and Mexico City governments for statements as to what each would demand in the event formal mediation were undertaken, and that upon the nature of the responses to this request would depend the proposals next to be submitted.

Official advices from Mexico already had made it virtually certain that General Huerta would accept the offer of the peace envoys, but the formal announcement tended to further relieve the slackening tension of the crisis. The news was given to President Wilson, who expressed himself as greatly pleased, though he would make no further comment.

TENSENESS OF SITUATION IS SOMEWHAT RELIEVED.

Washington.—The tenseness of the Mexican situation was distinctly relieved when the representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile, supported by pressure from all Latin-America and from the foremost powers of Europe, concentrated their efforts toward a pacific adjustment of the crisis.

The success of the first steps toward mediation—the prompt acceptance by the United States and the announcement of the Spanish Ambassador that Huerta had accepted the tender of good offices—produced a feeling of distinct hope, which was reflected not only in administration quarters, but in Congress, where "war talk" gave way to a spirit of conciliation.

NO AMERICANS HAVE BEEN KILLED SINCE CRISIS.

Secretary Bryan said he was able after receiving information through embassies and legations, to say that no American had been killed or injured since the crisis of the last two weeks began, and that, though many had been detained at Aguas Callentes, Cordoba, Orizaba, efforts were now being made to obtain their release. Order prevails in Vera Cruz, Brigadier General Funston and the army is in command of the situation.

"Things look very much better now," said Secretary Daniels. "We are getting Americans out of Mexico. That is the important thing now."

Consul Canada reported that a formal raising of the American flag occurred at Vera Cruz with impressive ceremonies.

The attitude of the administration long has been established that the elimination of Huerta was an essential to any final settlement of the Mexican problem. This view was reiterated at the White House, when senators and representatives were consulted as to the proposal of good offices. But, while maintaining this view as to what would ultimately be essential to a real settlement, there has been no formal submission of such a condition to the envoys now entrusted with the work of conciliation.

While Secretary Bryan and government officials expressed a disinclination to discuss the mediation plan during its present stage, they said it had not reached the point of actual "proposals." The American government simply has expressed its willingness to listen to any plan of intermediation which the representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile may formulate. Huerta has shown his readiness to bend a listening ear to the peace plans of the South American envoys.

APPEAL AND WARNING TO FARMERS

To the Farmers of Alabama:

The election of May 11th will be decided by the Democratic farmers of Alabama. As of old, their votes still control the destinies of this State.

I was born and raised a farmer and all of my life I have been engaged in farming, my interest and wants and feelings identical with those of other farmers.

The farmer's prosperity and his hopes are menaced by the rapid approach of the boll weevil. This destructive pest now covers one-half of the territory of the State. In a few years cotton cannot be successfully grown in a large part of the State. The hope of the farmer and business interests depending upon him can only be found by converting the cotton farm into a grain and stock farm. To make this successful, the farmer must have low freight rates and good roads. Mr. Henderson, who is opposing me for Governor, surrendered to the railroads the cheap rates which were established by the Legislature when I was Governor, and gave back to the railroads $3,000,000 which they had unjustly exacted from the people by overcharges for carrying freight and passengers. If elected Governor, I will urge the restoration of these rates and make the rates the same in Alabama as they are in Georgia. A majority of the Legislature already nominated agree with me on this subject.

To get the full benefit of these rates the farmer must have good roads, over which to carry his produce to market, and to make country life what it should be. If elected, I will urge the Legislature to enact laws under which good roads will be established. I will urge the passage of laws to take out of the mines and lumber camps the misdemeanor-convicts and place them upon the public roads. As soon as the financial condition of the State will justify it, I will urge that all State convicts be worked upon the public roads, where the treatment of these unfortunates will be more humane, where the public will receive the benefits from their labor, and where they will be taken out of competition with free labor, as is now successfully done in Georgia and in Jefferson, Houston and other Counties of this State.

The farmers of the State lose millions of dollars annualy by the ravages of hog cholera, because they have no effectiva means of preventing it. If elected, I will urge the enactment of laws to prevent the existence and spread of this scourge on the prosperity of the people of the State. With cheap freight rates, good roads, and the prevention of hog cholera in the State, the farmers can well afford to withstand the ravages of the boll weevil and devote their energies to other crops and to the growth of live stock.

If elected, I will urge the appropriation of a sufficient amount to educate our farmers, and especially the boys, in the use of intensive methods in farming.

I will insist upon the largest possible appropriation for the common schools of the country, so as to give the country children a full nine months' term with comfortable houses in which to be taught.

I favor liberal appropriation for pensions to Confederate soldiers.

I will urge the abolition of the county back tax commissioner, retention of the 60 per cent. tax valuation, and will insist upon rigid economy in the administration of the affairs of the State.

I appeal to you to join with me and sustain me in the great work of removing our capitol from Louisville back to Montgomery.

B. B. COMER.

JUDGE DENSON FOR COMER

April 21st, 1914.

Hon. B. B. Comer,
Birmingham, Ala.

Dear Sir:—

I am heartily and unqualifiedly in favor of your candidacy and believing that your nomination and election to the office of Governor will better subserve the interests of the State, I hope and trust that you will be nominated by an overwhelming majority.

But for important business engagements I would join with others of your friends in the advocacy of your candidacy on the stump.

With sentiments of highest esteem, I am, Yours truly,

(Adv.) (Signed) N. D. DENSON.

LAW AND ORDER

Gov. Comer's Record As Shown in 1908 Strike

In reply to the attempt of his enemies to prejudice laboring men against him because he settled a miners' strike in Jefferson County in 1908, Gov. Comer has this ringing declaration of his position on law and order in Alabama:

"It is urged that all working men vote against me, because I interfered with and settled the miners' strike in 1908. My duty as Governor was to preserve order, to see that there was no open season for homicides in Alabama, threatening with idleness and want every man in this district who had to work for a living. Human life and property interests became the sport of rioters. Trains filled with innocent passengers were fired on and assassination was added to murder. This lawlessness I suppressed, and suppressed it without shedding one drop of blood, giving peace, order, industry and protection back to these people, our fellow citizens, and safe conditions back to business. I will do it again should the need arise. Whenever a reign of lawlessness shall show itself, whenever conditions such as confronted us here shall arise, whether in the crowded city or the remotest country district, I would see that the State stretches over peaceful and industrious men and women the strong arm of its protecting power.

"Compare the strike history in West Virginia, Michigan and Colorado, in their horrible and destructive details, with the bloodless, successful strike settlement in Alabama, and the many peaceful, prosperous years to every condition of labor and business since, and then ask, what will Mr. Henderson do? He has appealed to a base method when he holds out to the laboring men the promise of non-interference in whatever they may choose to do in the name of strike. He is surely mistaking the spirit and habit of mind of our working population with this base appeal. You may well question the wisdom of putting a man who make[illegible] an appeal for votes in your [illegible] highest power. This is the [illegible] who betrayed his office when [illegible] surrendered the rate compromi[illegible] Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and betrayed his people when he struck the bargain with Charlie Lewis as the bell tolled for midnight in the Nashville Conference."

COMER ON CHILD LABOR

Gov. Comer has declared his position on child labor as follows:

"On the subject of child labor and child labor protection in the cotton mills, Alabama is in advance of all the Southern States which have cotton mills. The Comer legislature raised the age from ten to twelve years, and required that all children between twelve and sixteen years old shall attend school eight weeks in the year—the only compulsory educational law in the State—and no child under twelve years old shall be in or about a mill. The Comer administration further provided that the full execution of the law should be under the inspection and in charge of a State officer, Dr. Oates, with full authority by law to carry out its every intent of supervision and protection.

"There are in Alabama 400,000 child laborers; nearly all are on the farms; less than 2500 work in the cotton mills, and these latter, by law, are all over twelve years old, and are the only children in Alabama who have any sort of State protection and supervision, or have any sort of compulsory education. The Avondale Mills at Birmingham have less than thirty-five between twelve and sixteen years old, the average pay of whom is 75 cents a day, made in bi-weekly payments, no commissary being attached.

The Liquor Curse.

"Child labor is not created in the cotton mills, but by the 'wolf at the parents' door.' And what brings the wolf to the door today more than every other cause combined is the curse of the liquor habit. Governor O'Neal's administration, which is now backing Mr. Henderson and attempting without reference to the people to name him for Governor, has done more to bring necessity to the parents' door, to bring back the accursed wolf of drunkenness to the door of parents, done more—yes, a thousand times more, to create child labor than every mill in the State combined; and I charge Mr. Henderson, in his brutal picture showing me with the whip lash driving children into the mill, to substitute himself, with Charles Lewis by his side, with the whip lash of necessity, which is the only power that can drive the free white people of Alabama. They, and not the mills, create the problem of child labor. The State has been progressing along this line for years, and will continue to progress as the condition of the people themselves improves." (Adv.)

London Times at a Penny.

On the first day that the London Times was issued at a penny (two cents), its circulation was quadrupled. Three hundred thousand copies were sold. The London Daily Mail says: "The demand is the most amazing thing that has ever been known in the history of newspapers. Four or five hundred thousand people applied for the paper in vain. On arrival at their newsagent's or bookstalls they found that all the copies had been reserved for regular purchasers."

SYNOPSIS.

Challis Wrandall is found murdered in a road house near New York. Mrs. Wrandall is summoned from the city and identifies the body. A young woman who accompanied Wrandall to the inn and subsequently disappeared, is suspected. Wrandall, it appears, had led a gay life and neglected his wife. Mrs. Wrandall starts back for New York in an auto during a blinding snow storm. On the way she meets a young woman in the road who proves to be the woman who killed Wrandall.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

"There was nothing left for me to do but that."

"And why did you rob him?"

"Ah, I had ample time to think of all that. You may tell the officers they will find everything hidden in that farmhouse cellar. God knows I do not want them. I am not a thief. I'm not so bad as that."

Mrs. Wrandall marveled. "Not so bad as that!" And she was a murderess, a wanton!

"You are hungry. You must be famished."

"No, I am not hungry. I have not thought of food." She said it in such a way that the other knew what her whole mind had been given over to since the night before.

A fresh impulse seized her. "You shall have food and a place where you can sleep—and rest," she said. "Now please don't say anything more. I do not want to know too much. The least you say tonight, the better for—for both of us."

With that she devoted all of her attention to the car, increasing the speed considerably. Far ahead she could see twinkling, will-o'-the-wisp lights, the first signs of thickly populated districts. They were still eight or ten miles from the outskirts of the city and the way was arduous. She was conscious of a sudden feeling of fatigue. The chill of the night seemed to have made itself felt with abrupt, almost stupefying force. She wondered if she could keep her strength, her courage—her nerves.

The girl was English. Mrs. Wrandall was convinced of the fact, almost immediately. Unmistakably English and apparently of the cultivated type. In fact, the peculiarities of speech that determines the London show-girl or music-hall character were wholly lacking. Her voice, her manner, even under such trying conditions, were characteristic of the English woman of cultivation. Despite the dreadful strain under which she labored, there were evidences of that curious serenity which marks the English woman of the better classes; an inborn composure, a calm orderliness of the emotions. Mrs. Wrandall was conscious of a sense of surprise, of a wonder that increased as her thoughts resolved themselves into something less chaotic than they were at the time of contact with this visible condition.

For a mile or more she sent the car along with reckless disregard for comfort or safety. Her mind was groping for something tangible in the way of intentions. What was she to do with this creature? What was to become of her? At what street corner should she turn her adrift? The idea of handing her over to the police did not enter her thoughts for an instant. Somehow she felt that the girl was a stranger to the city. She could not explain the feeling, yet it was with her and very persistent. Of course, there was a home of some sort, or lodgings, or friends, but would he girl dare show herself in familiar haunts?

She found herself wondering why the poor wretch had not made way with herself. Escape seemed out of the question. That must have been clear to her from the beginning, else why was she going back there to give herself up? What better way out of it than self-destruction. She would advise the girl to leave the car when they reached the center of a certain bridge that spanned the river! No one would find her. . . .

Even as the thought took shape in her mind, she experienced a great sense of awe, so overwhelming that she cried out with the horror of it. She turned her head for a quick glance at the mute, wretched face showing white above the robe, and her heart ached with sudden pity for her. The thought of that slender, alive thing going down to the icy waters—her soul turned sick with the dread of it!

In that instant, Sara Wrandall—no philanthropist, no sentimentalist—made up her mind to give this erring one more than an even chance for salvation. She would see her safely across that bridge and many others. God had directed the footsteps of this girl so that she should fall in with the one best qualified to pass judgment on her. It was in that person's power to save her or destroy her. The commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," took on a broader meaning as she considered the power that was hers; the power to kill.

A great relaxation came over Sara Wrandall. It was as if every nerve, every muscle in her body had reached the snapping point and suddenly had given way. For a moment her hands were weak and powerless; her head fell forward. In an instant she conquered—but only partially—the strange feeling of lassitude. Then she realized how tired she was, how fiercely the strain had told on her body and brain, how much she had really suffered.

Her blurred eyes turned once more for a look at the girl, who sat there, just as she had been sitting for miles, her white face standing out with almost unnatural clearness, and as rigid as that of a sphinx.

The girl spoke. "Do they hang women in this country?"

Mrs. Wrandall started. "In some of the states," she replied, and was unable to account for the swift impulse to evade.

"But in this state?" persisted the other, almost without a movement of the lips.

"They send them to the electric chair—sometimes," said Mrs. Wrandall.

There was a long silence between them, broken finally by the girl.

"You have been very kind to me, madam. I have no means of expressing my gratitude. I can only say that I shall bless you to my dying hour. May I trouble you to set me down at the bridge? I remember crossing one. I shall be able to—"

"No!" cried Mrs. Wrandall shrilly, divining the other's intention at once. "You shall not do that. I, too, thought of that as a way out of it for you, but—no, it must not be that. Give me a few minutes to think. I will find a way."

The girl turned toward her. Her eyes were burning.

"Do you mean that you will help me to get away?" she cried, slowly, incredulously.

"Let me think!"

"You will lay yourself liable—"

"Let me think, I say."

"But I mean to surrender myself to—"

"An hour ago you meant to do it, but what were you thinking of ten minutes ago? Not surrender. You were thinking of the bridge. Listen to me now: I am sure that I can save you. I do not know all the—all the circumstances connected with your association with—with that man back there at the inn. Twenty-four hours passed before they were able to identify him. It is not unlikely that tomorrow may put them in possession of the name of the woman who went with him to that place. They do not know it tonight, of that I am positive. You covered your trail too well. But you must have been seen with him during the day or the night—"

The other broke in eagerly: "I don't believe any one knows that I—that I went out there with him. He arranged it very—carefully. Oh, what a beast he was!" The bitterness of that wail caused the woman beside her to cry out as if hurt by a sharp, almost unbearable pain. For an instant she seemed about to lose control of herself. The car swerved and came dangerously near leaving the road.

A full minute passed before she could trust herself to speak. Then it was with a deep hoarseness in her voice.

"You can tell me about it later on, not now. I don't want to hear it. Tell me, where do you live?"

The girl's manner changed so absolutely that there could be but one inference; she was acutely suspicious.

She Sank to the Floor in a Heap.

Her lips tightened and her figure seemed to stiffen in the seat.

"Where do you live?" repeated the other sharply.

"Why should I tell you that? I do not know you. You—"

"You are afraid of me?"

"Oh, I don't know what to say, or what to do," came from the lips of the hunted one. "I have no friends, no one to turn to, no one to help me. You—you can't be so heartless as to lead me on and then give me up to—God help me, I—I should not be made to suffer for what I have done. If you only knew the circumstances. If you only knew—"

"Stop!" cried the other, in agony.

The girl was bewildered. "You are so strange. I don't understand—"

"We have but two or three miles to go," interrupted Mrs. Wrandall. "We must think hard and—rapidly. Are you willing to come with me to my hotel? You will be safe there for the present. Tomorrow we can plan something for the future."

"If I can only find a place to rest for a little while," began the other.

"I shall be busy all day, you will not be disturbed. But leave the rest to me. I shall find a way."

It was nearly three o'clock when she brought the car to a stop in front of a small, exclusive hotel not far from Central park. The street was dark and the vestibule was but dimly lighted. No attendant was in sight.

"Slip into this," commanded Mrs. Wrandall, beginning to divest herself of her own fur coat. "It will cover your muddy garments. I am quite warmly dressed. Don't worry. Be quick. For the time being you are my guest here. You will not be questioned. No one need know who you are. It will not matter if you look distressed. You have just heard of the dreadful thing that has happened to me. You—"

"Happened to you?" cried the girl, drawing the coat about her.

"A member of my family has died. They know it in the hotel by this time. I was called to the death bed—tonight. That is all you will have to know."

"Oh, I am sorry—"

"Come, let us go in. When we reach my rooms, you may order food and drink. You must do it, not I. Please try to remember that it is I who am suffering, not you."

A sleepy night watchman took them up in the elevator. He was not even interested. Mrs. Wrandall did not speak, but leaned rather heavily on the arm of her companion. The door had no sooner closed behind them when the girl collapsed. She sank to the floor in a heap.

"Get up!" commanded her hostess sharply. This was not the time for soft, persuasive words. "Get up at once. You are young and strong. You must show the stuff you are made of now if you ever mean to show it. I cannot help you if you quail."

The girl looked up piteously, and then struggled to her feet. She stood before her protectress, weaving like a frail reed in the wind, pallid to the lips.

"I beg your pardon," she murmured. "I will not give way like that again. I dare say I am faint. I have had no food, no rest—but never mind that now. Tell me what I am to do. I will try to obey."

"First of all, get out of those muddy, frozen things you have on."

Mrs. Wrandall herself moved stiffly and with unsteady limbs as she began to remove her own outer garments. The girl mechanically followed her example. She was a pitiable object in the strong light of the electrolier. Muddy from head to foot, water-stained and bedraggled, her face streaked with dirt, she was the most unattractive creature one could well imagine.

These women, so strangely thrown together by Fate, maintained an unbroken silence during the long, fumbling process of partial disrobing. They scarcely looked at one another, and yet they were acutely conscious of the interest each felt in the other. The grateful warmth of the room, the abrupt transition from gloom and cheerlessness to comfortable obscurity, had a more pronounced effect on the stranger than on her hostess.

"It is good to feel warm once more," she said, an odd timidness in her manner. "You are very good to me."

They were sitting in Mrs. Wrandall's bedchamber, just off the little sitting-room. Three or four trunks stood against the walls.

"I dismissed my maid on landing. She robbed me," said Mrs. Wrandall, voicing the relief that was uppermost in her mind. She opened a closet door and took out a thick eider-down robe, which she tossed across a chair. "Now call up the office and say that you are speaking for me. Say to them that I must have something to eat, no matter what the hour may be. I will get out some clean underwear for you, and— Oh, yes; if they ask about me, say that I am cold and ill. That is sufficient. Here is the bath. Please be as quick about it as possible."

Moving as if in a dream, the girl did as she was told. Twenty minutes later there was a knock at the door. A waiter appeared with a tray and service table. He found Mrs. Wrandall lying back in a chair, attended by a slender young woman in a pink eider-down dressing-gown, who gave hesitating directions to him. Then he was dismissed with a handsome tip, produced by the same young woman.

"You are not to return for these things," she said as he went out.

In silence she ate and drank, her hostess looking on with gloomy interest. It was no shock to Mrs. Wrandall to find that the girl, who was no more than twenty-two or three, possessed unusual beauty. Her great eyes were blue—the lovely Irish blue—her skin was fair and smooth, her features regular and of the delicate mold that defines the well-bred gentlewoman at a glance. Her hair, now in order, was dark and thick and lay softly about her small ears and neck. She was not surprised, I repeat, for she had never known Challis Wrandall to show interest in any but the most attractive of her sex. She found herself smiling bitterly as she looked.

But who may know the thoughts of the other occupant of that little sitting-room? Who can put herself in the place of that despairing, hunted creature who knew that blood was on the hands with which she ate, and whose eyes were filled with visions of the death-chair?

So great was her fatigue that long before she finished the meal her tired lids began to droop, her head to nod in spasmodic surrenders to an overpowering desire for sleep. Suddenly she dropped the fork from her fingers and sank back in the comfortable chair, her head resting against the soft, upholstered back. Her lids fell, her hands dropped to the arms of the chair. A fine line appeared between her dark eyebrows—indicative of pain.

For many minutes Sara Wrandall watched the haggardness deepen in the face of the unconscious sleeper. Then, even as she wondered at the act, she went over and took up one of the slim hands in her own. The hand of an aristocrat! It lay limp in hers, and helpless. Long, tapering fingers and delicately pink with the return of warmth.

Rousing herself from the mute contemplation of her charge, she shook the girl's shoulder. Instantly she was awake and staring, alarm in her dazed, bewildered eyes.

"You must go to bed," said Mrs. Wrandall quietly. "Don't be afraid. No one will think of coming here."

The girl rose. As she stood before her benefactress, she heard her murmur as if from afar-off: "Just about your size and figure," and wondered not a little.

"You may sleep late. I have many things to do and you will not be disturbed. Come, take off your clothes and get into my bed. Tomorrow we will plan further—"

"But, madam," cried the girl, "I cannot take your bed. Where are you to—"

"If I feel like lying down, I shall lie there beside you."

The girl stared. "Lie beside me?"

"Yes. Oh, I am not afraid of you, child. You are not a monster. You are just a poor, tired—"

"Oh, please don't! Please!" cried the other, tears rushing to her eyes. She raised Mrs. Wrandall's hand to her lips and covered it with kisses.

Long after she went to sleep, Sara Wrandall stood beside the bed, looking down at the pain-stricken face, and tried to solve the problem that suddenly had become a part of her very existence.

"It is not friendship," she argued, fiercely. "It is not charity, it is not humanity. It's the debt I owe, that's all. She did the thing for me that I could not have done myself because I loved him. I owe her something for that."

Later on she turned her attention to the trunks. Her decision was made. With ruthless hands she dragged gown after gown from the "innovations" and cast them over chairs, on the floor, across the foot of the bed; smart things from Paris and Vienna; ball gowns, tea gowns, lingerie, blouses, hats, gloves and all of the countless things that a woman of fashion and goes abroad for that purpose and no means indulges herself in when she other to speak of. From the closets she drew forth New York "tailor-suits" and other garments.

Until long after six o'clock she busied herself over this huge pile of costly raiment, portions of which she had worn but once or twice, some not at all, selecting certain dresses, hats, stockings, etc., each of which she laid carelessly aside; an imposing pile of many hues, all bright and gay and glittering. In another heap she laid the somber things of black; a meager assortment as compared to the other.

Then she stood back and surveyed the two heaps with tired eyes, a curious, almost scornful smile on her lips. "There!" she said with a sigh. "The black pile is mine, the gay pile is yours," she went on, turning toward the sleeping girl. "What a travesty!"

Then she gathered up the soiled garments her charge had worn and cast them into the bottom of a trunk, which she locked. Laying out a carefully selected assortment of her own garments for the girl's use when she arose, Mrs. Wrandall sat down beside the bed and waited, knowing that sleep would not come to her.

CHAPTER III.

Hetty Castleton.

At half past six she went to the telephone and called for the morning newspapers. At the same time she asked that a couple of district messenger boys be sent to her room with the least possible delay. The hushed, scared voice of the telephone girl downstairs convinced her that news of the tragedy was abroad; she could imagine the girl looking at the headlines with awed eyes even as she responded to the call from room 416, and her shudder as she realized that it was the wife of the dead man speaking.

One of the night clerks, pale and agitated, came up with the papers. Without as much as a glance at the headlines, she tossed the papers on the table. "I have sent for two messenger boys. It is too early to accomplish much by telephone, I fear. Will you be so kind as to telephone at seven o'clock or a little after to my apartment?—You will find the number under Mr. Wrandall's name. Please inform the butler or his wife that they may expect me by ten o'clock, and that I shall bring a friend with me—a young lady. Kindly have my motor sent to Haffner's garage, and looked after. When the reporters come, as they will, please say to them that I will see them at my own home at eleven o'clock."

The clerk, considerably relieved, took his departure in some haste, and she was left with the morning papers, each of which she scanned rapidly. The details, of course, were meager. There was a double-leaded account of her visit to the inn and her extraordinary return to the city. Her chief interest, however, did not rest in these particulars, but in the speculations of the authorities as to the identity of the mysterious woman—and her whereabouts. There was the likelihood that she was not the only one who had encountered the girl on the highway or in the neighborhood of the inn. So far as she could glean from the reports, however, no one had seen the girl, nor was there the slightest hint offered as to her identity. The papers of the previous afternoon had published lurid accounts of the murder, with all of the known details, the name of the victim at that time still being a mystery. She remembered reading the story with no little interest. The only new feature in the case, therefore, was the identification of Challis Wrandall by his "beautiful wife," and the sensational manner in which it had been brought about. With considerable interest she noted the hour that these dispatches had been received from "special correspondents," and wondered where the shrewd, lynx-eyed reporters napped while she was at the inn. All of the dispatches were timed three o'clock and each paper characterized its issue as an "Extra," with Challis Wrandall's name in huge type across as many columns as the dignity of the sheet permitted.

Not a word of the girl! Absolute mystery!

Mrs. Wrandall returned to her post beside the bed of the sleeper in the adjoining room. Deliberately she placed the newspaper on a chair near the girl's pillow, and then raised the window shades to let in the hard gray light of early morn.

It was not her present intention to arouse the wan stranger, who slept as one dead. So gentle was her breathing that the watcher stared in some fear at the fair, smooth breast that seemed scarcely to rise and fall. For a long time she stood beside the bed, looking down at the face of the sleeper, a troubled expression in her eyes.

"I wonder how many times you were seen with him, and where, and by whom," were the questions that ran in a single strain through her mind. "Where do you come from? Where did you meet him? Who is there that knows of your acquaintance with him?"

Her lawyer came in great haste and perturbation at eight o'clock, in response to the letter delivered by one of the messengers. A second letter had gone by like means to her husband's brother, Leslie Wrandall, instructing him to break the news to his father and mother and to come to her apartment after he had attended to the removal of the body to the family home near Washington square. She made it quite plain that she did not want Challis Wrandall's body to lie under the roof that sheltered her.

His family had resented their marriage. Father, mother and sister had objected to her from the beginning, not because she was unworthy, but because her tradespeople ancestry was not so remote as his. She found a curious sense of pleasure in returning to them the thing they prized so highly and surrendered to her with such bitterness of heart. She had not been good enough for him; that was their attitude. Now she was returning him to them, as one would return an article that had been tested and found to be worthless. She would have no more of him!

Carroll, her lawyer, an elderly man of vast experience, was not surprised to find her quite calm and reasonable. He had come to know her very well in the past few years. He had been her father's lawyer up to the time of that excellent tradesman's demise, and he had settled the estate with such unusual dispatch that the heirs—there were many of them—regarded him as an admirable person and—kept him busy ever afterward straigtening out their own affairs. Which goes to prove that policy is often better than honesty.

"I quite understand, my dear, that while it is a dreadful shock to you, you are perfectly reconciled to the—er—to the—well, I might say the culmination of his troubles," said Mr. Carroll tactfully, after she had related for his benefit the story of the night's adventure, with reservation concerning the girl who slumbered in the room beyond.

"Hardly that, Mr. Carroll. Resigned, perhaps. I can't say that I am reconciled. All my life I shall feel that I have been cheated," she said.

He looked up sharply. Something in her tone puzzled him. "Cheated, my dear? Oh, I see. Cheated out of years and years of happiness. I see."

She bowed her head. Neither spoke for a full minute.

"It's a horrible thing to say, Sara, but this tragedy does away with another and perhaps more unpleasant alternative; the divorce I have been urging you to consider for so long."

"Yes, we are spared all that," she said. Then she met his gaze with a sudden flash of anger in her eyes. "But I would not have divorced him—never. You understood that, didn't you?"

"You couldn't have gone on for ever, my dear child, enduring the—"

She stopped him with a sharp exclamation. "Why discuss it now? Let the past take care of itself, Mr. Carroll. The past came to an end night before last, so far as I am concerned. I want advice for the future, not for the past."

He drew back, hurt by her manner. She was quick to see that she had offended him.

"I beg your pardon, my best of friends," she cried earnestly.

He smiled. "If you will take present advice, Sara, you will let go of yourself for a spell and see if tears won't relieve the tension under—"

"Tears!" she cried. "Why should I give way to tears? What have I to weep for? That man up there in the country? The cold, dead thing that spent its last living moments without a thought of love for me? Ah, no, my friend; I shed all my tears while he was alive. There are none left to be shed for him now. He exacted his full share of them. It was his pleasure to wring them from me because he knew I loved him. She leaned forward and spoke slowly, distinctly, so that he would never forget the words. "But listen to me, Mr. Carroll. You also know that I loved him. Can you believe me when I say to you that I hate that dead thing up there in Burton's inn as no one ever hated before? Can you understand what I mean? I hate that dead body, Mr. Carroll. I loved the life that was in it. It was the life of him that I loved, the warm, appealing life of him. It has gone out. Some one less amiable than I suffered at his hands and—well, that is enough. I hate the dead body she left behind her, Mr. Carroll."

The lawyer wiped the cool moisture from his brow.

"I think I understand," he said, but he was filled with wonder. "Extraordinary! Ahem! I should say—Ahem! Dear me! Yes, yes—I've never really thought of it in that light."

"I dare say you haven't," she said, lying back in the chair as if suddenly exhausted.

"By the way, my dear, have you breakfasted?"

"No. I hadn't given it a thought. Perhaps it would be better if I had some coffee—"

"I will ring for a waiter," he said, springing to his feet.

"Not now, please. I have a young friend in the other room—a guest who arrived last night. She will attend to it when she awakes. Poor thing, it has been dreadfully trying for her."

"Good heaven, I should think so," said he, with a glance at the closed door. "Is she asleep?"

"Yes. I shall not call her until you have gone."

"May I inquire—"

"A girl I met recently—an English girl," said she succinctly, and forthwith changed the subject. "There are a few necessary details that must be attended to, Mr. Carroll. That is why I sent for you at this early hour. Mr. Leslie Wrandall will take charge—Ah!" she straightened up suddenly. "What a farce it is going to be!"

Nature's Wise Process.

In the case of all fish which take care of their young, a curious adaptation of natural law to circumstances is found. Those which take the greatest pains and care in sheltering their offspring have the fewest eggs, perhaps less than 100 at a lay, while, on the other hand, species of fish which pay not the slightest attention to their young produce hundreds of thousands, and even millions of eggs, at a single lay.

Miss Helen G. Harlan, Chilton County's Red Cross Visiting Nurse, spoke at Union Grove on Tuesday night, April 21, to a good aubience, and Thursday night, April 23 at Benson Cross Roads to a large audience. Her subject was Sanitation for Country Residence. She visited the school at Maplesville on Friday and examined several of the pupils, and after making a talk to the school, drove back to Clanton where she spoke at the Chilton County Civic League, on Saturday, April 25, on Sanitation.

For the past four years this county has been partly under democratic administration. Can any one point to a single thing that is better now than under the former administration? Is our county treasury in as good shape? Are our taxes any lower? We would be glad to have this issue discussed by correspondence from various people in the county. The columns of this paper will be open to all people for the discussion of these matters.

A meeting was held at Clanton by those interested in the State Highway and was presided over by State Highway Engineer, W. S. Keller.

Assistant engineer, Mr. Converse, D. H. Marbury, of Marbury, Ala., Mr. Gamble of Wetumpka and quite a number of local men were in attendance.

Arrangements were begun for holding a barbecue in the interest of said road at Clanton during the latter part of May or during June at which time all parties interested in said road will be invted to attend.

Dr. E. A. Matthews was made Chairman of the local arrangement comittee for the barbecue.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling,—could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit. 2

Representatives from different beats were Present. Routine business occupied the attention of the assembly all the forenoon. In the afternoon interesting and instructive addresses were made by Miss Hellen G. Harlan, County Red Cross visiting Nurse, J. S. Moran, Miss Elizabeth Hoops, and others. Deep interest was manifested from start to finish.

The followihg committees were appointed for the different branches of work:—On Constitution and By-Laws, J. S. Moran, Miss Helen G. Harlan, W. T. Bean and Mrs. W. T. Callen. On Information, E. B. Deason, Mrs. J. M. Horn, W. T. Bean, Mrs. W. H. Conway and Mrs. W. T. Callen.

It was resolved that the officers be designated as follows:—County President, Beat Managers, District Superintendents, Secretary and Treasurer. As soon as possible the committees will draft and have printed pamplets on Constitution, By-Laws, and suggestive improvements, which will be mailed to the respective Beat Managers.

Following are the suggestions for work for town and county associations:—Hygiene and sanitation for the incorporated towns: (a) Better water supply and sewerage system. Town councis should be urged to act in preventing disease. (b) Better toilet facilities and cleanliness in public buildings, railroad stations etc. (c) Better methods of destroying or removing garbage—using covered barrels for same until it is removed. (d) "Cleaning up days appointed for removing all trash from the streets and yards. (e) Urge the merchants to screen their meat and fruits from flies. (f) Screen our houses.

Hygiene and sanitation for country districts: (a) Better wells, walled up and covered so that surface water cannot enter. Pumps installed where it is possible. (b) Sanitary privys at our schools, churches and homes. This is beneficent in preventing soil pollution from typhoid fever, hookworms, tuburculosis etc. Pamplets describing simple, inexpensive buildings as recommended by the State Board of health may be obtained from Dr. V. Photo Drama of Creation.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Mockridge of New York City are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Villndsden and Mrs. Christensen and her two sons at Thorsby. Mr. Mockridge is in the South on a business trip in connection with the opening of the "Photo Drama of Creation" in the larger cities. The Creation Drama consists of over two miles of moving picture film and over five hundred hand colored stereoptican slides; also photographic lectures explaining the views. In its entirety it takes eight hours to see all the pictures, which cover the Creation from Star Nebula to perfection, tracing the Bible account through the various ages and epochs to the present day and onward into the future, in the light of Bible prophecy. On account of its great length, the Drama is divided into four parts each two hours, and it is customary to show each part for an entire week, two exhibitions daily, at 3 and 8 p.m.

The entire work is philanthropy. No admission fee is charged and a collection is never taken up, the expense being borne by the International Bible Students Association, under whose auspices the pictures are showe. Mr. Mockridge says the principal object is to stem the tide of skepticism and to present the gospel story in the most interesting and attractive manner possible, stimulating Bible study. It is evident that the society has struck upon the right thing in this direction for last Sunday when the Drama opened in Memphis the largest Opera House, the Lyceum, was found far too small to accomodate the crowds who flocked there to both see and hear the account of Creation. The pictures will be shown in that city daily for one month.

A few weeks ago the pictures were opened in Chicago in the big Auditorium theatre seating four thousand. This building was also found inadequate to accomodate those who wished to see. Upon this occasion a reporter of the Record-Herald interviewed the president of the Bible Society, Pastor Russell, who opened the Drama with an address of welcome. The reporter inquired of Prstor Russell the cost of the production and number of years to assemble the pictures. The Pastor replied that upward of a hundred thousand dollars had been expended in money and three years' time. The Pathe and Gaumont film Companies were among those who staged the scenes. Many of the scenes were staged by these companies in the Holy Land and Egypt, in order that the backgrounds, trees and architecture might be correct. Pastor Russell also gathered much valuable data in his recent tour of the world, in connection with the investigation of Foreign Missions.

Part 1 traces Creation from Star Nebula to the Deluge and its causes on to Abraham's time.

Part 2 begins with Melchisedec leading on to the Babylonian captivity.

Part 3 extends from Daniel's time to Jesus's advent, his sufferings and exhaltation.

Part 4 takes the audience from Pentecost through the Dark Ages and onward through the Millenium.

That history, science and the Biblical teachings could and have been harmonized is said to be the greatest achievement of the whole of the films.

The Association aims to teach four principles to its members, as follows:

First, Recognition of Jehovah as Creator and Sustainea of the universe.

Second, Faith in His only begotten Son, our Lord, Jesus Christ, as the Redeemer of the world, through His sacrificial death.

Third, Faith in the Bible as the inspired Word of God, relative to His Great Plan of Redemption.

Fourth, A clean and honorable life.

The promoters of Creation are already exhibiting the Drama in New York Boston, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Cleveland, Toledo, Indianapolis, Chattanooga, Nashville, Knoxville, Memphis, Atlanta, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Tacoma, Houston, and it is expected that shortly several outfits will be sent to Europe.

It is interesting to know that Mr. Mockridge has received detinite word from the Society that Birmingham will be favored with the pictures for thirty days, beginning May 17ts, the Bijou Theatre having been secured, which will be thrown open absolutely free to the public through out the entire stay. We have learned that various parties throughout this section of the country are planning to take in the "Bible Movies," at Birmingham. Mr. Mockridge is leaving to make arrangement for the pictures in New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Mockridge have been connected with the International Bible Students Association for several years. Mrs. Mockridge assists her husband at the Bible Society's headquarters in New York.

Two years ago Mr. Mockridge visited Thorsby and gave a lecture, his subject being "The Divine Plan of the Ages." Mrs. Mockridge did not accompany her husband on this trip and has not been in Alabama since her school days, and is glad to see many of her old friends and note the progress and developement of the counfry.

Mrs. W. P. Mockridge's maiden name was Christine Skov and she is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Villadsen.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me a few words through the colums of your paper. I want to thank the ones who supported me in the primary; while I was defeated, but I feel like it was a good man that beat me, and I will assure you that I will be with you in November, and do all I can to elect our ticket.

I want to say that it was reported that I was under a heavy mortgage, but not as heavy as reported. But if a few of the ones that were carrying the report would pay me, my financial conditions would be better. Surmounting Obstacles

If there were no imperfections there would be no striving for perfection; if there were no obstacles there would be no effort to surmount them. Consequently we are confronted with the paradox that within our weakness lies our strength.

Honest men, striving for the truth, have honest differences, due to heredity, education and environment. An obstacle is encountered in the form of a difference of opinion; an imperfection is discovered in the chain of thought.

Slow action, calm thought, quiet work are necessary to a satisfactory solution of the problem involved. Both sides may be more or less wrong. Each may have to haul in here, give out there, that a common basis of operation be arrived at. Such a course is imperative in order that the thing we are striving to accomplish will not be destroyed in the process.

The railroad situation has reached an acute stage. Some men, honest men, are seeking to arrive at a fair, constructive solution of the problem. Through their efforts will come advancement, development.

Other men, some prejudiced and some selfish self-seekers, are imposing serious hardships. Their activity may for the time being retard the ultimate solution, but in the end they and their prejudices and their selfishness will be swept away before the march of clear-eyed civilization.

It is a conceded fact that the railroads are the arteries of the country's commercial being. Impose hardening of the arteries on the L. & N. and commercial paralysis grips the territory through which it opeates.

Make it impossible for the L. & N. to help itself, and you make it impossible for the L. & N. to supply the life-giving circulation to the withering enterprises dependent upon it for their very existence.

Consider the unexcelled freight and passenger service offered by the L. & N. at rates never dreamed of a generation ago; consider the fact that the L. & N. is your fellow citizen, working in co-operation with you, that both you and the L. & N. may enjoy the fruits of commercial victory waiting to be won in the undeveloped fields of rich natural resources.

The most advanced thinkers, men of ultra-progressive policies, are united in urging on men in power the necessity for treating, not only the L. & N., but all railroads, with due consideration that the business of the country not be retarded, but pushed forward to continuous profitable development.

We offer these thoughts for the serious consideration of thinking men. They are in the interest of the general public as much as in the interest not alone of the L. & N., but all railroads.

I just left my case with the geople, and I feel like the few I had was made up of as good stuff as the county affords.

I want to say that I am satisfied. Some things that have been said on me are as big a falshood as ever was told on a man in the world, but thank God I am just what I am. There is one thing I can say, which I am satisfied there is not another man that ever run can say, I only asked one man to vote for me and he told me he had promised Mr. Fallon to vote for him; that is the reason I can safely say that what few did vote for me are built up of good stuff. I will support the nominee. I have stuck to my opponent all the way through. I received a letter just before the primary asking my support and influence, and I shall support the nominee all the way through.

I will close by thanking the people for voting the way they please, hoping the party success I remain, as ever,

The BACKYARD FARMER

By PROF. J. WILLARD BOLTE
(Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.)

A BACKYARD BERRY PATCH.

Every backyard farm should raise some blackberries and raspberries. They will grow almost everywhere, cost little or nothing to set out, and after they are once planted they will continue to grow and bear luscious fruit for a long period of years with practically no attention. The only work involved is a few minutes spent in pruning and spraying each year. Why not plant some in your garden this year?

April is the best month to set out berry bushes and they may be planted even earlier if the ground thaws and dries sufficiently to work it. The plants may be secured from a nurseryman at small expense, or you can cut short canes from some established bed and plant them. Be sure in this case that the canes are last year's wood, strong and healthy and have two buds at least on the portion of the stalk that goes into the ground. These leaf buds will send out roots when buried and a new plant will be the result. By planting these cuttings in moist sand in a warm place they will develop a root system much earlier and can then be transplanted to the permanent bed. Another good way to get cuttings from an old bush is to bend over some of the canes and bury the tips in the ground. Roots will develop at the tip and it can then be cut off and transplanted.

These cuttings should be planted in rows eight feet apart, with the cuttings three feet apart in the row. Raspberries require only half the distance needed by blackberries, as the latter spread very rapidly.

The soil for raspberries should be richer than for blackberries and they do not require quite as much water for best results. A very dry soil is bad for either, however, as dry weather will produce dry pithy berries.

Hoe the soil about the canes well the first year and after the leaves have dropped, prune back the stalks one-half, to force the plant to produce lateral branches and fruit. After the second season this should be done every winter

These small fruits bear heavily every year and are exceedingly hardy. The canes do not need to be tied up if properly pruned, but if the climate is very cold they should be bent over and covered with earth and straw during the winter.

If your bushes are infected with parasites, either bacterial or insect, spray them with Bordeaux mixture containing arsenate of lead. Good varieties of blackberries are the Eldorado and Snyder, while the Cuthbert red raspberry and the Gregg blackberry are very widely grown.

HOME GROWN ASPARAGUS.

One of the nicest things about being a backyard farmer is the fact that you can have all of the asparagus that you want to eat if you just take the trouble to once plant it. You will never have to plant it again and the bed will keep right on producing almost as long as the house will last. If you like asparagus at all you like it mighty will, as it is one of those vegetables of a very decided character which are either extremely popular or equally unpopular.

Few people realize that asparagus not only has a sort of medicinal value but that it actually contains as much muscle forming food as does a similar weight of meat. It has a very high protein content and should be much more generally grown than it is.

If you have a sunny patch of ground, twelve feet long by about six feet wide or more, you can plant it to asparagus at a very little expense, and next year and each succeeding year you will have all the asparagus that your family can eat. The plants will begin to come through the ground early in the spring and will remain in edible condition under proper handling, until well into hot weather. Of course you could cut a few stalks the first year but your results will be very much better in the end if you do not attempt to use any of the crop until the following year.

Asparagus must have a comparatively light, fertile, well drained soil. Heavy clay will not grow satisfactory asparagus and if your garden is heavy and cold you will get much better results by excavating a bed or trench to a depth of 18 inches or 2 feet and filling in the hole with mellow sandy loam before planting.

It is better to plant asparagus on soil that has been used for a garden for several years than to put it in newly broken soil. Spade the ground as deeply as possible, the deeper the better, as the roots run deep and do not do well in a very compact soil. Then fine the soil with hoe and rake until it is in a fine mellow condition, although not necessarily as fine as for seed. This should be done about the first of May in most climates, although it may be done much earlier in the south.

The plants cost between one and three cents each, depending upon the size and variety. They should be secured from some local seedsman, or from an old asparagus bed and set in rows or hills with the crown of the plant about 8 inches from the surface of the soil. Have the rows a foot apart and the plants six inches apart in the rows. The tips of the new plants should just about reach the surface and the ground should be covered with several inches of stable manure.

Keep the patch free from weeds during the first season. The second spring you can begin to cut the tender green and white stalks as soon as they begin to push through the ground. Use a regular asparagus knife as it brings the stalks to the surface and prevents injury to the roots. Cut every tip that shows, as they get tough as soon as the light strikes them, and if you let any of them go to seed that plant will cease sending out new shoots for that season. Cut the shoots early in the morning before the sun wilts them.

After the season is over and the hot weather has come the bed should be permitted to go to seed, and it should be kept free from weeds at all times. After the plants have ripened they should be cut down and burned, the ashes being thrown back on the bed for fertility.

I do not know of any garden crop that will return a bigger profit for the money and time invested than will asparagus, and it certainly will be worth your while to plant a bed of it this year.

APPLES.

How a rare thing it is to see the householder in city or suburb planting apple trees in his yard. Many of the older places have apple trees upon them, but few new ones are being set out. Why this valuable and beautiful tree is not widely used upon small places is hard to determine.

Apples will grow upon any soil and in almost any climate in this country. The trees are inexpensive, easy to plant and easy to care for. If taken in hand early and pruned in a proper manner they can be formed up in almost any desired shape and will add materially to the artistic features of any home. The trees grow rapidly and will begin to blossom and bear fruit in from two to six years after setting out, this time depending upon the age and variety of the tree and the climate in which they are grown.

They are unsurpassed for shade, and nothing is more attractive than an apple tree covered with its wonderfully sweet pink and white blossoms of the spring, particularly if it be your own apple tree. No tree will furnish more shade in a shorter length of time, and because of their low habit of growth they do not obstruct the view from the upper part of the house, nor keep the shingles damp.

Entirely aside from the landscape value of apple trees, their fruit is a very important item, and good home-grown apples need no recommendation. A striped Astrakan, or a Snow apple, picked fresh from the tree and eaten "alive" can't be surpassed. The horticulturists have demonstrated that one can have a good crop of apples every year with the right kind of management. The secret of the plan is to keep the trees well fed and sprayed, and then thin out the fruit as soon as its sets, so that there is only one apple to a single twig. You may not get so many apples this way, but they will be bigger and much better, and you will have them every year.

Potash is the stuff that makes the apple blush. Your soil contains tons of it, but only a little is digestible, hence it will pay to work a little sulphate of potash into the soil around each tree every year.

Don't neglect to spray your apple trees, or any other trees or bush fruits for that matter. Get your spray material from your local seedsman, and spray it on with a bucket sprayer. Use lime, salt and sulphur before the leaves are out, to kill scale insects, etc., and spray with Bordeaux mixture when the petals begin to fall, and ten days later, to dispose of apple worms. The reason your neighbors have poor luck with apples is because they do not prune and spray.

In planting new apple trees, buy trees that are two or three years old, and plant them early in the spring, the earlier the better.

Summer varieties are usually better than winter kinds because they give you early fruit, and that is what the backyard apple tree is for. If you have some old trees that are not bearing well, clean them up, cut back the tops, prune out the useless wood, and spray.

The Soaker.

Secretary Bryan, at a recent banquet, nearly drank a glass of champagne in mistake for his favorite pineapple juice.

To a young lady who ventured to quiz him on this contretemps the other day, Mr. Bryan said:

"I felt frightfully guilty and depraved as I put down the champagne which I had so nearly drunk. I felt quite like old Soaker.

"Old Soaker, you know, went one day to buy a penknife. The dealer offered him a knife with four blades and a corkscrew, but he refused it, saying:

"'No—hic—no. Gimme knife with—hic—four corkscrews and a blade.'"

Was Not an Agriculturist.

There is a well-known scientist in London who has a Scandinavian valet. The man came to his master recently in a great state of distress, bearing in his hands a country newspaper he had found.

"Is it still slavery in England?" he asked, in alarm.

The amazed master calmed his fears and inquired their cause.

The man pointed to an advertisement in the newspaper, and asked what it meant. The announcement was headed, "Great Auction Sale of Swedes."

GEN. RUCKER FOR GOVERNOR COMER

His Ringing Message to His Comrades and Fellow Citizens of Ala.

Gen. E. W. Rucker is one of the few surviving Generals of the Confederacy. He was the right hand of General Forrest in many of that great leader's notable campaigns.

To My Fellow Democrats and Fellow Citizens:

One of the boys who met Croxton's seasoned veterans when they came to burn our State University, was B. B. Comer, and my old Confederate heart has always warmed toward him, and grows warmer as the years grow.

I am for Comer for more reasons than one. He is my neighbor and friend. He is brave and he is honest, every inch a man, whose word is everywhere in Alabama as good as his bond, and he does his duty. He always has done his duty. He did it when he was Governor, and we know that with him at Montgomery Alabama's honor is safe and the public peace and order secure.

How about his opponent? I have no personal reason for criticizing Mr. Henderson. I would not utter a word to harm him or hurt his family or his friends. But if this were my last message to my countrymen in this world, I would warn them against electing a man Governor who surrendered a great cause, as did Mr. Henderson in the recent rate surrender, the humiliation of which Alabamians can never forget nor forgive. A man who gave up the ship with victory in sight is not the man for Chief Executive of a people who value their record for persistence in war and for steadfastness in peace.

EDW. W. RUCKER.

CAPT. FRANK S. WHITE FOR COMER

Captain Frank S. White, when asked how he stood in the race for Governor, said:

"Yes, I am for Mr. Comer, for the reason that Mr. Comer was out-spoken and earnest in his support of me in my late race for the Senate. I am for Mr. Comer because his views on political subjects, in the main, accord with mine. We possess, in common, the view that our business men and farmers will be more prosperous and that a better citizenship will be developed by the people controlling the affairs of the State themselves, rather than surrendering them to selfish interests outside of the State. He has shown his friendship for the masses by obtaining for the common schools, during his late administration, the largest amount ever appropriated for the same length of time. He also showed his friendship for Confederate veterans by securing for them during his administration, more money for pensions than had ever been obtained in any previous administration. Mr. Comer has shown his capacity for business affairs by the manner in which he has succeeded with his own."

OPEN LETTER TO CHAS. HENDERSON

You and your campaign committee are circulating the statement that I had the cotton mills exempted from taxation.

In various county papers under paid advertisement by your managers, is the statement that I had special legislation enacted to provide a rate of 50 cents a ton on coal to my mill at Sylacauga.

Both these statements are false and you know it.

H. S. D. MALLORY FOR COMER

Selma, Ala., April 14, 1914.

Hon. B. B. Comer,
Birmingham, Ala.

Appreciate invitation to be present Wednesday night. Regret I cannot. You have my earnest support for the nomination. I have that confidence in the Democratic voters that causes me to believe you will win. I believe the people are determined to banish from Alabama politics those allied interests whose political influence is a menace to the welfare of our commonwealth.
(Adv.) H. S. D. MALLORY.

Ancient Cult of the Flycatcher.

Beelzebub was the fly god of Ekron (referred to in II Kings 1:2, 3, 4 and 10). The great god Baal was sometimes worshiped as the "lord of the fly," as he who drives off the flies. The flies were then and are now man's worst enemies in Palestine and Egypt. We remember well how we had to be continually fighting them off with fans when we were traveling in those lands. The flies settled on the eyes of the children and literally sucked out their eyesight.—Christian Herald.

ALABAMA'S HOPE FOR PROSPERITY CHARLES HENDERSON FOR GOVERNOR

Reasons Given That Can But Appeal to the Patriotism and Sound Judgement of the Voters of Alabama in the Gubernatorial Contest.

TEN REASONS WHY HENDERSON SHOULD BE NOMINATED.

1st. Because he will administer the affairs of state patriotically, safely and economically.

2nd. Because he will veto any and all appropriations that tend to create a deficit or to raise the taxes of the people.

3rd. Because he is wisely progressive and will build up the state, foster her institutions and develop her material resources.

4th. Because he is self poised and in private enterprises has proven a success and has demonstrated his business ability.

5. Because he favors increased appropriations for the Confederate veteran.

6th. Because he advocates increased appropriations for the rural schools of Alabama.

7th. Because he will curtail the running expenses of the State by a retrenchment that will not lessen the efficiency of the public service.

8th. Because he will enforce ALL the laws and will bring criminals promptly to justice, thereby making life and property safe.

9th. Because he will demand that a law be passed placing ALL officials under bond and requiring daily settlements with the State Auditor.

10th. Because he will inaugurate an era of unexampled harmony, putting an end to agitation and secure for all the people that splendid progress and prosperity that all loyal Alabamians deserve.

TEN REASONS WHY COMER SHOULD NOT BE NOMINATED

1st. Because when he was inaugurated governor he found the State treasury full to overflowing and he left it bankrupt with fixed charges of $360,000 in excess of the income.

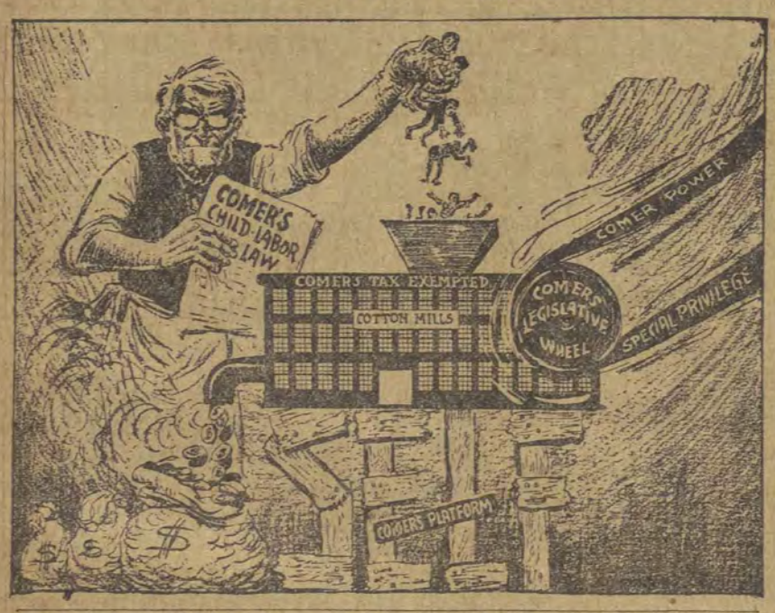
2nd. Because his election would mean four years of waste and extravagance and necessitate a further increase of the taxes of the people.

3rd. Because he is the unrelenting foe of labor.

4th. Because he offers no constructive program and appeals not to reason but to passion and prejudice.

5th. Because his candidacy is supported by favor seeking corporations of which he is the servile tool.

6th. Because he exempted from taxation certain corporate interests, thereby increasing the taxes of the less fortunate and less favored of our citizens.



7th. Because he approved a bill making it possible for the State treasury to be looted.

8th. Because for his personal benefit he sought to vest common carriers with the right to discrimnate in their rates.

9th. Because his temperament is such that he would be controlled by hatred and would not be governor of all the people, but of his own favored faction, ignoring Democrats of lifetime service and even shutting the door of courtesy in the faces of party adherents whose loyalty and zeal has made possible continuing Democratic victory.

10th. Because turmoil, agitation and strife would prevail, paralyzing development, checking investment of foreign capital in the State, stopping railroad construction and putting an end to business activity, thus causing Alabama to go backward instead of forward and business depression to supplant prosperity.

ALABAMA'S SERIOUS MENACE BRAXTON BRAGG COMER

Titta Ruffo's Important Views.

A piece of baked macaroni trying to stand upright. That is the defition of the modern American woman given to a Denver newspaper reporter by Titta Ruffo of the Chicago Grand Opera company.

"It ees like a piece of cooked macaroni making effort to stand upright," he said with an air of disgust. "In Eet-aly the women are beeg. Only beeg women are beautiful.

"The American woman is very chic and it is good for her to be a suffragette. It is nice for woman to rule man in America. In Eet-aly it is not so nice."

SHE OFTEN PRAYED TO DIE

But Friend Comes to Rescue With Some Sound Advice, which was Followed with Gratifying Results.

Nettleton, Ark.—"My troubles date back five years," says Mrs. Mary Bentley, of this town. "I was first taken with awful pains in my right side, headache, and backache. The pain from my side seemed to move down my right limb, and settled in the right knee. Then it would move back, and once a month I would almost die with pain.

I was told I had tumor, and would have to undergo an operation at once. It just seemed I could not submit to it. I often prayed to die. It seemed that nothing would give me the desired relief, until finally, I was advised by a friend to try Cardui, and it is undoubtedly curing me. I have only used three and a half bottles, and it is a pleasure to tell of the beneficial results.

I shall ever spread the good tidings of what Cardui has done for me, and will do for other suffering ladies, if they will only try it."

Country Owes Much to Men Who Safeguard the Vast Commerce of the Nation.

A lightship must keep always in one particular spot. Anchored to the bottom of the sea, she has her steam always up, but she never sails unless relieved by another ship so that she may put into port for repairs. And such a boat is used because a warning must be given at a place where it is impossible to build a lighthouse, and where even the clamor of a gigantic bell buoy is not sufficient to warn the navigator. No matter how fiercely the storm beats or how desperate may be the boat's plight, she must stay at her moorings. The only movement she is allowed to make under the regulations is to sink when at last she can withstand the gale no longer. It would bring them deserved recognition if the government ever published a list of those who have lost their lives in the line of such perilous duty. For about $6,000,000 a year these men and their craft save from diaster the billions of dollars' worth of shipping and commerce that come to American shores. —The Popular Magazine.

Plea for the Hen.

I should like to see the hen on a plane, at least, with the turkey and the goose.

She is their superior in every way except of that size, and yet they have long held the place of honor on the Christmas and the Thanksgiving dinner table, and they have had reams and reams of poetry written about them.

But the hen, that most important of all feathered creatures, who writes poetry about her? Who even takes the trouble to know anything about her early history in America? Who owned the first hen; when and where did she land upon our shores?

Why not make amends for our long years of neglect by making her the center of the feast on the Fourth of July? Hereafter let it be our Thanksgiving turkey, our Christmas goose, and our Fourth of July hen.—Atlantic.

Blood Troubles Are Often Hard to Locate

Catarrh, for Example May Be the Cause of Very Serious Illness.

A Slight Trouble Often Brings Serious Blood Disorders.

A chronic cold means something wrong constitutionally. Pimples mean bad blood. Rheumatism means faulty elimination. These and a hundred other symptoms are easily recognized, but where is the trouble. Where is it located? What is wrong with the bodily machine?

If you will go into any first class store and get a bottle of S. S. S. you are on the way to getting rid of those conditions that cause sickness and disease. But don't let anyone work off that old trick of something "Just as good."

S. S. S. is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, comes through all the veins and arteries, enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectually cleanse the system and thus put an end to all pollution. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure, blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a steadily improved condition of the skin, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely the entire system was loaded with impurities.

You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood. For special advice on any blood disease write to The Swift Specific Co., 223 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Do not trifle with substitutes, imitations or any of the horde of "Just as good" Counterfeits of S. S. S.

The new model has more improvements, refinements and new uses than we can even enumerate here.

The "cushioned keyboard" with 'anchor keys" and the new automatic features mean less work for the hands, less strain on the eyes, less manuel and mental effort.

With all of these masterly mechanical improvements we have made the machine more beautiful and symmetrical. From every standpoint The OLIVER No. 7 attains superlative excellence.

Nothing you could wish for has been omitted. The new devices, refinements, improvements and conveniences found on the No. 7 represent an enormous outlay and vastly increase its value—the price has not been advanced one penny. C. REESE MULLINS ON HIGH SCHOOL

Writes Mr. John Patton, Jr. His Views on the Question.

Mr. John Patton, Jr.,
Jemison, Ala.

Dear John:—Please allow me to congratulate you on your inthusiasm to build the County High School, as I feel the same inthusiasm myself. Now for you to want this school built in your town is nothing more than natural, and I am sure all the good people of Jemison would like to see this school in their midst, as all good people stand for higher education. I want you and your people to know that I stand on this question where I have always stood, that is, if the High School Commissioners should locate this school in your town or in any other place in the county, I, for one am willing for such community to have the $4,000, appropriated by the county for this school, and I have my doubts as to any place in the county building this school without the help of the county. This is by no means a small undertaking, but one of considerable magnitude, and if we fail to build it now, I say, "shame on us all". I am with you for the Chilton County High School, but let it be located where it may. I am also for better rural schools and free school books and good roads.

Your friend,
C, Reese Mullins.

In Memory of D. Jasper Jones

Mr. David Jasper Jones a life long resident, of West Chilton, died April 14th. He was nearly 86 years old. He was left an orphan when quite young his boyhood was spent a few miles east of Cox's. We are informed that Mr. Jones was a decendent of an eminent family of people that originally lived in South Carolina, but later the larger part moved to the northern States. Some of the family were teachers in great institutions of learning the ministry and legal profession were also represented. Some of them were fine writers one of them was the author of "Man and Destiny" a work of about 3000 pages. A family of deep thought. Indeed one man remarked that one of the Lady members was one of the finest ladies he ever met. But the great family tree is waning. Mr. Jones has only one immediate descendant living, (Z. J. Jones of Beat 14.) he was one of that fast declining number who wore the gray and fought for the last cause in the early sixties.

His father was a member of the legislature when its sessions were held in Tuscaloosa and through his efforts the county of Bibb bears its present name. The family record can be traced to the marriage of John Jones and Margret Benson in Philadelphia in 1791.

Just before the body was lowered into the grave the friends sang that beantiful composition by Thomas Moore—"Those Evening Bells how many a tale their music tells of youth and home and that sweet time when last I heard the soothing chimes."

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words to the voters of this county. I did not go to the Primary on April the 21st, as I had but little choice between the men that was running for the various places. They were all good men and I believe that any of them would make good officers if nominated and elected. I was also, very busy on my farm and for these reasons did not go to the Primary. However, I expect to do all I can to help elect the entire Ticket in November.

Respectfully,
M. J. Cleckler.

John Baker, Sr.

Known over the entire County as "Unlcle John"

He cast the first ballot in the Progressive primary at Clanton on April 21st. Uncle John was 88 years old last Christmas day, and has voted the Republican ticket all his life. He is probably the oldest voter now living in the county. Once he was the only man who voted the Republican ticket in the entire county, there being but one other of the same faith (G. W. Mims) who stayed at home thinking it useless to go out and vote. But Uncle John went and voted, and as he came out the Democrats jesting at him, telling him he would stand without hitching. In reply he told them that he needed no hitching, and that he wound live to see the day when there would be plenty of men who would vote with him. And that day came more than twenty years ago, and since that time there has been a majority of men in the county who believe as Uncle John does, and have stood by the principles which he advocated through all those trying years. In his career is proved the principle, that, though as small as a mustard seed in the begining, the right will finally triumph.

Beat Two

Well, everything is very quiet here politically just now; primary over and everybody well satisfied with the nominees, and are preparing to give the largest vote that was ever known in this Beat, in our behalf. While there was a lot of our boys that did not go to the primary, as they said all the candidates were good men, but they will be there at the November election. Don't you forget that.

The singing convention at Center Hill Saturday and Sunday was a grand success. It is estimated that there were nearly two thousand people present, with plenty dinner, and very good behavior.

Well, as same old Moses had so much to say through the Press last week, watch the paper next week, as we are going to give him some cold blooded facts, in regard to his political life, and the ring rule of the Democrat party. As ever,

One of the Boys.

All Day Singing

Editor Union-Banner:—Please announce through the column of the Union-Banner that Prof. James Franklin will conduct an all day singing at Sardis Church the 3rd, Sunday in this month (May). All are invitted to come and bring well filled baskets.

H. J. Grooms.

Notice

The patrons of the Mineral Springs school, District 47 are hereby called to meet on Saturday evening, May 23, 1914, for the purpose of electing a teacher for the winter school.

J. A. Davis, J. M. Beasley, G. O. Smith, Trustees.

Jemison, Ala., May 4, 1914

Editor Union-Banner:—Please let me have space in your paper to thank the people for their hearty support given me in the primary of April 21, which I can hardly say that I was worthy of, and if elected in November it will be my greatest desire to do all in my power for the best interest for the county. I believe in leaving all local changes in the hands of the taxpayers to say what they want done by the Commissioners Court. And I am truly glad of the way our candidates behaved themselves in the campaign; I never saw one carried on as nicely in my life, and to find those defeated are willing to let the people rule. Well, I hear that some of the Democrats are harping at the vote of our party, but we will be on hand in November. I have had several to tell me that did not go to the primary that they would support us in November. So Mr. Press need not worry.

Again thanking the people for their support.

S. E. Waldrup.

Death of Mr. J. W. Cox.

Another worthy and honored citizen of this community passed from life to his haven of rest on Monday night at seven o'clock, when the spirit of Mr. Joseph W. Cox responded to the call of his maker and was wafted into the great beyond. During his life he was kind and considerate, and a devoted Christian gentleman. The least that can be said of him is that he lived a life highly worthy of the esteem and honor of his large number of friends which he so completely enjoyed.

He was a man of about sixty years of age, and leaves a wife and several sons and daughters. He suffered with a complication of heart and liver trouble for about six months, and for the past three months has been confined to his bed completely helpless.

Funeral services were conducted at Samaria church on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. A. L. Foshee and Rev. M. J. Parrish. After which interment took place in the Samaria cemetery.

Liberty Hill.

Our all day service at Liberty Hill Church for next Sunday the 10th, will be called in on the account of so many cases of measles, but we will expect to have it on the Second Sunday in June we will have our regular service next Sunday hope to have a large crowd anyway.

B. F. Massey, W. M. Wood, and W. W. Carlton, Committee.

Editor Union-Banner:—

I wish to say a few words to the voters of this County; I wish to say that I did not go to the Primary on April the 21st, but I believe that we have as good a ticket nominated as we could have gotten in the County. They are all good men, and from the vote that they received in their home best proves that they have the endorsement of the people who know them best. I am perfectly satisied with the nominees and expect to do all that I can to help elect the entire Ticket in November. I believe that we will elect our entire Ticket this fall by the largest majority in many years.

Respectfully,
Moses Popwell.

They May Also Carry The Senate

Free-Trade and Canal Tolls Likely to Turn Both Houses of Congress Over to Protectionists

Besides the election of a House of Representatives next fall, the voters of many States will be called upon to elect United States Senators for the first time; and while a month ago it seemed almost a certainty that the majority of those elected would be Democrats, now the chances favor the election of the Republican candidates for the Senate in many States. There are two reasons given by close observers for the change in public sentiment. One is a more general realization that the Underwood-Wilson Tariff measure has been of little value as a reducer of the cost of living, while the effects of its provisions on the employes of the manufacturers and farmers has been most unsatisfactory. The second reason is the position taken by the administration concerning free tolls in the Panama Canal for vessels engaged in the American coastwise trade. There is a trmendous opposition to the repeal of the exemption of these vessels being worked up in the far West and in the Middle West, and Republican candidates for Senator in certain States are paying even more attention to the exemption matter than they are to the Tariff.

The Democrats in the States referred to are trying to endorse the administration and yet stand with those who believe that the course taken by President Wilson is an unwarranted surrender of our rights in the canal to England.

Clanton, Ala., May 4, 1914.

The Union-Banner:—We, the undersigned voters, owing to sickness and being behind with our work, failed to vote in the primary of April 21, but will say that we will be with the boys for the ticket that was nominated in said primary.

SYNOPSIS.

Challis Wrandall is found murdered in a road house near New York. Mrs. Wrandall is summoned from the city and identifies the body. A young woman who accompanied Wrandall to the inn and subsequently disappeared, is suspected. Wrandall, it appears, had led a gay life and neglected his wife. Mrs. Wrandall starts back for New York in an auto during a blinding snow storm. On the way she meets a young woman in the road who proves to be the woman who killed Wrandall. Feeling that the girl had done her a service in ridding her of the man, who though she loved him deeply, had caused her great sorrow, Mrs. Wrandall determines to shield her and takes her to her own home.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.

Half an hour later he departed, to rejoin her at eleven o'clock, when the reporters were to be expected. He was to do all the talking for her. While he was there, Leslie Wrandall called her up on the telephone. Hearing but one side of the rather prolonged conversation, he was filled with wonder at the tactful way in which she met and parried the inevitable questions and suggestions coming from her horror-stricken brother-in-law. Without the slightest trace of offensiveness in her manner, she gave Leslie to understand that the final obsequies must be conducted in the home of his parents, to whom once more her husband belonged, and that she would abide by all arrangements his family elected to make. Mr. Carroll surmised from the trend of conversation that young Wrandall was about to leave for the scene of the tragedy, and that the house was in a state of unspeakable distress. The lawyer smiled rather grimly to himself as he turned to look out of the window. He did not have to be told that Challis was the idol of the family, and that, so far as they were concerned, he could do no wrong!

After his departure, Mrs. Wrandall gently opened the bedroom door and was surprised to find the girl wide-awake, resting on one elbow, her staring eyes fastened on the newspaper that topped the pile on the chair.

Catching sight of Mrs. Wrandall she pointed to the paper with a trembling hand and cried out, in a voice full of horror:

"Did you place them there for me to read? Who was with you in the other room just now? Was it some one about the—some one looking for me? Speak! Please tell me. I heard a man's voice—"

The other crossed quickly to her side.

"Don't be alarmed. It was my lawyer. There is nothing to fear—at present. Yes, I left the papers there for you to see. You can see what a sensation it has caused. Challis Wrandall was one of the most widely known men in New York. But I suppose you know that without my telling you."

The girl sank back with a groan. "My God, what have I done? What will come of it all?"

"I wish I could answer that question," said the other, taking the girl's hand in hers. Both were trembling. After an instant's hesitation, she laid her other hand in the dark, dishevelled hair of the wild-eyed creature, who still continued to stare at the headlines. "I am quite sure they will not look for you here, or in my home."

"In your home?"

"You are to go with me. I have thought it all over. It is the only way. Come, I must ask you to pull yourself together. Get up at once, and dress. Here are the things you are to wear." She indicated the orderly pile of garments with a wave of her hand.

Slowly the girl crept out of bed, confused, bewildered, stunned.

"Where are my own things? I—I cannot accept these. Pray give me my own—"

Mrs. Wrandall checked her.

"You must obey me, if you expect me to help you. Don't you understand that I have had a—a bereavement? I cannot wear these things now. They are useless to me. But we will speak of all that later on. Come, be quick; I will help you to dress. First, go to the telephone and ask them to send a waiter to—these rooms. We must have something to eat. Please do as I tell you."

Standing before her benefactress, her fingers fumbling impotently at the neck of the night-dress, the girl still continued to stare dumbly into the calm, dark eyes before her.

"You are so good. I—I—"

"Let me help you," interrupted the other, deliberately setting about to remove the night-dress. The girl caught it up as it slipped from her shoulders, a warm flush suffusing her face, a shamed look springing into her eyes.

"Thank you, I can—get on very well. I only wanted to ask you a question. It has been on my mind, waking and sleeping. Can you tell me anything about—do you know his wife?"

The question was so abrupt, so startling that Mrs. Wrandall uttered a sharp little cry. For a moment she could not reply.

"I am so sorry, so desperately sorry for her," added the girl plaintively.

"I know her," the other managed to say with an effort.

"If I had only known that he had a wife—" began the girl bitterly, almost angrily.

Mrs. Wrandall grasped her by the arm. "You did not know that he had a wife?" she cried.

The girl's eyes flashed with a sudden, fierce fire in their depths.

"God in heaven, no! I did not know it until— Oh, I can't speak of it! Why should I tell you about it? Why should you be interested in hearing it?"

Mrs. Wrandall drew back and regarded the girl's set, unhappy face. There was a curious light in her eyes that escaped the other's notice—a light that would have puzzled her not a little.

"But you will tell me—everything—a little later," she said, strangely calm. "Not now, but—before many hours have passed. First of all, you must tell me who you are, where you live—everything except what happened in Burton's inn. I don't want to hear that at present—perhaps never. Yes, on second thoughts, I will say never! You are never to tell me just what happened up there, or just what led up to it. Do you understand? Never!"

The girl stared at her in amazement. "But I—I must tell some one," she cried vehemently. "I have a right to defend myself—"

"I am not asking you to defend yourself," said Mrs. Wrandall shortly. Then, as if afraid to remain longer, she rushed from the room. In the doorway, she turned for an instant to say: "Do as I told you. Telephone. Dress as quickly as you can." She closed the door swiftly.

Standing in the center of the room, her hands clenched until the nails cut the flesh, she said over and over again to herself: "I don't want to know! I don't want to know!"

A few minutes later she was critically inspecting the young woman who came from the bedroom attired in a street dress that neither of them had ever donned before. The girl, looking fresher, prettier and even younger than when she had seen her last, was in no way abashed. She seemed to have accepted the garments and the situation in the same spirit of resignation and hope; as if she had decided to make the most of her slim chance to profit by these amazing circumstances.

They sat opposite each other at the little breakfast table.

"Please pour the coffee," said Mrs. Wrandall. The waiter had left the room at her command. The girl's hand shook, but she complied without a word.

"Now you may tell me who you are and—but wait! You are not to say anything about what happened at the inn. Guard your words carefully. I am not asking for a confession. I do not care to know what happened there. It will make it easier for me to protect you. You may call it conscience. Keep your big secret to yourself. Not one word to me. Do you understand?"

"You mean that I am not to reveal, even to you, the causes which led up to—"

"Nothing—absolutely nothing," said Mrs. Wrandall firmly.

"But I cannot permit you to judge me, to—well, you might say to acquit me—without hearing the story. It is so vital to me."

"I can judge you without hearing all of the—the evidence, if that's what you mean. Simply answer the questions I shall ask, and nothing more. There are certain facts I must have from you if I am to shield you. You must tell me the truth. I take it you are an English girl. Where do you live? Who are your friends? Where is your family?"

"You Did Not Know He Had a Wife?" She Cried.

The girl's face flushed for an instant and then grew pale again.

"I will tell you the truth," she said. "My name is Hetty Castleton. My father is Col. Braid Castleton of —— of the British army. My mother is dead. She was Kitty Glynn, at one time a popular music hall performer in London. She was Irish. She died two years ago. My father was a gentleman. I do not say he is a gentleman, for his treatment of my mother relieves him from that distinction. He is in the far east, China, I think. I have not seen him in more than five years. He deserted my mother. That's all there is to that side of my story. I appeared in two or three of the musical pieces produced in London two seasons ago, in the chorus. I never got beyond that, for very good reasons. I was known as Hetty Glynn. Three weeks ago I started for New York, sailing from Liverpool. Previously I had served in the capacity of governess in the family of John Budlong, a brewer. They had a son, a young man of twenty. Two months ago I was dismissed. A California lady, Mrs. Holcombe, offered me a situation as governess to her two little girls soon afterward. I was to go to her home in San Francisco. She provided the money necessary for the voyage and for other expenses. She is still in Europe. I landed in New York a fortnight ago and, following her directions, presented myself at a certain bank—I have the name somewhere—where my railroad tickets were to be in readiness for me, with further instructions. They were to give me twenty-five pounds on the presentation of my letter from Mrs. Holcombe. They gave me the money and then handed me a cablegram from Mrs. Holcombe, notifying me that my services would not be required. There was no explanation. Just that.

"On the steamer I met—him. His deck chair was next to mine. I noticed that his name was Wrandall—'C. Wrandall' the card on the chair informed me. I—"

"You crossed on the steamer with him?" interrupted Mrs. Wrandall quickly.

"Yes."

"Had—had you seen him before? In London?—

"Never. Well, we became acquainted, as people do. He—he was very handsome and agreeable." She paused for a moment to collect herself

"Very handsome and agreeable," said the other slowly.

"We got to be very good friends. There were not many people on board, and apparently he knew none of them. It was too cold to stay on deck much of the time, and it was very rough. He had one of the splendid suites on the—"

"Pray omit unnecessary details. You landed and went—where?"

"He advised me to go to an hotel—I can't recall the name. It was rather an unpleasant place. Then I went to the bank, as I have stated. After that I did not know what to do. I was stunned, bewildered. I called him up on the telephone and—he asked me to meet him for dinner at a queer little cafe, far down town. We—"

"And you had no friends, no acquaintances here?"

"No. He suggested that I go into one of the musical shows, saying he thought he could arrange it with a manager who was a friend. Anything to tide me over, he said. But I would not consider it, not for a instant. I had had enough of the stage. I—I am really not fitted for it. Besides, I am qualified—well qualified—to be governess—but that is neither here nor there. I had some money—perhaps forty pounds. I found lodgings with some people in Nineteenth street. He never came there to see me. I can see plainly now why he argued it would not be—well, he used the word 'wise.' But we went occasionally to dine together. We went about in a motor—a little red one. He—he told me he loved me. That was one night about a week ago. I—"

"I don't care to hear about it," cried the other. "No need of that. Spare me the silly side of the story."

"Silly, madam? In God's name, do you think it was silly to me? Why—why, I believed him! And, what is more, I believe that he did love me—even now I believe it."

"I have no doubt of it," said Mrs. Wrandall calmly. "You are very pretty—and charming."

"I—I did not know that he had a wife until—well, until—" She could not go on.

"Night before last."

The girl shuddered. Mrs. Wrandall turned her face away and waited.

"There is nothing more I can tell you, unless you permit me to tell all," the girl resumed after a moment of hesitation.

Mrs. Wrandall arose.

"I have heard enough. This afternoon I will send my butler with you to the lodging house in Nineteenth street. He will attend to the removal of your personal effects to my home, and you will return with him. It will be testing fate, Miss Castleton, this visit to your former abiding place, but I have decided to give the law its chance. If you are suspected, a watch will be set over the house in which is quite unknown, you will run no risk in going there openly, nor will I be taking so great a chance as may appear in offering you a home, for the time being at least, as companion—or secretary or whatever we may elect to call it for the benefit of all inquirers. Are you willing to run the risk—this single risk?"

"Perfectly willing," announced the other without hesitation. Indeed, her face brightened. "If they are waiting there for me, I shall go with them without a word. I have no means of expressing my gratitude to you for—"

"There is time enough for that," said Mrs. Wrandall quickly. "And if they are not there, you will return to me? You will not desert me now?"

The girl's eyes grew wide with wonder. "Desert you? Why do you put it in that way? I don't understand."

"You will come back to me?" insisted the other.

"Yes. Why—why, it means everything to me. It means life—more than that, most wonderful friend. Life isn't very sweet to me. But the joy of giving it to you for ever is the dearest boon I crave, I do give it to you. It belongs to you. I—I could die for you."

She dropped to her knees and pressed her lips to Sara Wrandall's hand; hot tears fell upon it.

Mrs. Wrandall laid her free hand on the dark, glossy hair and smiled; smiled warmly for the first time in—well, in years she might have said to herself if she had stopped to consider.

"Get up, my dear," she said gently.

"I Am Challis Wrandall's Wife."

"I shall not ask you to die for me—if you do come back. I may be sending you to your death, as it is, but it is the chance we must take. A few hours will tell the tale. Now listen to what I am about to say—to propose. I offer you a home, I offer you friendship and I trust security from the peril that confronts you. I ask nothing in return, not even a word of gratitude. You may tell the people at your lodgings that I have engaged you as companion and that we are to sail for Europe in a week's time if possible. Now we must prepare to go to my own home. You will see to packing my—that is, our trunks—"

"Oh, it—it must be a dream!" cried Hetty Castleton, her eyes swimming. "I can't believe—" Suddenly she caught herself up, and tried to smile. "I don't see why you do this for me. I do not deserve—"

"You have done me a service," said Mrs. Wrandall, her manner so peculiar that the girl again assumed the stare of perplexity and wonder that had been paramount since their meeting; as if she were on the verge of grasping a great truth.

"What can you mean?"

Sara laid her hands on the girl's shoulders and looked steadily into the puzzled eyes for a moment before speaking.

"My girl," she said, ever so gently, "I shall not ask what your life has been; I do not care. I shall not ask for references. You are alone in the world and you need a friend. I too am alone. If you will come to me I will do everything in my power to make you comfortable and—contented. Perhaps it will be impossible to make you happy. I promise faithfully to help you, to shield you, to repay you for the thing you have done for me. You could not have fallen into gentler hands than mine will prove to be. That much I swear to you on my soul, which is sacred. I bear you no ill-will. I have nothing to avenge."

Hetty drew back, completely mystified.

"Who are you?" she murmured, still staring.

"I am Challis Wrandall's wife."

CHAPTER IV.

While the Mob Waited.

The next day but one, in the huge old-fashioned mansion of the Wrandalls in lower Fifth avenue, in the drawing-room directly beneath the chamber in which Challis was born, the impressive but grimly conventional funeral services were held.

Contrasting sharply with the somber, absolutely correct atmosphere of the gloomy interior was the exterior display of joyous curiosity that must have jarred severely on the high-bred sensibilities of the chief mourners, not to speak of the invited guests who had been obliged to pass between rows of gaping bystanders in order to reach the portals of the house of grief, and who must have reckoned with extreme distaste the cost of subsequent departure. A dozen raucous-voiced policemen were employed to keep back the hundreds that thronged the sidewalk and blocked the street. Curiosity was rampant. Ever since the moment that the body of Challis Wrandall was carried into the house of his father, a motley, varying crowd of people shifted restlessly in front of the mansion, filled with gruesome interest in the absolutely unseen, animated by the sly hope that something sensational might happen if they waited long enough.

Motor after motor, carriage after carriage, rolled up to the curb and emptied its sober-faced, self-conscious occupants in front of the door with the great black bow; with each arrival the crowd surged forward, and names were uttered in undertones, passing from lip to lip until every one in the street knew that Mr. So-and-So, Mrs. This-or-That, the What-Do-You-Call-Ems and others of the city's most exclusive but most garishly advertised society leaders had entered the house of mourning. It was a great show for the plebeian spectators. Much better than Miss So-and-So's wedding, said one woman who had attended the aforesaid ceremony as a unit in the well-dressed mob that almost wrecked the carriages in the desire to see the terrified bride. Better than a circus, said a man who held his little daughter above the heads of the crowd so that she might see the fine lady in a wild-beast fur. Swellest funeral New York ever had, remarked another, excepting one 'way back when he was a kid.

At the corner below stood two patrol wagons, also waiting.

Inside the house sat the carefully selected guests, hushed and stiff and gratified. (Not because they were attending a funeral, but because the occasion served to separate them from the chaff; they were the elect.) It would be going too far to intimate that they were proud of themselves, but it is not stretching it very much to say that they counted noses with considerable satisfaction and were glad that they had not been left out. The real, high-water mark in New York society was established at this memorable function. As one after the other arrived and was ushered into the huge drawing-room, he or she was accorded a congratulatory look from those already assembled, a tribute returned with equal amiability. Each one noted who else was there, and each one said to himself that at last they really had something all to themselves. It was truly a pleasure, a relief, to be able to do something without being pushed about by people who didn't belong but thought they did. They sat back—stiffly, of course—and in utter stillness confessed that there could be such a thing as the survival of the fittest. Yes, there wasn't a nose there that couldn't be counted with perfect serenity. It was a notable occasion.

Mrs. Wrandall, the elder, had made out the list. She did not consult her daughter-in-law in the matter. It is true that Sara forestalled her in a way by sending word, through Leslie, that she would be pleased if Mrs. Wrandall would issue invitations to as many of Challis' friends as she deemed advisable. As for herself, she had no wish in the matter; she would be satisfied with whatever arrangements the family cared to make.

It is not to be supposed, from the foregoing, that Mrs. Wrandall, the elder, was not stricken to the heart by the lamentable death of her idol. He was her idol. He was her first-born, he was her love-born. He came to her in the days when she loved her husband without much thought of respecting him. She was beginning to regard him as something more than a lover when Leslie came, so it was different. When their daughter Vivian was born, she was plainly annoyed but wholly respectful. Mr. Wrandall was no longer the lover; he was her lord and master. The head of the house of Wrandall was a person to be looked up to, to be respected and admired by her, for he was a very great man, but he was dear to her only because he was the father of Challis, the first-born.

In the order of her nature, Challis therefore was her most dearly beloved, Vivian the least desired and last in her affections as well as in sequence.

Strangely enough, the three of them perfected a curiously significant record of conjugal endowments. Challis had always been the wild, wayward, unrestrained one, and by far the most lovable; Leslie, almost as good looking but with scarcely a noticeable trace of charm that made his brother attractive; Vivian, handsome, selfish and as cheerless as the wind that blows across the icebergs in the north. Challis had been born with a widely enveloping heart and an elastic conscience; Leslie with a brain and a soul and not much of a heart, as things go; Vivian with a soul alone, which belonged to God, after all, and not to her. Of course she had a heart, but it was only for the purpose of pumping blood to remote extremities, and had nothing whatever to do with anything so unutterably extraneous as love, charity or self-sacrifice.

As for Mr. Redmond Wrandall he was a very proper and dignified gentleman, and old for his years.

It may be seen, or rather surmised, that if the house of Wrandall had not been so admirably centered under its own vine and fig tree, it might have become divided against itself without much of an effort.

Mrs. Redmond Wrandall was the vine and fig tree.

And now they had brought her dearly beloved son home to her, murdered and—disgraced. If it had been either of the others, she could have said: "God's will be done." Instead, she cried out that God had turned against her.

Leslie had had the bad taste—or perhaps it was misfortune—to blurt out an agonized "I told you so" at a time when the family was sitting numb and hushed under the blight of the first horrid blow. He did not mean to be unfeeling. It was the truth bursting from his unhappy lips.

"I knew Chal would come to this—I knew it," he had said. His arm was about the quivering shoulders of his mother as he said it.

She looked up, a sob breaking in her throat. For a long time she looked into the face of her second son.

"How can you—how dare you say such a thing as that?" she cried, aghast.

He colored, and drew her closer to him.

"I—I didn't mean it," he faltered.

"You have always taken sides against him," began his mother.

"Please, mother," he cried miserably.

"You say this to me now," she went on. "You who are left to take his place in my affection—why, Leslie, I —I"

Vivian interposed. "Les is upset, mamma darling. You know he loved Challis as deeply as any of us loved him."

Afterwards the girl said to Leslie when they were quite alone: "She will never forgive you for that, Les. It was a beastly thing to say."

He bit his lip, which trembled. "She's never cared for me as she cared for Chal. I'm sorry if I've made it worse."

"See here, Leslie, was Chal so—so—"

"Yes. I meant what I said a while ago. It was sure to happen to him one time or another. Sara's had a lot to put up with."

"Sara! If she had been the right sort of a wife, this never would have happened."

"After all is said and done, Vivie, Sara's in a position to rub it in on us if she's of a mind to do so. She won't do it, of course, but—I wonder if she isn't gloating, just the same."

"Haven't we treated her as one of us?" demanded she, dabbing her handkerchief in her eyes. "Since the wedding, I mean. Haven't we been kind to her?"

"Oh, I think she understands us perfectly," said her brother.

"I wonder what she will do now?" mused Vivian, in that speech casting her sister-in-law out of her narrow little world as one would throw aside a burnt-out match.

"She will profit by experience," said he, with some pleasure in a superior wisdom.

In Mrs. Wrandall's sitting room at the top of the broad stairway sat the family—that is to say, the immediate family—a solemn-faced footman in front of the door that stood fully ajar so that the occupants might hear the words of the minister as they ascended, sonorous and precise, from the hall below. A minister was he who knew the buttered side of his bread. His discourse was to be a beautiful one. He stood at the front of the stairs and faced the assembled listeners in the hall, the drawing room and the entresol, but his infinitely touching words went up one flight and lodged.

Sara Wrandall sat a little to the left of and behind Mrs. Redmond Wrandall, about whom were grouped the three remaining Wrandalls, father, son and daughter, closely drawn together. Well to the fore were Wrandall uncles and cousins and aunts, and one or two carefully chosen blood relations to the mistress of the house, whose hand had long been set against kinsmen of less exalted promise.

GARBER, COMER'S CAMPAIGN MANAGER DECLARED WHEN ATTORNEY GENERAL NO FURTHER LEGISLATION NEEDED

THE AUTHORITY DELEGATED TO THE RAILROAD COMMISSION IN THE MATTER OF RATE MAKING RENDERING ADJUSTMENT FEASABLE AND PRACTICAL IN EVERY INSTANCE

Extract From His Report Made to the Governor in 1910 Tears the Last Fragment of Support From Under His Candidate.

HENDERSON'S NOMINATION IS ASSURED

THE COMER AGREEMENT

"It is further understood and agreed that in the making of this settlement, and the dismissal of the pending litigation, according to the terms of the verbal agreement between the parties hereto made contemporaneously with this instrument, there is to be no liability upon the said——— railroad company growing or arising out of the bond or bonds which said company was required to give on securing the injunction heretofore issued in the pending litigation.

THE HENDERSON AGREEMENT.

"It is further understood and agreed that in the making of this settlement and providing for the dismissal of the pending litigation as aforesaid, there is to be no liability upon the railroad companies, or either of them, growing or arising out of the bonds they were required to give on securing temporary restraining orders."

EXTRACT FROM A REPORT OF ALEX. M. GARBER, ATTORNEY GENERAL OF ALABAMA, MADE TO THE THEN GOVERNOR B. B. COMER IN 1910, SHOWING THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE OPINION OF THE THEN ATTORNEY GENERAL AND THE NOW CAMPAIGN MANAGER OF EX-GOVERNOR COMER.

"The affirmation, by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, of the delegated authority conferred by statute upon the Railroad Commission in the matter of rate making, to meet changed conditions, renders such an adjustment feasible and practicable in every instance. NO FURTHER LEGISLATION IS NEEDED. This recognized power of the Railroad Commission of Alabama, intelligently and reasonably exercised, is ample to meet and settle every possible difference that has arisen or may arise concerning the reasonableness or compensatory character of Alabama's statutory rates." —Biennial Report of the Attorney General of Alabama, 1908-1910. VIEWS OF TWO FORMER ANTI-COMER CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR

CAPT. KOLB TO HIS FRIENDS OF THE STATE

"I consider the things that Charles Henderson's candidacy stands for to be practically the same as the policies I advocated as a candidate and that they represent the measure of the people's requirements. I therefore, invite my friends to join me in my allegiance to that gentleman's standard."

—Capt. Kolb's letter of declaration in favor of Charles Henderson.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR SEED TO HIS FRIENDS OF THE STATE THROUGH A FRIEND IN MOBILE.

"When I cast my ballot for him, it will be solely because of those who are now behind him and not for Governor Comer's sake. If you have kept up with my speeches, from which I have nothing to retract, you will see how I regard him."

—Letter of Lieut.-Gov. Seed to Dr Harry T. Inge, of Mobile.

CHARLES HENDERSON, THE MAN WHOM ALABAMA NEEDS

When this is read by the majority of Alabamians the campaign for Governor will have practically ended. Everything relating to candidates, platforms, records and policies that can be told the people, has been said. The masses are wise on most of the things that should be known as matters to aid them in forming convictions and making alignments. The different sides of every public question have been reflected. The claims of the aspirant for Governor have been presented. Orators championing their preferences on stumps have grown hoarse and listening voters wearied in surfeit of their eloquence. Newspapers are lapsing into the habit of vain repetitions and are rehashing argumentative pros and cons, which the voters know by heart. In a word, the logic and drift of a long political campaign has ended in a single, settled conviction of NEED on one hand and FEAR on the other.

Is there an Alabama voter who will hesitate to make his choice and make that choice Charles Henderson, who stands for peace, prosperity and harmony in Alabama as against discord, dissention and chaos as is exemplified in the person and temperament of his opponent.

Promoting Interest.

"I suppose you are aware that the senate is sometimes criticized for being slow?"

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "We want to keep American citizens interested in their government. By being slow we manage to create a little suspense."

DEFEAT OF COMER WOULD BE CALAMITY

THIS IS OPINION OF BUSINESS MEN OF BIRMINGHAM—ENDORSE COMER IN STRONG RESOLUTIONS.

Wholesale Merchants and Lumber Men Add Their Voice to the Swelling Comer Chorus.

The following are the resolutions signed by leading business men of Birmingham calling upon all of the business men of the State to work for and support the candidacy of B. B. Comer for the governorship:

"Believing that it is to the best interest of the State of Alabama that there shall be an era of peace and business activity, and that its affairs should be handled by a thorough and trained business man, one that is a success in private life and who has demonstrated by his administration that he is competent to again handle the affairs of Alabama in a business way, and who will inspire confidence in the business world, attract capital and labor to Alabama, and who will see that all classes and business interests have a fair play in every way; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the Business Men's Comer Club, composed of members from every class of business men, most heartily endorse former Governor B. B. Comer for Governor, and urge the people of Alabama to give him their vote and support in the coming primary.

"Resolved, second, that we believe his election is for the best business interest of the State, and that his defeat would be a calamity to the business interests, and it behooves every business man to work and support his candidacy and to help secure his election by an overwhelming majority on May 11.

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very ungrateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I hear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. ORPHA TURNER, 421 S. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THE UNION-BANNER

Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama.
UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

Will the Press hold its thousand dollar reward till the November election? We will then show them where those three hundred Bull Moose are. In addition we will offer a thousand dollar reward for the three hundred Democrats whom they say they are going to put up against this three hundred Bull Moose.

The spring term of Circuit Court will convene at the court house in Clanton on next Monday, May 11. While you are in town that week drop arouud to see the editor of The Union-Banner, and while you are talking to him, don't fail to mention something about paying up your back subscription. If you don't mention it he may fail to think about it.

It seems that some of our Democratic friends are at a loss to find a name by which they may call the Progressive party in Chilton County. They call it Bull Moose, Progressive, Republican, etc. now, but after the election next November they will have a simpler name with which they may refer to it—one that will not be so hard to say, and less confusing—the winning party.

At a meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church of New York on April 4, 1914 they offered a resolution requesting President Wilson to discontinue the custom of attending Mass at the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Washington. This motion was tabled by a vote of 80 to 73. Is it true that President Wilson is a Roman Catholic? If so, what do the Masons, and other people think about him, for president?.

In last week's issue of the Clanton Press appeared a letter from one of the leading democrats of this county, who would not make the race for sheriff as he was afraid it would injure Charles Henderson's chance for Governor,. And he predicted that the people of this C unty would go to the polls in November and cast their ballot to maintain white supremacy. Now will the Clanton Press kindly tell the people of this County who Robert H. Terrel is? He was recently appointed municipial Judge of the District of Columbia, and the people would doubtless like to know who he is.

Beginning this week there will be in each issue of The Union-Banner a Home Department, which we propose to reserve for the women readers of the paper to express their ideas on various subjects connected with home life. We want them to feel that this department is distinctively their own, and to use it as such. Under the head of the department this week will be found an article descriptive of our purposes regarding same, and naming some of the things about which the women might possibly write and discuss for a means of beginning.

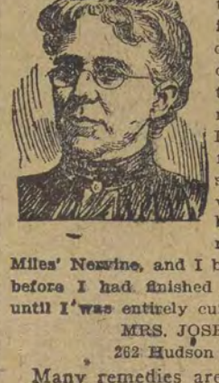
A certain lady reader of the paper has agreed to attend to the management of the department, so if the ladies get up a discussion among themselves that they cannot easily settle we will refer the case to our manager. In no wise would the editor feel capable of managing this department, and the fact that our women readers are to enjoy the privilege thus offered is due to the kindness of the lady who has agreed to superintend the matter.

We hope the ladies who read our paper will take advantage of this department, and use it to their mutual benefit and entertainment. In instituting it we were prompted by a desire to do something to make our paper attractive to those who are not interested in politics, and we feel that this is the best thing we can do to attain that end. But there may be some women in the county who are interested in politics and may desire to set forth some of their views in this department. If so that is with them. We only hope they will not start any argument that they cannot settle amicably among themselves.

LOGIC THAT WILL NOT REASON

A prominent Democrat of Chilton county who frequently poses as an advisor pointing the way of the people that will lead them out of bondage and into better times had in last week's issue of the Clanton Press an article which was protrayed to the readers as "sound logic." But in our opinion the logic of the writer is not so sound. It seems to us that the line of reasoning which he puts forth is very much broken, and badly disconnected at some of the joints.

He says, in referring to the Progressive party in Chilton county, that they strive to keep up confusion among the uneducated classes for the purpose of getting a county office. Now we would like for this logician to show us where there is any confusion in the ranks of the Progressive party. Are the foremost men of the party trying to support two different men for the same office in the same election, yet trying to make it appear that the body as a whole is a single unbased unit for one and the same cause? No such conditions are to be found in the Progressive party in Chilton county, and the man who makes such accusations is doing an injustice.



Again he breaks on the matter of voters in Chilton county disfranchising themselves as to state and national affairs for the sake of getting a county office. Does he think that every man who votes the Progressive ticket in this county does so because he thinks it will get himself into an office? That is what he says. The poorest informed man in the county knows better than to believe such stuff, and yet they try to push it off on the voters as "sound logic." It is nothing but rotten folly. What if the Progressive voter is disfranchised as to state affairs? Who would grieve over such? We would much rather be out of such politics than in it anyway. We are glad to be disfranchised from such gangs, and the reason we vote against them is because we don't want to be in them, and have some hope of seeing them fail some day, as all corrupt institutions will sooner or later do.

Don't you imagine this promulgator of the Democratic "sound logic" "points with pride" to the great and harmonious principles of his beloved party? Where is he going to put all the confusion that the Democrats have been making for the office of Governor and Senator? Have they been doing these things for the sake of humanity or their health? Or have they been doing them for the office? Have they kept the minds of the people in a state of peace or confusion? No man who voted the Democratic ticket this time can, with a bit of reason and conscientious judgment, rise up and take any party to task about confusion in their ranks without then and their condemning and convicting his vote into an absurdity.

Regarding the big noise they make about "false prophets" we would like to ask our voters to disregard all such stuff entirely. It has no weight whatever when the test comes. What we want to see is the voters stand true to the party of the people—the party that is unhampered by the great complexities of a political machinery, and that offers to all simple and pure justice alike, and when instilled into our government will give peace and satisfaction to everyone.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling,—could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

MRS. JOSEPH SNYDER,
262 Hudson St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit. 2

BUYING TREES. RAISING FRUIT

We are very much enthused as to the prospects of fruit growing Chilton County and would not say anything to hinder its development.

Yet we believe that the enthusiasm aroused by the traveling fruit tree agent is largely the cause of the neglect of fruitgrowing as in many cases the enthusiasm only last a short time after the order is signed and after paying two prices for the trees they are neglected and an eye sore to all passers by.

If you are really interested in growing fruits which we all should be, why not write to the Alabrma Experiment station for such infrrmation as they may have and for the names of reliable nurserymen who will sell you strictly first class trees at half what a traveling agent will charge you for the same trees.

Put out trees, but if you are wise and economical you will buy from your County Business agent or direct from the nursery.

In Memory of G. W. Parrish

On April 27, grim death laid his cold hand on Mr. G. W. Parrish and cast a mantle of sorrow over his relrtives and friends. After a few days of patient suffering, he bravely faced the common destroyer—death, and surrendered his life back to his maker who had preserved it for forty-one years. He was a son of Rev. M. J. and Sarah Parrish. Besides a host of relatives and friends, he leaves a wife and six children to mourn his departure. About twenty years ago he united with the Missionary Baptist Church, and from that time till his passage into the great beyond he lived a devoteded and earnest Christian life. He was an earnest Sunday School worker and did some good things along that line.

Alabama Good Road Association

The Alabama Good Roads Association two years ago successfully inaugurated the movement to observe Good Roads Days, Aug. 14th-15. At the last meeting of the Association resolutions were passed re-endorsing the movement and urging the people to observe these days this year. In accordance with the resolution, as well as the activity of the association, Secretary J. A. Rountree has commenced a campaign with the Probate Judges mayors, good roads officials and good roads organizations in urging them to take steps at once to observe these days. The following is a copy of the letter that was sent to the Probate Judges and Chairman of the Boards of Revenue in the 67 counties of the State.

Dear Sirs:— Two years ago the Alabama Good Roads Association inaugurated a movement of observing Aug. 14-15th as Good Roads Days. These days were successfully observed each year by the people throughout the State.

The first year it is estimated that over 50,000 people worked the roads. Last year it is estimated that 75,000 people did likewise. Since the inauguration of these days various states have commenced to observe them with a great deal of interest. It is now planned to observe these days during the year 1914.

As Secretary of the Alabama Good Roads Association I am instructed to write and ask you to take this matter up with your Board of Revenue or county commissioners and issue an order calling upon the people throughout the county to observe these days, also for you to take the lead in this matter. We will appreciate you giving the same as much publicity as possible.

We would be glad if your Board would pass a resolution endorsing the same, sending a copy to the Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile dailies, also a copy to us so that we can give the same as much as possible.

Hoping to hear you very soon and that you will do as requested, we are,

Very truly yours,
J. A. Rountree, Secretary.

Clanton, Ala., May 5, 1914.

The Union-Banner:—I wish to say to the people of Chilton county that I failed to go to the Progressive Primary on account of being so busy; but I wish to say, that, if I am able, I will be on hand in November, and vote the Bull Moose ticket. The people up here are well satisfied with the ticket nominated, and will stand by it in November.

Concord School Entertainment

On Friday evening, April 24th, a nice entertainment was given at Concord School, district 59, by the pupils, under the supervision of their efficient teacher, Prof. F. B. Williams. The house was crowded. Admission was 25c. $26.40 was received.

After "America" was sung by the school. A flowery and impressive educational address was given by the brother of the teacher, Prof. P. L. Williams, who has just returned from the University of Tennessee.

The several plays and dialogues were greatly enjoyed. "The Cabbage Hill School" especially showed the care and pains given the primary grades.

The little dialogue "True but Courteous," could if thought of seriously, inspire one to nobler acts, for we can be true without being too outspoken, when by so doing we wound the feeling of others.

The last play, "The Honeymoon," showed decided talent in the advanced pupils, also including their teacher. This the last play, was most interesting to the majority of the audience, for "All the World Loves a Lover."

Between acts the little folks entertained the audeince with school memory work, showing how well they had studied. I learned that the winter school had been a success, though was not informed concerning the school for next year. I think that those children, young ladies and men, as well as the teacher, deserve a new up-to-date building with a stage, which is a great incentive for teacher and pupils in entertaining, also that the building have plenty of room to entertain all who wish to go.

Body Discovered by Autoists returning from Coosa.

Late Monday afternoon as an automobile party was returning from Rockford, in Coosa county the dead body of M. B. Manning was found obout two miles south of Sylacauga, where he had been killed and evidences of robbery is the motive. Mr. Manning lived near Thorsby in Chilton county, and came up on the noon train and left town on foot early in the afternoon. A pistol shot wound was in his breast. An open knife was found in the road and evidences of a struggle were to be seen. The body was carried to town and turned over to a local undertaker.

O'NEAL'S EXTRAVAGANCE

Has Exceeded the Comer Expenditures by $1,300,000.00 a Year or $3,500.00 a Day.

Startling Contrasts Between O'Neal-Henderson Claims and the Actual Truth.

The O'Neal-Henderson combination has given the State the most INEXCUSABLY WASTEFUL AND EXTRAVAGANT ADMINISTRATION in its history. Note the WASTE of money of this school of politics as compared with that of Governor Comer.

STATE OF ALABAMA,

MONTGOMERY, AT THE CAPITOL.

I, C. B. Smith, State Auditor, hereby certify that the above and foregoing figures are true and correct as shown by the Auditor's books of the disbursements under the Comer and O'Neal administrations, showing the exact amount each spent - Governor Comer for four years and Governor O'Neal for three years. Given under my hand and seal of office this 29th day of April, 1914.

C. B. Smith
State Auditor.

From the above figures certified by the State Auditor we find that Governor Comer spent during his administration as Governor $21,030,121.11, or an average of $5,257,530.28 for each and every year while in office. It shows that Governor O'Neal spent as Governor for the THREE YEARS he has been in office $19,674,713.98, or for each and every year while in office $6,558,237.99.

O'Neal annual disbursements	$6,558,237.99
Comer's annual disbursements	5,257,530.28
	$1,300,707.71

thus showing the excess of O'Neal's disbursements over Comer's to be for each year and every year he has been in office the SUM of $1,300,707.71, which makes O'Neal's excess for the three years the total of $3,902,123.13.

This $1,300,707.71 EXCESS disbursements of O'NEAL over COMER, divided by 365 DAYS in a year shows the average DAILY EXCESS expense of O'Neal's administration over COMER'S administration to be $3,563.03.

Every dollar disbursed during the Comer administration is accounted for and was expended for some useful purpose. Mr. Henderson condemns this, but approved the O'Neal expenditures, waste, extravagance and all.

Governor Comer left $975,000 in the treasury, so reported by the committee of the O'Neal Legislature, who went there and counted it. In spite of this Governor O'Neal has been complaining of bankruptcy ever since he got a chance at the treasury, and began to spend the public money at the rate of $18,000.00 A DAY.

HENDERSON REITERATION

Seeing defeat staring him in the face ex-Governor Comer, with the same bull-dozing tactics displayed during his four years of disastrous administration of the State's affairs, addressed a telegram to Charles Henderson during the past week demanding a correction of a statement of the Henderson Campaign Committee that Mr. Comer enjoys a coal rate discrimination secured by the passage of an act of one of the latter's special sessions of his Legislature. Instead of making a correction, Mr. Henderson reiterated the assertion and below is given the complete proof in the matter:

"Birmingham, Ala., April 29, 1914.

"Mr. Charles Henderson, President Alabama Railroad Commission, Montgomery, Ala.

"Your Campaign Committee advertises in many weekly papers as follows: 'Special rates for Mr. Comer. Mr. Comer had one of his special sessions of the Legislature to pass an act authorizing the railroads to give him a special coal rate for his cotton mills at Sylacauga of 50 cents per ton, while the public pays 70 cents. Mr. Comer now enjoys this discrimination.' You know this was impossible and false. The Sylacauga coal rate was given years before I was Governor, in connection with Talladega, Anniston, Gadsden, Alabama City and Attalla, with the making of which I had nothing whatever to do. This rate applies equally to all the above points to any one using steam coal. As president of the Railroad Commission, correct this injustice done to a citizen and shipper of the State.

(Signed) "B. B. COMER."

Charles Henderson, the Man Whom Alabama Needs.

"Hon. B. B. Comer, Birmingham, Alabama:

"Your telegram of this date asking me as president of the Railroad Commission to correct what you call an injustice to you regarding the charge that your Legislature of 1907 passed an act permitting you to enjoy special rates on coal to your cotton mill at Sylacauga, received. It is my duty, and I should be glad to correct any error or prevent any injustice, even though by so doing you were elected and I was defeated, if such error existed or injustice was done, but the facts prove that the charges made against you are correct and true. A bill prepared by me was passed by your Legislature and approved by you as Governor on February 23, 1907, which provided that no person, firm or corporation should pay a greater or lesser rate than that charged to all others.

"Under this act of the Legislature, you could not have legally gotten your coal hauled to Sylacauga at any less rate than the public paid. Your special Sylacauga coal rates were in force before you were Governor, but this was also before I was Railroad Commissioner, and I have never known how you managed to get these special favors, but had the act I prepared, which was passed by your Legislature, remained unamended or unrepealed by you and your Legislature, you would be paying today the same rate on your coal to your Sylacauga cotton mill that the public at Sylacauga is paying, but on November 23, 1907, you had your Legislature pass and you approved an act that again made legal these special rates for your cotton mill at Sylacauga.

"In addition to this, your Legislature in February, 1907, tied the Railroad Commission's hands by passing the maximum rate bill, which prevented the raising of any rates, and also tied the Commission's hands by specifically prescribing that the Commission could reduce, but could not advance, any rates, thereby placing your special Sylacauga coal rates, not only out of reach of the Railroad Commission, but out of reach of the courts. The further statement in your telegram, that these special rates apply equally to all parties using steam coal in the towns named by you is untrue, and not borne out by the facts.

We do not ask you to do our experimenting

During the twenty-one years in which we have been building motor cars, we have never asked the public to do our experimenting. Every unit of the Haynes car is designed, checked and thoroughly tested before receiving its final O. K.

The American Simms Dual High Tension Magneto is positively the most simple dual ignition ever devised. It was recommended by the Haynes engineers after careful speed and compression tests proved beyond doubt that it was unusually efficient and absolutely dependable.

The Leece-Neville Starting and Lighting Separate Unit System was chosen in 1910 because of its high efficiency and has been used on the Haynes car ever since, although numerous other starting and lighting systems have been tested in our laboratories from time to time. This system is dust-proof and has proven itself 100% efficient in every instance. There is no apparatus, however, on the

that has been subjected to a more severe test than the Vulcan Electric Gear Shift. This device is even a greater improvement than the starting and lighting system, because it not only simplifies the control but positively prevents stripping of gears.

While the electric gear shift is a great invention, it is not radically new, being just a natural development of the electro-magnet, which has been in use since 1820. The same principle is used by steel companies to lift tons and tons of metal; the electric railways adopted it long ago to shift switches automatically, and the little hammer that strikes the bell in your telephone is actuated by the impulse of a similar magnet.

The Haynes car is not an experiment. It represents the height of refinement, convenience and reliability in motor car design. It's the year-ahead car.

"Dead" Soldier Sits Up.

One of the men of the First Royal Scots Fusilliers, who reached Southampton recently from South Africa, was Private McDevet, who, though in the prime of life, has snow-white hair.

He had a narrow escape from being buried alive in India. After an attack of fever he was pronounced to be dead, and was placed on a slab in the mortuary to await burial. Two hours later the sentry outside heard knocking from within. He opened the door and was startled to see McDevet sitting up.

The experience turned McDevet's hair white. The sentry was driven mad by the shock and died.—London Tit-Bits.

AFTER HALF-CENTURY MARK

No Real Reason Why Man of That Age Should Not Be Capable of Good Work.

Speaking of the age of efficiency, a Toledo gentleman located it beyond the half-century mark. He calls our attention to the fact that Columbus was fifty-six when he discovered America, that Darwin, Kant, Spencer, Wagner, Haydn, and others did their greatest and best work when far past the fifty mark, and that some have persisted in great accomplishment until seventy or more years of age. This argument won't help the man who is aged and broken and tottering at fifty, will it? But it will hearten the man of forty or more who has been careful of his resources, to think that to him achievement still is a possibility—and it may find him the opportunity to achieve by convincing some master of opportunity that years do not always spell senility or loss of virility. The young man may reflect that he has the opportunity to run a long race—and he may catch sight of the fact that the man of fifty is not necessarily a "back number" merely because of his half-century.

SKIN TORTURES WILL YIELD TO RESINOL

"The late Bishop Bowman," said a Philadelphia minister, "once rebuked my too soft and conciliatory leanings by telling me a story about a little girl.

"This little girl, it seems, had written with great pains a composition on the cow. The composition ran as follows:

"'The cow is a very useful animal.'

"That evening the bishop dined at the little girl's house, and her mother, since she was a very little girl, indeed, was proud of the composition, and requested its author to read it aloud.

"The little girl got her manuscript, but, instead of reading it as it stood, she amended it on the bishop's behalf so that it ran:

"'The cow is the most useful animal there is except religion.'"

Sounded Like It.

Mr. Murray, irritable from long confinement to a sick bed, cocked up his ears and listened.

"Phat's all that piano-bangin' in th' parlor?" he then demanded, glaring at his wife.

"'Tis our daughter Mary takin' her first steps in piano-playin'," rejoined his wife.

"Her first steps! Phat's she doin', walking on the kayboard?"

Why?

Alden has reached the "Why" age. It isn't always easy to answer the whys. One day he lay on the floor with his eyes shut.

"Am I asleep, mother?" he asked.

"You know you aren't," said his mother.

"Well, I'm lying down; my eyes are shut, why ain't I asleep?"

HAPPY NOW
Family of Twelve Drink Postum.

"It certainly has been a blessing in our home" writes a young lady in regard to Postum.

"I am one of a family of twelve, who, before using Postum, would make a healthy person uncomfortable by their complaining of headache, dizziness, sour stomach, etc., from drinking coffee.

"For years mother suffered from palpitation of the heart, sick headache and bad stomach and at times would be taken violently ill. About a year ago she quit coffee and began Postum.

"My brother was troubled with headache and dizziness all the time he drank coffee. All those troubles of my mother and brother have disappeared since Postum has taken the place of coffee.

"A sister was ill nearly all her life with headache and heart trouble, and about all she cared for was coffee and tea. The doctors told her she must leave them alone, as medicine did her no permanent good.

"She thought nothing would take the place of coffee until we induced her to try Postum. Now her troubles are all gone and she is a happy little woman enjoying life as people should."

Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

AFTER HOSPITALS AND DOCTORS FAILED—EX-ZEMA-FO CURED.

D. Holmes, Ozone Park, Long Island, N. Y., writes: "While you have not asked for a testimonial, I feel that it is due. A preparation such as EX-ZEMA-FO should be known to everyone. I was a sufferer of that terrible disease called eczema for seven years, doctored with the most eminent New York specialists and several various Skin Hospitals to the expense of over $300. Two bottles of EX-ZEMA-FO cured me, and the best of it all was that I was able to give up the use of a salve, which was what they all prescribed. Your remedy EX-ZEMA-FO is a clean liquid, did not soil my linen and went right to the spot. I have been recommending it to every one afflicted with this disease and results have been the same as in my case.

EX-ZEMA-FO is the only preparation of its kind sold on the guarantee that it cures or money is refunded. 50 cents and $1.00 at dealers or sent direct by the Nervoid Chemical Co., 1619 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y. Dream book free on request.—Adv.

Brothers, Eh?

A certain curate was of a painfully nervous temperament, and in consequence was constantly making awkward remarks intended as compliments—to the bishop and others.

Having distinguished himself in an unusual degree during a gathering of clergy at an afternoon tea a short while ago in the bishop's palace, he was taken to task for his failings by a senior curate, who was one of his companions on the way home.

"Look here," said Simms, the senior, decidedly, "you're a donkey. Why can't you keep quiet instead of making your asinine remarks? I am speaking to you as a brother."

Loud laughter interrupted him at this point, and for the moment he did not see the joke.

NATIVE OF THE SOUTHLAND

And Nothing Pleases This Lady More, Than to Praise Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Chillicothe, Ohio.—"I am a native of the Southland," says Mrs. Ed. Davis, of this town, "and nothing pleases me more than to speak a word of praise for Cardui, the woman's tonic, for I firmly believe that it snatched me from the grave. Although I do not need it now, I always keep a supply on hand.

I have been married 14 years, and had two children. After the youngest was born, I was not able to walk, and for four years, I was not strong enough to stand on my feet five minutes at the time, without something to support me.

After everything else had failed, I wrote to the Ladies' Advisory Department, of the Chattanooga Medicine Co., for advice, and they kindly told me what I needed. I commenced taking the Cardui Home Treatment. I used only about four bottles of the Cardui, but, today, I am well, can do my own work, and walk as far as I want to.

I can never praise Cardui enough, and my neighbors cannot get done wondering at the change in me."

Cardui will surely do as much for you, as it did for the writer of the above letter, if you will only give it a trial.

Don't delay. Begin taking Cardui today. Your druggist sells it.—Adv.

Political Situation in Chilton County

Clanton, Ala., May 4, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to the present political situation in this county. First I want to say that the Democrats seem to be making an awful to do over the fact that the Progressives did not poll but 900 votes in their primary. Now if the Democrats can get any consolation out of that they certainly ought to have it, for that is all the consolation they will get out of this campaign, for they will certainly not get any consulation from the results of the general election in this county.

Now Mr. Editor, I noticed a letter in last week's Press, signed by the same old Moses. Now I do not suppose that this is the Moses of old who was found in the bull rushes and who led the children of Isreal out from under the Egyptian Bondage, for the same old Moses which we have here with us now seems to want to lead the people of Chilton county back into Democratic Bondage. But ah, my friend, Moses will find that that will be a harder task for him than the Democrats found it to be in chastizing and converting him to the Democratic party. But you know that the good Book says that the Lord chasteneth whom he loveth, and who knows but what the Democrats did actually love Moses when they chastized him.

The same old Moses says why not let all the people come together in a primary and let every man be a candidate that wants to, and then let the longest pole get the persimmon. Well now, that does seem very nice to some folks, especially to Moses, for I can imagine that he thinks that possibly every voter in the county together with himself might run for office and he (Moses) could possibly make an agreement with some other fellow that they would vote for each other, so Moses would get the other fellows vote and then he would vote for himself, and of course if everybody was candidates, those two votes would elect Moses; so you see what Moses is after—the office of course. Now, I want to make a prediction, says Moses. Oh, my, my, what is that? The common people have at last learned not to follow the false political prophets. Why certainly they learned that years ago, for that is one of the reasons they refused to follow Moses and the Democrats. Now, he predicts again, (oh my, what is it this time?) I predict says he, that there will be a lot of people who will walk to the polls in November, and cast their ballots to maintain white supremacy and the rule of the people. Now Moses, you speak of the rule of the people. Why yes, that is another one of the reasons the people of this county have been voting for the Progressives and Republicans, because they wanted the people to rule, for they knew by past experience that if the Democrats got in that it would be just a few bosses that would rule instead of the people. Now, you spoke of white supremacy. Well, well, Moses, do you think that the people of this county can be fooled by any such campaign rot. Don't you think that the people read some for themselves? I think that they do; and dont you suppose that they noticed a few days ago that President Wilson, who is the leader of the grand old Democratic party of free trade and free soup, (and pretended white supremacy,) had appointed a negro Judge of the City Court of Washington, D. C. Oh me, what, a Democrat appointed a negro Judge? Why yes, and of course his appointment was confirmed by a Democratic Senate, and if there was any objection by any of our Southern Democratic Senators the papers failed to say anything about it; and of course you know that in the City of Washington is where all of our Southern Democratic Senators and Congressmen live with their wives and families most of the time. Now just imagine how one of these Southern white supremacy Democrats would feel going up with their hats under arms before this negro Judge, (Robt. H. Terrell) to be tried if they happened to have a case in the City Court.

Oh, say, what has happened to the Press and his negro issue these days? They seem to be a thing of the past, especially while the Dems are in and appointing negros to office.

Say, Mr. Editor, I guess that this is the same old Moses that wrote a letter to the Union four years ago, and told the people that if they let the Dems. get in it would be like it was several years ago when they were in control in this county the Treasury was kept empty, and if a man served on the Jury he could not get his pay, to ever pay his board bill. So he had to bring his rations and beding so he could eat and sleep on and around the court house steps. Pretty tough times then, wasn't it Moses? Of course Moses has forgot all about that I guess. The Apostle Paul said that he learned obedience by the things that he suffered. So I guess Moses learned obedience to the Democratic party by the things that he suffered just after he wrote that letter mentioned above four years ago.

Now Mr. Editor, I want to say to the Progressives and Republicans to not be disturbed by all this Democratic fuss, for they know that if the people stand together all they (the democrats) can do is to raise a fuss, and they may feel sure that our people will stand together, for we farmers are too wise to be fooled by Moses and his Dems.

Say, haven't we got a good and nice set of men nominated on our ticket this time? There is Prof. Harris for Sheriff, Thomas for Representative, Waldrup and Williams for Commissioners. Who can question their standing and ability?

Yours truly,
A Voter.

Quick Action Getting The Blood in Order

There's Bounding, Pulsating Life in Every Drop of Great Remedy.

Let S. S. S. Hustle Impurities Outward.

Impurities lodge so deeply in the tissues that they cannot be reached by any ordinary method. Mercury and other dangerous mineral drugs may check a disease, but to get right down into where the blood is vitiated requires S. S. S., the greatest blood purifier known. Its action is pronounced.

In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are observed. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is conscious sensation of renewed health.

The extraordinary manner in which S. S. S. drives impurities out of the blood is due to its catalytic force in the blood cells, contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment and the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well balanced-health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence. Not one drop of drugs or minerals is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to The Swift Specific Co., 224 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all counterfeits.

Goodwater Negro Killed by Posse

Man Wanted for Murder of White Man is Shot to Death

"Babe" Chapman, a negro, was shot and killed, his body being riddled with bullets, by a posse of officers and citizens near Brownsville, Clay county, last Thursday night. The negro was wanted for the murder of M. B. Manning, a prominent resident near here, last Monday, who was killed and robbed on public road. Evidence pointed to the negro and the posse went in pursuit. He was found armed with a rifle and when he attempted to escape from a house when surrounded, the posse opened fire.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please give me space in your valuable paper to say a few words in regard to our primary. I thank the people for their support in the primary of April 21st, which I feel worthy of. The people said by their vote I was the man so I will do all that is in my power to elect our ticket in November. It will be my greatest desire to do all in my power for the people of the country. I believe in letting the people at large to say what they want, and I also believe in leaving all local changes in the hands of the tax payers of the county, to say what they want done in the commissioners courts.

I am proud our primary went off like it did. I believe it was the best carried on of any I ever say. I think that's the best way for them to be carried on. It don't give any one room to get offended. Everybody seems to be well pleased with our ticket.

Well, the paper made a mistake of 96 votes, it is 577 instead of 481.

The Clanton Press has had something to say about our sorry turnout, but boys come and let us show the boys how we can wallow them in November. I want us to elect our ticket by the largest majority ever heard of in Chilton.

Again thanking the people for their hearty support.

Yours for progress,
R. J. Williams.

Contract Let to Grade Road

Last Saturday the Commissioners of Chilton county met in session at the court house, and with State Highway Engineer, Keller, awarded contract with W. H. Wynn of Dadeville for grading the section of the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway which extends from Clanton to Mountain Creek. Bids on the work were made by several concerns, and the lowest was accepted. The work will begin in about two weeks, and will include at present only the grading and shaping of the road bed. After this is done the matter of surfacing with gravel will be taken up at some time which has not yet been definitely determined. With the road being finished between here and Mt. Creek, the highway will be practically complete between Clanton and Montgomery.

Services Canaan Baptist Church

On May 30-31, there is to be services to last for the two days at Canaan Baptist Church, near Mountain Creek. An instructive and interesting program has been arranged, and will be rendered by local and visiting ministers.

Cooper, Ala., May 12, 1914.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me space in your paper to express my appreciation to those who so generously supported me in the primary of April 21st, and honored me with the nomination for Sheriff of our county. Especially do I wish to thank those of my home Beat and surrounding community for their unanimous support.

To Mr. Gore I want to say that I feel grateful to him tor the manly way in which the campaign was conducted.

Now that the primary is over and ticket nominated, I hope everyone is satisfied with results, and that all will rally to the support of the entire ticket so we will elect them all in November by a safe majority.

Again thanking you for your vote and influence, and wishing the party success, I am,

Very respectfully yours,
H. A. Harris.

Rural Routes Being Improved

The patrons of the rural mail routes going out from Clanton should be gratified at the efforts Postmaster Dudley is making to have the service improved so as to bring to everyone better and more satisfactory delivery of mails.

The routes which have already been in operation are being changed and re-routed so as to serve numbers of houses that have heretofore been from a half to a mile from the route, and thereby eliminate the trouble these people have been having in going unhandy distances for mails.

For about a mile east of town where routes one and five have been traversing the same road, route one is to be switched off and take another course which will bring it directly in touch with several houses which have been going half a mile for mail, or getting no delivery at all.

A certain section of route four which has been going over about four miles of road on which there was not a single house is to be changed and take another road which will give service to several more patrons.

In addition to these changes, Mr. Dudley is making an effort to establish two new routes which will go into good sections and communities which have been so far deprived of the immense advantages of rural delivery service. The petitions for these new routes are already prepared, and will soon be sent out for approval of the patrons who will be affected. They will doubtless be met by the hearty approval and co-operation of the people, for every man feels proud of a rural mail route passing his front door.

When all these plans have been consummated Mr. Dudley will have attained for his constituents a mail service that is unsurpassed by any office in the state. It will give a total number of ten routes from this office, and a most complete service will it be.

Bull Moosers To Meet.

Atlanta, Ga., May 11—Members of the Progressive Party in Georgia will meet here tomorrow in State convention to nominate candidates for the National House of Representatives, and two candidates for the United States Senate. The advisability of nominating a State ticket also will be considered, party leaders said tonight.

Mt. Creek News

"Mothers' Day" was observed here by the Baptist Church people. Rev. Robert Aldridge of Birmingham delivered a splendid sermon, and some of the matrons and young ladies pinned pretty carnations and white roses onto the coats of all, including some old veterans, who seemed to enjoy remembering that they, too, once had mothers. The distribution of flowers was made by Mrs. Ruby Knox and Misses Glenn.

Hospital For Chilton County

A bit of inside information reveals the fact that certain authorities and professional men of our county are considering the matter of establishing at some place in the county a local hospital or infirmary, the purpose of which is to eliminate the necessity of invalids having to be carried from here to Birmingham or Montgomery for treatment. This fact alone would justify its promotion, and commend the venture to the support of our citizens and business men; for it is easily seen that the practice of carrying a sick person to Birmingham or Montgomery is, besides being a worry and annoyance, a great danger to the life of the patient. But there are many other reasons that make the proposition one of great value to our county, and when it is sufficiently developed to be put before the people for their approval it is certain that it will meet the support and co-operation of every progressive citizen.

Nashville Booster Club Coming

Party Will be in Clanton Next Monday Evening

The Booster Club of the city of Nashville will visit Clanton next Monday evening on their tenth annual tour. They are traveling on a special train which will get here at 5:55 p.m. and leave at 6:30 p. m., spending 35 minutes in our town. The party is composed of representatives of the largest and most progressive business concerns of the city, who have for their purpose the cultivation of friendship with the cities and towns of the South and the encouragement of trade relations.

It is hoped that all our business and professional men will be on hand when this party arrives, to bid them welcome to our town, and during their short stay here do all in our power to show just appreciation of the effort these prominent men are making toward promoting the growth and prosperity throughout the communities of the south.

The Teachers of Alabama.

To the Teachers of Alabama:

As the time draws near when your schools will close, I am wondering what plans you are formulating for vacation time. Will you spend it in idleness, or in an effort to improve yourself for your work. Think what your answer will mean to the bright-eyed boys and girls who will greet you at the opening of school next year.

The public is demanding more of the school. Efficiency is certainly becoming the universal requirement in your profession. To be efficient, the teacher must be familiar not only with the subjects he is to teach, but also with the most approved methods of teaching them.

Splendid summer schools will be conducted this year at the University, the Polytechnic Institute, the Normal Schools, and elsewhere. Will you not make your arrangements to attend one of these schools? The cost will be modest, the advantages great, and promotion will come in due time.

Very truly yours,
Wm. F. Feagin,
Supt. of Education.

URGES LIBRARIANS TO VISIT CAPITAL

DR. OWEN EMPHASIZES IMPORTANCE OF CONVENTION OF LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

NEWS LETTER FROM CAPITAL

Happenings in and About Alabama's State House Interestingly Told.

—Montgomery.

Dr. Thomas M. Owen, director of the department of archives and history, issued a statement i nwhich he urges all library workers in Alabama to attend the meeting of the American Library association and affiliated bodies which convene in Washington May 25-30. The meetings cover a whole week, but they are so arranged that visitors can see Washington without interfering with the primary purposes of the trip.

Dr. Owen's statement in part is as follows:

"Washington City is always a delightful place to visit; and more than a thousand trained librarians, specialists and others will be in attendance. Alabama has in recent years made wonderful advances in library work, and no State, certainly in the south, has more fully met its duty to this form of cultural activity. Library extension work is officially provided through the department of archives and history, which does the promotion work usually done by State Library associations elsewhere. Through it traveling libraries, and books for the blind are circulated.

"The State in 1911 made an appropriation, whereby rural schools may secure State aid, in co-operation with local effort, in the purchase of small libraries. This has been working admirably, and already its fine and helpful influence has been felt.

"Alabama now has 21 library buildings devoted specially to library uses, and more than 50 fully or partially trained librarians and library workers. The Federation of Women's clubs, ministers and teachers have all shared in the library growth of the State.

"Another helpful agency has been the Alabama Library association, organized in Montgomery in 1904, and which will hold its next meeting in the City of Montgomery during the fall of the current year."

Officers' School Successful.

After a full week of instruction in military tactics and in the art of warfare, the Officers' School of the Alabama National Guard broke camp, and the majority of those in attendance left for their homes in other parts of the State.

Excellent results were obtained by the regular army instructors during the week, and the school this year was the most successful that has been yet held. The last official act of Adjutant General Joseph B. Scully, who was in command of the camp, was to publish an order thanking Capt. William P. Screws, United States army, and his associates for their untiring efforts during the course of the instructions. The next meeting of the officers of the Alabama National Guard, in the event of the State militia is not mobilized by order of the war department, will probably be at Chickamauga, Ga., during the summer, where the Alabama Guard may go into encampment for two weeks.

A. N. G. Ordered to Georgia Camp.

Three regiments of the Alabama National Guard have been ordered by the war department to go into camp next July at Chickamauga, Ga., according to announcement made by Adjutant General Joseph B. Scully. These orders were sent to the Alabama troops from the department of the east.

General Scully announced that he will renew his request that the Alabama troops be ordered to camp in Montgomery in July and in this request he will have the support of the members of the Montgomery Business Men's league. Grounds have already been obtained for the camp and the members of the Alabama officers' school were camped on these grounds.

Take Up Duties Next Few Months.

Representative Henry D. Clayton, recently appointed by President Wilson to succeed the late Federal Judge Thomas G. Jones, is expected to take up his new duties within the next three or four weeks, according to an unofficial announcement made here.

The various candidates who have announced for Mr. Clayton's seat are: Judge A. A. Evans, member of the State tax commission; T. Sidney Frazer of Union Springs, Henry B. Steagall of Ozark and Byrd G. Farmer of Dothan.

Montgomery Jail O. K.

In a report to the Governor of the Montgomery county jail, Dr. William H. Oates, State prison inspector, gave that institution an excellent bill of health, declaring that it was in a "magnificent sanitary condition, well kept and systematically cleaned at regular intervals.

The only recommendations made by Dr. Oates relative to the ail was that the prisoners be given a change of food. He reported that there were 57 persons confined in the jail.

Talks Away His Freedom.

Dave Jordan, a Montgomery county negro, bragged too much about being paroled out of the penitentiary by the governor and as a consequence Dave is again pacing back and forth behind the grim walls of the stockade at Lucile mines. Dave was serving a 25 year sentence at Lucile on a charge of murder. About 10 days ago he escaped and came back to his old haunts around Pike Road. He obtained a position on a farm and was contentedly chopping cotton and telling the other negroes how he obtained his release from prison.

Some of his neighbors became suspicious of Dave's story and when a Montgomery officer happened to be in the neighborhood, he was asked to take a look at Dave. The officer immediately recognized the prisoner and he was quietly but firmly led away to the county jail. The officer picked up $50 reward while Dave has gone back to picking coal.

Nominate School Faculties.

Members of the faculties of the six State Normal schools of Alabama were nominated by the presidents of the various institutions at a meeting of the State Normal school bard, held in the office of Governor O'Neal May 14. Each president of the State Normal school nominates his faculty and his list is later passed upon by the State Normal school board. All presidents were re-elected at a meeting held recently.

At the meeting of the board the new courses of study that are to be adopted by the Normal schools were submitted and discussed by the members. Recently a sweeping revision in the courses of study in the Class A Normal schools was recommended by the board.

Members of the State Normal school board are Governor O'Neal, W. F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education John B. Weakley, of Birmingham; R. L. Glenn, of Florence; Captain, Will T. Sheehan, of Montgomery; W. W. Lavender, of Centerville; R. B. Evins, of Greensboro, and Charles McDowell, of Eufaula.

Veterans Will Be Awarded Diplomas.

At the commencement exercises of the University of Alabama this year the degree of bachelor of arts will be conferred on more than 100 Confederate soldiers of this State who left college before graduation to participate in the Civil War. The Governor signed all the diplomas and sent them to President Denny of the university.

The majority of the old Confederate soldiers on whom the degrees will be conferred left the university within one year of graduation. Others left college in their senior year.

The conferring of degrees on old Confederate veterans of Alabama who left the class room to fight for the cause of the South, will be one of the features of the commencement exercises of the university, and it is expected that practically all of the recipients of such honors will be present when the diplomas are conferred.

Many Pensioners Declared Illegal.

Pensions are being paid illegally to 132 pensioners in Etowah county, to 113 in Fayette county, according to citations that have been issued by the State pension board.

These pensioners must appear before Special Master Gen. Fred S. Ferguson, and show cause why their names should not be dropped from the pension rolls of the State.

Since the work of purging pension rolls began it has been discovered that there are many pensioners in each county of the State who have been drawing money from the State, although they failed to prove a war record as required by law.

Mathews Appointed Registrar.

Governor O'Neal appointed John R. Mathews, deputy clerk of the circuit court of Montgomery county, as a member of the Montgomery county board of registrars to succeed Harvey M. Blue, resigned. Mr. Blue has accepted a position as field agent of the State tax commission.

Thomas Paroled.

Executive clemency has been extended to Doc Thomas of Dale county, who was sentenced to 75 days at hard labor for violating the prohibition laws. The parole was recommended by the State board of pardons and by the citizens of Dale county, and the parole is conditioned on Thomas's future good conduct.

Hobson Reports $16,785 Expense.

Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, who was defeated in the April primary for United States Senator by Oscar W. Underwood, spent $16,785.32 in the campaign, according to an expense account filed with the Secretary of State. Of the amounts, $8,237.58 was for clerk hire; $5,297.74 for advertising, and the remainder for committee assessments and personal and traveling expenses. Walter D. Seed spent $5,964 in his unsuccessful race for nomination for Governor.

Wooden Legs Used as Weapons.

With each using his wooden leg as a weapon, two city prisoners held in the same cell fought an indecisive battle. Jailer Phenix called off hostilities and ordered the men to turn in their wooden legs. He had found the prisoners pounding each other as they stood at arm's length, hobbling about the floor of the cell in dodging and gaining points of advantage. One of the combatants said he had rather be shot than to part with his wooden leg.

BIRMINGHAM SCENE OF $200,000 FIRE

BIRMINGHAM RAILWAY AND POWER COMPANY'S OFFICE BURNED.

TWO EMPLOYES MEET DEATH

One Man Hangs To Window Sill Until Hands Are Burned Away. Drops To His Death.

Birmingham.—Moody Childers, manager of the printing department, and Henry S. Kyser, foreman of the power department, lost their lives in the fire which gutted the general offices of the Birmingham Railway, Light and power company at First avenue and Twenty-first street. The estimated loss was $200,000, and is partly covered by insurance.

Those injured in the fire numbered a great many, but none were serious enough to be removed to an infirmary with the exception of A. S. Milbrat, a clerk in the timekeeper's office, who was slightly burned and taken to St. Vincent's hospital in Johns' ambulance.

Others slightly injured were Fred Underwood, a brother of Congressman Underwood, who to save his life slid down an elevator cable four floors and lacerated his hands badly.

The fire is said to haye originated in the basement near the elevator shaft. It is stated that the elevator bearings and shaft were soaked with oil from long usage and that in some manner some waste paper caught fire in the basement and then was communicated to the elevator shaft and to all the floors of the building. This is the cause generally accredited by officials of the company who vehemently deny that a gas explosion occurred or that any gas leaked into the building and fed the flames.

Childers' Brave Fight for Life.

There were thousands of eyes in Birmingham before which flitted visions of the horrible death of Moody Childers, the haunting memory of which, in spite of all efforts to dispel it, pursued every one of the thousands of helpless people who saw the brave man make his heroic but futile fight with death.

Childers put up the gamest fight of any of the men caught in the blaze. He didn't drop to his death three stories below because he was scared. Hanging there in mid air with the railings of a window awning his only support, death below and death above him, he chose the latter only when the flames had evidently so burned his hands that the muscles of his fingers refused to longer hold their grip.

Childers first came to the window when there was nothing but a little smoke pouring from it. He stopped there and waited for help. None came. The demon inside roared louder and louder, and suddenly Childers' body was seen silhouted against a mass of red.

From the roofs and windows of surrounding office buildings and stores thousands of eyes were rivited on that one man, every person holding his breath to see what was going to happen. Childers moved. And the thousands shut their eyes. When they opened them Childers was still there, but he had left the window sill and had grasped the outside rail of the awning frame that opened over it. There he hung with his feet downward and through the window where he had been before belched great tongues of hot death. Childers shouted to the firemen below him and his cries could be plainly heard, although not understood by the thousands who held seats in the amphitheatre. The firemen evidently not only did not hear him, but they could not see him on account of the smoke.

Then one of the red swords of flame struck straight out and Childers dropped one arm to his side. His hand no doubt and arm had been nearly burned off. The awning was burning. The onlookers gasped. But he did not fall.

And then there was another dart of flame out to the frail railing to which the man hung with one hand onto his last hope for life. The fingers no doubt were roasted like a flash for Childers' swinging body gave a lunge and darted downward. Probably none of those who had been watching him saw him strike; the sickening, sinking feeling had involuntarily closed their eyes when he let loose of the awning.

And when they opened them the firemen were putting a limp form into an ambulance. Childers had missed their blanket.

Who Outdistanced His Opponent, Former Governor B. B. Comer, in the Race for Governor.

CHARLES HENDERSON CHOSEN GOVERNOR OF ALABAMA OVER FORMER GOV. COMER

RETURNS SHOW THAT THE PRESIDENT OF THE RAILROAD COMMISSION HAS BEEN NOMINATED BY A SAFE MAJORITY.

MARTIN WILL BE ALABAMA'S NEXT ATTORNEY GENERAL

Montgomery Man Is Elected Atttorney General By a Majority of Approximately 20,000—Capt. Frank White, Short Term Senator, Is Given Flattering Complimentary Vote.

Birmingham.—Chares Hendersn, of Troy, was nominated for Governor of Alabama by a decisive majority.

Returns indicate that Mr. Henrerson's majority over former Governor B. B. Comer will be approximately 10,000, and may possibly exceed that figure.

It appeared that Henderson's majority for the state would be determined by his four big counties, Jefferson, Mobile, Montgomery and Pike, although the returns indicated that Governor Comer might even come up to these counties with a small majority.

W. L. Martin defeated D. H. Riddle for attorney general by a majority which will probably go well avobe 20,000.

Persons Apparently is Nominated.

Dr. A. A. Persons has apparently been elected commissioner of agriculture, though his opponent, J. H. Wade, showed special strength in some of the South Alabama counties and ran ahead even in the upper tier of counties.

W. W. Callahan, of Decatur, and Judge E. B. Almon, of Sheffield, ran a close race, but Judge Almon apparently has the best of it.

In the race for Governor Jefferson county gave the next Governor his banner majority and it proved to be all his friends had claimed. With all boxes of the county reported except 20 small county precincts the vote stood: Henderson 8293, Comer 4851, giving Henderson a majority of 3442.

Forty-two Jefferson county boxes, Persons 7418 and Wade 4523.

Forty-one boxes in Jefferson gave Martin 7410 and Riddle 3077.

The school tax carried favorably by a large majority in Jefferson county.

Early Returns Indicate Result.

The result in the Governor's race was indicated very early when the returns from the country precincts of Jefferson county began to come in. It was realized before the primary by political observers that Governor Comer would have to hold down Henderson's majorities in Jefferson and this he failed to do. The first 28 country boxes in Jefferson showed Henderson leading fully 2 to 1 and this ratio was even more than maintained when the city returns began to come in.

The first results from the smaller counties early showed that Governor Comer was not getting the vote that he and his friends had expected. When reports came that Blount, Madison, Shelby, Etowah, Tallapoosa and Dallas and other widely scattered counties had given Henderson larger majorities than even his friends had anticipated, it was soon seen that it was only a question of the Henderson majority.

In order for Comer to win it was necessary for him to come to the big counties of Jefferson, Mobile, Montgomery and Pike with several thousand majority, but the returns soon indicated that in this he had failed.

When Etowah's returns came showing that Henderson had carried this rock-ribbed prohibition county Comer's friends gave up.

When the returns from the state's three largest cities began to come in there was no longer any doubt of the outcome. The Southside fire department box was the first Birmingham box to report. It showed Comer 303, Henderson 718. Then came Ensley with Comer 315 and Henderson 612. Bessemer was the next big box in Jefferson and it showed an even greater proportion, the result being Comer 277 and Henderson 651.

Mobile came in early with a majority in the city for Henderson of practically 1500, while Montgomery upheld the sanguine expectations of the Henderson leaders by making it almost a runaway.

Capt. Frank S. White was given a large complimentary vote for United States senator for the short term to succeed the late Joseph F. Johnston. The election of Captain White was a more formality, as he was nominated over Ray Rushton on April 6, and had no opposition in the special election celled by the Governor.

MONTGOMERY CELEBRATES HENDERSON'S NOMINATION.

Montgomery—Montgomery celebrated the nomination of Charles Henderson by an immense torchlight procession, the parade having been made up entirely of Henderson supporters. As soon as the first returns indicated that Henderson was leading for Governor, a great Henderson demonstration was held on the streets in the business section of the city. Cheers were heard on every corner and a band played lively airs.

ALMON IS SLIGHTLY IN LEAD OF CALLAHAN.

Huntsville.—In the democratic primary election in the Eighth congressional district, Judge E. B. Almon is slightly in the lead of W. W. Callahan in a nip and tuck race for the successor to the late Congressman William Richardson, who declined to run for the new term and died before his present term expired. It may require the official count to determine the actual result.

SYNOPSIS.

Challis Wrandall is found murdered in a road house near New York. Mrs. Wrandall is summoned from the city and identifies the body. A young woman who accompanied Wrandall to the inn and subsequently disappeared, is suspected. Wrandall, it appears, had led a gay life and neglected his wife. Mrs. Wrandall starts back for New York in an auto during a blinding snow storm. On the way she meets a young woman in the road who proves to be the woman who killed Wrandall. Feeling that the girl had done her a service in ridding her of the man who though she loved him deeply, had caused her great sorrow, Mrs. Wrandall determines to shield her and takes her to her own home. Mrs. Wrandall hears the story of Hetty Castleton's life, except that portion that relates to Wrandall. This and the story of the tragedy she forbids the girl ever to tell. She offers Hetty a home, friendship and security from peril on account of the tragedy. Mrs. Sara Wrandall and Hetty attend the funeral of Challis Wrandall at the home of his parents.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

Beside Sara Wrandall, on the small, pink divan, sat a stranger in this somber company: a young woman in black, whose pale face was uncovered, and whose lashes were lifted so rarely that one could not know of the deep, real pain that lay behind them, in her Irish blue eyes.

She had arrived at the house an hour or two before the time set for the ceremony, in company with the widow. True to her resolution, the widow of Challis Wrandall had remained away from the home of his people until the last hour. She had been consulted, to be sure, in regard to the final arrangements, but the meetings had taken place in her own apartment, many blocks distant from the house in lower Fifth avenue. The afternoon before she had received Redmond Wrandall and Leslie, his son. She had not sent for them. They came perfunctorily and not through any sense of obligation. These two at least knew that sympathy was not what she wanted, but peace. Twice during the two trying days, Leslie had come to see her, Vivian telephoned.

On the occasion of his first visit, Leslie had met the guest in the house. The second time he called, he made it a point to ask Sara all about her.

It was he who gently closed the door after the two women when, on the morning of the funeral, they entered the dark, flower-laden room in which stood the casket containing the body of his brother. He left them alone together in that room for half an hour or more, and it was he who went forward to meet them when they came forth. Sara leaned on his arm as she ascended the stairs to the room where the others were waiting. The ashen-faced girl followed.

Mrs. Wrandall, the elder, kissed Sara and drew her down beside her on the couch. To her own surprise, as well as that of the others, Sara broke down and wept bitterly. After all, she was sorry for Challis' mother. It was the human instinct, she could not hold out against it. And the older woman put away the ancient grudge she held against this mortal enemy and dissolved into tears of real compassion.

A little later she whispered brokenly in Sara's ear: "My dear, my dear, this has brought us together. I hope you will learn to love me."

Sara caught her breath, but uttered no word. She looked into her mother-in-law's eyes, and smiled through her tears. The Wrandalls, looking on in amaze, saw the smile reflected in the face of the older woman. Then it was that Vivian crossed quickly and put her arms about the shoulders of her sister-in-law. The white flag on both sides.

Hetty Castleton stood alone and wavering, just inside the door. No stranger situation could be imagined than the one in which this unfortunate girl found herself at the present moment. She was virtually in the hands of those who would destroy her; she was in the house of those who most deeply were affected by her act on that fatal night. Among them all she stood, facing them, listening to the moans and sobs, and yet her limbs did not give way beneath her. . . .

Some one gently touched her arm. It was Leslie. She shrank back, a fearful look in her eyes. In the semi-darkness he failed to note the expression.

"Won't you sit here?" he asked, indicating the little pink divan against the wall. "Forgive me for letting you stand so long."

She looked about her, the wild light still in her eyes. She was like a rat in a trap.

Her lips parted, but the word of thanks did not come forth. A strange, inarticulate sound, almost a gasp, came instead. Pallid as a ghost, she dropped limply to the divan, and dug her fingers into the satiny seat. As if fascinated, she stared over the black heads of the three women immediately in front of her at the full-length portrait hanging where the light from the hall fell upon it: the portrait of a dashing youth in riding togs.

A moment later Sara Wrandall came over and sat beside her. The girl shivered as with a mighty chill when the warm hand of her friend fell upon hers and enveloped it in a firm clasp.

"His mother kissed me," whispered Sara. "Did you see?"

The girl could not reply. She could only stare at the open door. A small, hatchet-faced man had come up from below and was nodding his head to Leslie Wrandall—a man with short side whiskers, and a sepulchral look in his eyes. Then, having received a sign from Leslie, he tiptoed away. Almost instantly the voices of people singing softly came from some distant remote part of the house.

And then, a little later, the perfectly modulated voice of a man in prayer.

Back of her, Wrandalls; beside her, Wrandalls; beneath her, friends of the Wrandalls; outside, the rabble, those who would join with these black, raven-like specters in tearing her to pieces if they but knew!

The droning voice came up from below, each well-chosen word distinct and clear: tribute beautiful to the irreproachable character of the deceased. Leslie watched the face of the girl, curiously fascinated by the set, emotionless features, and yet without a conscious interest in her. He was dully sensible to the fact that she was beautiful, uncommonly beautiful. It did not occur to him to feel that she was out of place among them, that she belonged down stairs. Somehow she was a part of the surroundings, like the specter at the feast.

If he could have witnessed all that transpired while Sara was in the room below with her guest—her companion, as he had come to regard her without having in fact been told as much—he would have been lost in a maze of the most overwhelming emotions.

To go back: The door had barely closed behind the two women when Hetty's trembling knees gave way beneath her. With a low moan of horror, she slipped to the floor, covering her face with her hands.

Sara knelt beside her.

"Come," she said gently, but firmly; "I must exact this much of you. If we are to go on together, as we have planned, you must stand beside me at his bier. Together we must look upon him for the last time. You must see him as I saw him up there in the country. I had my cruel blow that night. It is your turn now. I will not blame you for what you did. But if you expect me to go on believing that you did a brave thing that night, you must convince me that you are not a coward now. It is the only test I shall put you to. Come; I know it is hard, I know it is terrible, but it is the true test of your ability to go through with it to the end. I shall know then that you have the courage to face anything that may come up."

She waited a long time, her hand on the girl's shoulder. At last Hetty arose.

"You are right," she said hoarsely. "I should not be afraid."

Later on they sat over against the wall beyond the casket, into which they had peered with widely varying emotions. Sara had said:

"You know that I loved him."

The girl put her hands to her eyes and bowed her head.

"Oh, how can you be so merciful to me?"

"Because he was not," said Sara, white-lipped. Hetty glanced at the half-averted face with queer, indescribable expression in her eyes.

If Leslie Wrandall could have looked in upon them at that moment, or at any time during the half an hour that followed, he would have known who was the slayer of his brother, but it is doubtful if he could have had the heart to denounce her to the world.

When they were ready to leave the room Hetty had regained control of her nerves to a most surprising extent, a condition unmistakably due to the influence of the older woman.

"I can trust myself now, Mrs. Wrandall," said Hetty steadily as they hesitated for an instant before turning the knob of the door.

"Then I shall ask you to open the door," said Sara, drawing back.

Without a word or a look, Hetty opened the door and permitted the other to pass out before her. Then she followed, closing it gently, even deliberately, but not without a swift glance over her shoulder into the depths of the room they were leaving.

Of the two, Sara Wrandall was the paler as they went up the broad staircase with Leslie.

The funeral oration by the Rev. Dr. Maltby dragged on. Among all his hearers there was but one who believed the things he said of Challis Wrandall, and she was one of two persons who, so they saying goes, are the last to find a man out; his mother and his sister. But in this instance the mother was alone. The silent, attentive guests on the lower floor listened in grim approval: Dr. Maltby was doing himself proud. Not one but all of them knew that Maltby knew. And yet how soothing he was.

* * * * * * * *

By the end of the week the murder of Challis Wrandall was forgotten by all save the police. The inquest was over, the law was baffled, the city was serenely waiting for its next sensation. No one cared.

Leslie Wrandall went down to the steamer to see his sister-in-law off for Europe.

"Goodby, Miss Castleton," he said, as he shook the hand of the slim young Englishwoman at parting. "Take good care of Sara. She needs a friend, a good friend, now. Keep her over there until she has—forgotten."

CHAPTER V.

Discussing a Sister-in-Law.

"You remember my sister-in-law, don't you, Brandy?" was the question that Leslie Wrandall put to a friend one afternoon, as they sat drearily in a window of one of the fashionable uptown clubs, a little more than a year after the events described in the foregoing chapters. Drearily, I have said, for the reason that it was Sunday, and raining at that.

"I met Mrs. Wrandall a few years ago in Rome," said his companion, renewing interest in a conversation that had died some time before of its own exhaustion. "She's most attractive. I saw her but once. I think it was at somebody's fete."

"She's returning to New York the end of the month," said Leslie. "Been abroad for over a year. She had a villa at Nice this winter."

"I remember her quite well. I was of an age then to be particularly sensitive to female loveliness. If I'd been staying on in Rome, I should have screwed up the courage, I'm sure, to have asked her to sit for me."

Brandon Booth was of an old Philadelphia family: an old and wealthy family. Both views considered, he was qualified to walk hand in glove with the fastidious Wrandalls. Leslie's mother was charmed with him because she was also the mother of Vivian. The fact that he went in for portrait painting and seemed averse to subsisting on the generosity of his father, preferring to live by his talent, in no way operated against him, so far as Mrs. Wrandall was concerned. That was his lookout, not hers; if he elected to that sort of thing, all well and good. He could afford to be eccentric; there remained, in the perspective he scorned, the bulk of a huge fortune to offset whatever idiosyncrasies he might choose to cultivate. Some day, in spite of himself, she contended serenely, he would be very, very rich. What could be more desirable than fame, family and fortune all heaped together and thrust upon one exceedingly interesting and handsome young man?

He had been the pupil of celebrated draftsmen and painters in Europe, and had exhibited a sincerity of purpose that was surprising, all things considered. The mere fact that he was not obliged to paint in order to obtain a living was sufficient cause for wonder among the artists he met and studied with or under.

His studio in New York was not a fashionable resting place. It was a workshop. You could have tea there, of course, and you were sure to meet people you knew and liked, but it was quite as much of a workshop as any you could mention. He was not a dabbler in art, not a mere dauber of pigments: he was an artist.

Booth was thirty—perhaps a year or two older; tall, dark and good looking. The air of the thoroughbred marked him. He did not affect loose, flowing cravats and baggy trousers, nor was he careless about his fingernails. He was simply the ordinary, every-day sort of chap you would meet in Fifth avenue during parade hours, and you would take a second look at him because of his face and manner but not on account of his dress. Some of his ancestors came over ahead of the Mayflower, but he did not gloat.

Leslie Wrandall was his closest friend and harshest critic. It didn't really matter to Booth what Leslie said of his paintings: he quite understood that he didn't know anything about them.

"When does Mrs. Wrandall return?" asked the painter, after a long period of silence spent in contemplation of the gleaming pavement beyond the club's window.

"That's queer," said Leslie, looking up. "I was thinking of Sara myself. She sails next week. I've had a letter asking me to open her house in the country. Her place is about two miles from father's. It hasn't been opened in two years. Her father built it fifteen or twenty years ago, and left it to her when he died. She and Challis spent several summers there."

"Vivian took me through it one afternoon last summer."

"It must have been quite as much of a novelty to her as it was to you, old chap," said Leslie gloomily.

"What do you mean?"

"Vivian's a bit of a snob. She never liked the place because old man Gooch built it out of worsteds. She never went there."

"But the old man's been dead for years."

"That doesn't matter. The fact is, Vivian didn't quite take to Sara until after—well, until after Challis died. We're dreadful snobs, Brandy, the whole lot of us. Sara was quite good enough for a much better man than my brother. She really couldn't help the worsteds, you know. I'm very fond of her, and always have been. We're pals. 'Gad, it was a fearful slap at the home folks when Challis justified Sara by getting snuffed out the way he did."

Booth made an attempt to change the subject, but Wrandall got back to it.

"Since then we've all been exceedingly sweet on Sara. Not because we want to be, mind you, but because we're afraid she'll marry some chap who wouldn't be acceptable to us."

"I should consider that a very neat way out of it," said Booth coldly.

"Not at all. You see, Challis was fond of Sara, in spite of everything. He left a will and under it she came in for all he had. As that includes a third interest in our extremely refined and irreproachable business, it would be a deuce of a trick on us if she married one of the common people and set him up amongst us, willy-nilly. We don't want strange bedfellows. We're too snug—and I might say, too smug. Down in her heart mother is saying to herself it would be just like Sara to get even with us by doing just that sort of a trick. Of course Sara is rich enough without accepting a sou under the will, but she's a canny person. She hasn't handed it back to us on a silver platter, with thanks; still, on the other hand, she refuses to meddle. She makes us feel pretty small. She won't sell out to us. She just sits tight. That's what gets under the skin with mother."

"I wouldn't say that, Les, if I were in your place."

"It is a rather priggish thing to say, isn't it?"

"Rather."

"You see, I'm the only one who really took sides with Sara. I forget myself sometimes. She was such a brick, all those years."

Booth was silent for a moment, noting the reflective look in his companion's eyes.

"I suppose the police haven't given up the hope that sooner or later the—er—the woman will do something to give herself away," said he.

"They don't take any stock in my theory that she made way with herself the same night. I was talking with the chief yesterday. He says that anyone who had wit to cover up her tracks as she did, is not the kind to make way with herself. Perhaps he's right. It sounds reasonable. 'Gad, I felt sorry for the poor girl they had up last spring. She went through the third degree, if ever anyone did, but, by Jove, she came out of it all right. The Ashtley girl, you remember. I've dreamed about that girl, Brandy, and what they put her through. It's a sort of nightmare to me, even when I'm awake. Oh, they've questioned others as well, but she was the only one to have the screws twisted in just that way."

"Where is she now?"

"She's comfortable enough now. When I wrote to Sara about what she'd been through, she settled a neat bit of money on her, and she'll never want for anything. She's out west somewhere, with her mother and sisters. I tell you, Sara's a wonder. She's got a heart of gold."

"I look forward to meeting her, old man."

"I was with her for a few weeks this winter. In Nice, you know. Vivian stayed on for a week, but mother had to get to the baths. 'Gad, I believe she hated to go. Sara's got a most adorable girl staying with her. A daughter of Colonel Castleton, and she's connected in some way with the Murgatroyds—old Lord Murgatroyd, you know. I think her mother was a niece of the old boy. Anyhow, mother and Vivian have taken a great fancy to her. That's proof of the pudding."

"I think Vivian mentioned a companion of some sort."

"You wouldn't exactly call her a companion," said Leslie. "She's got money to burn, I take it. Quite keeps up with Sara in making it fly, and that's saying a good deal for her resources. I think it's a pose on her part, this calling herself a companion. An English joke, eh? As a matter of fact, she's an old friend of Sara's and my brother's too. Knew them in England. Most delightful girl. Oh, I say, old man, she's the one for you to paint." Leslie waxed enthusiastic. "A type, a positive type. Never saw such eyes in all my life. Dammit, they haunt you. You dream about 'em."

"You seem to be hard hit," said Booth indifferently. He was watching the man in the "slicker" through moody eyes.

"Oh, nothing like that," disclaimed Leslie with unnecessary promptness. "But if I were given to that sort of thing, I'd be bowled over in a minute. Positively adorable face. If I thought you had it in you to paint a thing as it really is I'd commission you myself to do a miniature for me, just to have it around where I could pick it up when I liked and hold it between my hands, just as I've often wanted to hold the real thing."

* * * * * * * *

Sara Wrandall returned to New York at the end of the month, and Leslie met her at the dock, as he did on an occasion fourteen months earlier. Then she came in on a fierce gale from the wintry Atlantic; this time the air was soft and balmy and sweet with the kindness of spring. It was May and the sea was blue, the land was green.

Again she went to the small, exclusive hotel near the park. Her apartment was closed, the butler and his wife and all of their hastily recruited company being in the country, awaiting her arrival from town. Leslie attended to everything. He lent his resourceful man servant and his motor to his lovely sister-in-law, and saw to it that his mother and Vivian sent flowers to the ship. Redmond Wrandall called at the hotel immediately after banking hours, kissed his daughter-in-law, and delivered an ultimatum second-hand from the power at home: she was to come to dinner and bring Miss Castleton. A little quiet family dinner, you know, because they were all in mourning, he said in conclusion, vaguely realizing all the while that it really wasn't necessary to supply the information, but, for the life of him, unable to think of anything else to say under the circumstances. Somehow it seemed to him that while Sara was in black she was not in mourning in the same sense that the rest of them were. It seemed only right to acquaint her with the conditions in his household. And he knew that he deserved the scowl that Leslie bestowed upon him.

Sara accepted, much to his surprise and gratification. He had been rather dubious about it. It would not have surprised him in the least if she had declined the invitation, feeling, as he did, that he had in a way come to her with a white flag or an olive branch or whatever it is that a combative force utilizes when it wants to surrender in the cause of humanity.

As soon as they were alone Hetty turned to her friend.

"Oh, Sara, can't you go without me? Tell them that I am ill—suddenly ill. I—I don't think it right or honorable of me to accept—"

Sara shook her head, and the words died on the girl's lips.

"You must play the game, Hetty."

"It's—very hard," murmured the other, her face very white and bleak.

"I know, my dear," said Sara gently.

"If they should ever find out," gasped the girl, suddenly giving way to the dread that had been lying dormant all these months.

"They will never know the truth unless you choose to enlighten them," said Sara, putting her arm about the girl's shoulders and drawing her close.

"You never cease to be wonderful, Sara—so very wonderful," cried the girl, with a look of worship in her eyes.

Sara regarded her in silence for a moment, reflecting. Then, with a swift rush of tears to her eyes, she cried fiercely:

"You must never, never tell me all that happened, Hetty! You must not speak it with your own lips."

"You Must Play the Game, Hetty."

Hetty's eyes grew dark with pain and wonder.

"That is the thing I can't understand in you, Sara," she said slowly.

"We must not speak of it!"

Hetty's bosom heaved. "Speak of it!" she cried, absolute agony in her voice. "Have I not kept it locked in my heart since that awful day—"

"Hush!"

"I shall go mad if I cannot talk with you about—"

"No, no! It is the forbidden subject! I know all that I should know—all that I care to know. We have not said so much as this in months—in ages, it seems. Let sleeping dogs lie. We are better off, my dear. I could not touch your lips again."

"I—I can't bear the thought of that!"

"Kiss me now, Hetty."

"I could die for you, Sara," cried Hetty, as she impulsively obeyed the command.

"I mean that you shall live for me," said Sara, smiling through her tears. "How silly of me to cry. It must be the room we are in. These are the same rooms, dear, that you came to on the night we met. Ah, how old I feel!"

"Old? You say that to me? I am ages and ages older than you," cried Hetty, the color coming back to her soft cheeks.

"You are twenty-three."

"And you are twenty-eight."

Sara had a far-away look in her eyes. "About your size and figure," said she, and Hetty did not comprehend.

CHAPTER VI.

Southlook.

Sara Wrandall's house in the country stood on a wooded knoll overlooking the sound. It was rather remotely located, so far as neighbors were concerned. Her father, Sebastian Gooch, shrewdly foresaw the day when land in this particular section of the suburban world would return dollars for pennies, and wisely bought thousands of acres: woodland, meadowland, beachland and hills, inserted between the environs of New York city and the rich towns up the coast. Years afterward he built a commodious summer home on the choicest point that his property afforded, named it Southlook, and transformed that particular part of his wilderness into a millionaire's paradise, where he could dawdle and putter to his heart's content, where he could spend his time and his money with a prodigality that came so late in life to him that he made waste of both in his haste to live down a rather parsimonious past.

Two miles and a half away, in the heart of a scattered colony of purse-proud New Yorkers, was the country home of the Wrandalls, an imposing place and older by far than Southlook. It had descended from well-worn and time-stained ancestors to Redmond Wrandall, and, with others of its kind, looked with no little scorn upon the modern, mushroom structures that sprouted from the seeds of trade. There was no friendship between the old and the new. Each had recourse to a bitter contempt for the other, though consolation was small in comparison.

It was in the wooded by-ways of this despised domain that Challis Wrandall and Sara, the earthly daughter of Midas, met and loved and defied all things supernal, for matches are made in heaven. Their marriage did not open the gates of Nineveh. Sebastian Gooch's paradise was more completely ostracised than it was before the disaster. The Wrandalls spoke of it as a disaster.

Clearly the old merchant was not over-pleased with his daughter's choice, a conclusion permanently established by the alteration he made in his will a year or two after the marriage. True, he left the vast estate to his beloved daughter Sara, but he fastened a stout string to it, and with this string her hands were tied. It must have occurred to him that Challis was a profligate in more ways than one, for he deliberately stipulated in his will that Sara was not to sell a foot of the ground until a period of twenty years had elapsed. A very polite way, it would seem, of making his investment safe in the face of considerable odds.

He lived long enough after the making of his will, I am happy to relate, to find that he had made no mistake. As he preceded his son-in-law into the great beyond by a scant three years, it readily may be seen that he wrought too well by far. Seventeen unnecessary years of proscription remained, and he had not intended them for Sara alone. He was not afraid of Sara, but for her.

When the will was read and the condition revealed, Challis Wrandall took it in perfect good humor. He had the grace to proclaim in the bosom of his father's family that the old gentleman was a father-in-law to be proud of. "A canny old boy," he had announced with his most engaging smile, quite free from rancor or resentment. Challis was well acquainted with himself.

And so the acres were strapped together snugly and firmly, without so much as a town lot protruding.

So impressed was Challis by the far-sightedness of his father-in-law that he forthwith sat him down and made a will of his own. He would not have it said that Sara's father did a whit better by her than he would do. He left everything he possessed to his wife, but put no string to it, blandly implying that all danger would be past when she came into possession. There was a sort of grim humor in the way he managed to present himself to view as the real and ready source of peril.

THE UNION-BANNER

Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama.
UNION PUBLISHING CO.
W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.00.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala. as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

"When fifteen families in New York City steal $176,800,000 a year, under the infernal devices called "laws" there are fifteen million families that will want to know how much longer the robbers of special privilege are to be endured. The hungry multitudes who have been plundered by such thieves as the Rockefellers, will not always submit to starvation, and to machine gun murder."—The Jeffersonian.

What have the Democrats done with that pledge in the Baltimore platform which promises relief to the multitudes by a solution of the trusts and corporation evils, and thereby attaining the much desired reduction in the cost of living? They must have diverted it into the policy of "watchful waiting."

The spring term of the Circuit court of Chilton County is in session this week. The civil docket is being taken up and disposed of. However this is not very important as a matter of general interest. The criminal docket will be taken up next week at which time there will be a disposal of some rather important cases.

Court was called Monday just before noon, but as a tribute of respect to the late Hon. Tipton Mullins, who has for many years been a prominent character in the courts of the county, all work was suspended for the remainder of the day, and taken up again on Tuesday. The honor thus payed to the memory of Mr. Mullins was very fitting, as the esteem which he is held in by the Court is one of the deepest sincerity.

The Grand Jury is busy handling investigations that are being brought up for their consideration.

Tom Watson in the Jeffersonian of May 7th writing of the Mexican situation says: "President Wilson refused to recognize Huerta's usurped and blood stained government: he still refuses to take the hand of the traitor and murderer of Madero: yet he goes to war, killing Mexicans and causing Americans to be killed because Huerta's government will not salute the American flag. In other words, Huerta's government is nonexistent, so far as President Wilson can make it so: and because this non-existent government does not salute our flag we go to war! Could anything be more iudefensible?"

We say not. And there are thousands of American citizens who say the same thing as Mr. Watson says. How a man can make demands of institutions that he himself does not credit with an existence, and entertain the least faith in receiving attention from them seems to be one of the novel theories that are being put forth by our "watchful waiting grape juice diplomacy."

Waterworks System Is Being Pushed

Work on the installation of the waterworks system for Clanton is progressing rapidly, and indications are now that by the end of the summer Clanton will be enjoying the great advantages that always come from having such accommodations at hand. Material for both the waterworks and sewerage are being placed, ditches are being dug, and everything is rapidly being arranged for pushing the work along. The work is under the direction of the McCrary Company of Atlanta, and the way they are handling the job is universally approved by the citizens and officials of the town.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me a small space to say a few words to the voters of Chilton county in regard to same old Moses letter in the Press of April 30, 1914, as I promised last week.

Oh, my, my, he was howling about the false prophets. Well, I guess he thinks that the people of Chilton county have forgot how he (Moses) hung around them asking them to elect him Sheriff and then, when they did, then turn his office open to the Democrats. Oh, yes Moses, the Democrats promised to reduce the high cost of living, if the people would just elect them to office. Now, we all know that they have not done it. By the way, why was it, that it took the Democrats nine months to pass the low tariff law with both houses and the President Democrats? Yet they were drawing $25.00 per day for their service.

Now then, he (Moses) was talking about the ignorant voter. Of course we are ignorant to a great extent, as the people have not yet learned how to get an office, and then get shut of it as quick as you did. But let me tell you now, the people of Chilton county have got large enough to take notice of a few things. They noticed that you have turned your back on the people. Say, why did not Moses give you some reason why you should come into the Democratic party. He forgot to tell you that the Democrats had created new offices, raised the salary of the others, passed law that the man that handled the most money (belonging to the people) of any man in the state did not have to give any bond; nothing to do but walk away with $90,000 of your money. Yet your Justices of the Peace or your Constable who handles fifty cents, must make bond for $500.00. Now, what about that?

Why did not Moses tell the people ever since the Democrats have been in power in Chilton county, that it has been petition after petition, mass meeting after mass meeting, trying to get the rights of the people?

Now then, someone please explain to the people whether the Democrats have got out the biggest set of grand rascals seeking office or a big set of liars. From the way they put it up on one an other there is not one in the whole blooming push fit for an official. County offices must be a mighty good thing, for you worked mighty hard Moses to get one, but you did not have the manhood to hold it. Yes sir Moses, the people of Chilton county have learned not to follow false political prophets any longer, that is the reason that the people of Chilton is going to give the largest majority to the Bull Moose this time. That was clearly proven two years ago.

Hurrah, for a voter. Wasn't he a daisy?

Announcing the New Typewriter
OLIVER NO. 7

WE ANNOUNCE AN AMAZING MODEL—The OLIVER No. 7—a typewriter of superexcellence, with automatic devices and refinements that mark the zenith of typewriter progress. A marvel of beauty, speed and easy action. Typewriting efficiency raised to the nth power.

The OLIVER No. 7 embodies all previous Oliver innovations and new self-acting devices never before seen on any typewriter. A leap in advance which places The Oliver ten years ahead of its time. So smooth in action, so light to the touch, so easy to run, that experts are amazed. A model that means to the typist delightful ease of operation.

A model that means a higher standard of typewriting, longer and better service.

The No. 7 is now on exhibit and sale at all Oliver Branches nd Agencies throughout the United States.

The new model has more improvements, refinements and new uses than we can even enumerate here.

The "cushioned keyboard" with 'anchor keys" and the new automatic features mean less work for the hands, less strain on the eyes, less manuel and mental effort.

With all of these masterly mechanical improvements we have made the machine more beautiful and symmetrical. From every standpoint The OLIVER No. 7 attains superlative excellence.

Nothing you could wish for has been omitted. The new devices, refinements, improvements and conveniences found on the No. 7 represent an enormous outlay and vastly increase its value—the price has not been advanced one penny. We shall even continue in force our popular 17-Cents-a-Day purchase plan, the same as on previous Oliver models.

The OLIVER No. 7, equipped with the famous Printype, if desired, without extra charge.

You owe it to ypurself to see the new machine before you buy any typewriter at any price. Note its beauty, speed and easy action, its wonderful automatic devices. Try it on any work that is ever done on typewriters. Try it on many kinds of work that no other typewriter will do.

It is a significant fact that the typewriter that introduced such epoch-making innovations as visible writing, visible reading, Printype, etc., should be the first to introduce automatic methods of operation.

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The rich chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.

If the first box fails to benefit, the price is returned. Ask your druggist. A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

THE SERVANT QUESTION SOLVED

So Far as This Lady is Concerned —She Doesn't Seem to Need One.

Pollock, La.—Mrs. T. S. Blair, of this town, has the following to say, which should be of interest to women generally: "For months, my health was very bad, and the medicines I took did not seem to do me any good.

I was very weak and nervous, and some days, I could not be up.

I asked my husband to get me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, to try, and before I had taken one bottle I was up and doing my work. Before I commenced taking Cardui, I had such spells I was not able to do anything. Now, I have only taken three bottles of Cardui in all, and I feel fine.

A few months ago I weighed 135 pounds. Now I weigh 158, and I do all my own work, cook, wash and milk—and feel like I did when I was 'sweet sixteen.'

Taking Cardui has cured me."

As a relief from the distressing symptoms of womanly ailments, nothing has been found during the past 50 years that would take the place of Cardui.

Its superiority is still unquestioned as a mild, building tonic for cases of womanly weakness where tired nature needs help. Made from purely vegetable ingredients, Cardui has no bad after effects and can do you nothing but good.

Try Cardui.—Adv.

STOP THAT BACKACHE

There's nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. You are lame when you awake. Pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to rest and next day it's the same old story.

Pain in the back is nature's warning of kidney ills. Neglect may pave the way to dropsy, gravel, or other serious kidney sickness.

MALARIA MOSQUITO ADDS TO DAMAGE OF COTTON BOLL WEEVIL

Anopheles Causing Great Loss in Labor and Crop Production Throughout the South—Results Show in Preliminary Study of a Malaria Infected Plantation.

The malaria mosquito is not only causing tremendous annual losses in farm labor and production in the South, but is indirectly increasing the destructiveness of the cotton boll weevil, according to statements of specialists of the United States department of agriculture. These statements follow a study of a mosquito-infected plantation in Louisiana made during the last cotton and corn crop season by specialists of the bureau of entomology as a preliminary to a more extended investigation of the effect of malaria on farm production and profits.

On this single farm the specialists found that the malaria mosquito so affected the workers that the equivalent of 7.39 weeks of work by adult labor were lost per family during the seasons when crops were under cultivation. This does not include the lessened efficiency of convalescents or the lack of interest and energy resulting from malarial illness.

The Louisiana farm selected for the experiment contains 3,540 acres, of which 1,800 acres was under cultivation and 1,740 acres was in swamp land timber. The natural conditions on the plantation, it is believed, prevail on nearly 200,000 square miles of farming land in the South. Of the tilled acreage about 1,600 acres were cultivated by tenant farmers who took three-fourths of their yield if they supplied mules, seed, implements, and feed, or one-half of their yield if the plantation owner supplied these items. The balance of the cultivated acreage was worked with day labor at one dollar per day.

The plantation physician stated at the beginning of the survey that fully 75 per cent. of the families on the plantation were afflicted with malaria and at least two members of every afflicted family had the disease in a serious form at some time during the crop season. Nine out of every ten patients in his practise he said were malaria subjects. A study of the records of the plantation show that 46 out of 64 families were treated for malaria by the doctor during the past season. This number is probably too low, the department's specialists believe, because many families try to avoid the cost of medical attendance, and the negro has a natural aversion to proper medical treatment.

Effect of Malaria in 12 Families.

The department's investigator made a detailed study of 12 families with the following results:

Number in family.	Location of house.	No. sick in family.	Total time lost on account of Malaria. Weeks
8	Near woods	8	11
8	Near woods and along Bayou	7	20½
7	Open field	3	6¾
3	Along Bayou	3	6
8	Near woods	6	7½
7	Near woods	2	2
2	Along Bayou	1	5
3	Open field	1	2
5	Along Bayou	5	15
8	Open field	1	2
2	Along Bayou	2	8
4	Open field	3	3
65		42	88¾

The number of cases in these families which reported sickness would indicate that there were 149 persons who suffered seriously from the disease in the total of 64 families. In these cases the loss of time involved represents only the severe cases. The number who have the disease in an inactive state or some other form is undoubtedly far in excess of these figures.

Loss of Time Through Malaria.

Presuming that the loss of 88.75 weeks for 12 families holds for the 46 infected families, the total loss of time would be 340 weeks for the 46 malarial families. The loss of time is based on the work of an adult. Members of the family between twelve and sixteen years of age are figured at one-half time, and those between eight and twelve at one-fourth. This loss of time figured at the rate of wages of one dollar per day would amount to $2,380. This does not include the actual loss for medical fees and medicine. As these people are tenant farmers, however, it is to be presumed that their labor is worth more to themselves and the plantation than that of the usual day laborer. As this loss of labor was distributed throughout the season, the actual loss to the plantation and to the tenant farmer would have to be figured on the effect on the crop of this loss of time spread over the crop season. The investigators were unable to do this during the past season. But in consequent investigations the actual per acre production of the malarial and nonmalarial farms will be contrasted so as to determine the actual effect of malaria on the crop. Inasmuch as malaria affects these people most seriously during the critical times of corn and cotton cultivation, it is probable that it directly lessens the production.

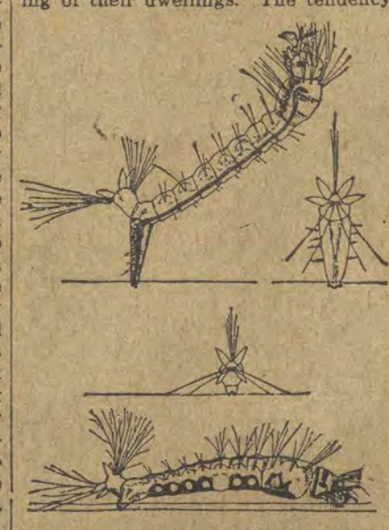
The loss of time figured is for actual incapacity on account of sickness, and does not include the loss of time by healthy members of the family in nursing the members who were ill. In one case observed by the investigator, the wife was suffering from a serious attack of malaria and the husband remained at home to take care of her. There were five children in this family who usually work with their parents in the field. These were all congregated in idleness about the house in spite of the fact that the work of picking cotton was in progress and the weather was most favorable. As a result, the entire time of this family of seven was lost through the illness of one member.

The loss of time figured is merely the time of actual incapacity and does not take into consideration the diminished strength, energy and interest of the patient when he is trying to work in the fields during his convalescence.

Effect of Malaria on Efficiency.

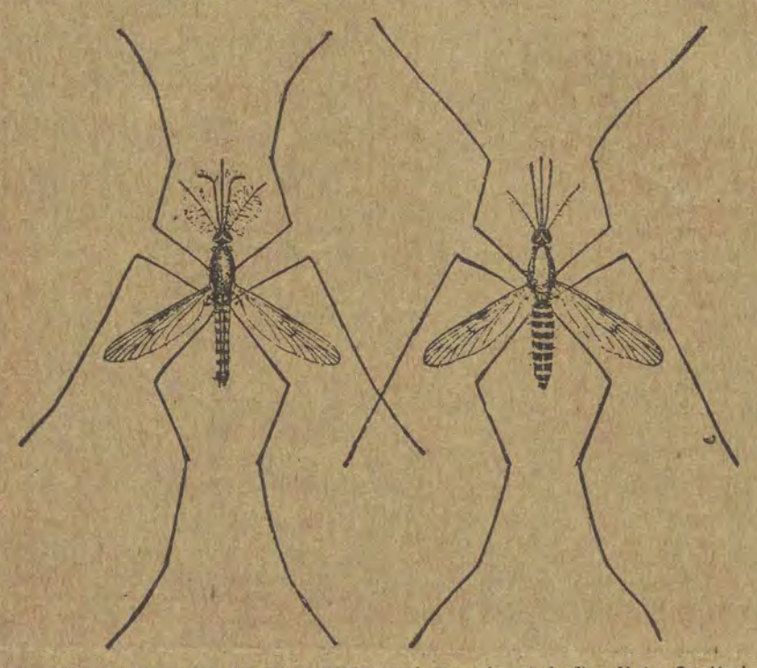
The manager of the property states that an estimate, based on actual loss of time, which would place the loss to the plantation owners from reduced production at $3,835, and to the tenants at $1,115, would be very low. This would mean that if the loss were prevented there would be an increased income of $24 per family for each of the 46 malarial tenant families together with the above increase in returns to the plantation. This manager is positive that 50 families, or possibly even as few as 40 families, without malaria could have produced as much as the 64 families under the malarial conditions that prevailed.

The manager of another plantation, which raises rice, states that the labor problem, because of malaria, is acute at the time of planting and during the harvest season. He says that "chills" are particularly serious during the harvest season, and that the labor force then becomes greatly reduced. In 1912 he had to go outside his district for hands and recruited 35 men. These men were all in healthy condition and worked well for two weeks. At the end of this time they began to have "chills," and before the end of the harvest 20 out of 35 were incapacitated for work. All these men returned to their homes. In 1913 the same man sought to recruit men from the same place to harvest the rice crop, but they refused to come. They stated that their physician advised them not to go to the rice fields. This physician informed the manager that these men who worked for him during the previous season returned to their homes unfit for work in the cane during the grinding season, and that he advised them not to go north to the rice fields. Another manager of a cane plantation also stated that men who had worked in the rice fields were unfit on their return home, because of malaria, to work in the cane fields.



Malaria and Boll Weevil Injury.

An important observation made in this region by the investigator during the past season is that portions of the loss through injury by the boll weevil must be debited to malaria. Under normal conditions, the loss of time is not always so serious a matter, after the cotton crop is laid by and before time of picking. Under boll weevil conditions, however, both loss of time and decreased efficiency become more serious throughout the entire season. Failure to keep up with the crop, that is, to plant at the right time, to give the crop good cultivation, and to carry out control measures for weevil, gives the weevil an advantage over the plant. Many of the tenants are incapacitated by malaria at these critical times in the culture of the crop. The owner of one plantation said that the loss sustained through malaria far exceeds that of the boll weevil. In the case of the boll weevil, only one crop suffers; while in the case of malaria not only all crops but all agricultural development, as well, suffer.



Suggested Remedy for the Loss.

The investigators found that the mosquito which was the cause of malaria on the plantation studied was the Anopheles quadrimaculatus Say, one of the species of Anopheles known to carry malaria. The Anopheles can be distinguished from other mosquitoes in the following way: The wings of this malaria-carrying mosquito are more or less spotted. The projections on either side of its beak are nearly as long as the beak itself. The easiest way to distinguish this mosquito is by observing its resting position. The Anopheles when biting has its beak and head and body in the same line at an angle from the skin. The nonmalarial mosquito, or Culex, keeps its body and wings parallel with the resting place and its beak is at an angle with its body, like the letter "L" laid on its side.

On the plantation in question, the malarial mosquito was found in the house and frequently in the mosquito bars over the beds in the negro cabins. As a result of this study the investigators do not believe that the screening of negro cabins would be effective, because the negroes are careless about keeping mosquitoes out of their houses and the presence of a malaria-carrying mosquito screened in with a malaria subject would practically insure the infection of the entire family. Negroes are usually careless about going out after nightfall. Outside of work hours, on holidays, or at night, the negro farmer is apt to be at a lodge meeting, at the store, at church, in a saloon, or in the cabin of some friend—in fact any place except his own home. This habit of congregating at night outside of their own cabins would practically offset any protection to them through screening of their dwellings. The tendency of the negro to move about from place to place and his aversion to proper medical treatment, especially a prolonged course of quinine, renders the successful treatment of the disease with quinine impracticable. Reduction of malaria, the report concludes, depends upon the control of the mosquito-carriers of the disease. In the ultimate control, drainage will probably play the greater part.

Opinions of Scientists.

The opinion of the two managers quoted are in line with the following references:

Prof. Glenn W. Herrick of Cornell, formerly state entomologist of Mississippi, in 1903, wrote:

"The South as a whole has given little thought to the tremendous role malaria plays in her industries, especially in agriculture. We have no idea of the loss occasioned by malaria in unfitting men for long or energetic hours of labor. The loss of energy and enthusiasm, the loss of interest in one's own efforts and success, all of which contribute enormously to the inefficiency of labor and cause the wealth-producing power, especially in agriculture, to fall far short of its normal capacity, is due in a marvelous and undreamed-of degree to that life-sapping disease, malaria. The man that is just able to 'crawl out of bed and drag around' is certainly not the man to accomplish an efficient and full day's labor. Because a man is at work is not necessarily a proof that he is actually adding to the sum total of his own wealth or to that of the state, and in a lesser degree does it prove that he is adding to the sum total of wealth, all of which he is capable. A man's general state of health has quite as much relation to his producing powers as the amount and kind of food he eats. And certainly there is no disease known to man that more insidiously undermines his constitution and lessens his ability to produce his full measure of wealth than malaria."

Dr. W. E. Hinds, state entomologist of Alabama (1912), estimates that 2,000,000 persons in the South are incapacitated because of malaria.

Prof. R. W. Harned, state entomologist of Mississippi says:

"In my opinion the malaria-transmitting mosquitoes are by far the worst pests in this state. I think that their damage is greater than that of the boll weevil and most of the other crop pests combined."

Dead Sea; Apple of Sodom.

The Dead sea is situated in the southeast of Palestine, and is called by the Arabs Bahr Loot, or Sea of Lot. It is about 40 miles long, with an average breadth of nine miles. Its depth varies considerably. It is fed by the Jordan from the north, and by many other streams, but has no apparent outlet, its superfluous water being supposed to be entirely carried off by evaporation. The north shores of the sea are marked by the blackened trunks and branches of trees which are encrusted with salt, as is everything that is exposed to the spray of this sea. On the southern shore is the remarkable mass of rock called Udsum (Sodom). It is a narrow, rugged ridge of hill extending five miles northwest, and consisting of rock salt. To the north of Udsum, and at no great distance, is the supposed site of the ancient Sodom. On the borders of the Dead sea a curious plant grows which yields fruit called the "Apple of Sodom," beautiful on the outside but bitter to the taste, and, when mature, filled with fibre and dust.

Not Figured, Just Decided.

Recently, in a justice court in the state of Kansas, some wheat in the stack had been attached, and it became necessary, through an order of the court, to have the same threshed.

One of the workmen among the threshers put in a voucher for $11, which seemed entirely too high to the court.

The court questioned the workman concerning his labor, and asked him how much he charged per day for his labor. The laborer replied: "Three dollars."

The court then asked him how many days he worked, and the workman replied: "Two days."

The court then asked the laborer how he figured the bill at $11, since he only worked two days at $3 per day.

The witness replied: "I didn't figure it; I just decided on it."—West's Record.

The Lost Roses of Sick Women

Life would be full of hope, and ambition would lighten your labor if you possessed that strength which you have a right to claim from nature.

The glow of youth was yours before health departed, but the vigor of your mind and will force has been sapped by that most treacherous of ills, female disorders. It steals its way, draining the nerve tissues of their strength, taking away the richness from the blood, clogging the mind and reducing mental and bodily activity—it is a serpent in a Garden of Eden.

STELLA-VITAE has put new hope into the hearts of thousands of despairing women every year for the past thirty years. It has renewed their strength, corrected their irregular periods, put the roses of health into their cheeks and given them back the joy of living.

Mrs. Trissie Watson, of Swain, Ark., says:

"After taking only one bottle of STELLA-VITAE I feel better than I have felt for six years. It does away with that dragging, all-gone feeling, so common to women, and I think it will do all that is claimed for it."

STELLA-VITAE will do all that is claimed for it. We are so confident of this and want you to know it so much that we authorize your dealer to sell you a bottle under the positive promise to give back your money if that first bottle does not benefit you.

When you have tried the first bottle and know what it will do you may buy six bottles for $5.00 and continue using until you are again a well woman.

African Boers.

The Transvaal colony is now a part of the British empire, in the same way that Canada or Australia, or Rhodesia is. The Boers are treated precisely as the other people of the empire are treated, and unless the Canadians, and Australians and others are slaves, it cannot be said that the Boers are. The Transvaal colony has local self-government, subject to the imperial parliament in federal matters, and the same may be said of all the other British colonies.

Spiritual.

The new minister in a Western parish was making his first calls, and when he reached the home of the Peevys he said to Mrs. Peevy:

"I don't think that I have seen Mr. Peevy at church yet, have I Sister Peevy?"

"Well, no, you ain't," replied Sister Peevy. "The fact is, Peevy likes to lay abed late of a Sunday morning, and time he get up an' has his breakfast and gets through the Sunday papers an' does his Sunday shavin' an' mebbe an' hour or two of tinkerin' around the house that he allus puts off to do of a Sunday, an' then has a smoke an' mebbe cuts some o' the children's hair or beats rugs for me, or even mops up the kitchen if I'm hurried—time he's done all that it's too late for church. Fact, is Peevy ain't a real spiritual-minded man nohow—at least not the same as I am."—New York Saturday Evening Post.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy, rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A N. Y. young woman writes her experience thus:

"Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

"A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly and as a last resort, I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."
